MAX HANOVER TO BE CHAIRMAN BOY SCOUT FINANCE CAMPAIGN

Max Hanover, vice president of the Eastern Connecticut Council of the Boy Scouts of America, has accepted the chairmanship of the finance campaign to be held in February. Mr. Hanover has been engaged as a worker in practically every campaign held in the city in recent years, but this is his first acceptance of the responsibility of the chairmanship. Among scout men Mr. Hanover is known for his promptness in collecting contributions. The attendance at the Boy Scout dinner in August is ascribed to his tenacity and effort.

Acording to Mr. Hanover, scouting is not a charity, but is an opportunity to invest in the character development and citizenship training of American boyhood. Therefore a dignified, business-like method of building a supporting constituency must be a paramount consideration. The educating of the present contributors to the values of scouting as a program for boys, the cultivating of new subscribers to such an appreciation of the value of this program that they will become permanent supporting members on an annual membership basis, is this council's objective.

A summary of some of the permanent national assets which investments in boy scouting have brought as given by Mr. Hanover are:

A leisure-time educational program for boys, that grips the interest and brings out all that is fine and manly in them.

A code of ethics known as the Scout Oath and Law that sets standards of conduct for boys and adults.

Over 4,000,000 citizens and future citizens who are prepared for their responsibilities through scout training.

A nation-wide body of resourceful boys, organized and prepared to render efficient service in times of disaster and emergency as in the Florida hurricane, the Mississippi flood and the St. Louis tornado.

A national group of adult men of character, over 180,000 in number, who are actively influencing all our boyhood through service to scouting in one or another form of leadership.

An established and outstanding excellent magazine for all boys—Boys' Life, a strong influence among writers and publishers for the production of good literature for boys.

The "best seller" among boys —the Handbook for Boys. More of these books are sold to boys than any other book in the world.

A nation-wide impetus toward outdoor recreation, traceable in large part to scouting. Over 312,000 scouts in summer camps last year; almost as many in winter camps; 500,000 in short term camps.

An appreciable contribution to the nation's better health and larger average span of individual life. 28,046 scouts qualified for the merit badge in personal health, and 19,092 in public health last year.

A steadily increasing number of boys who are safe swimmers and who can save life and meet emergencies. Over 1,400 awards for saving lives have been made by the national court of honor. 9,412 boys qualified in life saving and 17,463 in swimming in one year alone.

A new spirit of service, beginning with the Scout's Daily Good Turn, and expressed in many kinds of civic service to the community and to the nation.

According to Mr. Hanover it takes about $10.00 per boy to keep a boy a scout for one year. In the coming campaign in February the local committee will try to find a thousand people who will make it possible for a thousand boys to be scouts in eastern Connecticut. They will find some who should make it possible for twenty boys to be scouts. They will find others who will have to share a nue the task of obtaining pledges and boy with another.

BOY SCOUTS ARE TO HOLD ALL-CITY HIKE

Next Saturday, an all-city hike will be held for all scouts in Norwich. The hike will have as its goal the old gold mine. The scouts will take the 1:00 o'clock West Side car and go to the end of the line. Leaving the car they will hike to Wauwekus Hill, thence to the mine. Scout Commissioner A. L. Peale has promised to tell the story of the mine. While there a treasure hunt will be staged for "real" treasure, the kind every scout likes. There will be a period for passing tests; weiners and marshmellows will make up the supper. From the gold mine the scouts will hike to Norwich Town and take the trolley there for home. Scouts will bring weiners, marshmallows, food for supper, flashlights and materials to pass tests. The hikers should be home between 7:00 and 8:00 in the evening.

ASKS ADDITIONAL FUNDS FOR STATE DEPARTMENT

Secretary Stimson Appeals Personally to Budget Bureau For Heavy Increase in Conformity With Desires of President Hoover to Strengthen American Diplomatic Machinery—Amount Requested Not Made Public—Programme Calls For Foreign Service Additions, Promotions and Rent Allowances—No Increase in Diplomatic Salaries Anticipated.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 12—(AP)— The desirability of a heavy increase in funds for the state department and American foreign service, in conformity with the desires of President Hoover for strengthening the American diplomatic machinery, has been placed before the budget bureau by Secretary Stimson.

In his armistice day address, the president referred to the inadequacy of the present methods for the Pacific settlement of international disputes and said strengthening of the state department would be the first means taken by the United States to overcome the deficiency.

Secretary Stimson, accompanied by Wilbur J. Carr, assistant secretary in charge of administration, appealed personally to the budget bureau for additional funds. This was the first time that a secretary of state has appeared before the bureau and the secretary expects to appear before the house appropriations committee during the forthcoming hearing on the 1931 estimates.

The amount requested for the state department has not been made public. The president and Mr. Stimson hope that approximately $2,500,000, requested in the three previous years in addition to the $14,744,831 granted, but refused by the budget bureau, will be provided in the coming appropriations.

The additional funds would be employed both for expansion within the department and in the field where the United States is now represented by diplomatic or consular officers.

More than $1,000,000 would be devoted to foreign service additions and promotions, rent allowances, so-called "representations funds," provided to diplomats by the other principal powers, clerk hire in the foreign service and the replacement of some 40 foreign service officers now temporarily assigned to the department by permanent officers.

From the viewpoint of the foreign service, the most important item would be the rent allowance, since the present program anticipates no increase in diplomatic salaries. Great Britain, France, Germany, Italy and Japan provide rent allowances for their diplomatic representatives of virtually all classes in virtually all posts.

Ambassador Dawes in London receives the usual salary of $17,500 annually and a house, but Sir Esme Howard, the British ambassador in Washington receives nearly $90,000 annually and a house. Actually, the British ambassador in Washington receives a salary some $5,000 less than the American ambassador to Great Britain, but the difference in the total received annually is made up by the various allowances provided by the British service.

DISCLOSED PLAN FOR "BLACKENING DEMOCRATS"

WASHINGTON, Nov. 12.— (AP) — Promotion of a plan to put Negro candidates in the race for congress in the north as democrats in order "to hold in line" the southern states which went for Herbert Hoover in the last election, was attributed to J. A. Arnold, manager of the Southern Tariff association, today by the senate lobby committee.

Examined for his seventh day by the committee, Arnold acknowledged correspondence and documents which disclosed the programme for "blackening the democratic party." The correspondence said Arnold had taken the proposal up with Vice President Curtis, who it added, referred the scheme along to President Hoover.

Again accused by Chairman Caraway of the lobby committee of having a "bad case of failing memory," Agnold, after some hesitation, acknowledged his handwriting on some of the mass of additional correspondence produced.

As for the "blackening of the democratic party," Arnold ascribed that scheme to Vance Muse, a field representative of the Southern Tariff association, saying he had told Muse to "go ahead" but that he thought "it was too much of a dream and impossible of application."

A document showing that the idea was to organize the southern republican council and get Negro candidates in the race as democrats for congress in St. Louis, Chicago and New York, was produced by the committee.

"Nothing came of the organization," Arnold said.

The lobby committee tomorrow expects to question Joseph R. Grundy, president of the Pennsylvania Manufacturers' association, and Thomas A. Hill, of Pine Bluff, Ark., treasurer of the National Council of State Legislators. Chairman Caraway announced today that a statement submitted by Grundy in regard to his list of "common and preferred senators" was considered inadequate.

TRAFFIC TIE-UP CAUSES ARREST OF 13 PERSONS

NEW YORK, Nov. 12.—(AP)— Nine men and four women were arrested tonight when traffic became tied up as they were distributing literature announcing a mass meeting for tomorrow night at which Miss Charlotte Tuttle, daughter of United States Attorney Charles H. Tuttle, is scheduled to speak in favor of organizing the employes of exclusive Fifth avenue dressmakers.

"Miss Tuttle," read the circulars, which were being distributed to the employes of Bergdof, Goodman company, at 58th street and Fifth avenue, "is a student at Vassar college, worked in a Chicago factory this summer and is convinced that all trades must be organized."

Pedestrian traffic was tied up at the corner when the police reserves arrived to restore order. Most of the men arrested were students.

"BOSSY" GILLIS ENDORSED BY NEWBURYPORT VOTERS

BOSTON, Nov. 12—(AP)—Andrew J. "Bossy" Gillis, Newburyport's one time talkative mayor, had his administration endorsed today by voters who renominated him for office at the same time that eight other Massachusetts cities were holding their primaries.

Mayor Gillis was nominated with Michael Cashman, a former mayor, over three other opponents. The contest drew the biggest vote ever cast at a primary in Newburyport. The vote was Gillis 2,338; Cashman 1,612; John F. Little, 992; Cutter, 443; Oscar H. Nelson, former mayor, 145. Cashman and Gillis will be the opponents election day, December 3.

PLAN TO INCREASE NUMBER CLEARED RADIO CHANNELS

WASHINGTON, Nov. 12.—(AP)—Six large broadcasting stations including WTIC, Hartford, Conn., joined today in proposing to the federal radio commission a plan by which they said the number of cleared broadcasting channels could be increased without increasing interference but rather reducing it—and without decreasing the number of stations operating.

Louis G. Caldwell, former counsel of the commission, appearing as counsel for the stations, asked that the commission create 10 new channels by reducing the frequency separation between stations from ten to seven and one half kilocycles.

Chairman Robinson of the commission opposed the plan as an effort to make "big stations bigger," adding that his attitude toward cleared channels was so firmly fixed that "nothing could change it." He said that cleared channels invariably were used by powerful and often chain stations, at the sacrifice of regional and location stations.

WOMAN BOOKKEEPER ADMITS ACCOUNTS SHOW DISCREPANCIES

WINTHROP, Me., Nov. 12—(AP)—The story of Mrs. Davenport Berry, 20 year old bookkeeper, that two armed men today entered the office of the Winthrop Woolen mills here, forced her to open the outer door of the safe and robbed her of personal belongings, was scouted tonight by investigating officials.

Mrs. Berry, gagged and apparently unconscious, was found in an office chair by two clerks who entered the building at 8 o'clock this morning.

After a lengthy questioning of Mrs. Berry County Attorney Frank E. Southard, of Augusta, stated tonight that the bookkeeper admitted that her accounts of the weave room production of the mill showed discrepancies of approximately $1,000 covering a period of several weeks.

MUST STAND TRIAL ON SEPARATE CHARGES

MARION, N. C., Nov. 12—(AP)—Alfred Hoffman, an organizer for the United Textile Workers of America, and five others, on trial here, on charges of insurrection and rebellion against the state and with resisting an officer, cannot be tried on a consolidation of the charges, Judge G. Vernon Cowper ruled today, as the trial opened.

Attorneys argued at length over the consolidation but the judge ruled that the trial must proceed on the insurrection and rebellion charges.

Much delay resulted as the legal phases of the trial were being straightened out, but another delay occurred late in the afternoon, when a capias was issued for Will Russell, one of the defendants, when it was found he was not in court.

Russell's absence was not discovered until counsel for defense and state announced themselves ready to proceed with the trial.

MAN SHOOTS HIMSELF AFTER WOUNDING WOMAN

ORLANDO, Fla., Nov. 12—(AP)—Mrs. Cora Leon Eden, divorced wife of the late James Oliver Curwood, the author, was shot and seriously wounded here today by R. C. Paton, 50, of Lima, Ohio. Patton, after shooting Mrs. Eden through the mouth, turned his pistol on himself and was believed dying.

Patton who travels for a Brooklyn metal company, said he went to Mrs. Eden's home today and that she ordered him off the premises by flourishing a pistol. Patton told officers that when he saw the gun in Mrs. Eden's hand he drew his own gun and shot her, turning the weapon upon himself.

Mrs. Eden could not make a statement, due to the nature of her wounds.

PAIS, Nov. 12.—(AP)—Former Premier Clemenceau, tired by his exertions yesterday, shut his doors to all visitors today and spent most of the time in bed.

"It is a good thing that Armistice day comes only once a year, for the man who was most instrumental in bringing it about," Dr. Laubry told newspapermen.

LINDSAY NAMED BRITAIN'S AMBASSADOR TO U. S.

LONDON, Nov. 12—(AP)—Sir Ronald Lindsay, permanent undersecretary of state for foreign affairs, today was appointed ambassador to Washington.

Sir Esme Howard, the present ambassador, whose tenure of the post has been extended beyond the retirement age, will retire early next year.

The first wife of Sir Ronald was Martha Cameron, daughter of former Senator J. Donald Cameron of Pennsylvania. She died in 1918. His second wife, whom he married in 1924, was Elizabeth Shermon Hoyt, daughter of the late Colgate Hoyt of New York.

The new ambassador is 52 years of age and was the fifth son of the 26th Earl of Crawford. He entered the diplomatic service in 1898 and first served at Washington from 1905 to 1907. In 2919 and 1920 he was counsellor of the Washington embassy.

He had been ambassador to Turkey and at Berlin before becoming permanent undersecretary of state in 1928. He had also served at St. Petersburg, Teheran, Paris, The Hague and in Egypt.

NEW AMBASSADOR WELL KNOWN IN WASHINGTON

WASHINGTON, Nov. 12—(AP)—Appointment of Sir Ronald Lindsay to succeed Ambassador Howard was viewed in high administration and diplomatic circles tonight as a compliment to the United States government, evidencing the importance the labor government attaches to Anglo-American relations.

The name of Sir Ronald has been well known in Washington for a number of years, numerous friends having been made by him while attached to the embassy here from 1905 to 1907 and in 1919 and 1920.

Secretary Stimson was not available for comment tonight, having planned a quantine trip in Virginia.

President Hoover is expected to receive Sir Ronald's credentials in February, at which time Sir Esme Howard will retire from the British foreign service.

Sen. Borah Proposes Stock Market Probe

Leader of Republican Independents Suggests Investigation in Answer to Charge That Coalition Majority on Tariff Bill is Responsible.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 12—(AP)—Assailing a complaint that the democratic-republican independent coalition majority in the senate on the tariff bill was responsible for the stock market collapse, Senator Borah of Idaho, suggested today an investigation of the stock exchange in answer.

The Idahoan who is a leader of the republican independents, issued his statement in response to a speech last night before a New York bankers' meeting by Fred I. Kent, a director of the Bankers' Trust company, in which the "activities" of the senate coalition were blamed for the market condition.

"An institution which gets frightened because agriculture is making an honest fight for existence is not worth preserving," said Borah. "But that is not what was the matter with the stock exchange. And likely, Mr. Kent knows more than he wants to tell.

"Since Mr. Kent and his cheering listeners have stated a false reason for the doings on the exchange, it might be well to investigate the exchange and give the people the real facts. If Mr Kent believes what he says, it is a reflection on his intelligence.

"Industry is now in possession of nearly 97 per cent of the home market. And what the coalition, so-called, is undertaking to do is to prevent unconscionable raises in industrial duties which would amount to an embargo. The coalition has made no attack upon the protective system.

"We are simply endeavoring to establish the principle of equality in that system as between agriculture and industry. If equality under the protective system between agriculture and industry shakes the stock exchange to the earth let it go."

SCORES OF ACTIVE STOCKS DROP IN FRESH COLLAPSE

NEW YORK, Nov. 12—(AP)—A fresh collapse in stock prices today sent nearly 200 issues on the New York Stock exchange crashing to new low levels for the year.

Net declines in scores of active stocks ranged from $2 to nearly $20 a share, with a sprinkling of ordinarily inactive specialties down all the way from $25 to $106 a share.

So great was the volume of trading that the stock exchange ticker did not stop running until 2 hours and 12 minutes after the three hour session had ended. The day's sales were 6,452,700 shares, as contrasted with 3,867,150 yesterday.

The market closed with most stocks at or near the day's low levels, offering little hope that the flood of liquidation which has wiped out many billions of dollars in quoted values since the first bad break of October 24 had run its course. Scores of issues closed today at prices which represent only a small fraction of the year's high levels. No responsible person in Wall street would venture a prediction as to how much longer the decline would run.

Wall street sought vainly to find out what, if anything, was over-hanging the market as wild and unconfirmed rumors flew thick and fast through the streets of the financial district. One of the most persistent of these rumors, namely that Charles E. Mitchell would relinquish the chairmanship of the National City bank board of directors, was officially denied by Percy A. Rockefeller, a director and large stockholder in the bank, who characterized the report as "absurd."

In the absence of any strikingly adverse trade, business or financial news, Wall street concluded that distress liquidation had not yet been completed, but failed to locate its source. It was regarded as inevitable that a series of declines such as have taken place in the past fortnight, without any sustained rally in the interval, would force the closing out of weakened marginal accounts which survived the original break.

The market opened lower for the sixth successive session as blocks of 5,000 to 50,000 shares were dumped overboard. A rally started in the second hour but quickly petered out and prices tumbled again as heavy selling was resumed in the last hour.

U. S. Steel common, American Can, General Electric, National Biscuit, New York Central, Union Pacific, American Water Works and Public Service of New Jersey were in the long list of issues to break to new low levels for the year.

No meeting of the New York banking group was held today and its spokesmen made no comment on the situation. It previously had been pointed out that the function of the group was not to check the decline in stocks, but to assure an orderly market, and prevent, if possible, wide-open breaks such as took place in the first wave of panicky selling last month.

DOLLEY GOES TO TRIAL ON BRIBERY CHARGE

LOS ANGELES, Calif., Nov. 12.—(AP)—Eunice Pringle, 17-year-old accuser of Alexander Pantages, theatre multi-millionaire who has been sentenced to serve one to fifty years in prison for assaulting her, appeared in superior court today as a witness in another trial growing out of the one in which Pantages was convicted.

The case was that of Harold Dolley, former federal prohibition agent, who went on trial before Superior Judge Emmet H. Wilson, on charges of attempting to bribe and tamper with a witness in the theatre man's trial. The witness, Ivan Samsanoff, accused Dolley of attempting to bribe him to give testimony that would blacken the character of Miss Pringle, a dancer.

STUDENTS HURT IN BATTLE WITH POLICE

PRINCETON, N. J., Nov. 12.—(AP)—Two students of Princeton university were slightly injured tonight in a riot between the student body and police. The riot broke out following the annual cane spree between the freshmen and sophomores.

Fleeing Convict Shot And Killed Woman

Bullet Fired at Police Officer During Gun Battle Fatally Wounds Mother Wheeling Baby Carriage on Brooklyn Sidewalk.

NEW YORK, Nov. 12—(AP)— George Small, one of four convicts who escaped from Auburn prison during a revolt of 1700 convicts, last July, was shot and seriously wounded today by a Brooklyn policeman after bullets fired by Small at the policeman had killed Mrs. Ruth Sumner, 30. The woman was wheeling her baby in a carriage on the sidewalk.

At Brooklyn hospital, Small, whose home is in Roxbury, Mass., was said to be in a critical condition. He was shot in the right side and back.

The shooting followed an attempt by Small and a companion to holdup a garage. One of the men called a policeman and the two robbers fled. Small commandeered an automobile and ordered the owner to drive away. Police, in commandeered automobiles followed.

The pursuit continued for two miles through Brooklyn streets, the police and Small exchanging shots intermittently. Intercepted by Patrolman Harold Fisher, Small jumped from the car and fired at the patrolman, aiming unsteadily. A woman was heard to scream and the crowd of women shoppers saw Mrs. Sumner fall. She was dead when an ambulance surgeon arrived.

Patrolman Fisher fired two shots at Small and the robber dropped. He was taken to Brooklyn hospital.

Small, characterized as the "master mind" of a gang of holdup men specializing in diamond robberies, was sent to Auburn prison after a series of "big time" robberies. He was sentenced by Judge Allen to serve 12 years on his plea of guilty to an indictment charging robbery in the second degree.

SENATE MAY ADJOURN WITHOUT TARIFF ACTION

Adjournment Week Before Regular Session In December Regarded as Likely Outcome of Conferences By Various Group Leaders—Tariff Bill Debate Would Be Resumed After Disposition of the Vare Case—Proposal to Restore Shingles to the Free List Will Come Up For Vote Today.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 12—(AP)—Adjournment of the senate for a week's respite from the long grind on the tariff bill before the opening of the regular session December 2 was regarded as the likely outcome of conferences begun today by various group leaders.

The only faction that appeared opposed to the move was the republican insurgents, who will meet tomorrow in an effort to reach a decision.

Senator Simmons of North Carolina, who, as ranking minority member of the tariff-framing finance committee speaks for his party on this issue, said he favored adjourning November 23 to give senators a little time to attend to personal business and to rest up for the winter session.

Chairman Smoot of the committee, spokesman for the republican regulars on the tariff, acquiesced and said if the prevailing sentiment seemed to be for an adjournment a week before Thanksgiving he would make a motion himself to end the special session November 21 or 22.

Senator Borah of Idaho, a leader of the republican independent group, which is rewriting the tariff along with a majority of democrats, said a week was a long time to waste with the tariff bill in its present state, but indicated there probably would be no serious objection to the early adjournment if it was moved on personal rather than political grounds. He said the western republicans would meet tomorrow to attempt to agree on the adjournment question.

Smoot predicted that with such an adjournment the senate could resume consideration of the tariff after disposition of the Vare case, the first order of business for the December session, and with the coalition in control, pass the bill before Christmas.

The only action on rates taken today by the senate before it began an incompleted debate on the shingle tariff question was to lower present duties all along the line on tinsel wire and articles made of this and similar material. Senator Tydings, democrat, Maryland, was successful in moves to lower existing rates on tinsel wire, lame or lahn, bullions and metal threads made of these articles and woven fabrics manufactured from the same materials. The finance committee republicans had recommended only the elimination of increases proposed by the house.

Reaching the wood schedule after an understanding was reached to take up the watch and clock duties of the metals groups tomorrow Senator Jones, acting republican leader, and Dill, a democrat, both of Washington, led an assault on the finance committee's action in knocking out the 21 per cent ad valorem duty on shingles proposed by the house and restoring them to the free list where they have been since 1913.

A vote on this item, which has figured prominently throughout the tariff hearings and floor debates, was deferred until tomorrow when Senator Walsh, democrat, Massachusetts, will speak. He and Senator Thomas, of Oklahoma, are in charge of the wood schedule for the democrats, both being members of the finance committee.

As a large majority of the democrats and independent republicans are expected to support the committee's recommendation, indications tonight were that the Washington senators had waged a losing battle.

Senator Jones said shingles came within the scope of the tariff recommendations of President Hoover and since thousands of persons in the northwest depended on the success of this industry and imports were large from Canada, there should be no objection to a duty.

CHARGES STOCK SOLD AT INFLATED PRICES

NEW YORK, Nov. 12.—(AP)—Assistant United States Attorney George J. Mintzer announced today after beginning an investigation of the Bankers' Capital corporation, which failed Monday with debts aggregating a million dollars, that the firm was head of a chain of 18 corporations, each of which, he charged, sold its stock to the others at inflated prices.

The investigation, Mr. Mintzer said, was undertaken to ascertain whether the mails had been used in a scheme to defraud. He said many complaints were received by the federal attorney's office since the company was petitioned into bankruptcy by the Superior Credit corporation, of Worcester, Mass.

The investigation revealed, Mr. Mintzer said, that Harold Gunder was chairman of the boards of all the 18 companies, his brother Philip Gunder, was vice president and W. C. Hopkins was comptroller of all the companies.

The chain of firms included the Superior Credit corporation, and the Bankers' Financial Trust company, Eastern Bankers' corporation, Gunder Common Law Trust company, Indiana Investment Estate, Financial Stocks Estate and Atlas Finance corporation, Mr. Mintzer said, all with offices at 1 Exchange place, Jersey City, N. J.

Other companies in the chain were the Bankers Capital company of Connecticut, of Bridgeport, New Haven, Hartford and Waterbury, Conn.; American Fiduciary corporation, of Bridgeport; the Delaware General Finance corporation, of Wilmington, Del.; Superior Finance corporation, of New York, and Pyle and Gunder, of South Bend, Ind.

Each of the companies, Mr. Mintzer said, had carried as assets the stocks of the other companies at greatly inflated prices.

McMANUS TRIAL GOES OVER UNTIL NOV. 18

NEW YORK, Nov. 12.—(AP)—The trial of George A. McManus, charged with the murder of his gambler associate, Arnold Rothstein, today was delayed again and when called next Monday may face still further delay.

The case was called for trial in general sessions today with a "blue ribbon" panel of 150 talesmen, judge, prosecutors, defendant and counsel and some 60 reporters in attendance but was soon adjourned until Nov. 18, when the state announced one of its important witnesses was ill in a Milwaukee hospital.

If the ailing witness, Alvin C. Thomas, better known as "Titanic" Thompson because of the alleged large way in which he plays at games of chance, is not present Monday, the state will ask further delay.

Thomas, so the police story goes, was sitting in at the high spade game some two weeks before Rothstein was shot, where the slain man lost some $300,000 to McManus and others. The state has intimated that the motive for the shooting which it charges was done by McManus, lies in Rothstein's alleged repudiation of these gambling debts on the grounds that he had been cheated.

GOV. ROOSEVELT PROPOSES NEW PRISON PROGRAMME

ALBANY, N. Y., Nov. 12—(AP)—Proposals for a new prison building programme, the reduction of prison populations at Dannemora, Auburn and Sing Sing, limitation of the size of the prison at Attica, and increase in appropriations for prisoners' food, were made by Governor Roosevelt in an address here tonight.

The governor who spoke at the convention of the New York State Federation of Women's clubs, said these proposals will be embodied on recommendations to the state legislature.

"We find that the state now has 8,368 prisoners in accommodations intended for only 5,482," the governor said.

FOOD SHIP IMMUNITY GAINS WIDE INTEREST

WASHINGTON, Nov. 12—(AP)—Popular reaction to President Hoover's advocacy of granting food bearing ships immunity in war time, today eclipsed that which has attended any of his previous expressions on international relations, but noise of caution were sounded in unofficial expressions abroad.

Messenger after messenger arrived at the executive offices with congratulatory telegrams, which were matched by favorable comments on Capitol hill. In some places abroad, however, unofficial commentators saw difficulties because of the use of which some foods might be put in the manufacture of munitions.

Describing the president's suggestion as an excellent one, Chairman Hale of the senate naval committee, said it remained to be seen whether it could be worked out in practicality.

Senator Swanson, of Virginia, ranking democrat on the foreign relations and naval committees, said the proposition "is worthy of serious consideration and if accepted by all nations would be promotive of peace and would reduce the hardships and brutalities of war."

"If in time of war the starvation of women and children and those not responsible for war could be eliminated, I think it would be a glorious consummation," said Senator Johnson, of California, ranking republican on the foreign relations committee.

Senator Norris, republican independent, of Nebraska, said he thought it would be a fine idea and a "humanitarian effort to eliminate food ships from war if it is possible."

While declining to comment on its feasibility, Speaker Longworth praised the "humanitarianism" behind the president's suggestion and said Mr. Hoover had advanced the thought in a "statesman-like manner."

Chairman Borah, of the senate foreign relations committee, declined to comment.

Senator McKellar, democrat, Tennessee, described the idea as "most laudable," but said it ought to be included in the agenda of the conference at London.

Cut Out Of Traffic—Collision

About 2:15 o'clock Monday afternoon on the Colchester-New London road, 3 1-2 miles south of Colchester Center, a new Ford delivery truck bearing Conn. registration 29683, owned by the Lowe's Cleaners and Dyers of 191 North Bank street, New London, collided with a Cadillac sedan, Conn. registration N3884, said to have been occupied by the owner and his wife, whose names were not given out. The accident happened a few hundred feet north of the Max Neidle farmhouse. The truck, said to have been operated by the owner, accompanied by his son, was traveling at a reported fast rate of speed toward Colchester and in attempting to pass the Cadillac, the lighter car struck the left front fender and bumper of the sedan and finally landing bottom up in the ditch at the side of the roadway. The driver of the Cadillac turned his car sharp to the left in an effort to avoid the collision and in so doing his car went head-on through a highway railing, coming to a standstill among the rocks and bushes at the roadside. Dr. E. J. Howland, of Colchester, was called and cared for the occupants of the Ford who were somewhat cut and bruised about the body. The occupants of the Cadillac escaped injury. Although the sedan only sustained a bent fender, the panel body on the Ford was badly damaged. The case is under investigation, it being reported that the driver of the Ford admitted that he was in the wrong.

Flags were displayed in front of many of the residences about the village Monday, Armistice day. Some of the places of business were closed during the afternoon. The graded schools were closed all day, but the academy held session as usual.

The Late Rev. H. A. Blake

The Bulletin noted Tuesday the death Thursday last of Rev. Henry A. Blake at his home in Winsted, Conn., after a short illness. Rev. Mr. Blake was pastor of Colchester Congregational church from 1912 to 1918 during which time he made many friends here and in surrounding towns. He was a very energetic worker for his church and always took an interest in any project for the betterment of the community. He was an unusually active member of the Village Improvement society, interested in the progress of the public library, the schools and the various civic organizations. He was a man endowed with an unusually cordial manner and won friends in all denominations.

After leaving Colchester, he held pastorates in Kent, Hartford and Winsted. Mr. Blake had been married twice. His first wife, Clara Louise Penniman, died a few years after they left Colchester. In 1926, he married Mrs. E. L. Baldwin who, with a son, Walter P. Blake, survive him.

SCOUTS APPLY FOR USE OF SCHOOL ROOM FOR MEETINGS

The Boy Scouts have made an application to the town school committee for permission to use one of the rooms in the Borough school for weekly meetings. The club now meets in the basement of Grace church and it is said there is some opposition to having the troop meet here. The matter of securing quarters in the Boys' club building has been considered but nothing has come of it. The troop now numbers about forty.

Favorable reports continue to be received from Mrs. F. S. Brick, who is ill at a hospital in Boston.

Has the laxative in your home a family doctor's approval?

MOST of us value our health too much to purposely neglect ourselves when we are warned of constipation by bad breath, feverishness, biliousness, a headache, lack of appetite, or that weak, helpless feeling. The continuation of our trouble is more often due to the things we do rather than the things we leave undone.

Some things people do to help the bowels really weaken these organs. Only a doctor knows what things will cleanse the system without harm. That's why the laxative in your home should have a family doctor's approval.

A wonderful product now known to millions of people as Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin is a family doctor's prescription for sluggish bowels. It never varies from the original prescription which Dr. Caldwell wrote thousands of times in his many years of practice at Monticello, Illinois. He proved it safe and reliable for women and children; thoroughly effective for the most robust men. He showed it actually corrects constipation. It is made from fresh herbs and other pure ingredients.

Since Dr. Caldwell first permitted his prescription to be put up in bottles and sold through drug stores, it has increased steadily in popularity until today it is the largest selling laxative in the world!

DANIELSON

TWO FINED BY JUDGE IN KILLINGLY COURT

(Special to The Bulletin)

DANIELSON, Nov. 12.—This morning Ernest Shauffleur resident in that isolated section of the town north of the Chase reservoir, was before Judge W. Fenner Woodward in the town court to answer to charges of assault with a dangerous weapon and breach of the peace. The charges grew out of his having fired shots at about midnight last Thursday night that frightened Hiram Warren and George Butts, residents at East Killingly, while they were engaged in changing a tire on the car in which they had been riding at a point about an eighth of a mile from the Shauffleur farm.

The accused admitted shooting, but said that he fired the shots in the air after hearing dogs barking and for the reason that there have been disturbances about his hen coops. Butts admitted that he could not see the Shauffleur house from where he and Warren were at the time the shots were fired, and the assumption follows that Shauffleur could not see them and therefore did not fire at them. The court found Shauffleur not guilty on the assault charge, but guilty of breach of the peace by reason of the accused having used indecent language to Butts and Warren. The fine on this count was $5. Shauffleur took an appeal. He was represented by Attorney Harry E. Back.

Another case disposed of at this morning's session of the town court was that of Paul Piz of Moosup, charged with failure to grant the right of way. He was fined $5 and costs by Judge Woodward, a total of $15.50. Piz's car figured in an accident at the week end at the junction of North Main and Main streets. He was ordered into court by the state officer that investigated the case.

Headquarters for Danielson chapter of the American Red Cross were opened today at Woodward's store and will be continued there throughout the week, during which time the annual roll call will be underway. Today, Miss Ada King was in charge. Wednesday Mrs. George M. Burroughs will be in charge at headquarters, while on Thursday Miss Marion D. Chollar will be there, with Mrs. Henry D. Crosby in charge on Friday and Mrs. Albert Abbott on Saturday. Field workers began in earnest today to cover the entire borough and the West Side and Brooklyn Center and to enroll members. The degree of success achieved today promises well for the annual effort.

Members of the American Legion and its auxiliary today expressed their gratification and elation over the success of the Armistice day observance here. Some of them, too, looking forward to other years voiced their viewpoints relative to future observances. It is possible that next year's observance, while impressive, may not be on this year's scale, but that two years hence an Armistice day celebration even surpassing that of yesterday will be arranged to be held here.

At the final registered shoot of the season under the auspices of the Danielson Rod and Gun club at the club's grounds on the old Dyer place, off the Wauregan road, H. E. Lancey of Leominster, Mass., was high in the 100 16-target event with a score of 95. H. C. Barstow and George K. Keith tied for second place with 94, and E. C. Griffith was third with 93. In the 50-target distance handicap, H. C Barstow and W. J. Stainton tied for first place with 44, while L. S. Ingalls Charles F. Peabody and Dr. F. P Todd tied for second with 43. In the doubles Barstow won with 43, Griffith was second with 42, and Tebo was third with 41.

The detail of the scores is as follows: 100 16-yard targets—H. E. Lancey, 95; H. C. Barstow, 94; George K. Keith, 94; E. C. Griffith, 93; E. A. Underwood, 92; A. E. Wordell, 92; L. S. Ingalls, 89; C. F. Peabody, 89; John B. Tebo, 88; W. J. Stainton, 87; George L. Ingalls, 86; Dr. F. P. Todd, 85; Victor Gastaldi, 76; George B. Prest, 72. Fifty-distance event—H. C. Barstow, 44; W. J. Stainton, 44; L. S. Ingalls, 43; C. F Peabody, 43; Dr. F. P. Todd, 43; G. K. Keith, 42; H. E. Lancey, 41; E. A. Underwood, 41; G. B. Prest, 36; E. C. Griffith, 35; J. B. Tebo, 35; Victor Gastaldi, 30. Fifty-doubles—Barstow, 43; Griffith, 42; Tebo, 41; Stainton, 40; Keith, 30.

Rev. Henry M. Coolidge, new pastor of the Congregational church at South Killingly, has spent uch of his time the past few weeks in traveling through the territory served by this church, getting in touch with families having a special interest in its activities. Rev. Mr. Coolidge has found upwards of 80 such families. The territory he has covered is largely in the eastern section of Killingly. The church at South Killingly dates back to the 18th century and is, therefore, one of the oldest in this section.

Members of Sarah Williams Danielson chapter, D. A. R., are interested in the National Defense regional luncheon of eastern Connecticut chapters of the order to be held at the Mohican hotel in New London on Wednesday of this week. Mrs. William Sherman Walker, vice-president general and national chairman, is to address the meeting.

As mid-November approaches the drought that began early last summer continues to inflict inconveniences on numbers of people in various outlying sections of the town. Wells remain dry. Water for stock has to be hauled for varying distances. Such rain as the last three weeks has brought has been insufficient to replenish the water supply to anything like normal.

This afternoon members of the Ladies' Prayer circle held a meeting with Mrs. K. A. Parble at her home on Broad street.

This afternoon at 2 o'clock at L. E. Kennedy's funeral home, services for Alvah Clemons were conducted by Rev. A. E. Gallup, pastor of the Danielson Nazarene church. Burial was in the South cemetery at Brooklyn. Bearers were Frank Clemons, William Clemons, Samuel Clemons and George Paine.

A representative of the concern, out of Hartford, that is working with the Merchants' committee of the Danielson chamber of commerce to effect a special lighting arrangement for Danielson's business section during the holiday season is scheduled to be here Wednesday. His visitation and conference with the committee mentioned and business men will determine whether or not the special illuminating proposition can be worked out. It was stated today that the great majority of the business houses located northerly of the Main street crossing of the New Haven road have signed up. Several south of the crossing also have agreed to co-operate. It is understood that the Hartford concern will install the equipment and the lights, pay for the electrical energy and take the lights down at a cost to each subscriber to the service of 50 cents a front foot. The service, if installed, is to be maintained from Dec. 11 to the New Year period. It is significant that the Danielson district headquarters of the Connecticut Light & Power Co. figures this such an advantageous proposition that the management here will allow the Hartford concern to do its holiday decorative lighting instead of doing the work with its own line force.

It appeared probable today that business houses north of Main street crossing will generally enter into the lighting arrangement, and it is hoped that the service can be extended to the business places in the area southerly of the crossing.

A program of old songs will be one feature of the monthly meeting of the Men's club of the Methodist Episcopal church on Wednesday evening.

Directresses of the Ladies' Benevolent society of the Westfield Congregational church for November are: Mrs. H. S. Dowe, Mrs. H. D. Crosby, Mrs. W. F. Bidwell Mrs. Charles M. Smith, Mrs. George Prentice, Mrs. J. H. Milligan Miss Carrie Chamberlin and Mrs. J. H. Smith.

The next meeting of the Fortnightly club is scheduled to be held with Mrs. E. H. Keach of Broad street Tuesday of next week.

This afternoon, from 2 to 4 o'clock, a Well Child conference was held at the Health station in the town hall building.

Friday afternoon members of the Roundabout club will be guests at the home of Mrs. Mabel Leavens in Brooklyn.

The annual inspection of Mary A. Livermore tent, Daughters of Union Veterans of the Civil War, is to be held in G. A. R. hall Friday evening of this week. A supper is to be served prior to the meeting and inspection.

For the next three days local people who annually assist in the Thanksgiving offering for the Day Kimball hospital at Putnam will be leaving bags filled with gifts of vegetables, canned goods and other things of value to the institution at Gallup's market.

A quilt will be "tacked" when members of the Ladies' Benevolent society hold an all-day meeting at the Westfield Congregational church on Wednesday.

Jerome A. Wurtz returned to his home in Springfield today after visiting with friends in Danielson for several days.

Marriages showed a decrease in Oklahoma in 1928, while there were more divorces than in 1927.

NO DEVELOPMENTS IN RECTORY BURGLAR CASE

(Special to The Bulletin)

PUTNAM, Nov. 12.— No developments in the investigation of the break and robbery committed Monday morning at the rectory of St. Mary's church on Providence street were forthcoming late today. Captain William J. Jarvis and Officer Joseph G. Page were busy today running down clues gathered yesterday at the rectory after the theft. The primary objective of the police at the present time, according to Captain Jarvis is to ascertain the manner in which the thief or thieves gained entrance to the home of the clergymen. The police head said this morning he believed it impossible to tamper with the type of lock and since his contention is upheld by others who are authorities, it appears as though one of the doors on the house must have been left unlatched. Captain Jarvis was noncommittal today when asked if he held any suspicion as to the identity of the robbers. Criminal statistics on file as the police station were thoroughly examined yesterday with an aim to ferreting ou tthe whereabouts of local "bad boys" at the time the thefts are believed to have taken place. This method in the past has been instrumental in the apprehension of offenders of this nature.

There is general speculation on the fact that the three sleeping clergymen were undisturbed during the time that the robbery was in progress. This would substantiate the contention of Captain Jarvis and Rev. U. O. Bellerose, pastor, that the work was performed by so-called professionals thoroughly familiar with their practice.

Captain Jarvis asserted today that he will be assisted in the investigation by Acting County Detective Rowe H. Wheeler, of Willimantic, whose ability as a sleuth gained much recognition during the undoing of the famous Jackson murder case, taking place almost a year ago in Willimantic.

ROBBERY AT GROSVENORDALE SIMILAR TO RECTORY BREAK

(Special to The Bulletin)

PUTNAM, Nov. 12.— Working on several clues, Lieut. Ross V. Urquhart and Sergt. George L. Gardner of the state police barracks at Danielson, continued their investigation of the burglary committed yesterday at the home of John Demetri, alias "Johnson," in North Grosvenordale in which money, jewelry and other valuables were taken, including clothes of the owner, which amounted to $700.

Demetri told investigators Monday morning that he arrived home at a late hour Sunday evening and retired after he had locked all doors in his house. A wallet in his trousers contained about $360.00 he said, and a handful of change amounting to about $22 was on his bureau. Upon awakening shortly before 10 o'clock Monday morning, he discovered that his trousers which usually reposed on the chair at his bedside had disappeared. Astounded, he jumped out of bed and made a search of the room but failed to locate his trousers, silver or jewelry. He also found that his clothes press had been rifled of several shirts, suit, topcoat and overcoat. He called the state officers at Danielson. The finding of several pieces of Demetri's wearing apparel along the state highway provided a trail for a short distance.

Sergt Gardner carefully examined prominent pieces of furniture in the house where the victim slept but found no evidence of fingerprints. The officer was unable to discern marks of any weapon being utilized to force an entrance. The door fastened with a Yale lock, and window frames were intact. Following the investigation of the North Grosvenordale break Sergt Gardner late yesterday afternoon compared his findings with those of Captain of Police William Jarvis of this city, in connection with the break and robbery at the rectory of St Mary's church. The facts in both cases were identical and substantiate the belief of the police that the robberies were planned and executed by professionals.

Deputy Game Warden George Lundstrom, of North Grosvenordale, for a number of years an officer of this department of the state law enforcement bureau, has tendered his resignation to Chief Warden Thomas G. Daniels of Plainfield. The county game officials as yet have made no appointment to fulfill the vacancy.

A session of probate court was held this morning in the chambers of Judge Henry N. Benoit for the purpose of hearing the application of Aldeas Martin of South Meadow street in which he petitioned the court to remove his wife, Mrs. Bella Martin, of this city, as guardian of their minor child, Aldeas, Jr., aged 3. THE NEXT BUDGET

Whether it will be possible for the president to have the federal budget for 1930 kept within the amount in the 1929 budget remains to be seen. He has let it be known that he desires such action and from the statement that has been made that the next budget will provide for a total of $3,830,000,000 it might seem that the aim would be accomplished, but the budget that is presented to congress and the one that leaves it are often far apart.

In the framing of the new budget it has been possible to keep within the amount that was appropriated for the present fiscal year. The amount is less by about $110,000,000 but those who prepare the budget do not have the final say as to the amount and there is no telling what changes congress will make in it. If congress goes on one of its spending orgies, it could quickly appropriate sums that would exceed that difference and keep going. Whether it would be in a mood to listen to pleas for keeping down needless expenditures is a question.

Much concern is going to be displayed in the outcome of the naval conference that is to be held the first of the year in London. There is the possibility that the action taken there will make it possible to reduce naval appropriations. On the occasion of a recent visit to the Ohio river, where a valuable improvement has been completed, President Hoover referred to the grand opportunity for continuing such work along the rivers in the center of the country and directed attention to the possibility of utilizing the equivalent of funds which have previously been poured into naval construction for the betterment of inland waterways. The London conference may show that to be entirely possible.

In comparison of the budget to be presented to congress with the last one at the time of presentation, it is seen that the new one is about $50,000,000 larger. It might be so that congress would take this into consideration in making appropriations but experience shows that that is by no means the rule. The regular session of congress will, however, be the one to deal with this problem.

REDUCING POLLUTION

The need of cleaning up and purifying rivers is getting recognition in more states than this. The situation that exists in many instances is such as to make it apparent that action has been delayed too long already. Conditions which have been bad have grown worse. Reluctance to do anything has been encountered in some instances, handicaps for lack of necessary funds have prevailed in others and a feeling that there is no need for hurry characterizes others.

For the purpose of bettering conditions in the Naugatuck river the city of Torrington has voted $70,000 for the construction of a sewage disposal plant. This will not solve the entire problem in that stream, but it will help. It is in keeping with the example which was set some time ago by Wallingford in authorizing such a plant for that community. These do not represent the largest communities of the state but they indicate a desire to do the right thing and they are taking steps which others will eventually come to if they haven't already done so.

In the neighboring state of Rhode Island stress is being laid upon the purification of its rivers and the state board in charge of such work has ordered the city of Woonsocket to build a sewage disposal plant. That city has haggled over this work for a long time. The political situation there has made it difficult to make much headway and, in addition, it has created a financial situation which has served to complicate matters. Woonsocket authorities are divided as to what the expenditure should be and are faced with the outlay of $400,000 to meet the requirements.

The task of ending the pollution of streams is a big one but it can be met in a satisfactory manner if done gradually. It is a big proposition for any city to undertake to reconstruct its whole sewage system and send its sewage to a disposal plant instead of to the river, but if steps are taken to prevent any increase and gradually reduce the existing pollution a general improvement is bound to result. And in such a matter the right disposition goes a long way toward a solution.

THREE UNWISE TEACHERS

Under ordinary circumstances it might be expected that three school teachers could take care of themselves when out for a walk, but when they failed to return at night it was a logical conclusion that something had happened to them and there was nothing surprising in the organization of a party to search for them. Crimes are so frequent these days that the possibility of them is at once thought of when people fail to appear as expected.

It so happened that the school teachers were able to take care of themselves, but it cannot be said that they used good judgment in the course they followed. They started out for a walk from Croton-on-Hudson with no particular objective in view. They enthused over the delightful weather and the countryside and it was the suggestion of one of them that they go to Albany by the hitch-hiking method. It appealed and they proceeded. Feeling secure in their safety, they gave no thought as to what alarm their absence might cause, but when they failed to return there was much concern. It was considered wise to start a search. This brought no results that night. The next day the Boy Scouts were enlisted in the search, the fire department was called out, many citizens joined the search and even airplanes were brought into use in an endeavor to discover the young women, dead or alive. The second day's quest was fruitless and only when the teachers reached home on the night of the second day was the situation cleared up.

All is well that ends well, but the folly of such conduct is easily understood when it is realized what effect that needless search may have upon some subsequent disappearance when the services of a searching party are actually needed. All could easily have been avoided had the teachers given a bit of thought about those who would naturally miss them. Perhaps they felt that such interest and worry was unnecessary, and so it proved, but it is the reaction that it is bound to have on other cases, where worry is justified, that may hurt. The fact is that school teachers should have been the very ones to prevent any such alarm, and if other searching efforts there fall flat they will have to shoulder the blame.

COULD YOU?

Could you walk into a carpenter shop where shavings are as thick as leaves, light a cigarette and drop the match without thinking of the possible consequences of such an act?

Could you get out of an automobile and strike a match at the rear where gasoline was being pumped in without doing a bit of mental figuring as to the probable results?

Could you toss a lighted match or a cigarette into a box or barrel of papers or rubbish in a hallway without being confronted with the vision of the serious consequences involved?

Could you exercise the same freedom in the use of firebrands at points where a known fire hazard exists without feeling the responsibility of doing everything possible to prevent any trouble from your conduct?

Probably not, but there are those who not only could but do, if we are to judge them by their acts, and they are responsible for that large proportion of needless fires which occur daily, weekly and yearly, wiping out lives and property.

Reports concerning the destruction of three airplanes in Hartford state that it is believed that those who had visited the machines just a short time before caused the fire through the discarding of a match or cigarette. If such were the case it stands out as a rank piece of carelessness.

There is much criticism offered because restrictions are established prohibiting the public from entering certain factories. There is even more heard because farmers post their land and forbid trespassing thereon, and yet when consideration is given to the way in which the people misuse the privileges allowed them, and show an utter disregard for the proper protection of property, there can be no surprise at such action. It is the natural reaction to their conduct.

THE INTERNATIONAL BANK

As far back as the days when the Young plan was being considered in Europe there were wires being pulled to obtain the location of the Bank of International Settlements, the institution which is to handle the reparations. It was wanted at London. It was sought in Paris and there were not many cities in eastern Europe that did not harbor the desire for it. Brussels it was thought stood a good chance of getting it, but it has been finally decided to locate it in Switzerland, probably at Zurich.

As in many compromises this is a case where all the probable selections were abandoned and an outsider was agreed upon. There was opposition to the various other suggested locations which made it apparent that there could be no agreement that would be unanimous and in the establishment of such an institution in which all were interested much importance rested upon avoiding friction.

There have been developments at the conferences which have made it apparent that picking a location for the bank would not be easy. Other countries remembered the British attitude at The Hague in demanding and forcing concessions from the other countries. That was enough, if nothing else existed, to establish a barrier to the British desire to have the bank placed in London. The various countries had their favorites, aside from their own cities, but the agreement upon Switzerland, and probably Zurich, means the choice of a neutral and an important financial capital, but not approximating any one of several others. It took a considerable time to get a decision but there was the realization that if there were to be such an institution, and that had been agreed upon, there must first be a location for it. Now the next step can be taken.

A CLEVER GIRL

The first day Edna saw Tom Wallace, the new office manager and her immediate superior, she decided he was the best looking individual she had ever seen. By the end of the first month she was sure he was the most intellectual, capable and altogether delightful person it had ever been her good fortune to know.

To have Tom recognize in her a kindred spirit—a woman as efficient, intellectual and understanding almost as himself, became her immediate aspiration. To have him ask her out to dinner some night after work was an aspiration she cherished for some future day, when he should have had time to realize all her good points.

To that ultimate end Edna bent her most earnest efforts and her most painstaking ingenuity. She welcomed chances for "showing off" her masculine point of view, for dealing with important business men who came to the office in her competent, businesslike way, of discussing problems not only concerned with the work in which they were engaged, but also with policies, economics and current events.

Then, joy of joys, Edna had an unexpected chance to play what she considered her trump card. Tom Wallace was called out of town for several days.

"Don't worry about the work," Edna told him brightly. "I'll see that everything is attended to."

And she did. She did it so efficiently that, when Tom returned, there wasn't a speck of back work to make up. Now—now, she felt—But instead of the longed-for invitation to dinner all Tom offered was:

"I really can't tell you, Miss Manning, how much this means to me. It makes me feel I can always depend upon you."

Though disappointed, Edna felt that the first milestone at least had been passed. He had said he could depend upon her. And then, the very next day, out of a clear sky, the thunderbolt descended.

There came to work in the office a person destined to bring all Edna's carefully planned schemes crashing about her head—Miss Daisy Diantha Deming, the girl from another department, sent up to help Edna during the rush season.

Daisy Diantha was all that Edna was not. She was filmy, she wore her hair in golden ringlets, she smiled sweetly at the most pressing moments of business, she wore colors that accentuated the roses in her cheeks and the violets in her eyes, she frequently asked to "leave early" to keep an engagement, she flirted, she did nothing she could possibly avoid doing and—the blow that sent Edna's dreams crashing earthward—she drew Tom Wallace to her as the moon draws the tides.

It seemed to Edna that at every opportunity Tom stopped to talk to Daisy and they chatted and laughed together like old friends. And about a week after her arrival Daisy Diantha calmly announced to Edna one afternoon:

"I wish to leave early today, Miss Manning. Tom Wallace wants me to have supper with him and—"Edna heard no more.

"Of course," she responded frigidly. "Of course you may leave whenever Mr. Wallace wishes you to." As the thinly, golden-haired, thoroughly useless person wafted out of the office, Edna flopped down, buried her head on her desk and wept as though her heart would break.

So this was what all her work and efficiency had meant—she was just a machine, taken for granted, while this little chit of a girl who couldn't correctly add a column of figures had won, with her big pansy blue eyes, her smart clothes and her helplessness what all Edna's cleverness had lost. Edna wept and wept. Suddenly a hand was laid on her shoulder.

"Miss Manning— Edna —my dear little girl, what on earth is the matter?" Edna raised a tear-streaked face and looked through long wet lashes at Tom Wallace. And while he fumbled for his handkerchief and wiped her face, she blurted helplessly:

"I—I—I'm sick of all this work, Tom, and this pokey old office—and I—I don't care if it is only 3 o'clock, I'm going home early!"

"Fine!" said Tom. "Great! Why, Edna, you're really human, aren't you! Go home, by all means, and put on something light and—and please take Daisy Diantha along to help curl your hair and lend you some rouge. My brother, her fiance, is coming home from the east tonight. We'll all have dinner together to celebrate!"

Much later that evening, after the dinner party, where she had laughed and danced and been deluged with compliments, and after Tom Wallace had insisted on another date for the next Saturday, a gloriously happy Edna managed to whisper to cute little Daisy Diantha. "I'm so, so happy, dear, thanks to you. You certainly are a very clever girl!"—Chicago News.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Today and Yesterday

Mr. Editor: I wonder if the readers ever tune in on the radio and listen to the doings of those people up in Titusville, and hear the quaint talk of Uncle Luke Higgins, and the querulous complaints of Horace Peters, and the calamity talk of his wife, Ivaludi; or perhaps you are amused when you hear Aunt Sary tell Wilbur to do something he doesn't want to do. And you hear his aw, gee, I don't want to do that, Aunt Sary. And when Uncle Luke stands in with him you can hear Wilbur say, gee, Uncle Luke, you are a regular guy. Now isn't that just like a boy? And all this is exactly what you hear in everyday life. When you hear the Titusville band with all its discords do you old timers jog your memory and recall a band the Saint Marys that used to practice back of the old Shetucket engine house on the green that was at the corner of 5th street in the Greeneville section? I can assure you they were not so bad, and not so good, either. When some one of the members would hit a sour note all the rest would go flat, but understand they were learning and if I remember their leader's name was David Mountain. Believe me, he had a man-size job on his hands to teach those men how to play. Some among them became very good and became in days after members of a real band—C. W. Tubbs' cornet band for the other band had quit.

As you listen to the Titusville orchestra and their dance music with those old fashioned square dances and you hear that old familiar call of "all hands around," or maybe you just can hear Gurdon Cady's call "swing that gal with the blue dress on," or "first couple forward." I am willing to bet a four cent piece it makes you old boys sit up and take notice. This makes you think of what was, and what isn't now.

Speaking about that old Shetucket engine house, what wonderful times they used to have there! These so-called fox trots of today have no rhythm or poetry of motion such as was seen in those dances that we knew, for where is the comparison as you listened to the strains of Strauss' Blue Danube waltz with its dreamy music? Here close your eyes and dream and see how we danced in a clean and wholesome way, before the coming of these dances that had their inception in darkest Africa.

How you would hoe it down to that rollicking old tune of Turkey in the Straw! And say, old timers, do you recall how you would sit down about midnight with your best girl to a feed? All this brings back to you thoughts of one of the bright spots in your life, and as I muse and dream of those people of early days I cannot but think they were so different from the ones of today.

This is not said with any disrespect for there was a something in their lives that breathed fraternity, and as I travel on and think of them their lives begin to grow more radiant. You recall some of the deeds of love they gave to one another, how neighborly they were to each other, for their creed seemed to be, We are going your way, so let us help one another. So let me help you for some day I may need your help, so let us help each other while we may.

To me as I recall those early ones, their lives were an inspiration, and their memory a benediction. They seemed like a great big family, all working together for the advancement of all, not as we find many today turn to petty jealousy, and a distrust of one another. Oftimes we do not take a person at his true word, for many times we find a genius hidden away in some unknown place.

Many years ago I worked with others building a dam up in Chaplin to furnish water for the paper mill that was located there. It was hard work of course. I boarded with a family named Lyons, and working beside me was a young fellow who did not look the part of a laborer, but he did his share he and I became chummy and I called at the farm house where he was boarding. He brought out a violin, and how he could play. Here he was hidden away out here in the country and, as the boys would say, he could make a violin talk. Years after he was the soloist in the orchestra in the Hartford opera house. His name was Dubrelle Shurtliff and I wonder if any of you folks in Chaplin remember him.

As you think of these days that are gone you awaken to the fact that you are still working and hurrying on like the many others who are with you. And still a strange desire takes possession of you. I am telling your story as well as mine, for you would like once again to be just a barefoot kid, go swimming with the gang, tie their clothes in a hard knot and then join the chorus and sing, "Chaw raw beef the Beef is tough." Rather a homely thought but you used to do such things, and you know it, and if you didn't you never was a boy.

A Washington Bystander

By KIRKE L. SIMPSON
Associated Press Staff Writer

WASHINGTON, Nov. 12 — You would hardly expect the senate to display a sentimental side in the midst of a row like that over tariff legislation.

Yet it did, in decided fashion. That is one of the things that makes the senate so much a center of public attention. It's such a temperamental, unexpected sort of a body.

And Judge William M. Sparks of Indiana was a beneficiary of this particular senatorial whim. His nomination was picked out of a mass of pending presidential appointments in the very midst of a hectic tariff debate and confirmation was rushed through instanter.

It was a highly unusual procedure and Judge Sparks owes it to the fact that he hails from Rushville, Ind., which also is the home town of Senator Jim Watson.

As a matter of fact, the cockles of the Hon. Jim's heart should be warmed if he ever reads the Congressional Record of October 31 closely.

He will find a great deal of friendly disposition toward himself expressed alike by political friend and foe.

That was the day he pleaded for tariff harmony after a visit to the white house. It also was the day he turned his back on leadership responsibilities and fled to Florida to seek relief for shattered nerves.

Not Nervous Type.

Senator Jim is such a big, burly, hearty, back-slapping sort of political type, he remains so cool under fire and is so deeply experienced in political ups and downs that you never would associate nerves with him.

Yet from the moment the special session of congress convened and he faced the business of trying to get the republican senate majority team to pulling harmoniously despite the open split between the regular and irregular factions, there have been signs that the strain began to tell on the genial Indianan.

He never for a moment lost his poise on the floor or in conference. His courtesy to his colleagues was as unfailing as always; but often as he sat in his place both hands would fidget and fret, his thumbs constantly snapping back and forth in the only sign he gave of nervous tension.

Senator Jim is well liked by about everybody in and about the senate. Democrats and irregulars joined heartily in wishing him quick recovery and return to the chamber.

And the most graceful gesture of all came from his political arch foe, Norris of Nebraska, who designed the prompt confirmation of Watson's fellow townsman, Judge Sparks, as a special tribute to a party leader from whom he differs on almost every point.

His Foe's Tribute.

"The appointee comes from the home town of the senator," Senator Norris said in moving immediate consideration. "The senator is anxious, perhaps without cause—as a matter of sentiment—to have action by the senate before he leaves (for Florida).

"I can recall a time when I could not appreciate what it meant to have a nervous affliction; but I have reached the time when I know that a nervous breakdown is the worst possible affliction.

"When a man is in that condition some little thing will often do him more good than a great thing.

"I have an idea that, small as this may seem (Judge Sparks' confirmation), it will do more good to the senator than a doctor's prescription."

So the judge was promptly confirmed.

supposedly written between 1770 and 1774. "Then," De Crevecoeur wrote, "a severe frost succeeds which prepares it (the ground) to receive the voluminous coat of snow which is soon to follow; though it is often preceded by a short interval of smoke and mildness, called Indian summer." Horace Walpole used the term in 1778, apparently in reference to the hot weather of India. Dr. Joseph Doddridge, writing in 1824, said: "The smokey time commenced and lasted for a considerable number of days. This was the Indian summer, because it afforded the Indians another opportunity of visiting the settlements with their destructive warfare." According to another theory, Indian summer was so called because the settlers supposed the smokiness to be produced by Indian fires, and Charles Brockden Brown, early American novelist, said the name arose from the fact that the Indians predicted this season to the early settlers who took the early frost as the signal for winter.—The Pathfinder.

YOUR HEALTH

Husbands Please Note.
By J. Jay Jacobs, M. D.
Washington, D. C.
(From Gorgas Memorial Institute)

Preventive medicine is universally recognized as a most important factor in the elimination of illness and the prolongation of life.

Its principles are now applied to all branches of medicine. The properly instructed pregnant woman owes her well being to the observance of simple health measures. Every competent physician, and particularly those specially trained in obstetrics, desires the expectant mother to place herself under his care as soon as she realizes her condition. She is informed as to the hygiene of pregnancy, the type of clothing to wear, the diet, amount of exercise and rest, care of the skin, towels, marital relations, etc.

Certain signs and symptoms, which to the patient appear trivial, are of serious moment in notifying the doctor of an impending complication such as vomiting, miscarriage, convulsions, hemorrhage, premature labor, and others.

The foetus, of course, receives its nourishment from, and empties its waste products into the mother's blood stream. The strain of pregnancy will manifest any existing weakness in the maternal organs of elimination. Under medical supervision much difficulty can be avoided.

Ordinarily the physician should see the patient once per month during the first six months and more frequently during the last three months of pregnancy. The urine is always analyzed and the blood pressure taken. At one of these visits a complete physical examination is made. This together with the accurate measurement of the pelvis, and in later pregnancy the determination of the position of the foetus, are essential in effecting proper conduct of the case.

The condition of the mother and baby is carefully watched during pregnancy and labor; abnormal signs are noticed early and proper treatment instituted, thus assuring the mother a live baby, with as little suffering as possible.

The best obstetrics is practised in hospitals, and the lying-in period is about 12 days. The physician must decide when the woman is to assume her household duties

Realizing the great benefit of preventive medicine as applied to pregnancy, prenatal clinics are maintained all over the country, and this care is available to those who cannot employ a private physician.

Due to such movements, the serious complications of pregnancy are becoming rare; and as most operations on women result from poor obstetrics, they are rapidly diminishing.

BURGESS BEDTIME STORY

Unc' Billy Possum Finds Feathers.

By Thornton W. Burgess.

Feathers sometimes more will show,
Than the way the wind doth blow.
—Unc Billy Possum

Unc' Billy Possum sat in his doorway. Unc' Billy lives in a hollow tree in the Green Forest and his doorway is the opening to that hollow. It was late in the afternoon. Unc' Billy had been asleep most of the day. You see, he had been out all the night before. He was trying to make up his mind where to go.

"Ah would like somethin', but I don' know what Ah want. Ah is hongry. Yes, sah, Ah is hongry," Unc' Billy was talking to himself. For a few moments more he sat there in his doorway. Then he came out and climbed down. He shuffled off through the leaves toward the Crooked Little Path. Once he stopped beside a rotted old stump. He dug around in the center of it and found a big beetle. He ate the beetle and smacked his lips. Then he went on.

Unc' Billy remembered a certain grapevine on the edge of the Green Forest. He left the Crooked Little Path and headed for that grapevine. There might be a few frosted grapes left yet. They would taste good even if they were frosted. Unc' Billy isn't particular about his food. All he asks is plenty of it. When he reached the grapevine he found Mr. and Mrs. Grouse there. They had been feeding on grapes and there were few, very few, left. Unc' Billy looked hungrily at Mrs. Grouse. But he knew better than to try to catch her. He knew that she was too quick to be caught by him. So he then turned his attention to such grapes as he could find, climbing about in the grapevine and hanging on with that useful tail of his. Once he hung by his tail in order to reach some grapes below.

"Ah don' know what Ah'd do without this tail of mine," thought Unc' Billy. "Ah don' see how Brer Coon and Brer Fox and Brer Skunk get along with such tails as they have. 'Pears to me their tails are mostly to look at. Mah tail may not be much to look at, but it sho is handy. Ah wouldn't trade this of tail of mine fo' any other tail in the Green Forest."

All the time Unc' Billy was getting those grapes he could see Mr. and Mrs. Grouse walking about down below. The sight of them awakened a desire for fresh meat. Unc' Billy hadn't had any meat for two or three days. He had been living on such odds and ends as he could find. Now the thought of meat fairly made his stomach ache with longing. But he didn't know where he could get any meat, so finally he climbed down from the grapevine and started over to look for some beechnuts. Once or twice he stopped to dig up certain roots for which he has a liking. He didn't hurry, for Unc' Billy isn't given to hurrying.

"Run, run! Oh, run, Peter!" she kept crying under her breath.

Finally Unc' Billy came to a little thicket. He poked his sharp nose inside. Then he went inside. In the middle was a fairly open space and in that open space he found feathers. Yes, sir, he found feathers—a lot of those feathers. They were hen feathers. Unc' Billy turned them over with his nose. He hoped he might find a scrap of meat, but he hoped in vain. He knew that those feathers had been there not more than a day or two.

"Ah reckon Brer Fox done have a feast here," muttered Unc' Billy. "Ah wonder where he caught his hen. Ah suttenly would like a chicken dinner. There's nothin' Ah likes to eat more than a chicken dinner. Ah wonder now did this chicken live very far from here."

Adults, Too, Prefer "No Dosing" for Colds

Millions Adopt External Remedy Made Famous As Treatment For Children's Colds

A generation ago, when Vicks VapoRub was originated, the idea of treating colds without "dosing" was almost unheard of. Today, the whole trend of medical practice is away from needless "dosing."

Mothers of young children especially have been quick to appreciate this better, external method of treating colds, because there's nothing to swallow and, of course, nothing to upset the little ones' delicate stomachs. Year by year more and more adults, too, have found Vicks equally good for their own colds.

Just rubbed on, Vicks acts through the skin like a poultice or plaster; and, at the same time, it releases medicated vapors which are inhaled direct to the inflamed air-passages.

Ever-increasing demand for this better method of treating colds is shown in the familiar Vick slogan. Made famous when Vicks reached "17 Million Jars Used Yearly"—later raised to "21 Million"—there are now "Over 26 Million Jars Used Yearly."

He was born in East Haddam, Conn. June 11, 1843, the son of William and Lottie Wilcox Babcock and spent practically his whole life there. He owned and cultivated a large farm all his life and was a very successful cattle raiser. On Sept. 16, 1868, he was united in marriage with Miss Lillie E. Way at Millington. She passed away July 10, 1924, and since that time he has made his home with his children.

He leaves to mourn his loss two daughters, Mrs. Alpheus I. Nye and Mrs. Bertram E. Elton, both of Fitchville, and a son, G. Merrill Babcock, of New Haven, five grandchildren in Fitchville and five grandchildren in New Haven. He was of a very cheerful disposition and made many fast friends who join in expressing their heartfelt sympathy to his bereaved family. Mrs. Frederick W. Fratus

Mrs. Frederick W. Fratus passed away early Tuesday morning at her home on the New London turnpike, following a prolonged illness. She was born in New Haven, the daughter of William H. and Ella Daniels Armstrong, but has resided here for many years. Besides her husband, whom she married in this city, she is survived by a brother, William Armstrong, of this city. Mrs. Fratus was a devoted member of St. Patrick's church. Her kindly and pleasant nature earned for her a host of warm friends and acquaintances and her passing from earthly life will be mourned by them.

The board discussed in an informal way the question of the junior high school, which was suggested some time ago by the Norwich Free Academy as a possible solution of the problem of crowded conditions in the Academy building.

GENERAL AIKEN'S WILL MAKES SON EXECUTOR

The will of General William A. Aiken, which was filed Tuesday for probate in the Norwich probate court, makes his son, Alfred Lawrence Aiken, executor. The will was drawn Nov. 19, 1924, and was witnessed by Alice L. Sayles, Helena V. Burns, and Mary Murphy.

The sum of $500 is left in trust to the city of Norwich, the income to be used for care of the family burial lot in Yantic cemetery; $100 is left to Carl Steinke, who has been a faithful employe in my family for many years," and direction is given for the disposition of certain articles of personal property in a memorandum that is left with the will.

In regard to the remainder of the estate, the will states:

"I give, devise and bequeath all the rest and residue of my property to The Thames National bank of Norwich, in trust, to hold the same and pay over the income therefrom to my daughters, Mary Appleton Aiken and Jane MacGregor Aiken, and to the survivor of them during their lives so long as they remain unmarried and upon the death or marriage of both, to pay over so much of said rest and residue as may be received at my decease from insurance on my life, together with $2,000 to my son, Alfred Lawrence Aiken, as payment in part of his advancements from time to time, for the benefit of our family, and if my said son is not then living, to his child or children, equally if more than one survive him. The remainder of said rest and residue may be distributed to my heirs at law in accordance with the statute governing the distribution of intestate estates in Connecticut at the time of distribution."

MERCHANTS BUREAU ADOPTS PROGRAMME FOR YEAR

All the matters in the programme as recommended by the committee in charge for the ensuing year were adopted at a meeting of the Merchants bureau of the Norwich chamber of commerce held Tuesday noon at the Wauregan hotel with the vice president, John P. Lyston, presiding. The programme adopted is very nearly the same as the one for last year with the exception of one matter, the fall suburban day.

This event was not recommended by the committee members, it is understood, for they felt that it would be wiser to conduct one suburban day in the spring with the funds that have been used for the two suburban days. They pointed out that the spring suburban day as a rule has been more successful than the fall suburban day.

The programme presented by the committee and adopted by the meeting comprised sales events, dollar days, suburban day, spring and fall openings, Christmas opening and summer closing schedule. The meeting took up each item separately for discussion and vote. It was also voted to hold the bureau meetings at noon.

Arrangements for the Christmas lighting of the streets will be taken care of by a committee to be appointed later.

Mr. and Mrs. Frink were married June 30, 1919, and it is alleged that since August, 1928, Mrs. Ulmer has won Mr. Frink away from his wife, that there has been undue intimacy between Mrs. Ulmer and Mr. Frink and that the plaintiff has lost the love and affection of her husband and has been deserted by him.

The suit is returnable in December.

GAVE HOUSEWARMING AT PARK CHURCH MANSE

From 8 to 10 o'clock Tuesday evening a housewarming for Rev. Dr. Theodore M. Shipherd, pastor of Park Congregational church, and Mrs. Shipherd, was held at The Manse, Chelsea parade south, formerly Williams avenue. The spacious rooms had a gorgeous setting for the unusually delightful event, with beautiful baskets and vases of flowers and vari-colored lighted candles, effectively arranged. The decorations included golden, bronze and white chrysanthemums, roses and other flowers, in addition to a sprinkling of greenery, including ferns, laurel and sprigs of fir.

Numbered among the 300 guests present was a large representation of the local clergymen.

The large number who improved the opportunity to visit The Manse for inspection of the recent renovations and to meet Rev. and Mrs. Shipherd in their new home, passed a very pleasant evening. In the receiving line with the host and hostess were Mrs. Oliver L. Johnson and Miss Louise C. Howe. An added attraction of the evening was a fine programme of music furnished by Miss Ruth L. Dreschler at the piano, and George A. Gulle, violin. Pleasing vocal selections were given by Henry J. LaFontaine and Charles J. Dyer.

Ice cream, cake and punch were served. The committees in charge of the event were: General committee of the church, Henry A. Tirrell, Miss Hannah M. Crowell, Philip A. Benjamin, Mrs. Henry E. Prentice, Mrs. Raymond B. Sherman, Mrs. William H. Douglas, Mrs. O. C. Wolf and Mrs. Weston C. Pullen. The committee on cordiality consisted of the executive committee of the Women's Federation and the deacons of the church.

The waitresses were Misses Eunice Ingalls, Patience Norman, Muriel Hynd, Marjorie Wolfe, Dorothy Prentice, Barbara Sayles, Betty Hitchcock, Dolly Edmonds, Doris Dreschler, Alice Sayles, Esther and Louise Evans, Alice and Laura Blake, Helen Clapp and Helen Risley.

Extensive renovations have been carried out in the house to prepare it for occupancy as the parsonage of Park Congregational church as Rev. Dr. Shipherd begins the first year of his pastorate there. Every room on the first two floors has been completely renovated with new paper and paint. New electrical fixtures and a complete heating plant have been installed, all the floors have been done over, a new lavatory, kitchen sink and copper boiler have been installed on the first floor and a new bath room put in on the second floor. The roof has also been repaired.

The Park church manse is one of the old historical places of Norwich. A brick house, it was built in 1789 or 1790 by Joseph Teel of Preston, the site being a portion of the original Adgate lot. It was designed for a hotel and immediately advertised as "The Teel House, Sign of General Washington." It was noted for its fine hall or assembly room on the third floor, which in the early 1800's, before its purchase as a private residence, was used as the meeting place of Somerset lodge. In the assembly room many a quaint show was exhibited and an advertisement on May 29, 1794, announces the arrival at Mr. Teel's assembly room of a party of Italian rope dancers and tumblers and invites the public to call and see Don Peter and Clumsy the Clown dance a horn-pipe blindfold over 15 eggs. The assembly hall has one of the few spring floors in Norwich.

After Mr. Teel's death, the hotel was continued by his son-in-law, Cyrus Brown, and was a noted stopping place for stage coaches passing through. It was offered for sale in 1797, and was particularly recommended for its position: "On the central plain between the town and Landing, which, according to the natural appearance of things, bids fair to be the seat of business for the town of Norwich." In June, 1800, the hotel was transformed into a boarding and day school under the preceptorship of William Woodbridge. Carder Hazard, a retired Newport merchant, bought the place in 1806, but in 1813 it was sold to General William Williams. It remained in the Williams family for the greater part of the century, but in 1886 when it went on the market, William Slater bought it and presented it to Park Congregational church. Rev. Dr. Howe, who had come to Norwich in 1885 as pastor, became the occupant, and lived there until this year with his family.

ROUND TABLE MEETING WITH PAPER ON TEACHING

Mrs. Edwin A. Tracy of 24 Scotland road was hostess Tuesday evening for the meeting of the Norwich Round Table, which had an attendance of about 35 and enjoyed a very fine paper presented by Miss Florence E. Fellows upon "Changing Methods of Teaching." Responses to the roll call were made by stories of school days, resulting in very many amusing anecdotes of personal experiences. Refreshments were served by the hostess.

Two regular army .30 calibre Springfield rifles are furnished the club for use of members, as well as the 22 calibre Springfields for indoor range at the armory.

COUNCIL APPOINTMENTS—POLICE COMMITTEE CONTEST

(Special to The Bulletin)

WESTERLY, R. I., Nov. 12.—Members-elect to the Westerly town council retired to the conference room before their appearance in the council chamber on Tuesday night. Their session behind closed doors lasted for an hour and a half. The councilmen did not appear in the council chamber until 9:14, when they proceeded with organization. On motion of Councilman Isaac Smith, seconded by James Naccarato, the present president, Horace E. Burdick, was re-elected council president for two years.

Edward M. Burke was elected judge of probate. John Ferguson was re-elected town solicitor with salary $3,500. Dr. Samuel C. Webster was re-elected superintendent of health, salary $300. Dr. Thomas E. Robinson was re-elected milk inspector, salary $200. Harold E. Livingstone and Walter C. Hiscox were re-elected town auditors. George L. Madison, present incumbent, was named town sergeant.

Constables elected to serve civil processes were: Russell L. Slocum, William R. Dower and Michael J. Burke; auctioneers, R. L. Slocum and Oliver P. Crandall; harbormasters, Edwin R. Lewis, Thomas E. Brown and Roger Dunham; commissioner of wrecks, Horace E. Burdick; tree warden, Everett Barnes; committee to care for burial of deceased soldiers, John F. Datson.

The real contest of the council session came with the naming of a police committee. Councilman Smith named for the first position the six council members with the exception of the president; Councilman Archie Meikle named Councilmen Fraser, Monti and Meikle. Councilman Smith insisted on his motion and called for a paper ballot. It resulted—Joseph Fraser, 3; James Naccarato, 3, and President Burdick cast the deciding ballot for Fraser, who becomes chairman of the police committee.

The same procedure was carried out with the next two members, Archie Meikle receiving three and James Naccarato three. President Burdick cast the deciding ballot for Meikle, who becomes the second member. For third member, John Monti and James Naccarato each received three and the president decided for Monti.

The old lighting committee of the council was renamed, James Naccarato, George E. Broughton and Isaac D. Smith.

The bond of the town treasurer was made $25,000 and that of the town clerk $1,000, with surety satisfactory to the council. It was voted to pay town officers bi-weekly. The building committee named was George E. Broughton, James Naccarato and John Monti, to work in conjunction with the building inspector.

Miss Mabel A. Saunders met the approbation of the town council for deputy town clerk. The following were named police constables with pay: Thomas E. Brown, re-elected chief of police; George H. Champlin, re-elected deputy of police, and Patrolmen Robert M. Kessell, George L. Madison, Leroy H. Norman, Frank E. Knight, Paul McCarthy and Charles E. Butler. Over 70 constables were elected to serve without pay.

Leon H. Bliven and Rogers E. Trainor were named commissioners to pay damages done by dogs; Joseph Fraser was renamed fire marshal; Edwin Barber, Jr., was re-elected sealer of weights and measures.

A communication received from Helen A. Powers, state director of mothers' aid, stated that there was a deficit in the state appropriation and November payments would be cut 40 per cent. The council voted that Mary E. Randall, Westerly director, be appropriated the balance from the town funds to make up the state deficit, that her payments may be made 100 per cent. Joseph Fraser was re-appointed superintendent of dumps. The council adjourned at 10 p. m.

PLAINFIELD PROS IN BATTLE WITH RENAISSANCE FIVE THIS EVENING

Another basketball treat is in store for the basketball fans of Eastern Connecticut tonight at the Plainfield Community house when the Plainfield Pros clash with the Renaissance Five of Brooklyn. This is the third game of the season against three of the leading professional basketball teams of the country. To date, the Plainfield club has an even break, losing to the Chicago Americans and winning from the Brooklyn Dodgers.

Plainfield is up against one of the strongest teams of the season tonight, as the Renaissance team are recognized colored champions of the world. Last year this same team made a fine impression on local fans when they played Plainfield in a hard-fought game.

The Renaissance team carries a squad of seven men who are the leading colored basketeers in the country. Five of the seven have been with the team at least five seasons and two of these for eight years. The two other men are newcomers to the team but are well known. The lineup includes Hilton Slocum, who is captain; Clarence "Fat" Jenkins, Cappy Ricks, Harold Mayers, Eyre Saitch, Tattle Cooper and Bill Yancey. Jenkins is rated by sports writers as the fastest man in basketball or baseball outside the big leagues. He throws a basketball with the speed of a baseball. Ricks is known to be a deadly shot and his average points per game for 204 games is 15.6. Mayers, a guard, has the unusual distinction of holding Nat Holman, Benny Borgeman and Johnny Beckman scoreless in a game. Saitch is an all around good player and besides starring in basketball is a former national colored tennis champion. Cooper, who plays center, is big and fast and has few peers in the game. Yancey, formerly with the Philadelphia Colored Giants, adds plenty of strength to the Renaissance team. The team last season won 107 games while losing 19, listing the Celtics, Hakoahs, Visitations, Fort Wayne, Cleveland and many other American league teams among those beaten.

Plainfield has a brilliant team this season and will use the same lineup as last week, McElwain coming on to play if the Celtics are not engaged. If McElwain is unable to appear here, Dissinger or Pop Williams will substitute. The Plainfield lineup will be Brusso and Kasper, forwards; Conway, center; Bernot and McElwain, Williams or Dissinger, guards. Dave Harper will referee.

For the preliminary game the Plainfield Buddies will clash with the Hartford All Stars. Dancing will follow the game.

PITTSBURGH LOGICAL EASTERN TEAM FOR ROSE BOWL GAME

NEW YORK, Nov. 12.—(AP)—Plans for the annual Rose bowl football game at Pasadena, Jan. 1, 1930, are subject to revision, but indications now are that the scream of a Panther and growl of a Bear will echo through the famous bowl.

The Pittsburgh Panther seems to be enjoying perfect health and Jock Sutherland's powerful machine is in line for the nomination as the representative of the east to the annual clash of the sections.

The University of California Bear finds Washington and Stanford standing in its way to the Pacific coast throne but even failure to hurdle the last obstacle probably would not prevent the invitation to Pasadena. Stanford plays Army Dec. 28, removing the Cardinals from consideration in any plans involving New Year's day.

University of California officials have been quoted on the coast as not over enthusiastic for the assignment but willing to go through with it if the invitation should be extended and the designated eastern opponent meet with its approval.

If Pittsburgh should run into disaster in one of its two remaining games against Carnegie or Penn State and one of the undefeated southern teams complete its season with a clean record, the invitation might go south, as it did last season to Georgia Tech, and two years in succession to Alabama. Tulane, with the best chance of any team in Dixie to escape defeat, might find it difficult to convince its faculty that such a journey would be a good thing for all concerned.

MEUSEL SIGNS AS SECOND COACH FOR GIANTS

NEW YORK, Nov. 12.—(AP)—Emil F. Meusel, one-time star left fielder with the Phillies and the Giants, signed today to serve as second coach of the Giants. Dave Bancroft, teammate of Meusel at Philadelphia and New York and later manager of the Boston Braves for four years, recently came to terms with John McGraw to act as first coach.

SCHMELING CAN NOW BOX IN NEW YORK

NEW YORK, Nov. 12—(AP)—Only a few minor details stood out tonight against Madison Square Garden's complete corner of the present day crop of prominent heavyweight cauliflower.

Having purchased from Humbert J. Fugazy the only contract under which Max Schmeling, the Teuton ace, can box in New York state, the Garden completed arrangements with Victorio Campolo, the Marana mauler from the Argentine, for four fights in the United States. The Garden now has under contract Jack Sharkey, Otto Von Porat, Phil Scott, Johnny Risko, Tuffy Griffiths and Jimmy Braddock in addition to Schmeling and Campolo.

Frank Bruen, general manager of the big boxing plant, exchanged tables with the Argentine giant and when the day was over had the situation entirely in hand. Before leaving for New York within the next ten days, Campolo asked only reassurances that Gustave Leneve, the manager with whom he has been warring, would have no part of his affairs in the future. The Garden promptly guaranteed him this, inasmuch as it has purchased Leneve's three year contract with the gaucho for about $25,000.

Bruen refused to disclose the sum paid Fugazy by the Garden for the contracts he held with Schmeling and Campolo as the promoter at Eubeta field, in Brooklyn. The sum has been placed at $65,000 and the deal indicates that Fugazy, once a thorn in the side of the late Tex Rickard, may do his promoting at some time in the future under the auspices of the Garden.

Although no word has been received from Schmeling Bruen believes that the German schlazer, due to return to the United States within a few weeks, must fight here in the future for the Garden or not at all. In addition to the contract purchased from Fugazy and negotiated by Arthur Buelow, deposed manager of the German, the Garden also holds a two year option on Schmeling's services. This option was signed by Schmeling nine months ago.

Bruen indicated that Schmeling will box in the Garden's new outdoor stadium at Miami this winter, probably against Phil Scott, while Sharkey, who has already signed for a match in Florida, will be paired with Campolo in another major attraction. Bruen said he was prepared to take "every possible means available" to prevent Schmeling from boxing this winter in the new auditorium at Atlantic City. N. J. Max has been offered a guarantee of $250,000 by Promoters Bob Gunnis and Herman Taylor of Philadelphia, for a 15 round bout against a suitable opponent.

YALE VARSITY SCORES ONLY ONCE AGAINST THE SCRUBS

NEW HAVEN, Nov. 12.—(AP)— In a twenty minute scrimmage, the Yale varsity, preparing for its annual game with Princeton, today defeated the scrubs by a score of 6 to 0. Miller, right halfback, took the ball over from the two-yard line.

Two marches down the field by the varsity were halted when alert scrubs intercepted forward passes.

A long defensive practice was held against 1928 Tiger plays in which the grey-shirted understudies made good gains against the Blue with running plays and passes. The remainder of the practice was devoted to drill on fundamentals. The line, under the direction of Coach Walsh, went through charging and tackling drills. The backs and ends strove to improve their aerial game.

Booth, Hall and Ellis, backfield men who are suffering from slight injuries, were not used in the scrimmage today.

CONN.'S FIRST NIGHT FOOTBALL GAME TONIGHT

MERIDEN, Nov. 12—(AP)—The first night game in the history of Connecticut football will be played here tomorrow night, when the local Insilco semi-pro eleven opposes the Bristol Maple Ends, at the Insilco stadium.

A lighting system of 15 high powered floodlights and several smaller lamps have been installed at the field. College coaches and football officials, managers and players throughout the state have been invited to attend the novel attraction.

Our fountain pen may be our friend or our enemy, depending on the way we use it.

It's a wonderful invention if we use it right, but calamity overtakes us if we abuse it.

With it we record our innermost thoughts; convey our sympathy to friends in trouble; figure our accounts; write our checks; unfold a tale of love to our dear ones; and do many other things.

But we must use it with discretion for if we don't there is sure to be trouble. Don't record your mean thoughts with it, make rash promises, write mash notes to somebody's better half, or use it as a toothpick or to tamp down the tobacco in your pipe.

Any one of those things is sure to bring calamity howling about your ears as it did the other afternoon to one of our leading attorneys.

No, folks, don't get the impression that this attorney has been writing mash notes, making rash promises or anything like that; he's not that kind of an attorney. He was using it to push down the tobacco in his pipe.

The operation would have been a success, as the doctors say, if the pipe had not been lighted. As it was it near created a panic in the law offices as well as a conflagration.

As the attorney nonchalantly pushed down the tobacco in his briar there was a puff of smoke and a flash. The fountain pen had taken fire and was blazing brilliantly.

The attorney went into action immediately. With great presence of mind the attorney removed the pen from the pipe, which he dropped on the floor, showering his clothes with sparks.

Holding the blazing pen aloft he rushed out of the office headed for the nearest water which was at the far end of the corridor. As he ran down the hallway he looked like an animated Statue of Liberty minus the flowing robes.

Trailing out behind him was a stream of dense black smoke that permeated the entire floor and caused other office holders to seek the cause of the smoke.

Just before he got to the water the heat caused the ink to boil in the pen and it spurted out, giving the holder an inky shower bath. With the fire extinguished the attorney returned to his office in a much crestfallen condition.

Taking account of stock the attorney found that outside of the loss of a perfectly good fountain pen, four or five ink-spots on his clothes, a few holes burned in his clothes by sparks and a burned hole in the office rug, no damage of any consequence had been done.

Moral—Use your fountain pen for what it was intended and then be careful about that.

HALL SAYS FUMBLE RULE IS IN FOOTBALL TO STAY

NEW YORK, Nov. 12—(AP)—Convinced that the present football code, new fumble rule and all, is proving generally satisfactory, Edward K. Hall, chairman of the national football rules committee, reported today that a minimum of tinkering with the laws of the game can be expected for 1930.

Only here and there, Mr. Hall pointed out, has an occasional voice been raised against the provision making a fumbled ball dead at the point of recovery by the defensive side and indications are that this rule is here to stay. That it will be in the rulebook for 1930 is a practical certainty, Mr. Hall said, as nothing but a loud and concerted outcry would prevent it from receiving more than a one-year trial.

"Our committee is entirely open-minded, but no one I have met has been able to raise a convincing argument against it," remarked this middle aged New York business man who has kept in close touch with the game he loves since his playing days as a Dartmouth end some 38 years ago.

"Some of the fellows I have talked with have said they didn't like the fumble rule, but all they had to say against it was that they thought it has taken out one of the thrills of the game.

"Pshaw! It has given the game a good many more thrills than it has taken out. This season has been more open play, more handling of the ball behind the line and hence a more varied intricate and deceptive attack than any other season. And the development along this line has only begun."

Mr. Hall said more field goal kicking has come to his attention this year than at any time in the past three or four seasons. This, he said, is probably due to development of a better rounded attack and more attention by coaches to the importance of being able to produce a good drop kick or placement on the frequent occasions when that is the only logical play.

DOUGLAS NOT TO GET INTO HOLY CROSS GAME

CAMBRIDGE, Mass., Nov. 12.—(AP)—Jim Douglas, veteran Harvard end, was found to be lame today when the Crimson football squad resumed training and practice. After the Michigan game, the players were allowed to smoke and eat what they wished but no ill-effects of this freedom was noted. Douglas, a bit battered by the Wolverines will probably be unable to start against Holy Cross this Saturday.

Coach Arnold Horween staged a light workout, stressing individual instruction on the Crimson's attack. He planned to bear down a bit harder tomorrow when the scrubs will demonstrate the Holy Cross attack in a dummy scrimmage with the varsity eleven.

MORTON GIVEN QUARTERBACK ASSIGNMENT FOR DARTMOUTH

HANOVER, N. H., Nov. 12—(AP)—The Dartmouth varsity football team today engaged in defensive work against the Cornell plays put on by the fourth eleven. Bill Morton was the first team quarterback during the short signal drill which ended the session.

While this workout was being staged on Memorial field, the Green second and third teams scrimmaged on the practice gridiron. The seconds, with Tommy Longnecker calling the signals, put over three touchdowns to their opponents' one.

Ciccone Beats Wagner

FLINT, Mich., Nov. 12—(AP)—Johnny Ciccone, Schenectady, N. Y., lightweight, won the decision over Eddie "Kid" Wagner, Chicago, in a ten round bout here tonight. Ciccone weighed 136; Wagner 136 3-4.

LOCAL BOYS IN FINE SHAPE FOR BOUTS TOMORROW EVENING

All the local boys who are scheduled to appear on the boxing card of the Shyma club at Taftville tomorrow evening are in fine shape for their bouts. Al Beauregard of Taftville, who meets Dodo Jackson of Newark, N. J., never looked better than he does right now.

Beauregard has put in some hard work since he started training for this bout which means much in his career. If Beauregard wins he is assured of a match with Johnny Vacca at the Boston Garden later in the month. The Taftville lad has changed his style of fighting from a crouch to an upright stance and is hitting from the shoulder instead of swinging from the ground. It will be a different and much more dangerous Beauregard that steps into the ring tomorrow night than in previous bouts.

Al Koziol has taken his coming bout with Johnny Mack in all seriousness and has been getting right down to business in his training. He wound up his hard work yesterday and will taper off today with only light exercise. Koziol, himself, admits that he will be facing the toughest opponent of his career tomorrow night. And he is taking no chances of being out of condition.

Tommy McCarthy who is scheduled to go four rounds against Young Columbo of New London is another local boy who has gotten into top shape for his bout. McCarthy who has not done much fighting of late, has had a harder time of getting into condition than the other boys but he has worked hard and faithfully and looks mighty good. He is fast and is hitting hard.

Reports from Danielson are that Rene Peloquin is all ready to go against Long Sing Quo, Chinese boxer in the six round preliminary. Peloquin and the Chinaman have been fighting regularly and their work has not been strenuous during the past week.

Jackson, Long Sing Quo and the other out of town fighters will arrive tonight or early Thursday morning and will have light workouts before weighing in on Thursday afternoon.

The ticket sale is going on steadily and a good advance sale is reported. The house has not been sold out as yet and the promoters expect a big box office sale the night of the fight.

STEVENS AND ROPER ARE NOT SATISFIED WITH TEAMS

NEW YORK, Nov. 12.—(AP)—Much work remains to be done before Mal Stevens and Bill Roper will be satisfied with their Yale and Princeton football varsities but neither is taking any chances with their star backfield men, Albie Booth and Ed Wittmer.

The Yale first team indulged in a twenty-minute scrimmage with the scrubs today but Booth, slightly injured in the Maryland game, was not used in the lineup. Neither were Hall and Ellis, backfield men. A long defensive practice found the scrubs using Princeton plays to good advantage against the first string team. Efforts will be made during the rest of the week to develop a satisfactory defense for Tiger formations.

At Princeton, Bill Roper put his charges through a long workout on tackling, forward passing, interferring and kicking but Wittmer was not permitted to do any work that might injure him for the Yale game.

Defense against the forward pass was stressed in Pitt's workout for the Carnegie Tech which is expected to draw to the neighborhood of 60,000 persons to Pitt stadium. Carnegie took no more than a light workout, Skibo coaches being concerned only with keeping the squad in condition.

While Coach Charley Crowley was giving his bruised Columbia regulars a comparative holiday, Lou Young, head coach at Penn, the Lions' next foe, announced that Walter Masters, hurt in the Penn State battle, probably would be able to start against Columbia. Bolf Carlsten and Warren Gette, however, will not be in the lineup.

With Bill Morton at quarterback, Dartmouth's Indians engaged in a defensive workout against Cornell plays put on by the fourth team. Defensive measures will be stressed again tomorrow and then the Indians will see what they can do toward speeding up their own attack. Gil Dobie, at Cornell, sent his varsity through a light scrimmage and devoted considerable time to passing and kicking drills.

Georgetown and West Virginia which meet in the former's homecoming day celebration at Washington both sought to increase the efficiency of their offensives. Coach Carl Snavely drove his Bucknell squad through a long workout that ended after dark in preparation for Penn State which took only a light workout consisting principally of signal drill.

Jim Douglas, veteran Harvard end, was found to be lame at practice today and probably will not be able to start against the strong Holy Cross outfit. Colgate, which meets its traditional rival, Syracuse, worked out for two long hours chiefly on defensive tactics.

Head Coach Chick Meehan may have Capt. Leonard Grant take over the kicking duties for New York university against Missouri. With Marshall and O'Herin, his best kickers, on the hospital, Meehan hopes he has solved the problem with Grant as a substitute for them.

Valgar and Cuthbert Draw

PARIS, Nov. 12—(AP)—Benny Valgar, veteran New Orleans lightweight, fought 12 rounds to a draw here tonight against Johnny Cuthbert, featherweight champion of England. It was one of the most scientific exhibitions of boxing ever seen in Paris rings. Both men showed mastery of the finer points of boxing.

He was driven to Cartier field in an ambulance, and from his wheel chair directed preparation of the Irish squad for its game with Southern California at Chicago Saturday.

Rain drove the gridmen into the gymnasium, but there Rockne lectured on Southern California plays, and watched the first and second teams on defense against the Trojan formations. He also outlined some new plays for use against the west coast team.

HIGH SCHOOL SPORTS

This week's football schedule:

Friday

Warwick at Westerly.

Saturday

N. F. A. at Stonington; Chapman Tech at Bulkeley; Windham at Manchester.

This week we pick Westerly, Stonington, Manchester and Chapman Tech as the victors.

The Academy-Stonington and Tech-Bulkeley games are conference affairs.

Windham will close its season Saturday with the game at Manchester and the following week, N. F. A., Chapman Tech and Bulkeley ring down the curtain. Thanksgiving day will mean the end for Westerly, Stonington and Putnam.

This is a big fall season for Westerly, which stands head and shoulders over the rest of the schools in the section by virtue of conference championship victories in football and cross-country. Not since the days when the Meikles were in their prime have the Rhode Islanders had such success in this season of the school year. Westerly, however, to make things a complete success, must yet beat Stonington again in their second game at Stonington Thanksgiving day. And, there are two other football games, with Warwick and Chapman Tech.

Stonington is still in the running for a chance at tying for second place in the conference standing. A victory over the Academy Saturday will give Leo Smith's boys six points, just the total that Windham had made with its schedule completed.

Chapman Tech, with its 46 to 0 trimming of Putnam last week, jumped into the front in the matter of offensive strength among local schools. Putnam, by the same game, holds the scored-on-the-most title with 110 points.

The Academy last Saturday received the worst defeat of any school in the schedule when West Hartford ran up 25 points to nothing for the Wildcats. With two games on the road ahead to close the season and one of them with Bulkeley, the outlook is none too bright for a spurt to partly redeem the campaign. Bulkeley, to be sure, has not won a game, but Bulkeley never gives Academy teams the tea party that some have enjoyed at her expense this year. The Academy has never beaten Bulkeley in football at Mercer field. There was only one game played, that in 1927, when a highly favored N. F. A. team was held to a 6-6 tie and these points, incidentally, were the first scored by Bulkeley that year.

Most of the critics who saw the Naugatuck-Torrington game last Saturday in Torrington were not overly enthused over either team. Torrington won, 13 to 7, but there are many who claim that Stamford high could have taken both teams with comparative ease. Unless Torrington or Stamford lose in their remaining games, there are going to be lots of arguments this winter between supporters of these schools.

The work of eastern Connecticut's largest schools:

	W.	L.	T.	Pct.	Pts.	Op. Pts.
Westerly	6	1	0	.857	80	26
Chapman T. ..	4	2	1	.667	102	41
Stonington	3	2	1	.600	34	33
Windham	2	2	2	.500	38	26
N. F. A.	1	5	1	.167	38	84
Putnam	1	6	0	.143	34	110
Bulkeley	0	3	2	.000	25	72

Conference Standing

	W.	L.	Ties	Pts.
Westerly	4	0	0	8
Windham	2	1	2	6
Stonington	2	2	0	4
N. F. A.	1	2	0	2
Bulkeley	0	2	1	1
Chapman Tech	0	2	1	1

And—Pheno Tombari, former Academy star, closes his football career with Conn. Aggies Saturday in the game with Rhode Island State at Kingston—Pheno's passing has been one of the features of the play of the Storrs bunch this year—there are those who have seen him who claim that he can stand with the best of them in this end of the game—just one more week and Bulkeley and the Academy will be preparing for another chapter of their long rivalry—a friend of ours said the Academy wouldn't lose five games this year—he said it with money—now look what's happened—the Bulkeley-Chapman Tech game Saturday will be a sort of brotherly affair, with two brothers opposing each other, the Barrowses and the De Gaetanos—basketball practice in a few weeks for some of the schools—our All-Conference team in two weeks—see where the Academy's going to be in the swim this winter.

ALBIE BOOTH VISITS INJURED STRATFORD BOY IN HOSPITAL

BRIDGEPORT, Nov. 12—(AP)—Stars of different magnitudes, but, nevertheless of the same firmament, met early this afternoon, and the one star who still glimmers among the most brilliant on the football horizon, gave cheer to the "fallen star" whose gridiron career was cut short because misfortune stepped in and had her say.

Albie Booth, who flashed against Brown, Dartmouth and Army for Yale, and who is regarded as the shining light of the sophomore halfbacks of the country, proved himself just as apt as an entertainer off the gridiron as he is after he dons the moleskins for "Old Eli" this afternoon, when he visited Robert "Bussy" Stevens, Stratford high school gridder, who suffered the loss of his leg after a football injury.

Booth, persuaded to come to Bridgeport by Morris Mellitz, of Stratford and Coach Doc Adams of Stratford, after a suggestion made by Mellitz's son, Bernard, manager of the Stratford high school football team, and chairman of the hospital committee of the school, arrived by plane at the Lordship airport late this morning. After lunching with his hosts, Booth proceeded to the Bridgeport hospital where Stevens has been a patient since gangrene developed after the lad broke his leg in football practice, and the amputation was deemed necessary to save his life.

Introduced to him by his nurse, the lad, cheerful as he has been all through his misfortune, said: "This isn't Booth; don't try to fool me. Why I could take this little fellow out myself." And, the 17 year old youth chuckled and laughed as he greeted Yale's shining light.

"It seems funny," the Stratford lad remarked, "that anyone as small as you should do what you do out on the field. Everybody expects the big fellows to do the best work.

"I had planned to attend the Army game because I wanted to see you in action," he continued, "but," he said as he slapped his right hip, "this came along and put me back. But I'll be up to see you play, don't forget that. Right now I'm all set to go out of here but the doctor says to stick around a couple of days more or all the nurses will get lonesome."

Then Booth replied, "Move over 'Bussy' and I'll stay with you a while. I could feel happy, too, on a hospital cot with charming nurses as these around."

The Yale halfback congratulated Stevens on his brave attitude claiming it was no easy thing for a youngster of 17 to lose his leg as a result of a football injury and then laugh it off.

If any tears came to the lad's eyes after Booth's sympathetic heart had forced his lips to speak, they were not tears of sadness but instead, tears of joy, for the youth was face to face with his idol and these few moments he would never forget.

Procuring the treasured letter which, in melancholy moments had made him happy, Stevens asked Booth to sign his name on the letter which Chris Cagle, Army bright light, had recently sent him. "As it is, I wouldn't sell it for $1,000, but after this it's going to be worth twice that much and more," he declared.

More letters were shown, and, as Booth started to leave, Stevens grabbed his hand, gave it a hard squeeze, and said "Give those Princeton boys a run, will you? You shouldn't be afraid of any Tiger. I'll listen to it on the radio, anyway. And thanks a lot for coming down to see me."

Bernard Mellitz drove Booth and Daniel E. Mulvey, a New Haven newspaperman back to New Haven, following the visit.

Camels are for knowing smokers!

It's just too bad if any smoker because of misinformation denies himself or herself the pleasure of CAMELS.

New smokers are not always in a position to have a real preference in cigarettes. But when they acquaint themselves with Camels they develop that sense of discrimination that leads to real smoking pleasure. Camels are made so carefully and of so good a blend of choicest cigarette tobaccos that even those with inexperienced smoking taste quickly recognize their superiority. They are for those who appreciate the taste of choice tobaccos, the fragrance of a perfect blend and the soothing mellowness of a really satisfying cigarette.

when they learn the difference they flock to Camels

The Favorable Answer to a Maiden's Prayer!

DOCTORS, health specialists who write for newspapers and old-fashioned parents have bewailed the "shocking" and "dangerous" tendency of "we moderns" (especially the so-called "flappers") to ignore the comfort and health protection of winter underwear.

But their wailing and sobbing have fallen on deaf ears. "Who would want to wear grandmother's red flannels?" the young set has asked. Style and environment have changed, say "the collegiates."

Their cry has been, "Give us death or give us liberty to be in style and dress as we please."

And pneumonia does carry off a lot of folks each year to untimely graves.

The high school or college girl has shivered with "goose pimples" rather than put on warm winter underwear—nobler and more heroic to die on the altar of style. Horatius and Joan of Arc fade into the background!

Into this situation comes "Adirondia"—like the answer to a maiden's prayer. First of all, it is really beautiful, made of lustrous durable SILK with a featherweight warp of soft yarn wool worsted. Just the thing for style and comfort, too.

"It's great—it's Okay—it is alrighty" is what the outdoors misses and women are saying who go to Lake Placid—the Adirondacks, White mountains or other resorts for winter sports—or for motoring, hiking and skating right here at home.

Ask for the "BREECHETTE" (short knee length silk and wool) in pink, blue, etc., at Reid & Hughes Co., who also carry the "Filly" riding habit or pullover silk and wool vest. Oh, yes, there are girls' union suits too, in sizes 6 to 10 years you'll find here.

JEWETT CITY

WORKMAN ON PRESTON ROAD STRUCK BY MOOSUP CAR

(Special to The Bulletin)

JEWETT CITY, Nov. 12.—A Polish man who gave his name as Martin, was knocked down in front of the Malek block on Main street Tuesday evening by a Pontiac sedan, driven by Francis Milo, of High street, Moosup. The man was picked up and taken to the office of Dr. J. H. McLaughlin, where several bruises and scratches on his face were found to be of only a minor nature. Officer Henry Veglard learned from the several witnesses and from the driver that the injured man was entirely at fault, as he stepped in front of the machine. Milo was not held in any way responsible by the police. John Koniecko, who owns the George Ayer farm in Preston, was called by the officer. Koniecko said the man, who was working on the Preston state road contract, has boarded with him for two weeks and he was only known as Martin.

PART OF THE PLAINS MAY BECOME LANDING FIELD

In connection with the proposed widening of the state road below Bishop's, a narrow strip of land is to be taken from the Joseph Roode property. The report was Tuesday that Mr. Roode would be asked to sell a part of the "Plains" for the establishment of an aviation field. Several airmen from Hartford, who have been here Saturdays for three weeks past, have said that the situation was ideal. The northern part of the big lot provides a long, even runway and an equally fine landing field. When it is considered that over 50 local persons have taken short air trips, many believe that now and then one would like to try the sticks. Parachute jumping may also become a popular pastime for Saturday afternoons.

When I had taken the first one I began to feel better so I kept on during the whole period. We have a healthy baby boy and we are so proud of him and praise Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound for the help it gave me. I feel lots stronger since I started to use it and would not be without it."—Mrs. Frank Lukes, R. No. 1, Box 58, Lankin, N. Dakota.

LETTERS FROM AFRICA COME FROM MRS. DUANE WALN

Letters are being received by local friends from Mrs. Duane Waln, from her mission station in West Africa. Mrs. Waln has not been able to do much yet, as she contracted malaria on the voyage, and has been ill for three weeks. She is to teach in the girls' school in Chillesse, and Mr. Waln to do similar work with the boys. Mrs. Waln is teaching sewing, and has charge of the dormitory, which includes inspection of rooms, and clothes and to measure out their food, corn to make into corn meal, which the girls do by pounding it on rocks just as they do in their villages. The girls are allowed beans and meat twice a week. It is hoped to have a practice house soon in which four girls will live at a time, and in which Mrs. Waln will instruct them in home making, cleanliness and the care of small children. The language of the natives in this part of Africa is Umbundu and Mr. and Mrs. Waln will spend the next six months in learning this, also Portuguese is spoken to some extent by the natives which language Mr. and Mrs. Waln learned last year while in Portugal. They are very enthusiastic about their work.

ANOTHER WAVE OF SELLING SENDS OVER 100 STOCK ISSUES DOWN

NEW YORK, Nov. 12—(AP)—Wall street's visions of a return to normalcy in the stock market were shattered today by another spasm of desperate liquidation. More than 100 issues plumbed new depths for the decline, as the volume of trading swelled to 6,452,000 shares for the three-hour session, more than double yesterday's turnover, and unsurpassed in a trading period of like duration save for the total of 7,149,390 shares traded on Oct. 31.

The day's break was less drastic, however, than the losses recorded during several days of the recent selling panic, and the bankers consortium felt that further emergency measures were uncalled for. Net losses in most leading shares ran from 2 to 20 points, but a few slightly traded issues showed spectacular drops. The decline was orderly, without reappearance of demoralized conditions on the floor. The ticker, nevertheless, was again helpless, running for two and a quarter hours after the close.

The downturn was undoubtedly hastened by the spilling overboard of large holdings caused by the breaking of thin margins in the sharp drop late yesterday. Short selling was again in large volume, but the leaden heaviness of the list indicated that shorts were a minor factor. A short interest huge enough to be regarded as a determining factor would at least have provided a cushion for the decline.

Most observers were inclined to regard the character of the selling as indicating that a huge amount of necessitous selling still hung over the market, and were disinclined to make any predictions as to its probable extent. It was felt that the collapse of the market had been more far reaching in its consequences than had been at first realized, and that the passing of stock from weakened to strong hands may take some time.

With this fear of uncertainty gathering over the market, insurance companies and other large investors who quickly began to accumulate stocks after the first convulsions of liquidation, generally withdrew their support, and even floor traders who normally buy heavily for a turn, were inclined to retire to the sidelines. While there was a widespread feeling that stocks are being reduced to ridiculously low levels, as measured by assets and current earnings, it appeared that the necessitous selling would have to be permitted to run its course

CHICAGO GRAIN MARKET

CHICAGO, Nov. 12.—(AP)—Wheat, and every other kind of grain as well, plunged down today to below any price level heretofore reached this season. Wild rushes to sell, especially at the beginning and the end of the day, caused 7 cents a bushel smash in the wheat market, owing largely to demoralizing effects of severe new breaks in stock exchange values.

Wheat traders virtually ignored the fact that for the first time in weeks the United States wheat visible supply showed a big decrease, and also gave no apparent heed to the circumstance that prices for wheat in Chicago had collapsed to more than 4 cents under the point at which government loans to farm organizations are available.

Closing prices on wheat were feverish, 6 3-8 to 7 cents a bushel lower than Saturday's finish. Corn closed 2 1-4 to 3 1-8 down; oats 3 1-4 to 3 1-2c off and provisions unchanged to a setback of 22 cents.

COTTON

NEW YORK, Nov. 12.—(AP)—Cotton futures closed barely steady, 20@32 points lower; spot quiet; middling 17.00.

Ultro-smart Greeks and Romans of the 450 B. C. era used butter as a hair dressing and cosmetic.

BOND MARKET

NEW YORK, Nov. 12—(AP)—Heavy selling of stocks again affected the bond market today, sending prices down in all groups except the United States government listings. The softening of values, however, was regarded as only a temporary condition and was attributed to liquidation by holders needing funds for stock market purposes.

Liberty Bonds and Treasury certificates, after some irregularity early in the three hour session, turned upward as the domestic corporation list weakened and closing prices were near the highs for the year. The Treasury 3 3-4s rose to a new top in a few sales. Corporations with large surplus funds, as well as institutions, were reported as buyers of the "governments."

Seasoned rails, offered in considerable volume, showed fractional declines in many issues, while losses of a point or more appeared in others. Among the latter were Erie 5s and General lien 4s, Indianapolis Union Railway 5s, Missouri Kansas Texas First 4s, New York Central 6s and refunding 5s, Nickel Plate 5 1-2s, Lehigh Valley 4 1-2s, Southern Railway general 4s, St. Louis & San Francisco 4 1-2s and Union Pacific Refunding 4s.

$50,000 IN BILLS FOR EAST HAMPTON BACK TAXES

Tax Collector H. N. Alexander, employed by the town of East Hampton as special auditor to go over town finances, has mailed out tax bills covering about $50,000 in back taxes as a first step in checking up on whether the money is actually uncollected or merely unrecorded. The records were reported in deplorable condition by the state tax commissioner's office as a result of a preliminary investigation following the disappearance of former Tax Collector Herbert D. Watrous, when he failed of renomination for the post. Watrous was brought home from Pontiac, Ill., and held under bonds pending the inquiry.

The town auditors will meet all day Wednesday and Thursday at the town hall to hear any complaints by those who receive bills for taxes which they may already have paid.

OFFICERS INSTALLED FOR THE NEW T. S. K. CLUB

The T. S. K. club is a club formed by several young men about a month ago. Installation of its officers was held in O. E. P. hall on Branch street Sunday evening. An installing team of five came from Bridgeport. T. S. K. club. The hall was decorated in gold and black, the colors of the club. A crowd of 125 gathered to see the new officers installed. The team from Bridgeport was cheered by the crowd for several minutes. The new officers are: President, William O'Brien; vice-president, Morris Powers; treasurer, Billie Fitzgerald; secretary, Paul Sullivan; chaplain, George Grant; goad of the order committee, Buster Bowers and Elliott Bennett. A fine Long Island duck supper was served by the young ladies, in charge of Miss Peggy Walsh. President O'Brien explained why the club was formed. Only a married man can be president, according to the rules. President O'Brien is a great football player and has his name on the roll of honor at Storrs college. He now is coach of Bulkeley team, New London, known as the Tigers. He spoke for 40 minutes. Jesse Bennett spoke of his trip by automobile to Illinois, also about the Army and Illinois game. His cousin, Chris Cagle, is a member of the Army team. It was the first time he ever saw his cousin, Cagle, play. The Illinois team held like a stone wall and would not let Uncle Sam's men pass. During the half, when the men were resting, Bennett went down to see his cousin whom he had not seen in seven years. Jesse shook hands with all the players on the team and was some happy to meet them, also was told to come to West Point and look the place over any time. Bennett said he never saw such a game with so much action. But he was sorry to see the Army on the short end of the score.

A short play was put on by the club members as Armistice day came Monday. The name was The Good News from the United States, God's Country. After the curtain went down, George Grant showed how he could walk on swords with his bare feet. President O'Brien showed how a piano and a cornet could be played at the same time. The members of the T. S. K. club installing team from Bridgeport told the club members from here to come up to that city for a meeting soon. At the close of the evening all sang America.

POETRY

Indian Summer.

Out in November's softened glow,
Her spicy fragrance in the air,
A spell is on the sights we know,
The old, dull things grow strange and rare:
Golden enchantment over trees and stream,
The quiet, hazy brooding of a dream.

The sluggish pond, once brown and dull,
Glows now in shimmering yellow light.
Those reeds, we thought unbeautiful,
Standing transformed, erect and bright,
Gold-tipped like spears, they guard the water's edge,
Serried battalions of the bronzed sedge.

The lustrous oak leaves yonder burn
Like greenish bronze, such as one sees
In some old Greek-bound classic urn,
In courts amid the cypress trees,
Where fountains plash; brown spots the greensward stain
For all the years cut in the sun and rain!

The soft, warm air, the burnished leaves,
The golden ears that promise much,
The ripening of the harvest sheaves,
Transfigured all by Midas' touch,
Which brings the heart's fulfilment, care's release,
With golden gifts of plenitude and peace.

Amends to Nature.

I have loved colors, and not flowers;
Their motion, not the swallow's wings
And wasted more than half my hours
Without the comradeship of things.

How is it, now, that I can see,
With love and wonder and delight,
The children of the hedge and tree,
The little lords of day and night?

How is it that I see the roads,
No longer with usurping eyes,
A twilight meeting place for toads
A mid-day mart for butterflies?

I feel, in every midge that hums,
Life, fugitive and infinite,
And suddenly the world becomes
A part of me and I of it.

—Arthur Symons.

PROPOSED ZONING CHANGES EVOKE VIGOROUS PROTESTS AT NEW LONDON

(Special to The Bulletin)

NEW LONDON, Nov. 12.—A public hearing was held this evening in the council chamber on petitions for changes in the zoning ordinance.

The first change considered was that which would change from residence zone to business zone No 1, that section of the city bounded by Grand street, Jefferson avenue, McDonald street and Connecticut avenue, and which was recommended by the zoning board of appeals. There was opposition to the proposed change and it will be so reported to the council Monday evening next.

Simon C. Fraser and others petitioned for the changing of that section on the easterly side of Oneco avenue, known as lots 193 to 208. There was opposition to that change also and the same report will be made.

The stoutest sort of opposition was manifested against a proposal to change from residence zone A to residence zone B that section comprising property on the west side of Nathan Hale street, from the northerly line of Post Hill place to Crest street and the property on the northerly side of Crest street from the extended side of Nathan Hale street to Fitch avenue.

George Whittlesey and others were the petitioners. G. Fred Brown was a strong objector and represented that Mr. Whittlesey and one other person, who signed the petition under a misapprehension, were the petitioners. He said that if there was any section in the city that was a truly residential section it was the one referred to.

A. C. Newbury also protested and said the proposed change would be detrimental to his property and that of his sons, which represented a value of some $60,000. He said the plan of Mr. Whittlesey was to change his property to a three or four-tenement house, which change would damage other property nearby.

A petition to change from residence zone A to industrial zone A on Doll avenue, asked for by Mr. McLoughlin, was also opposed very strongly by H. B. Kenny, a property owner, who represented that he had a petition with 34 signatures opposing the change. It was represented by the petitioner that the change meant the extension of what is now the industrial zone that would permit the laying of a spur track alongside the New Haven railroad 200 feet west of Ocean avenue, to the Waterford line. Mr. McLoughlin said the site was about the only one on the west side of the city where a siding could be laid.

H. B. Kenny opposed the change and said it was no place for an industry. He said the plan was not feasible as the grading would be very expensive. He represented that the property owners there were opposed to the change and said that they went there to have a quiet neighborhood.

Mr. Johnson was also opposed to any change. Charles street came into the situation, but it was concluded that such a highway could not be located.

Frank Gallup was in favor of the change.

Mrs. Emily Speirs was opposed to any change being made in Oneco avenue, saying she was antagonistic to making one side of the avenue a residential section and the other side an industrial area.

LIQUOR PRESCRIPTION BLANKS STOLEN FROM DOCTORS

(Special to The Bulletin.)

NEW LONDON, Nov. 12.— A new type of thief operated here this forenoon. The crook stole abot 100 liquor prescription blanks from the offices of Dr. Thomas J. Murray, Huntington street, and Dr. Charles Kaufman, State street. It is believed that the thefts were committed by the same person and that the blanks will be disposed of in some city other than New London. The various cities throughout the state have been requested to be on the alert in the event of the blanks being tendered for liquor. At the office of Dr. Murray about 55 were stolen and they were removed from a form of the Serial E—157339. From the office of Dr. Kaufman, practically the same number of blanks were stolen. These are also of the Serial E—156952.

STATE POLICE TRAP MANY DRIVERS IGNORING LAW

(Special to The Bulletin)

NEW LONDON, Nov. 12.—Tonight in furtherance of the endeavor of the state police to compel adherance to the laws and reduce the number of automobile accidents, a force of officers was stationed on the trunk lines particularly in Waterford and the Thames river highway bridge, where all cars were stopped and inspected together with the registration and license of the driver. As a result numerous arrests were made, for cars were found being operated without proper equipment and in some cases without license or registration.

Blamed Driver Of Small Car

W. H. Thompson, 32 Hill street, made complaint to the police this evening that the driver of an automobile carrying Connecticut registration L—2026, was guilty of evasion of responsibility and requested the arrest of the driver. It was ascertained that the registration reported by Thompson is held by Roger Panciera, 98 Greenmanville avenue, Mystic. Thompson said that the colliding car was a small one, either a Ford or a Chevrolet. The state police were requested to arrest Panciera and when he was brought to New London from his home in Mystic, Panciera's registration was that which was claimed by Thompson, but the car was far from being a small one, being a Packard. Panciera denied his auto having been in collision with another car and it is unlikely that he will be in court, for Thompson undoubtedly erred in observing the markers on the car that damaged his machine.

Norman Carmen, Connecticut College for Women, was arrested tonight by Traffic Officer Walter O'Neil, charged with driving without a license. The driver was ordered to present himself in court tomorrow.

The local branch of Armour & Co., wholesale beef dealers, today had a certificate giving L. P. Manning power of attorney, filed for record at the office of the city clerk. The certificate also cancels the same power that was vested in W. D. Harris several years ago.

The Blue Ribbon Garage & Service Station, Inc., today caused a certificate of corporation to be filed for record at the office of the city clerk. The capital stock of the corporation is $50,000, divided into 500 shares of the par value of $100 per share and which stock shall be common stock. The corporation starts business with capital stock of $5,000. The incorporators are Russell E. Beckwith and Elizabeth M. Harvey, of this city and Frederick L. Goss, Waterford.

MORAN TUMBLES OVERBOARD WHEN LOADED WITH HOOCH

(Special to The Bulletin)

NEW LONDON, Nov. 12—Eddie Moran, who has spent much of his time the past few months in the county jail, will probably be given another term at the Franklin street county building tomorrow when he is presented in the police court. Moran is a prisoner at police headquarters tonight as a result of his being pulled from the Thames river, into which he fell earlier in the day while drunk. Moran and others spent the greater part of the day on the municipal pier having a hooch party. After several bottles of alcoholic beverages had been consumed by the gang, Moran became intoxicated and fell into the river. There were fishing boats moored to the pier and one of the seafarers, with Automobile Patrol Officer Elwood Bailey succeeded in pulling Moran to the pier with the aid of a boat hook. Moran was taken to police headquarters, placed in a cell near the police room and wrapped in blankets to offset the effects of his involuntary bath.

Miss Jeanette Spiers of Old Lyme: Mrs. Robert Jordan and infant daughter, 38 Hill street; Miss Anna Hamilton, 30 Sixth street, patients at Lawrence-Memorial hospital, were dismissed today.

FUNERALS

George E. Wood

The funeral of George E. Wood, son of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas W. Wood, of Durfee Hill, Waterford, one of three linemen employed by the Southern New England Telephone company, who were instantly killed Saturday while driving from Plainfield to New London, when their automobile collided with a boulder a few miles south of Plainfield, was held this afternoon at 2 o'clock at the residence of the young man's parents. The service was read by Rev. W. F. Parsons, rector of St. John's Episcopal church, Niantic. Burial was in West Neck cemetery, Waterford.

Richard Cushman

Private funeral services for Richard Cushman, of Hartford and Eastern Point, who died at Lawrence-Memorial hospital Sunday, were held this afternoon at 4 o'clock at the residence of his mother, Mrs. Eugene Cushman, 13 Glenwood avenue. Rev. Philip M. Kerridge rector of St. James' Episcopal church, read the service. The body was forwarded to Hartford where burial will take place tomorrow.

Max Soltz, Main street merchant, reported to the police last night that while his automobile was parked on Bank street last night a thief stole two spare tires.

John Janovic, Jr., of 39 Terrace avenue, was in the police court today charged with violation of the state motor vehicle law in using one set of markers on two cars. He pleaded guilty and was fined $10 and costs.

Two cases of intoxication were also tried. One of the men was given suspension of judgment and the other was fined $10 and costs.

Coastguardsmen Cause Trouble

Coast Guard sailors, stationed at the state pier, caused trouble for the police last night. One of the bluejackets went to a dance hall where his boisterous conduct caused the proprietor to complain to the police. The offending sailor was arrested by Patrolman George Brehns. He was delivered into the custody of a shore patrol and taken back to the pier for discipline. Two other coast guarders were on Main street where they caused a disturbance, only to be arrested by Patrolman Albert Iverson. They, also, were delivered to a guard and taken back to the pier.

Query From Brooklyn, N. Y.

The police of Brooklyn, N. Y., today requested the New London police for any record that the latter might possess of Alton H. White, 26, under arrest in the former city charged with vagrancy and who stated that he had been arrested in New London on a charge of forgery. The police here have no record against White.

Announcement is made by Charles Chapman of Guilford, of the engagement of his daughter, Miss Violet Pearl Chapman, to Edwin Truman Kelsey, son of Mr. and Mrs. Fred Kelsey, of Waterford.

Mrs. Gurdon C. Avery is seriously ill with grip at her home at Lakes Pond, Waterford.

Mrs. Homer K. Underwood was elected commissioner of New London Girl Scouts at the annual meeting of the scout council held last night at the Mohican hotel. Other officers elected are: Deputy commissioner, Miss May Chute; secretary, Mrs. Lewis B. Doane; treasurer, Mrs. John B. Baxter. Members of the executive board for one year: Mrs. Robert Paton and Mrs. James H. Stivers. The nominating committee consisted of Mrs. Charles B. Graves, chairman, Mrs. James H. Stivers and Mrs. David Whiton. Owing to the absence from New London of the treasurer Mrs. James H. Stivers was appointed temporary treasurer.

F. N. NICHOLS CONTINUES IN CRITICAL CONDITION

(Special to The Bulletin)

NEW LONDON, Nov. 12.— Frank N. Nichols, 54, residing at 82 Pequonnoc road, is the latest victim of a hit and run driver. Tonight Nichols is a patient on the danger list at Lawrence Memorial hospital, suffering from a fractured skull, sustained last night when struck by an automobile but a short distance from his home. His condition has remained critical from the time he was taken to the hospital. Nichols and two companions had left the yard of the Max Pollack mill and going to the right hand side of the highway, walked leisurely toward their home. Nichols walked nearest to the path of automobiles, but was well over to his right hand side. The men had gone but a short distance when an automobile, headed toward New London, came along at a fast rate of speed. The driver disregarded the safety of the pedestrians and did not change the course so that Nichols would escape, but instead kept on the right hand side with the result that Nichols was struck with great force, being hurled violently to the concrete pavement. He landed on his head, then rolled into a ditch, where he was found by his companions, bleeding from the nostrils and ears. The state police were acquainted with the accident and Officer James Dygert had Nichols taken to the hospital, but his search for information that might lead to the arrest of the driver was not rewarded with facts, other than that the driver speeded away after hitting Nichols and to cover up his tracks, had the tail-light extinguished immediately following the accident. The only information that Nichols' companions could give the officer was that the auto was a sedan.

Failed To Notify Department

Benjamin Sebastian, Old Mystic, was arrested yesterday by State Police Officer John Smith, charged with neglecting to report to the motor vehicle department a change of his address. Sebastian will be in Groton town court Monday next.

SULLIVAN GARAGE FIRE ENTAILS LOSS OF $3,000

The fire in the garage of Anthony Sullivan, 329 Broad street, last night caused greater damage than at first estimated. Today it was determined that the loss to Sullivan will be at least $3000. Beside gutting of the building, two automobiles, one a roadster and the other a commercial truck, were practically destroyed. How the fire originated has not been determined. The garage was closed several hours before the fire was discovered by a neighbor, when the interior of the garage was a mass of flames. A telephone message to fire headquarters caused Deputy Chief Calvin Edmunds and the Northwest Hose company to respond, but when the firemen arrived the building appeared doomed for the fire had gained headway rapidly. An alarm was then sent in from Box 29, corner of Broad and Ledyard streets and on the arrival of three additional companies three streams of water were necessary to extinguish the blaze. Fire Chief Thomas Shipman is continuing his investigation in an effort to ascertain the cause of the fire.

Continues Critically Ill

There was no change today in the condition of John F. Murray, Main street merchant, and member of the city council, who is critically ill at his home, 109 Blackhall street.

ANNOUNCEMENTS

Strand Theatre

On Wednesday and Thursday the Strand theatre has a big double feature program for the picture-going public of Norwich.

"Campus Knights," is a great story of life on the campus. It is a typical up-to-the-minute story of college life, but minus the stereotyped athletic angle which has become so shopworn in the average screen vehicle. The story is concerned about a girls' college and outside of the part of the leading man, practically every character in it is portrayed by a good looking girl. To that sterling screen comedian, Raymond McKee go the stellar honors. Mr. McKee appears in a most unique dual role of twin brothers.

The other big feature is "Roses of Picardy," one of the most human and haunting war story ever seen on the screen. It is enacted by a splendid cast, the members of which while not so widely known to American audiences are all favorites across the Atlantic. The picture is an idealistic romance between a French maid and a British officer and is guaranteed to tug your heartstrings such as few emotional dramas have ever done.

On the same bill is an up-to-the-minute M. G. M. News and a Drugstore Cowboy comedy.

Breed Theatre

One of the most interesting and impressive bits of film ever screened at any local theatre forms part of the program at the Breed theatre this week and is bound to draw much favorable comment.

William F. Aldrich, an artist in scenic photography, has produced a real masterpiece. The film "A Trip to the Hawaiian Islands," is a most striking travelogue. It is done in gorgeous and artistic pastel colorings and is accompanied from start to finish by the Imperial Hawaiian Singers who are instrumentalists as well as vocalists.

Do not miss "A Trip to the Hawaiian Islands," which is featured together with the "Exalted Flapper," a big first-run photoplay starring Sue Carol, Irene Rich, and Barry Norton.

North Carolina will hold a homecoming celebration November 12 to 14 with programs planned in every county.

IF BACK HURTS BEGIN ON SALTS

Flush Your Kidneys Occasionally by Drinking Quarts of Good Water

No man or woman can make a mistake by flushing the kidneys occasionally, says a well-known authority. Too much rich food creates acids which clog the kidney pores so that they sluggishly filter or strain only part of the waste and poisons from the blood. Then you get sick. Rheumatism, headaches, liver trouble, nervousness, constipation, dizziness, sleeplessness, bladder disorders often come from sluggish kidneys.

The moment you feel a dull ache in the kidneys or your back hurts, or if the urine is cloudy, offensive, full of sediment, irregular of passage, or attended by a sensation of scalding, begin to drink good water in quantities; also get about four ounces of Jad Salts from any reliable pharmacy and take a tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast for a few days and your kidneys may then act fine.

This famous salts is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia, and has been used for years to help flush clogged kidneys and stimulate them to activity, also to help neutralize the acids in the system so they no longer cause irritation, thus often relieving bladder disorders.

Jad Salts is inexpensive and cannot injure; makes a delightful effervescent lithia-water drink, which everyone can take now and then to help keep the kidneys clean and the blood pure, thereby often preventing serious kidney complications.

The Doctor Approves of Cascara

When you're out of sorts because liver and bowels are not functioning properly, don't take a violent purgative that will upset your whole system and make you feel all the worse. A candy Cascaret will soon have you feeling fine again—and there'll be no unpleasant after effects.

Cascarets are as pleasing to the palate as candy. Their action is gentle, but thorough. They work while you sleep; cleanse the entire thirty feet of bowels in one comfortable, thorough action that leaves the system clean and sweet. They help restore normal bowel action and are not habit-forming.

Cascarets are made of cascara, long recognized by the medical profession as one of the most beneficial laxatives, and one that actually strengthens the bowel muscles. Cascarets are sweetened with pure cane sugar and flavored with real licorice. That's why children love them—and grown folks find them so easy to take.

Physicians say by far the great majority of human ills are caused by constipation. If a coated tongue, dull headaches, disordered stomach or general listless feeling warn you of faulty elimination, don't take a chance on real sickness. Take a Cascaret every day or two until your system seems normal. You'll be amazed at the effectiveness of this simple measure. The use of 20 million packages of Cascarets a year proves their worth.

Behind the gray, damp walls of a state's prison a bitter man waited, brooding, thinking only of revenge and the wrong which he felt had been done to him. Truly enough he had been wronged, but not by the person whom he thought. Had he known the depth and iniquity of the injustice that had been done to him, he might well have gone mad in his loneliness. But the didn't. He thought merely that he was the victim of a trick played by the district attorney, the man who had taken the $100,000 in bonds which he had returned and then had gone on to prosecute him anyway. Small wonder Joe Daley was bitter—in jail for five years for a crime which he knew he did not commit.

There, in a nutshell is the situation of "Skin Deep," the powerful all-dialogue Vitaphone production now playing at the Palace theater with Davey Lee, Monte Blue, Betty Compson, Alice Day and other stars in the featured roles. Joe Daley has been framed, but by the last person in the world whom he would accuse of tricking him—his own wife, Sadie, working with her former lover, Blackie, a gunman who had been a rival of Joe, were plotting a diabolical end to the husband. Meantime Sadie visited Joe regularly professing her love and devotion.

There is a certain awesome majesty in this picture, crook-picture though it be. Life hangs by slender threads and no one knows what the morrow will bring in this drama. The suspense is electrifying and the action at all times tense and superb. Once again the Palace has scored with a masterpiece. Come and see it!

ANNOUNCEMENTS

Broadway Theatre

Local weather for the next three days is officially forecasted as clouds of chuckles, showers of smiles, gales of giggles, hurricanes of howls and tornadoes of tittering, greeting the three daily performances of Harold Lloyd and his stellar cast in the smiling comedian's first talking picture "Welcome Danger," now in its last three days at the Broadway. Cast as a bashful and somewhat dumb professor of botany at an eastern prep school, Lloyd certainly does "welcome danger" with open arms. His disruption of the Frisco police force, his goofy mishandling of the fingerprint department, butting in to the inner circles of the gigantic "dope" ring, and finally, by a thrilling mischance, his uncovering of a crooked police commissioner, make up a thrilling and exciting but always laughable story which holds it audiences breathless from excitement and laughter for a solid two hours. His last exploit is a riotous trip on a fractious motorcycle with the girl of his dreams, dainty Barbara Kent, with the final bump landing them right in front of the Heavenly Gates. The latest Paramount Sound news, and Lillian Roth with her Piano Boy, complete a long and interesting program, with three popular price performances daily at 2:15, 6:45 and 9 p. m.

CRAZED STONINGTON MILL WORKER SHOOTS WIFE AND SON'S FRIEND

(Special to The Bulletin)

STONINGTON, Nov. 12— In a sudden fit of madness this evening about 7:30, Antone Previty, 45, shot his wife, Mary, at their home on Harmony street and also shot Benjamin Burdick, 22, of Wall street, who is a chum of one of the boys in the Previty family.

Burdick is the more severely injured, one shot breaking his right arm and another passing through the tissues on his right side. Mrs. Previty was also shot twice, one bullet perforating the lining of the abdomen and another going into her side. Both the wounded are at the Westerly hospital, where they were taken after they had been removed to the office of Dr. William T. Veal, who gave them preliminary treatment.

Previty is held at the Stonington police station for presentation in court on the charge of assault with intent to kill.

The man had been a patient for a year at the Norwich state hospital, it is understood, and had been discharged from there three weeks ago. He had been working in the American velvet mill.

While in one of the rooms of his house tonight after supper, he suddenly dashed into the next room with a pistol in his hand and started shooting, his wife and the Burdick youth being the victims. Charles E. Stapllins who heard the shots as he was going by rushed into the house and overpowered Previty, who was taken to the Stonington lockup by Officer William Ostman, who handcuffed the man.

DAVID CAMPION ELECTED NEW ROCHELLE SUPERVISOR

David Campion, formerly of this city, who is now in the stationery business in New Rochelle, N. Y., has just been elected a supervisor of the second ward there. He had a majority of 363 votes.

Supervisor-elect Campion has the distinction of being the only democrat who succeeded in defating a republican supervisor at the general election. Supervisor Edward Carson who defeated Campion by 50 odd votes last election is the unsuccessful incumbent. All but one of the nine districts in the second ward returned large majorities for Campion, but he carried that district by a scant margin.

TOLD WOMEN VOTERS OF COUNTY HOME MANAGEMENT

Speaking before the November meeting of the Norwich League of Women Voters at 4 o'clock Tuesday at Slater hall annex, Mrs. Frank A. Mitchell, who is on the state board of public welfare, gave an instructive explanation of the management of county affairs especially as applies to county homes.

Mrs. Mitchell was introduced by Mrs. Thomas M. Shields, president, who conducted a short business meeting which preceded the address.

Mrs. Mitchell referred to the county commissioners, whose special function includes management of the jails and the county homes, declaring that they are all kindhearted and broadminded men, with an interest in children. The law provides that the board of management of the county home shall include the three commissioners, one member of the state board of health and one member of the department of public welfare. In the New London county home, Mrs. Mitchell said, there are a few over 70 children now. Children are committed to the home from the age of 4 to 18 years by the court. It is the policy of the county home management to make this a temporary home as far as possible, but children are not put out into families unless there can be suitable supervision of them. The child is better off in the county home than when put out without suitable supervision. No child is put into a home that is not of the same religion as the parents of the child.

The New London county commissioners consider it desirable to get the child away from the home as early as may be desirable so that it may be released from the institutional idea, but some other county commissioners follow the plan of keeping the boys and girls at the home up to the full age limit of 18 years. Through an increased appropriation which was granted by the last legislature it is now possible to give better supervision of the children put out in homes through the use of more agents, supervisors and visitors.

Mrs. Mitchell spoke of the fine building plan of the new home for New London county that is being erected and said the commissioners were satisfied that the children were better off when they go to school at the home than if they go outside to school. They have less communicable disease, less sickness and less troubles, and the school has the best teachers, who are under supervision of the state board of education.

Mrs. Mitchell described some of the arrangements made in the plan for the home, telling of the special lockers which are provided so that each boy and girl may have a place to keep his or her own things.

The meeting gave a vote of thanks for her very informative talk.

BAPTIST MINISTERS MET AT EASTERN POINT

The first meeting for the season of 1929 and 1930 of the Thames Valley Baptist Ministerial association was held Monday at the home of the Rev. Edwin S. Holloway in Eastern Point road, Groton. The meeting opened at 11 o'clock with three minutes' silent devotions in remembrance of those who made the great sacrifice in the World war. The president, Rev. Herbert B. Hutchins, pastor of the church at Quaker Hill, offered the prayer of the archbishop of Canterbury composed for such occasions. There was a large attendance of ministers and ministers' wives. After the reading of the records by the secretary, Rev. J. F. Speerli, the visiting brethren, Rev. Henry W. Hulbert, pastor of the Groton Congregational church, and Rev. S. H. Barnum, father of Dr. Charles G. Barnum, of Groton, were introduced. The ministers present gave items of interest in their life and work.

The address of the day was given by the host, Dr. Holloway, who spoke most interestingly of his long experience as pastor of the Thirty-second street Baptist church in New York. Dr. Holloway disallowed the idea that he was a "retired" evangelist or pastor or a "retired" anything. And indeed since his coming to make his home in the town of his childhood he has been very busy in the work of general ministry. After his delightful reminiscences the doctor surprised all those present by presenting each minister a copy of a volume of the inspiring essays of the great Australian pastor, the Rev. F. W. Boreham.

The report of the program committee for the season was presented and accepted, after which the host and hostess invited all to partake of luncheon. Dr. Hulbert's felicitous words of thanks to Dr. and Mrs. Holloway brought to a close a most enjoyable occasion.

The next meeting of this association will be held with the Huntington street Baptist church of New London, Dec. 9.

TAFTVILLE

A very delightful birthday party was held Saturday afternoon in honor of the 4th birthday of Marjorie Vetter, at the home of her mother, Mrs. Albert Vetter, and her grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. Martin Krauss of 324 Norwich avenue. The rooms were prettily decorated in pink, green and white, and the table, on which stood the large birthday cake with its four candles, was in pink and white. At each end of the table, potted roses were used.

About 22 young friends of the little hostess gathered, and the afternoon was spent in playing games. The peanut hunt was won by Mary Louise Manchester, with Harry Ely being awarded the consolation prize. FOIL PLOT FOR WHOLESALE DELIVERY AT SING SING

Seven Convicts in Conspiracy to Free Sing Sing's 2,000 Inmates Were Lodged in Solitary Confinement—Early Discovery of Plot By Prison Officials Resulted in Close Watch on Prisoners—Desperate Conspirators Planned to Smuggle Weapons Into Cell Block, Short Circuit Lighting System and Open Cell Doors With False Key.

OSSINING, N. Y., Nov. 13—(AP)—A highly organized conspiracy, designed almost scientifically by artists of escape for a whole delivery of Sing Sing prison's 2,000 inmates was revealed today by authorities who said the ring leaders had been lodged in solitary confinement.

A week ago prison officials obtained a tip to the plot, and each day since have frisked inmates and searched every cell until they learned that under the direction of seven convicts—at least one of them a killer—a scheme had been effected to smuggle weapons into a cell block, short circuit the lighting system and use a false key to the cells in which the plotters were kept. A search is being made for a gun.

Had the plot succeeded, prison authorities indicated, a reenactment of the bloody riots of Auburn, Dannemora and Canon City, Colo., probably would have resulted. Someone talked, however, and while keepers under Warden Lewis E. Lawes kept a close watch on known unruly prisoners and intense alertness was maintained which resulted in the transfer of one convict to another prison and the lodging of six in solitary confinement. An unidentified trio of the sextet have been released from solitary, but the remaining three remain alone and under constant guard.

Walter Frelig, in whose cell was found a letter including a draftsman's design of implements to be used, has been sent to Clinton prison. Roy Sloane, Joseph Pioli and Edward Ryan are the trio in solitary confinement.

"They will stay there as long as they are here," Warden Lewis E. Lawes said.

Warden Lawes said the letter found in Frelig's cell was in the handwriting of Sloane, and was evidently written for the guidance of confederates in secretly making tools for escape. The design of one of the tools indicated that it was to be placed in a panel box where electric light wires entered the cell block to cause a short circuit. The model of this tool—shaped like a tomahawk—was found hidden in the prison power house, and a key model was discovered in a cell. The model was a duplicate of the key used to open the steel door of the old stone cells in which the conspirators and others were lodged.

Pioli is in prison for a slaying. While he was being sought for the murder of his brother, Santo in 1924, he was arrested and convicted for the murder of Bill Brennan, pugilist, in a New York cabaret. He was sentenced to 20 years.

The confinement of these three is taking place in the death house, marking the first time in the history of the prison that time-serving prisoners have been cast into the closely-guarded cells where previously only inmates condemned to death have been kept.

BANDITS FOILED IN NAVAL PAYROLL ROBBERY ATTEMPT

NEW YORK, Nov. 13—(AP)—A gigantic safe in the naval supply department in Brooklyn for five hours today withstood numerous charges of high explosives, set off by a daring gang of robbers who sought a $85,000 payroll locked within.

With the six base guards, all but two of them civilians, securely tied and locked in their own "brig," the massive doors of the safe alone stood between the robbers and their goal. But the strong metal box resisted the drills and nitro glycerine and with approaching dawn and a change of guards the robbers were forced to flee, unsuccessful in their quest for loot.

Even the mute evidence of the unopened battered doors did not convince authorities that the raid had not been successful. It was only after a day's labor by safe experts that the vault finally was opened and the $85,000 found untouched inside.

The raid on the naval base was skillfully executed. Coolly and deliberately the raiders went about their business, overpowering one by one the six guards about the buildings. Each guard was securely bound and locked in the base jail, and even a marine policeman who dropped in for a chat with the guards fell into the hands of the raiders.

None of the victims were harmed except one who was struck over the head with a pistol butt when he offered resistance.

The day guard, unable to get an answer to their signals outside, broke into the building and released the prisoners. Lieut. Clinton Thro, officer of the day who had been routed from bed and locked up with his men, said he recognized none of the intruders. From their intimate knowledge of the building, however, police believe the raid was an "inside job." Numerous civilians are employed at the base.

John McCarthy, civilian gate guard who was the first to fall into the hands of the gang, said there were 15 men in the three machines that drove up in front of the building. Some must have stood watch outside as only eight were counted by the inside guards.

FORMER KAISER'S SISTER DIED IN POVERTY

BONN, Prussia, Nov. 13—(AP)—The romantic and tragic life of Princess Victoria of Schaumburg-Lippe, wife of Alexander Subkoff, Russian dancer and adventurer, who was her junior by 34 years, came to an end today.

The 63 year old sister of the former kaiser died at St. Franciscus hospital this morning, bankrupt and disillusioned after two years of married life with young Subkoff, from whom she was seeking divorce.

Last Thursday the princess entered the hospital suffering from inflamation of the lungs. On Monday a relapse set in, she weakened rapidly and death came this morning.

A brief funeral service was held in the hospital ward this afternoon among those present being Madamme Subkoff, her mother-in-law. It was reported that her husband had never inquired concerning her condition, nor could be advised of her death as his present whereabouts are not known. Presumably he is somewhere in Luxemburg where he finally took refuge after being expelled from Germany in consequence of numerous escapades.

SOLDIER CHARGED WITH MURDER OF COMRADE

KANSAS CITY, Kansas, Nov. 13.—(AP)— A mysterious highway slaying was believed by officers to be solved late today with the issuance of a first degree murder warrant against Private Clifford Reynolds, 23, charged with killing Private Charles H. Shoonover, 22, of Fort Leavenworth, Kansas.

Reynolds, who signed a confession at Fort Leavenworth where he also was stationed, will be tried in the civil courts.

In the confession Reynolds, who enlisted from Springfield, Mo., said he cut his comrade's throat in a quarrel following Schoonover's assertion that Reynolds "knew too much about Schoonover's past record in the army." Both soldiers were implicated. Reynolds is said to have confessed, in the theft of army supplies and their sale in Kansas City.

The slaying followed an Armistice day trip to Kansas City. Both Reynolds and Schoonover came here on a bus. Later they are said to have drank together in several "speakeasies."

PORTSMOUTH MAN SLAIN IN APARTMENT KITCHEN

PORTSMOUTH, N. H., Nov. 13—(AP)—The body of Edworth L. Ham, 67, peddler and machinist, his head battered, was found today in the kitchen of his Market street apartment where he had lived alone. Police said that he had been slain about five weeks ago. He was last seen when he paid rent for his apartment, October 8.

Although no weapon was found, the condition of his head indicated that a blunt instrument had been used. His slayer evidently had forced a door to get into the apartment and then locked it after him after he went out. Blood spattered walls led to the belief that although Ham might have been asleep in a chair when attacked, he had struggled with his assistant before he died.

Police received information which caused them to begin an investigation of debts owed Ham by an unidentified man. Friends of Ham said that he had remarked several times that he lived in fear of a debtor. Another report received by police was that a man had been seen watching the apartment on several occasions during the past few weeks.

SAYS HOUSE WILL "STAND ADAMANT" ON TARIFF BILL

WEST HAVEN, Conn., Nov. 13—(AP)—Representative Free, republican, California, asserted in an address here tonight that the house would prefer to have no tariff bill rather than one which does not treat all sections of the country fair.

Speaking in the home town of the republican floor leader, Representative Tilson of Connecticut, the Californian, said he was satisfied the house would "stand adamant" on the tariff despite the slaughter of the bill in the senate by the democratic-republican-progressive coalition.

"A battle is now being waged in the congress," Free said, "which affects the very life blood of New England, particularly Connecticut. Despite the fact that some of New England strayed from the fold in the last election and voted for the democratic candidates, yet the republican leaders are now fighting the cause of New England and I believe will ultimately be successful in blocking this move of the democratic party to eliminate or cut down nearly all of the tariff on manufactured products."

Free suggested that "you in Connecticut be careful in the future and do not be misled by false political gods. Get back to the republican column. Be with the party that stands for development of our country and its resources; the party that believes that American-made goods and American-grown products should be used by Americans and our high standard of living maintained by an adequate protective tariff."

BREACH OF CONTRACT SUIT CONTINUED WEEK

NEW HAVEN, Nov. 13—(AP)—The breach of contract suit brought by the Shell Oil company of New York, against the Clear Oil company, of Waterbury and Torrington was continued in federal court here today until next Wednesday.

Six witnesses were placed on the stand this afternoon before adjournment.

The suit is the result of a contract entered into between the two companies in which the Shell company agreed to pay $400,000 for all of the property of the Connecticut concern. A dispute later arose in which the Shell interests maintained that much property included in the initial agreement had not belonged to the Clear Oil company; that certain other pieces of property were concealed; and that the good will mentioned in the contract had been dissipated by the action of certain officials of the Clear Oil company who were preparing to set up business ventures in the vicinity in opposition to the Shell company, and had won much of the good will of the Clear Oil company away from the New York concern.

Sixteen Indicted On Liquor Charges

LOS ANGELES, Cal., Nov. 13—(AP)—The federal grand jury today returned indictments against 16 persons as the climax of its inquiry into liquor sales at the recent state American Legion convention, at San Diego, Cal.

Those implicated by the grand jury included political figures, American Legion officials and alleged bootleggers of San Diego.

The grand jury charged the men involved conspired to violate the national prohibition law by bringing liquor to San Diego and selling it to convention delegates during the sessions last August.

Those indicted are:

Logan S. Ruggles, a member of the delegation committee of the American Legion at the convention; Charles H. Mulloch, alleged bootlegger who supplied the liquor; Stanley Hale, William M. Perley, and C. E. Wayland, all San Diego citizens, who were alleged to have "fixed" plans to transport and sell the liquor without interference by officials; L. W. Maitman, Wm. E. Bemis, Peter Miebles, John T. Stafford, J. M. Dawson, George Drake, Ira Fluss, Joe Dain, Adolph Metman, Westley Muloch and A. F. Desserault, all alleged employes of Muloch.

They were ordered to appear in court at San Diego Friday.

GRUNDY WITHOLDS LIST FROM LOBBY COMMITTEE

WASHINGTON, Nov. 13—(AP)—Explaining that he thought it would be improper for him to criticize "elected public officials," Joseph R. Grundy, president of the Pennsylvania Manufacturers' association, today declined to give the senate lobby committee his list of "common and preferred senators."

The white haired Pennsylvanian, who was in a jovial mood, was excused from the stand after a brief exchange of banter with Senator Caraway, democrat, Arkansas, chairman of the committee.

Grundy was recalled as a result of his previous testimony that certain states were "backward" and that their senators should have little voice in framing tariff legislation. He was asked to submit a statement of what the committee termed "common and preferred senators," but the statement he sent was considered inadequate.

Taking the stand, Grundy was asked by Caraway if he was ready to give the list to the committee.

"Upon reflection," he responded, "I think I made a mistake in promising to give the list. I think it would be very unbecoming of me to criticize elected public officials."

"All right," Caraway replied, "I just wanted to see if you would turn yellow at the last minute."

He later withdrew this remark.

Caraway asked Grundy why he included Virginia in the list of "backward states," submitted yesterday to the committee. Virginia was not mentioned in his previous testimony.

"Did the election down there make you change your mind?" the chairman inquired.

"I guess I overlooked it," Grundy replied.

Arising from the committee table, Caraway directed the official reporter to delete his reference to Grundy "turning yellow," walked over to where the Pennsylvanian was sitting, grasped his hand and said, "After all, I kind of like him."

They chatted together for a few moments and then Grundy left the room.

CONDITION OF SECRETARY GOOD IS CRITICAL

WASHINGTON, Nov. 13—(AP)—James W. Good, secretary of war, was in a critical condition at Walter Reed hospital tonight, after an emergency appendicitis operation from which close friends feared he would not recover.

Some hope was being held, however, on the basis of physicians reports that his pulse and blood pressure seemed favorable and that he was resting fairly well. "Very serious," was the way the white house described his condition.

For more than an hour the 62 year old cabinet member was on the operating table. Staff surgeons said gangrene had set in and the excision was unusually difficult because of the low position of the appendix.

Anxiety over Mr. Good's condition was apparent at the white house and President Hoover was kept advised. Lieut. Commander Joel T. Boone, personal physician to the president, attended the war secretary when he was stricken suddenly after dinner at his home last night.

POLITICAL FACTIONS CLASH IN MEXICO CITY

MEXICO CITY, Nov. 13—(AP)—The second political clash in Mexico City within four days occurred tonight. Rival groups met in Avenida Madero and Bolivar street in the center of the city, and attacked each other with clubs and stones. The first reports were that a number were wounded.

The trouble began when a group of demonstrators jumped from a truck and attacked a parade of their rivals. Press dispatches from the city of Oaxaca tonight said that two persons were killed there and several wounded before soldiers restored order and began a regular patrol of the streets.

A few hours after the clash the police reported that six persons had been injured.

CHARGED WITH SMUGGLING DRUGS TO CONVICT SON

HARTFORD, Nov. 13—(AP)—The aged mother of Lawrence Ferrone, notorious convict at Wethersfield state prison whose addiction to narcotics resulted little more than two years ago in the arrest and conviction of his wife and a guard at the prison on charges of smuggling narcotics into the institution, was arrested this morning while visiting her son.

A few hours later the woman, Mrs. Elizabeth Ferrone, 67, of 1724 Lexington avenue, New York, was arraigned in the Wethersfield court where she pleaded not guilty to a charge of attempting to smuggle narcotics into the prison, waived examination and was bound over to the December term of the superior criminal court under bond of $500.

Three Men Killed In Powder Blast

Three Others Injured By Explosion in Plant of American Powder Company—Officials to Start Investigation.

MAYNARD, Mass., Nov. 13—(AP)—Three men were killed and three others injured by a mysterious explosion in the yard of the American Powder company on the Maynard-South Acton boundary line, today.

The dead were: Carson Bunnell, Simon Juchin and Hjalmer Niemi. The injured were Joseph Bell, Percy Johnson and Ralph Fry. They were taken to the Emergency hospital at Concord, where Bell was expected to die.

Company officials said no explanation for the explosion would be made until after a thorough investigation.

The six men were loading iron pipes on an automobile truck in the company yard when the accident occurred. It was believed that in some way gun cotton became lodged in one of the pipes and when the pipe was dropped in the truck it exploded. It was Bell's first day of employment at the plant.

SENATE RESTORES EXISTING TARIFF RATES ON WATCHES

WASHINGTON, Nov. 13—(AP)—Continuing its slashing of tariff increases and elimination of proposed duties on free-listed commodities as carried in the house bill, the senate today voted 49 to 29 to keep shingles on the free list and 51 to 24 to restore existing levies on watches.

Without record votes it also eliminated proposed higher duties on clocks placed on the free list logs of fir, spruce, cedar, and western hemlock, now obtainable at one dollar per thousand feet board measure, and approved retension in the non-dutiable column of cedar lumber which the house and made duitable at 25 per cent advalorem along with shingles.

A vote on shingles disposed of one of the major controversies in the tariff question. The measure still must go through another stage of revision in conference between the senate and house.

Senators Jones, republican, and Dill, democrat, both of Washington, who led the drive for retention of the house duty on shingles, mustered 19 republicans and 10 democrats on the final roll call, but only after they had proposed the decision be made between free shingles and a 10 per cent rate.

The finance committee majority had proposed retention of shingles in the free category, but when the 10 per cent duty was suggested, four of their number, including Chairman Smoot and Senators Edge, Reed, and Shortridge, voted with the Washington senators.

Twenty-nine republicans and 20 democrats supported the committee amendment.

The finance committee also won the log proposition, it having proposed elimination of the present duty which the house retained. On the record vote on an amendment by Senator Barkley, democrat, Kentucky, to wipe out increases in duties on watches and restore rates in the present law, 23 republicans, including two members of the committee—Couzens, Michigan, and Sackett, Kentucky—joined 28 democrats for, and 22 republicans and two democrats—Broussard, Louisiana, and Walsh, Massachusetts—were recorded against.

Among the republicans who voted against were Bingham, Gillett, Goff, Hale, and Moses.

SIX MEN CHARGED WITH OPERATING CONFIDENCE GAME

CHICAGO, Nov. 13—(AP)—Six men in widely separated cities in two states were under arrest tonight facing charges of operating a confidence game and blackmail growing from an alleged scheme for selling stock in a fake money-making machine.

One of the six, William Bezley, who has served 20 years on the force, is a Chicago police sergeant and is accused as ringleader of the outfit. Three others, under arrest in Paris, Ill., were Howard Ward, Joseph Yerkes and John Dobbins; another, Harry Robinson, was held in Keokuk, Ia., and the sixth, J. E. Dewey, was arrested with the Chicago police sergeant.

Detectives operating from the state's attorney's office here executed the roundup of the gang following the arrest of Bezley and Dewey last night as they were purportedly in the act of "shaking down" one of their victims, Jean B. Hassewer, a cabinet maker, of $500. Detectives said they found $300 in marked money on Bezley after he had been beaten unconscious for resisting arrest.

MORE THAN 50,000 VISITED "MIRACLE GRAVE" YESTERDAY

MALDEN, Mass., Nov. 13—(AP)—Darkness, falling upon Holy Cross cemetery here tonight, enveloped 20,000 pilgrims still within the gates waiting to supplicate at the sixty year old grave of Rev. Patrick J. Power for relief from bodily infirmities.

More than 50,000 persons representing all sections of New England and Canada, attracted by widespread reports of the shrine's reputedly curative properties, had visited the cemetery during the day.

Those who were caught by darkness were not oblized to leave when caretakers closed the gates for the night and were permitted to remain to await their turn at the grave's edge. Well into the night, the maimed, the ill and the crippled filed to the shrine and away again. Hundreds of others knelt to pray at a distance or went to the cemetery chapel where there has been accumulating during the past two weeks a collection of discarded crutches, canes and leg braces.

NEW YORK'S MAYOR BOSTON VISITOR YESTERDAY

BOSTON, Nov. 13—(AP)—Mayor James J. Walker, of New York, paid Boston a visit today as he was returning to New York after a few days' visit in Magnolia, as the guest of Daniel C. Mulloney, president of the Federal National Bank of Boston. Although the several days' stay at Magnolia were announced as a rest, the mayor said he had been working on plans for his coming term of office.

Mayor Walker said he was opposed to censorship; in favor of adequate national defense; that he has no presidential aspirations and expressed himself willing to pose for photographs on Boston Comon, but not feeding the swans.

$160,000,000 TAX CUT SUGGESTED BY MELLON

Treasury Secretary Will Recommend Substantial Reduction in Income Taxes to Be Collected Next Year—Probable Programme Calls For a One Per Cent Cut in Normal Tax on Individual and Corporation Incomes—Announcement Indicates That Treasury Foresees Much Larger Income Next Two Years Due to National Prosperity.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 13—(AP)—Secretary Mellon announced tonight that, with the approval of President Hoover, he would recommend to congress a reduction of approximately $160,000,000 in the income taxes to be collected next year.

The probable programme calls for a one per cent reduction of the normal tax on individual and corporation incomes, applicable to the 1929 earnings.

"That is to say," said the treasury head's formal statement, "on the first $4,000 of taxable income the rate will be reduced from one and one-half per cent to one-half of one per cent; on the second $4,000 from three per cent to two per cent; and on the balance, the present five per cent rate will be reduced to four per cent."

Mellon said it was hoped the reduction "would take the form of a joint resolution of congress, thus permitting prompt action by both houses by avoiding a general revision of the revenue law."

He revealed the proposal had been discussed with republican and democratic leaders in both the senate and the house and said they had "tentatively approved the proposed recommendation."

Secretary Mellon made the announcement following an early morning conference at the white house at which he, Undersecretary Mills and Roy A. Young, governor of the federal reserve board, conferred with President Hoover for 40 minutes. None of those who took part in the conference would say what was discussed but Undersecretary Mills made another trip to the white house late in the day and after returning to the treasury issued Secretary Mellon's statement.

"While the final detailed estimates of revenues and expenditures have not been completed," it said, "the secretary of the treasury considers the estimates have reached the point where tax reduction should be recommended to the congress at the coming session.

The announcement of the secretary was accepted as an indication that the treasury foresees much larger income during the next two years due to business and industrial prosperity which for the fiscal year 1929, ending last June 30, poured $4,093,250,225 into the government vaults. Recent announcement of President Hoover that appropriations by congress already this year had totaled $3,900,000,000, while for the entire 1929 fiscal year the expenditures of the government totaled only $3,848,465,180. The total government income for the present fiscal year on Nov. 11 totaled $1,237,286,858, an increase of $119,098,244 over the same period last year.

STOCK PRICES AGAIN TOUCH NEW LOW LEVELS

NEW YORK, Nov. 13.—(AP)—Prices on the New York securities markets sank to new low levels for the third successive session today as stock exchange authorities began an inquiry to determine, if possible, the character and source of the relentless flood of selling which has washed away many billions of dollars in quoted values in the last few weeks.

Net declines on the New York stock exchange ranged from $1 to $29 a share, although only a sprinkling of the high grade issues showed losses of more than $10. On the New York curb, the losses in active issues ranged from $1 to $16, with a few high priced specialties down $20 to $50 a share.

Trading was in enormous volume. Sales on the New York stock exchange totaled 7,761,450 shares, and on the New York curb exchange 2,779,650 shares, setting new high records for the abbreviated three-hour sessions. The stock exchange ticker did not print the final quotation until 2 hours and 47 minutes after the market closed.

One of the most encouraging developments of the day was the announcement, not generally known until after the close of the market, that a bid for one million shares of Standard Oil of New Jersey stock at $50 a share had been placed in the last few minutes of trading by the firm of J. H. Holmes & Co. for an unidentified buyer. The stock touched $50 a share and closed at $50.75 for a net loss of $3.37. This bid was the first tangible evidence that Wall street has had for several days of organized and effective buying support for leading stocks.

The New York stock exchange, apparently taking cognizance of unconfirmed reports that a powerful "bear" clique was depressing values to the accompaniment of alarming rumors, ordered all its members to report, as of yesterday, a statement of their position, giving a list of all stock borrowed, from which, and for whose account a list of all stock loaned and to which inter-office borrowings, and for whose account; and a list of all stock which they have failed to deliver, and for whose account, with daily changes thereafter until further notice. New York firms are required to present their first statement by Saturday noon, while the reports of out-of-town member must be on file not later than Monday noon.

EVIDENCE OF WHITE SLAVE TRAFFIC IN CONNECTICUT

NEW YORK, Nov. 13.—(AP)—United States Attorney Charles H. Tuttle, when informed of the indictment in Boston of 12 persons following investigation of an alleged white slave ring, said tonight he had evidence that there was an established traffic in violation of the Mann act in New York, Connecticut, New Jersey, Pennsylvania and Massachusetts.

George J. Mintzer, Mr. Tuttle's assistant, recalled that Albert and Anna Stein, two of those indicted in Boston, had been arrested here. They later were released when they posted bonds to return to Boston, where the complaint against them originated.

The investigation of alleged traffic in women originated in this district following the slaying of Sam Reinstein in Boston and Edward Neuman here. After these slayings an assistant federal attorney visited several cities to inquire into conditions.

TRUE BILLS AGAINST 37 STRIKERS FOR RIOTING

MARION, N. C., Nov. 13—(AP)—Returning of 45 true bills by the McDowell county grand jury today overshadowed the limited progress made in the state's effort to begin hearing evidence in the case of Alfred Hoffman, organizer for the United Textile Workers of America and four others on trial charged with insurrection and rebellion against the state.

This afternoon the grand jury returned true bills against 37 strikers charging them with rioting, resisting arrest and preventing workers from entering the plant of the Marion Manufacturing company to work.

Earlier in the day true bills were returned against eight sheriff's deputies charged with murder in connection with a gun fight at the Marion Manufacturing company mill gates October 2, in which six men were fatally injured.

CONGRESS READY TO ADJOURN ON NOV. 23RD

WASHINGTON, Nov. 13. — (AP) — With the senate unable to finish work on the tariff bill before the regular session in December, congress appeared to be ready tonight to adjourn on Saturday, November 23, allowing a week's recess between terms.

After republicans of both the senate and house had said the responsibility for the adjournment would have to be taken by the democratic-republican independent coalition in control of the tariff measure in the senate, it was announced tonight by Senator Jones, of Washington, the acting republican leader, that he was ready to offer the adjournment resolution, probably tomorrow.

Senator Jones' announcement, made after consultations with members of both parties during the day, was followed by announcements from democratic leaders, including Senators Walsh, of Montana; Simmons, of North Carolina, and Harrison, of Mississippi, that they would support the resolution.

The western republican independents, however, indicated they would vote against adjournment.

Representative Snell, of New York, chairman of the rules committee, left the white house averring that the house would not adjourn before the regular session unless the senate first passed the tariff bill. It was said that his views reflected those of the president, who issued an appeal two weeks ago for the senate to pass the tariff bill by today.

However, after some consultations with senate leaders, Representative Tilson, of Connecticut, the republican floor leader of the house, announced that the house would "consider," at least, an adjournment resolution if it is received from the senate.

TESTIFY COSTA INSTIGATOR OF DYNAMITE PLOT

WINSTED, Conn., Nov. 13.—(AP) — Accusing Joseph Costa, of Torrington, as the instigator of the plot, two of his henchmen today detailed in superior court the dynamiting of the home of former Prosecutor Thomas J. Wall at Torrington.

Frank Rocco, of Torrington, and Pasquale Bruni, of Stamford, appeared at Costa's trial as the state's star witnesses against the man whom Wall prosecuted in city court as the aftermath of a liquor raid. Both of them have pleaded guilty to similar charges, and are awaiting sentence.

Testifying that they were threatened by Costa, the men outlined their movements on the day preceding the dynamiting, March 17, 1925, and described in detail the placing of the bomb under the veranda of the Wall home.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 13—(AP)—One of the most prominent of America's career diplomats will pass from the foreign service with the retirement, shortly of William Phillips, of Boston as minister to Canada.

Phillips' resignation was accepted by President Hoover after the envoy, the first to serve as minister of the United States to Canada, had declined to accept another post. He asked to be relieved of his duties in order to afford his children an education in the United States.

The white house later announced the assignment of another equally prominent career diplomat to a ministership Nelson T. Johnson, of Newkirk, Oklahoma, assistant secretary in charge of far eastern affairs, was appointed minister to China, he succeeds John Van A. MacMurray, whose resignation was announced recently.

During the brief business session a bill of $1500 for extra work by Contractor David P. Ahern, who holds the city contract for city sidewalk construction, was referred back to the street committee, corporation counsel and city engineer. This group is to meet with Mr. Ahern and Sidewalk Inspector William V. Palmer, Sr. The bill is one that has been under investigation for over a month, on the statement of City Engineer John F. Collins that the amount appears excessive to him for the work. The bill as presented tonight was completely itemized. Alderman C. L. Willard of the street committee moved that it be paid but a motion for further consideration, made by Alderman Webber, prevailed.

City Engineer John F. Collins and his guest, Edwin O. Sumner, superintendent of city streets, today, attended a joint meeting of the New England Waterworks association and Connecticut Society of Engineers at Cobble mountain, near Westfield, Mass.

Road construction work that should prove a source of joy to local business men is the laying of a new highway on the old Bailey's Ravine road leading from Rockwood's corner in Franklin in a general direction of Baltic. While actual work in preparing the roadbed in conformity to new lines and grades has been underway for some time, it is understood that only about one mile will be constructed this season. The new highway, when the full stretch of about five miles is completed, would afford a comparatively short route from Baltic to this city. Work has been started adjacent to the Norwich-Willimantic highway at a point opposite the Lebanon road. The construction will open to this city a trading area that has always been isolated because of poor roads in the past.

NEW LIONS CLUB RECEIVES CHARTER

DANIELSON, Nov. 13—Tonight was Charter night for the newly organized Danielson Lions' club, and for the event the members gathered at the Maples on the Brooklyn road. The newly elected officers were inducted and District Governor Whipple of Pawtucket was in attendance and addressed the club on the aims and objectives of the organization. Members of the newly organized Lions' club at Moosup also were in attendance. The Lions dined as one feature of their interesting Charter night meeting.

The club has an active and enthusiastic membership. They will proceed to carry out the laudable objects for which the Lions' organization is noted and the forecast is that the club will be an asset to the town.

This afternoon before Attorney L. A. Woisard, referee in bankruptcy, there was a hearing on the petition of James Sammon of Windham, a voluntary bankruptcy proceeding. Mr. Sammon formerly was the proprietor of a lunch cart business in Brooklyn, N. Y. Later he located in Windham, where he has owned a home. His creditors pressing him for payment, he filed a petition in bankruptcy. During the past summer season the property he owned in Windham was transferred to one of his creditors. It was said today that suit may be started to recover this property for the benefit of all of the creditors, it being held that the transfer was made within a period of four months.

Preparations for the dog show of the Windham County Kennel club are progressing nicely. The show is to be held in the town hall here the latter part of the month. Joseph Birch of the club said today that several judges of widespread reputation have been secured to make the awards. It is anticipated that there will be from 100 to 150 dogs on exhibition, these divided into about 50 classes of various breeds. At the last dog show held here there were 114 entries. Dogs will be entered from various sections of this part of eastern Connecticut.

One of the matters that will be before the members of the chamber of commerce at the December meeting will be that of passing upon the proposition of abandoning Monday as a night for keeping stores open here in favor of some other night in the week, preferably Wednesday. This is a proposal that has been up for consideration from time to time for several years, only to be rejected. Keeping open Monday nights has the custom of a generation back of it in Danielson, one reason why so many business men dislike to abandon it, fearing the change will not be learned of for a long time by many who come here from out of town to trade. Yet, there are numbers of strong arguments in favor of closing Monday nights and opening on Wednesday evenings.

This is one season when mills along the Quinebaug river that depend upon its water for developing at least part of the power necessary to operate the plants are missing the normal flow of water and are left almost exclusively dependent upon electrical or steam power to keep the machinery in motion. Naturally, this situation increases the power costs, for such power as is ordinarily derived from the waters of the Quinebaug represents no great week to week cost.

Against the time limit of Nov. 15 for retaining automobile registration numbers, as many car owners like to do, numbers of applications are now being forwarded to the office of the commissioner of motor vehicles at Hartford from Danielson.

It developed today that Warden Harry E. Back has declined to issue a permit for a gasoline station at the M. Goldwater property on Main street, opposite the Evans block. A gasoline station was established there several years ago, but the lease having expired several months since, the lessee moved out and the place has since been vacant. There is a prospect of an appeal in this case from the decision of the warden to the superior court. Warden Back said this afternoon in explanation of his refusal to grant a renewal of a permit for the location that there are nine gas stations now doing business within 1500 feet of the Goldwater property, and that driving into and out of the station from Main street, where there is very heavy traffic, constitutes a hazard that he feels should be eliminated in the interest of all using the highway.

Last evening at a meeting of Brooklyn grange, No. 43, P. of H, the following officers were elected for the ensuing year: Master, Theodore Anderson; overseer, Elbra Baker; lecturer, Mrs. Mabel Walter; steward, George Ingalls; assistant steward, Arthur Cooper; chaplain, Miss Helen Palmer; treasurer, Joseph B. Stetson; secretary, Mrs. Addie Hyde; gatekeeper, Fred Young; Ceres, Ella Anderson; Pomona, Ethel Baker; Flora, Viola Pakulis; lady assistant steward, Doris Evans; member of executive committee for three years, Miss Laura M. Pike.

Last evening at a meeting of the court of burgesses, Burgess Caston A. Maindon presiding in the absence of Warden Harry E. Back, who was unable to be present, A. V. Woodworth and Frederic O. Armington were sworn in as burgesses, they replacing Attorney Harry E. Back and Pierre Boulaine. Attorney Back has resumed the office of warden, following the removal from the borough limits of Warden R. D. Banigan. This change made one vacancy in the court of burgesses, and the removal of another burgess, Pierre Boulaine, to a new home outside the borough limits created another vacancy.

Today Miss M. J. Mendell, Mrs. A. L. Cundall, Mrs. Mary Tayntor and Miss Amelia B. Hutchins, members of Sarah Williams Danielson chapter, D. A. R., were at New London to attend a luncheon and meeting of eastern Connecticut chapters of the order at a National Defence regional meeting, which was addressed by Mrs. William, Sherman Walker, vice-president general and national chairman.

The interest that Rev. Henry M. Coolidge is arousing in the activities of the Congregational church at South Killingly, where he began his duties as pastor several weeks ago, is indicated by an attendance of 62 at last Sunday morning's services and 32 at the evening service.

First award for floats in the Armistice parade went to the Connecticut Light and Power company, second to the Danielson Girls' club, third to the Flanders Field float of the American Legion auxiliary and fourth to Polish American Citizens' club. The judges were W. H. G. Herklots, C. S. Francis and Henry A. McEwen.

Rural Carrier Arthur W. Logee, out of the Danielson office, is now covering an additional several miles on his daily trip, going south to the Wauregan school house, thence to Miller's corner on the Green Hollow road and then north along that highway to Broad street and east over the route long since established.

Workers for the American Red Cross roll call went about their work methodically today, continuing the effort that got its real start on Tuesday. Ever since the World war hundreds here have continued their membership and this year will be no exception.

Mention that James Kilborn post, G. A. R., of Plainfield is no more, after having been in existence since 1865, recalls that there are but ten members of the Grand Army of the Republic remaining in this territory.

Following the settlement with the town and borough of the taxes due by W. S. Brown on his Attawaugan hotel property, in the amount of the judgment recently obtained in the superior court at Putnam, liens against the property have been released. Settlement was made yesterday.

It is said that there will be more native turkeys available for Thanksgiving this year than for a long time. There are no particularly large flocks in this immediate vicinity, but numbers of small ones, and out at Chepachet, 18 miles from here, are flocks numbering several hundred birds.

Thursday evening there is to be a meeting of trustees of the Methodist Episcopal church to elect members to fill vacancies on the board.

There was only one case to claim the attention of Judge W. Fenner Woodward in the town court this morning, that of Victor Rumack of Pawtucket, who was fined $100 and costs, a total of $113.74, for operating a motor vehicle while he was under the influence of an intoxicant.

There will be a small delegation from Danielson at New Haven Saturday for the Yale-Princeton game, including some of the Yale graduates resident here.

There will be a small delegation from been received here in the matter of the petition of Frank M. Bedard of Brooklyn. He contends he should have been declared elected a grand juror at the annual town meeting in Brooklyn in October. The matter was argued in the superior court at Norwich the past week.

PUTNAM

DEMOCRATS FAIL TO NAME CANDIDATE FOR MAYOR

(Special to The Bulletin)

PUTNAM, Nov. 13.—It is safe to say that Charles A. Richard, republican nominee for mayor, will be the city's next chief executive, since the democrats passed up their chances of placing a man in the field last evening at the general caucus. The voters passed a motion empowering the city democratic committee to place a candidate on the ticket in the event any member desired to run.

James J. Charron, a local insurance agent, was nominated as the party's choice for collector of city taxes. Charron defeated Armand E. Farley by a scant majority of 12 votes in the only contest which developed. A total of 106 votes were cast. Charron obtained 59 and Farley received 47.

John J. McGarry was re-appointed democratic auditor for the city and George Potvin was re-named as the party's registrar of voters. The names of Eugene Berthiaume, Joseph Dubois, Francis Vadnais and M. Edward Duffy were formally ratified as nominees for aldermen. These men were named at the various ward caucuses held three weeks ago. The democratic city committee appointed for the ensuing two years, consists of the following members: Frederick Dumas, Thomas P. Ryan, George Potvin, Estelle Delisle, Valerie Delage and Adelard Pepin.

Former Mayor John J. McGarry was moderator of the session. Before opening the programme of political business Mr. McGarry, a member of the city democratic committee, in an address to the voters, declared that the committee had made every effort to secure candidates for the offices of mayor and alderman at large, but after several meetings, were unable to secure any democrat who would consent to allow his name to be placed before the caucus. McGarry denied that the committee had in any way moved to prevent the filing of the city ticket, such as was charged in various rumors circulated during the past few days about the city.

Shortly before the close of the caucus former Captain of Police Joseph A. Ryan placed a motion before the house calling for the rescinding of the previous motions empowering the city committee to select candidates for the offices of mayor and alderman at large. Mr. Ryan asserted that a candidate was agreeable to accept the nomination of alderman at large.

The action of Mr. Ryan quickly developed into a controversy when Thomas P. Ryan, a leading member of the democratic city committee arose and objected to the rescinding. Chairman McGarry declared that he was out of order, and with this Mr. Ryan (Thomas P.), amended the motion of his namesake, Bernard J. McGarry, when recognized by the chair, asserted "The call says we are here to nominate a mayor and alderman at large, it should be done if a candidate is ready."

Chairman McGarry, in order to settle the dispute, ordered those in favor of rescinding the motion to withdraw to the left side of the hall. Only about 9 affirmative voters responded, while the majority were against the motion of rescinding.

The defeated motion that prevented the nomination of an alderman at large in caucus proved to be of little importance since the prospective nominee, if interested in entering the race, still has an opportunity to do so. Thomas P. Ryan stated last evening that the city committee will be only too glad to receive his application for the nomination and with this, it is possible that opposition may yet develop in the path of Warren S. Ames, republican candidate for this office.

Rev. Leonard R. Richards, pastor of the Christ church in Pomfret was the speaker at the weekly luncheon of the Putnam Rotary club held this afternoon at the Putnam Inn. Mr. Richards chose for his subject, "The Royal Mounties of the Northwest," and delivered a delightful and interesting talk on the traditions and experiences of the members of the most famous police organization in the world, The Royal Northwest Canadian Mounted Police. Previous to taking up his spiritual duties in the United States, Mr. Richards labored in the Canadian northwest and was actively in contact with the wearers of the "Blue and Scarlet."

The Canadian law enforcing body, Mr. Richards said, was organized in 1870, at the time the Hudson Bay company relinquished their charter. At this time lawlessness was practiced on a wide scale in this northern country and it was necessary for some implement of the crown to step in and protect the life and property of the law-abiding. In 1885 the Indian rebellion took place. This uprising was put down by the comparatively new branch of the law and was one of their outstanding feats that made the "Mounties" internationally famous.

Their slogan and creed, "Get your man," Mr. Richards said, has become the inspiration of many famous novels and is often found in passages from many works of literary art. The "Mounties," the clergyman intimated, are in most cases, scions of wealthy English families who have signed their lives away to the wilderness that respect for the law might prevail over tall timber lands of the north. Nearly every officer is a college graduate, possessed with remarkable qualities and wonderful spirit, always upholding the supreme objective and tradition of their famous organization, "Honor and justice for all."

At the executive session of the club, presided over by President S. Nickoloff, a vote was passed to co-operate with the Windham County Y. M. C. A. in conveying several hundred local boys to the Brown-New Hampshire state football game to be played at Providence next week.

The name of City Treasurer Charles H. Brown, republican nominee for re-election, will appear on the democratic ticket this year. Mr. Brown's candidacy was not only endorsed by the democrats in general caucus last evening, but he was also nominated as their choice for office. Mr. Brown in this capacity holds an enviable and unsurpassable record. He was first elected to this office in 1896, when Putnam was incorporated as a city. Down through the years both parties have always returned him to office un-opposed. Mr. Brown is an octogenarian, is in perfect health and devotes all his time to the caretaking of municipal monies.

Plans are now underway for the second annual high school bazaar to be held Friday and Saturday of this week. The affair is being sponsored by the athletic association, and proceeds are to be turned over to the committee in charge of the repair of the athletic field which is now in a run down condition. Various classrooms will be converted into booths.

Henry M. Deteau, by virtue of an order from the probate court of Putnam, issued this morning by Judge Henry N. Benoit, was appointed as administrator of the estate of Doris Duteau, his wife who died from the effects of wounds received in an auto accident on the evening of October 7. Mrs. Deteau died the following morning at the Day Kimball hospital. Rudolph Mioure, manager of the city 20-cent taxi and driver of the car which struck the woman, was exonerated from all blame in connection with her death.

A meeting of the finance committee of the Parent-Teachers association was held yesterday afternoon at the Israel Putnam school. At this meeting the committee acted on various problems confronting the organization at the present and made plans for the work during the coming year.

Superintendent of Schools Leon M. Farrin attended the New England convention of school superintendents held in Boston last week. School executives from other towns in Windham county were also present at the annual session.

American Educational week, being sponsored by the National Education association, is now being observed in the schools of this city. Mrs. Iver S. Nelson, of Main street, was in Boston yesterday on business.

The Drop-In class of the Congregational church will meet at the home of Mrs. H. L. Pease, on Fremont street Thursday afternoon at three o'clock.

Howard McCornell returned to his home in Norwich yesterday, after spending the week end and holiday at the residence of his nieces, Misses Margaret and Belle McConnell, of Grove street.

The little village of North Grosvenordale seems to be the scene of reuniting of "long lost" members of families. Only a week ago two sisters, separated for several years, came together and yesterday, Mrs. Charles Lariviere, of North Grosvenordale, and her sister, Mrs. Zephrin Duval, of Manchaug, met for the first time in fifty years after they had learned of each other's whereabouts.

Employes of the Grosvenordale mills gathered at North Grosvenordale fire station Tuesday evening at a banquet tendered in honor of William Allen, superintendent of the plant for the past ten years who has resigned his position to accept a similar one at a textile company in Baltic.

Much interest is manifest in the match games that are being rolled on local bowling alleys here. Last evening the Yankee team took a game from the Putnam Woolen company by a margin of four points. St. Onge was high scorer with a total number of 400 points for three strings. Summary: Yankees—Maynard, 99 132 154; Rust 114 121 122; Weiss, 97 113 332; Blake 119 101 109; Gagne 127 118 124.

S. R. Truesdale, overseer of spinning for the Fisk Tire company, is in Boston today (Thursday) to be present at the third session of the Textile Forum, being conducted by the National Association of Cotton Manufacturers. The meeting is to be held at the Boston City club. Mr. Truesdale, is especially interested in that part of the discussion which will center upon the best method to secure the most economical production in spinning.

Mr. Truesdale, a master of his trade, tells of ring spinning, the invention of a New Englander. John Thorp of Providence, about 100 years ago. It is and has been the method employed by mills throughout the country. The only cotton spinning in Griswold today is frame spinning in the Fisk mills. Many local people recall the carriage mule. None of this type are now in local operation.

Was Former Resident

Of interest to many local people is a bit of news received Wednesday, which tells of Rev. Clarence Gifford, a former Jewett City boy, son of George Gifford, at one time master mechanic for the William A. Slater mills now owned by the Fisk Tire Co. The Rev. Mr. Gifford, now of Assonet, Mass., was among the guests at the recent wedding anniversary of President and Mrs. Everett C. Herrick of the Newton Theological Institute. At a recent class reunion given by Earl E. Gilbert at his home on the East Main street highlands, Mr. Gifford was present, Miss Myrtle Marland, now Mrs. Edward F. Blake, was also a member of the class, and a guest at the reunion.

Leaves Memorial Fund

The current issue of The Watchman Examiner tells of the death of Mrs. Anna C. Howard, of Whitman, Mass. By the terms of her will the West Bridgewater church is to receive a legacy of $1,000 to be known as the Mary Morse Howard fund. Mary Morse was a native of Griswold. Her father, the late Moses Morse, a one-time well-known Griswold man, was a member of the first board of trustees of the Coit library of Pachaug. A son, Henry W. Morse, also a local man, was the first secretary of Pachaug grange.

Blocks Remodeled

Additions and improvements which are nearing completion at the Beaurerard block, on Main street, and the Blanchard block on Park square, have provided for four modern store apartments, two in each block. Many marvelled when these plans were announced declaring that it seemed a ten to one shot for the buildings, if they would be able to rent, in a full store town, four more. The two that front on Park square are already occupied, with several applicants for those on Main.

Although recent rains have been few and light, the Jewett City Water company's big reservoir at Stone Hill is steadily picking up. These facts indicate that local springs, which during the past dry summer, failed entirely, are not dependent upon precipitation for their supply.

FREEDOM OF FOOD SHIPS

No one understands any better than President Hoover the discussion that is bound to follow his suggestion relative to the freedom of food ships during the time of war. What he has reference to is the food supply for the non combatants inasmuch as it must be expected that those countries which engage in deadly combat must overcome any interruption that the enemy may make in the movement of food for the fighting forces.

Where some of the most ruthless efforts were put forth in the last war was in the efforts to keep food ships from reaching non combatants, it being fully understood that the British Isles were dependent to a great extent upon what was obtained elsewhere. Likewise there was also a closing of all possible doors to the Germans and their allies until food substitutes were resorted to.

But when it comes to the refusal to interfere with the passage of food ships that are destined to non-combatants there is certain to be raised the question as to what assurance there could be that the food would not be sacrificed by those for whom it was intended and turned over to fighters, thus prolonging the struggle.

Again it might also be contended that if there is no interference with food ships one means of pressure for the ending of war will be eliminated. It isn't what can be regarded as a desirable step any more than the bombing of non-combatants or the firing upon villages, but it has been used as a war weapon so long that there need be no surprise if there is a reluctance to abandon it.

If the immunising of food ships should result there would also be those who would question the respect for that any more than some other rules of war which have gone into the discard quickly as soon as the necessity arose for making a more desperate effort. It can be appreciated that if the Kellogg peace pact is observed and all international differences are arbitrated it will not make much difference whether food ships go unmolested or not for the reason for sinking or seizing them would not exist.

President Hoover did not overlook the importance of his suggestion. He understands its obstacles as well as its desirability, but along with all the efforts that are being made in behalf of peace it is entitled to serious consideration.

APPLE PRODUCTION.

That the time will ever come when every state will produce all that it requires seems improbable and yet there is a goal for which those states which are in a position to do so can aim.

There may be some states which are not expected to raise large crops of apples but there are states, capable of supplying their own requirements in that direction which are not doing so. They are neglecting their own opportunities and giving encouragement to the apple raisers of other states.

This is interestingly illustrated by the statement of the transportation commissioner of the Toledo chamber of commerce who has told that organization that there were 443 carloads of apples shipped into that city last year from 14 states. In other words the profit that came from the raising of those apples went elsewhere than to those in Ohio who might have obtained it by the necessary effort.

That is one of the states which insists that it produces just as good, just as attractive, just as salable apples as any other. It is one of the states, however, where not the same effort to cater to the demands of the apple eating public is made as in some of the other states. We can imagine Ohio boosters claiming that no better apples are produced than are grown in Ohio. It is in fact no different than Connecticut feels about the same thing, and yet it is a well known fact that we are big importers of apples.

The impression is gained that others are more concerned in supplying the demands of the apple consumers than are the apple raisers of the apple importing states. Why this should be, once the situation concerning the opportunities for expanding the apple raising industry, has been revealed, hasn't been satisfactorily answered. Serving the home market should be the first aim in every state.

BRIDGES AND MORE BRIDGES.

Bridging the water barrier between the United States and Canada is akin to bridging a river at a point where there is much crossing. There are points where the distance from the United States shore to the Canadian shore is great. There are other places where it is comparatively short and it is the combination of short distance and vantage that resulted in the construction of the new bridge between Detroit, Mich., and Sandwich, Ont., well over a mile in length and while it had the distinction of being the longest suspension bridge in the world it is destined to handle a vast amount of traffic.

Here is a structure, erected so that it will not interfere in any way with shipping, that can be expected to handle the traffic between Detroit and Canada, or at least the province of Ontario, and afford a quick means of communication by automobile for those on either side of the line, while pedestrians and that business traffic which previously depended upon vessels will receive better accommodations.

Bridging the lake at that point is similar to the joining of the two countries by the bridge at Niagara Falls, but it is apparent that it is the outcome of the dissatisfaction over the previous means of getting from one side to the other. This same demand for speedier and handier crossing is displayed in a similar way along the St. Lawrence river. The Victoria bridge was a great benefit but another bridge has been found necessary to handle the traffic going to and coming from Montreal toward the United States and at the monster railroad bridge just to the south of Quebec highway accommodations have this year been arranged. This does away with the ferriage between Levis and Quebec and means one of the greatest booms to traffic between the south and north sides of the big river at that point that has resulted since the railroad bridge was completed.

In the quest for greater speed and better accommodations, bridges are sought in all directions. They reflect the demands of the time and if it is impossible to secure them otherwise there is decreasing objection to those where toll is collected.

PERSONAL PROTECTION.

From the way in which motorists drive over barriers which are erected for the protection of those occupying safety zones, knock down beacons and crash into traffic signs and signals, there can be no surprise that traffic cops, or those responsible for them, should insist upon paraphernalia that would make them so prominent as to keep them from being run down. This is especially true at congested points and at those intersections where such accidents and fatalities have occurred.

It is in the interest of self protection that traffic cops have adopted the idea of wearing a white belt and shoulder straps crossed in front and back, similar to other street workers, or in some instances wearing broad white cuffs or a white uniform. As a means of additional protection traffic policemen in London consider it advisable, possibly for the purpose of overcoming the fog, to wear an electric light in the center of the back which can be kept flashing to warn drivers that he is there.

All this is found to be necessary in view of what has happened in the streets and highways, the narrow escapes and the recklessness which is displayed by some drivers. It is in fact no more than the person who has walked along the highway in the dark must recognize. This individual too often makes no effort to protect himself. Rather does he proceed with the impression that the other fellow must look out for him. No doubt in most instances there is a preference on the part of vehicle drivers to avoid accidents, but the person proceeding through the night without light or any other warning cannot fail to recognize the fact that he is inviting trouble for himself and anyone who hits him.

It is the road walking pedestrian who ought to carry a light like the London traffic cop or he can take advantage of the idea of strapping a reflector to himself, front and back, and feel that he has adopted a method which has been sanctioned as an auxiliary for the commercial vehicle's tail light. There is invariably quite as much, if not more, reason for the walker in the unlighted country road to protect himself in this manner as for the cop in a lighted street.

ENVOY TO CHINA.

In the retirement of John V. MacMurray as minister to China this government loses the services of one who has had long and favorable experience in such service in that part of the world. His choice for that post was an excellent one and his disposition to retire from the diplomatic service makes necessary one of those changes which one dislikes to anticipate.

However, the indications point to the selection of Nelson T. Johnson, assigned in the direction of the far eastern division of the department of state for many years and at one time connected with the consular service in China, and from his close touch with the situation in that part of the world it would appear that he was a logical successor to Minister MacMurray.

There have been times when that post has carried less responsibilities, and yet in view of our interest in China it has always been regarded as a most important assignment. The situation in China is such that there is an opportunity for valuable work at the present time. The nationalist regime bids fair to maintain control in that country but there is occasion for an adjustment of that situation which has arisen from the desire of the Chinese government that the right of extraterritoriality be ended.

This country is willing to accede to the wishes of China if it can guarantee that there will be an elimination of those conditions which prompted the creation of such rights. It will be the duty of the new minister to carry on the negotiations to such an end. The need in China is for it to put its house in such order that there can be no reason for refusing its request. When it does that it will supply the demand for assurances.

EDITORIAL NOTES.

Instead of shooting it out with rifles, Senators Brookhart and Reed might see which could smell alcohol at the greater distance.

"Would reward careful drivers." It would be a good idea, for now they get bumped by the reckless and blamed because they don't drive faster.

Although Montreal still has plenty of horses, it noticed that the number is steadily giving away to the motor vehicle. Some day it may be possible to climb Mount Royal by auto.

AUNT SETTLES A POINT.

Aunt Henrietta had earned a reputation for giving advice. When anything worried members of her family Aunt Henrietta, from her pinnacle of fifty-odd years' experience, hurried to the rescue and settled matters with promptness and dispatch. Aunt Henrietta was forceful; she was confident she was always right and, being an unmarried lady of means, she had plenty of time for mixing into the affairs of others.

When Aunt Henrietta heard that her own sister, Agatha, was struggling with a big problem she hurriedly sat down and wrote one of her characteristically shrewd letters full of advice, Agatha had successfully raised six children and seen five of them happily married and had decided to take a well-earned vacation in Europe as soon as she settled the big question of what to do with 17-year-old Mary Margaret. After several pages of advice on how to bring up daughters and insinuations that she could have done much better, Aunt Henrietta concluded her epistle to her sister with this: "Send Mary Margaret to me at Apple Acres for the summer."

Pretty Mary Margaret frowned when told of her aunt's invitation. She knew what life with stern Aunt Henrietta would be. She confided her troubles to Ted Harrison, her devoted satellite, and Ted vowed to help her through the trying summer at Apple Acres by being present himself as much as possible. With this promise the clouds lifted and a happier niece prepared to meet a loving, though persnickety, aunt.

Aunt Henrietta met her niece at the door of her large house fifty miles out from town whither Ted had driven her. Aunt Henrietta bowed stiffly when introduced to Ted, scrutinized him coldly, mentally catalogued him as "undesirable" and closed the door at once, almost before Mary Margaret could call back, "See you tomorrow, Teddy."

"I would advise you," advised Aunt Henrietta that afternoon, "against associating with giddy, irresponsible, light-headed young men like this Ted person. Now take my advice like a good girl and do not see him while you live at Apple Acres."

Mary Margaret went to her room and wept. She had foreseen this. But for her mother's sake she must endure Aunt Henrietta's prison all summer. The next night she told her troubles as usual to Ted in the two-minute interview permitted by Aunt Henrietta.

"So your old aunt dislikes me, eh?" said Mary Margaret's cavalier. "Well, well, well. She thinks I'm a flighty irresponsible harum-scarum, flaming youth? And she likes mightily to give advice? Just you leave Aunt Henrietta to me!"

The next night Aunt Henrietta was surprised by a caller who insisted upon seeing her at once. Coming into her drawing room she found a woebegone, sorry-looking Teddy, who hurried toward her in the most familiar manner.

"Oh, Aunt Henrietta," said Ted, "I need your advice so much! If you could only spare me a few minutes—"

"Advice?" queried Aunt Henrietta with relish. "Sit down."

"Aunt," pursued Mary Margaret's one and only, "if you'd only go for a spin with me, I—I could confide in you so much better."

Aunt Henrietta hurried into her wraps and soon was spinning along the broad country road in Ted's cute yellow roadster.

"The minute it happened," said Ted confidingly, "I felt I must seek your advice at once. You see, I've heard all about your genius for helping people, Mary Margaret's always raving about you. And now—we—we've had," he choked on the words, "the most terrible battle—last night—and Mary Margaret refuses to see me all summer. Oh, aunt, if you could—would only advise me what to do—"

"Advise you," said Aunt Henrietta, glowing with satisfaction. "Of course I'll advise you. Leave Mary Margaret to me!"

"Oh, aunt, you don't know what this means to me!" exclaimed Ted and added his master stroke: "Let's make this a date, just you and me? Will you stop off at the Lakeside hotel for a dance—and a bite of supper?"

Much later that night a flushed and smiling Aunt Henrietta, excited by the first date she'd had in thirty years, radiant from the happiness of having her advice sought out and cherished and thrilled by Ted's compliments and his promise to bring his Dad over for Sunday dinner, hastened to her niece's door.

"Mary Margaret," she cried to her expectant niece, "I'd advise you to hurry downstairs. Teddy wants to see you. And, Mary," she called as that young lady skipped past her, "I'd advise you to hang on to that young man. He's one of the smartest, most intelligent young persons I've ever met!"—Exchange.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

The Monument to Major John Mason

Mr. Editor: In view of the renewed public interest in the Mason monument, to which a wider and more direct right-of-way approach is now assured, I believe that your readers would be glad to have you reprint the news articles which The Bulletin originally published on the erection of this memorial to the chief founder of Norwich, April 19, 1871 as follows:

"The committee on the monument to the memory of Major John Mason, the "Terror of the Pequots," of which the Rev. Dr. Arms was chairman, has secured a plain simple shaft of granite, which has been erected near the residence of L. W. Lee, near Bean Hill, and the place where the mortal remains of the doughty Puritan are supposed to be deposited. At the base of the monument is cut the name, Mason, and on the tablet in the centre, following Mason's full name and title, are these:

"On the western base is the following inscription:

"Major John Mason, born in England, died in Norwich, January 30th, 1672, aged 73.

"On the north face are the names of "Ensign William Backus, Francis Griswold, Neh. Smith, Thomas Howard, John Calkins, Richard Edgerton, Thomas Post and John Gager.

"The southern face bears the following:

YOUR HEALTH

The "Cold" Season.

By Henry Albert, M. D.
Des Moines, Iowa.
(From Gorgas Memorial Institute)

This is the season of the year when colds make their appearance. The first extensive wave of "colds" of the fall season usually appears in October.

Colds cost money. Tens of thousands of days' work are lost each year and efficiency for countless other days is reduced because workers have colds. Besides the money loss, much joy is taken out of life by the misery of having a cold. Yet statistics show that people in general have an average of nearly two colds per person a year. At this proportionate rate the people of the United States should have about 220,000,000 colds during the "cold" season, not to mention the number of "summer colds," which are accounted for in part by hay fever and other protein sensitization. The "common cold" is so common that it has been called "the universal disease".

Some people think that they take cold when they get chilled. Chilling may reduce body resistance, but of itself does not cause a cold. Chilling seems to have the worst results when a person goes from a hot room into the cold outside. To avoid this sudden change it is recommended that inside temperatures should be kept relatively low in homes and offices. Experiments show that school children do the best work at a temperature of 68 degrees. Allowing two degrees margin, the proper temperature for living rooms and offices is 70 degrees. Higher temperatures reduce efficiency and resistance.

The act of sneezing and coughing, or even vigorous talking, may throw a spray from the mouth and nose for several feet. Currents of air may carry the particles which often contain germs of disease, even as far as twelve feet. Persons who get in range of the spray of a person with a cold are liable to "catch" cold.

Like other communicable diseases, colds are often spread through contact with the hand. It has been stated that perhaps 90 per cent. of cases of communicable diseases may be hand-borne.

Some rules to prevent colds:

1. Keep the temperature of the house and office at not above 70 degrees.
2. Wear clothes appropriate to the temperature.
3. Stay at home when you have a cold.
4. Cover nose and mouth when sneezing or coughing.
5. Keep away from houses where anyone is ill with a cold, influenza, pneumonia or other disease.
6. Avoid over-fatigue or sudden change in temperature.
7. Wash your hands before eating or before handling food for other people.
8. Do not spit. Spitting spreads disease.
9. Avoid acidosis by including in the daily diet a sufficient amount of milk, vegetables, some fresh fruit, and plenty of pure water.

Stories That Recall Others

Egotistical

He wasn't what might be called accustomed to country noises, but three year old Bobby was listening attentively to the unfamiliar sounds on a quiet evening at grandfather's farm. Frogs croaked, dogs barked, but when the cow lowed, Bobby came running "Mother, mother, the old cow is blowing her horns!" announced Bobby.

What?

Nancy had been out playing with a youngster of the neighborhood and came rushing in breathlessly one morning recently and demanded of her mother:

BURGESS BEDTIME STORY

Unc' Billy Possum is Tempted.

By Thornton W. Burgess.

Temptation never quite until Desire has attained its fill.
—Old Mother Nature.

Unc' Billy Possum couldn't get the thought of chickens out of his head. He had found some feathers where Reddy Fox had dined on a hen and the sight and smell of those feathers had stirred such a longing for a chicken dinner that Unc' Billy just couldn't get the matter out of his mind. He didn't know where Reddy had caught that chicken, but he guessed that it wasn't far away. He wished he knew whether Reddy had caught that chicken out in a field, or if he had somehow managed to get into a henhouse. He knew his own chances of catching a hen, or even a half-grown chicken, outside of a henhouse were very slim, indeed, unless he could get into a henyard and corner one there.

Now, the nearest henyard was that of Farmer Brown's Boy. Unc' Billy knew that. Once long ago he had visited that henhouse. He had visited it and he had been caught there, and forthwith he had made up his mind to keep away from there for the rest of his life. He had done pretty well. He had kept away from there. But now the longing for a chicken dinner was tempting Unc' Billy more than he had been tempted for a great while.

"Ah reckon there wouldn't be any harm in just havin' a look," muttered Unc' Billy. "Ah could jest go over there and look. Lookin' wouldn't hurt anybody. Ah might, if Ah was jest hidin' around, have a chance to catch a hen. There must be some ol' hen over there that Farmer Brown's Boy wouldn't miss."

But common sense told Unc' Billy to keep away from Farmer Brown's henyard. Common sense told him that he was safest over in the Green Forest. But common sense and appetite very often do not agree. When they disagree, common sense seldom wins. The more Unc' Billy thought about a chicken dinner the more necessary it seemed to him. He was being very sorely tempted, was Unc' Billy. He couldn't think of anything but chicken, and as he thought about it, he kept moving along, moving along toward the Old Orchard, along which the old stone wall reached almost up to the henhouse.

When he reached the edge of the Old Orchard Unc' Billy climbed up on the old stone wall and sat down. Common sense told him that he had better go no farther. Common sense told him that he would be taking a great chance if he went any farther. He heard Filp the Terrier barking over in Farmer Brown's dooryard. Unc' Billy knew all about Bowser the Hound, but he didn't know about Filp.

"Hello!" exclaimed Unc' Billy. "Ah never heard that dog before. Ah wonder if he is jest visitin' up there, or if he is livin' there. Ah reckon Ah don' want any meetin' with that dog. Ah reckon Ah better go back to the Green Forest."

Unc' Billy had actually turned to do just this when another sound was borne to those small but keen ears of his. A young rooster was trying out his voice. Unc' Billy stopped abruptly and cocked his head on one side, that he might listen better. There it was again! Unc' Billy started slowly along the old stone wall. He was being tempted and the temptation was very great, indeed. But even yet Unc' Billy was cautious. He wasn't quite ready to yield to temptation. He still had sense to know that it would be best for him to keep away from that henyard.

IN DAY'S NEWS

Strange New Names of Familiar European Places.

Soyuz Sovetskikh Sotsialisticheskikh Respublik.

That is the true name today of the area that once was the Russian empire, which is now known to the English-speaking world as the Union of Soviet Socialist Republics, or, more briefly, the U. S. S. R.

The world-famous waltz would be "The Beautiful Blue Donau," if the singer followed the German and Austrian spelling. And the Danube has other names officially in other countries it traverses or touches: Dunaj in Czechoslovakia, Duna in Hungary, Dunav in the Serb-Croat-Slovene state, and Dunarea in Rumania.

The amazing divergence of the official spelling of European place names with the Anglicized spellings we commonly employ has caused increasing confusion among travelers, shippers, and the growing number of firms and persons who have correspondence with European countries.

So the National Geographic society engaged in a research project extending over a period of two years to determine the local official equivalents of the thousands of names we have adapted to our spellings. For example, the European visitor soon finds that Brussels, in Belgium, is Bruxelles; that Moscow, in Russia, is Moskva; that Copenhagen is Kobenhavn; Vienna is Wien; Constantinople is Istanbul, and the historic Bosporus is Bogazici.

Both the familiar spellings, and the official names, of thousands of such places have been incorporated in The Society's new map of Europe. Such a compilation is not so simple as it might seem, even with the facilities of a geographic society which has the aid of foreign governments, foreign geographic societies, and the facilities of all the gazetteers and atlases already published everywhere in the world.

Completion of the Asia Minor area, which the map also includes, was held up pending compilation of the authoritative list of Turkish names which were completely revised by Turkey after that country abandoned the Arabic for the Latin alphabet. First releases were obtained of this list by The Society's representatives in Turkey and were rushed to The Society's headquarters in Washington by the fastest ships and trains.

The Turkish spellings are, in most cases, new alphabetical caste for old names. Russia has gone further, the map reveals. The soviet government has bestowed names of its revolutionary heroes on many cities the world long has known by other names. St. Petersburg now is Leningrad; Alexandropol, near the Turkish border, is Leninakan; Elizabethgrad is Zinovievsk (for Zinoviev); Simbirsk is Ulyanovsk. Ekatorinburg, where the Tsar and his family were killed, has given way to Sverdlovsk.

Current news from Europe would sound strange if couched in the true place names of the places of its occurrence. Headlines would read: "Young Plan Wins at 's Gravenhage" (The Hague); "Praha (Prague) Protests Proposed Tariff Schedules"; "Premier of Lietuva Resigns at Kaunas" (Lithuania and Kovno, being the names we recognize for that country and its capital).

In countries scourged by war and in countries untouched old names have dissolved and new ones appear. Christiania, Norway, has become Oslo; Agram, capital of Croatia, Zagreb; Queenstown, Ireland, Cobh; Trondhjem, Norway, Nidaros; Reval, capital of Estonia, Tallinn. Then there is the most recent addition to the map of Europe, Citta Vaticano, the official name of the new Vatican state.

Efforts of the great states of pre-World war Europe to absorb minority groups often led to the Russianizing, Germanizing, etc., of native names. Many new names, therefore, are in most cases, not new names at all, but old names which have come to life with the political revival of a minority people. Brest Litovsk, for example, where the Germans and Russians made separate peace, has dropped its old name along with its pre-war allegiance to Russia, and now meets the world under its native Polish name Brzesc nad Bugiem.

Old maps show practically all Polish names with a Russian or German slant. All this is changed: Lemberg is Lwow; Warsaw, Warszawa; Posen, Poznan; Vilna, Wilno; and Gardinas, Grodno. Finfield, although formerly a Russian province, masqueraded under Scandinavian names. Now the land that has sent world-famous runners to the United States has been outfitted completely in native names. It is no longer Helsingfors but Helsinki; not Sveaborg but Suomenlinna; not Viborg but Viipuri; ad not the Aland Islands but Ahvenanmaa.

So it goes; Dorpat of old western Russia becomes Tartu when enfolded in Estonia; German Strasburg adds an "o" to be French Strasbourg; Dvinsk finds itself Lettished into Dunagavpils; old Austrian Bozen now is Italian Bolzano; Klausenburg in Hungary, transferred to Rumania, takes the title Cluj; and Pilsen has disappeared from two continents. The original German Pilsen of fragrant associations lies partially concealed under the Czechoslovakian designation Plzen.

Many Americans will be mystified to meet such European countries as Shqipenie; Suomi; Srba, Hrvata, i Slovenaca; Eesti; Bigarija and Osterreich; which, the map key indicates are, respectively, the familiar Albania, Finland, Serb-Croat-Slovene State, Estonia, Bulgaria and Austria.

SECURITY SPECIALISTS HAVE IMPORTANT ROLE

NEW YORK —(AP)— The yearly addition of hundreds of new stock issues on exchanges has placed the specialist in a position of importance.

The day is long past when one man or one group can keep abreast of developments in industry or report, with any degree of accuracy, on the varied economic currents affecting stock prices.

The specialist, on the other hand, learns all there is to know about one or two companies. He watches them from one day to the next for changes in production, earnings, management or prospects, and his opinion is held in high regard.

By KIRKE L. SIMPSON
Associated Press Staff Writer

WASHINGTON, Nov. 13—In the rush of news writing and the lack of wire and column space, delightful bits of senate dialogue go unreported save in the staid and none too widely read pages of the Congressional Record.

Who would imagine, for instance, that a general defense of lobbyists figured in the Bingham wrangle?

It came from that veteran of both house and senate, Gillett of Massachusetts, based on his 78 years of life, 37 of them spent in Washington congressional service.

"When we consider the question of the lobby, I think it might be said the lobby is receiving and has always borne a stigma which I do not think it deserves," said the senator, who neither looks nor golfs his age. "A lobbyist is considered a corrupt and undeserving citizen.

The Lady Lobbyist.

"When I first came to congress, I had heard of the great lobbies which employed beautiful women and made other appeals to the pleasures of a legislator, and I looked around when I came here and expected to see some of these specimens of lobbyists."

That was too much for Caraway of Arkansas.

"The senator, as soon as he got here, commenced to look around for a lady lobbyist, did he?" Caraway broke in.

"I said I anticipated seeing some of them," smiled Gillett.

"Was the fact that the senator had heard about those beautiful lady lobbyists the reason he came here a good many years ago?" inquired Norris of Nebraska.

"I had other motives," said Gillett, "and if that had been one of my reasons, I would have been a grievously disappointed man."

"The senator would be over it by this time, anyway," the Nebraskan consoled him.

They Evaded Him.

"That is sadly true," Gillett admitted and senate and galleries chortled. "But even in those days, when the senator seems to think I might have desired it, I never saw them, and I have never seen anything of these gorgeous banquets and these $100 bills in cigar boxes or any other evidence of corrupt lobbyists and influences which I have heard so much about.

"I have never seen any of it and I do not think other senators here have.

"For many years all the lobby has done and all the lobby has been able to do is to give information to senators and to members of the house. I do not think a lobbyist deserves the stigma that attaches to him.

"The only unfair influence that I am aware of lobbyists using is when they threatened one, often indirectly, that if he is not convinced by their arguments then he is likely to find their organization against him. That, I think, is improper."

"I believe every citizen who is interested in a tariff bill has the right to come and present the facts of which he has knowledge," Heflin said. "But there is no necessity for secrecy in this."

Shapely Legs Often Ruined By

VARICOSE VEINS

Simple Home Treatment Brings Amazing Results

Varicose Veins are veins which have become dilated and enlarged by undue pressure made upon them and are most frequently caused by tight garters, girdles, constipation, positions requiring long standing, childbirth, etc.

Anyone suffering with Varicose Veins should start and take immediate precaution because untreated veins have a tendency to grow worse and worse until finally they can only be relieved by an operation.

It's now an accepted fact that the best home treatment to banish Varicose Veins is Moone's Emerald Oil—a powerfully penetrating and antiseptic oil which quickly stops the pain, wonderfully strengthens the legs and swiftly reduces most enlarged and swollen veins to normal.

Why let your leg beauty and attractiveness be ruined by ugly veins when a 2 ounce bottle of Emerald Oil at any druggists swiftly reduces the worst and most long standing cases! A woman from Oregon writes: "I suffered with Varicose Veins for 36 years and finally I tried Emerald Oil. I must say it's everything you claim—I can't praise it enough and I'm so glad I read about it in the Oregon Journal."

SCHOOL ENUMERATION HOLDS CLOSE TO FIGURE OF THE PRECEDING YEAR

The annual enumeration of the children of school age in the town of Norwich has just been completed by Tyler D. Guy and Joseph B. Downes, who have taken the count in every district and have handed the figures over to School Superintendent E. J. Graham. The total is 7,692 which is just two less that the enumeration last year. As the grant of school money from the state is dependent upon the number of children enumerated, this indicates that the amount to be received from that source will be practically the same as last year.

Of the 15 districts in the town, there is an even division as to the number gaining and losing, seven being on each side, and one district has the same number as last year.

The greatest gain is in the Taftville district, where there are 37 more children than last year. Occum is another district where there has been a good gain, the increase being 24, and Town street gained 22.

The central district shows the largest loss, with 28 less than a year ago, the West Side lost 23, Greeneville lost 13, and East Great Plain 11. In the other districts the gains and losses were considerably smaller.

The following is a tabulation of the enumeration compared with the figures of last year:

District	1928	1929	Gain or Loss

HISTORICAL TALK ON COUNTY BEFORE ROTARIANS

"New London County and the Part it Has Played in the History of Connecticut" was the subject of a very instructive address by H. M. Bradley of Derby given at the meeting of the Norwich Rotary club on Wednesday noon. Mr. Bradley, who has delved into the history of the county, told the Rotarians many interesting facts regarding the early settlements of New London, Norwich, Lebanon, Preston and many other places in the county.

He began with the settlement of New Haven, Hartford and Saybrook, relating the circumstances that led up to the settlement of New London and Norwich and the later settlements of Lebanon and Preston. He told of the hardships suffered by the early settlers and the Indian wars in which familiar Indian names played a large part. His talk, following the early settlement of New London county, dealt largely with prominent persons in American history whose homes were in Norwich or other parts of New London county. He spoke of the famous battle of Groton Heights (Fort Griswold) and the gallant defense made by the Connecticut citizens against the forces of history's arch traitor, Benedict Arnold.

In speaking of New London county's most noted colonial figure, Jonathan Trumbull, he said:

Governor Trumbull's judgment and advice were eagerly sought by General Washington and often after his advisors had spoken he would say, "Well, before we do anything, let's hear from Brother Johnathan." "Brother Johnathan" became a by-word and in practically all foreign countries, instead of "Uncle Sam" the United States is still referred to as "Brother Johnathan." The French troops under the Duc de Lauzun spent the winter of 1781 at Lebanon and later Rochambau's troops encamped there also. French chaplains were with them who celebrated the first mass on Connecticut soil in 1781. In 1791 Bishop Caro of Baltimore, visited New London and the first Catholic sermon preached in Connecticut was from the pulpit of the First Congregational church of Norwich in November, 1793. Rev. Joseph Strong, the pastor, invited Father Thayer, a traveling Catholic missionary to occupy his pulpit, which he did on Sunday and the following Tuesday, preaching to rather an astonished Puritan congregation on Catholic ideas of prayer and the intercession of the Saints. Succeeding Governor Trumbull, the man who had been lieutenant governor throughout his term, Mathew Griswold of Lyme, became governor of Connecticut and served until 1786 when Samuel Huntington ascended to the chair which he held until his death in 1796. Huntington was born in Windham in 1731, but early removed to Norwich. In 1775 he was elected one of the delegates from Connecticut to the continental congress and there signed the Declaration of Independence, as did another man from New London county, William Williams of Lebanon, one of Governor Trumbull's sons-in-law. Huntington was president of the continental congress in the crucial years of 1775-1780. Later he became chief justice and lieutenant governor of Connecticut and the town of Huntington was named for him. After the Revolution, ship building flourished, and commerce with the West Indies made New London county very prosperous prior to the French war. The cruiser Trumbull was built at Norwich and in the brief French war took several prizes, bringing back to Norwich at one time seventy prisoners from Haiti. Among them was a young man called Jean Pierre Boyer, who was later to become the most noted president of the Negro republic. The outbreak of the war of 1812 saw Roger Griswold of the famous Lyme family in the governor's chair. He was a federalist and did not look upon the war with England with much approval. However, a glance at the enrollment lists of the militia in that war shows that New London county furnished far more than her quota of troops.

The Decatur fleet was bottled up in the harbor of New London by a British fleet that maintained a blockade off the coast. On the ninth of August, 1814, four British ships appeared off Stonington and the commander ordered the inhabitants to evacate the town as he was about to burn it. The inhabitants refused and a bombardment was commanded with results given in a rhyme by a local poet.

Col. Edward Harland of Norwich became a brigadier general in 1863, as did Col. G. H. Coit at the close of the war. Gen. H. W. Birge of Norwich was brevetted major general in February, 1865. Two others from the same town who attained distinction in the Civil war were Col. William Fish of the First Connecticut cavalry and Commodore Lanman, while the city of New London furnished two admirals, John and C. R. P. Rogers. At the close of the war, Gov. Buckingham became United States senator, succeeding Lafayette S. Foster, who had held the office from 1855, and as president of the senate, was acting vice president of the United States during the first two years of Andrew Johnson's administration. Besides Foster and Buckingham, two other Norwich men served in the senate, James Lanman from 1819 to 1825 and Jabez W. Huntington from 1840 to 1847. In addition, Thomas M. Waller of New London was governor from 1853 to 1855, and Frank B. Brandegee from the same city, United States senator from 1905 until his tragic death in 1924.

At the conclusion of his talk Mr. Bradley who had been introduced by Dr. Hugh B. Campbell, was given a hearty vote of appreciation.

At the business session President Frank R. Murdy presided and Joseph C. Worth was the song leader. Four new members were given the right hand of Rotary fellowship by the president.

The meeting closed with the singing of the Star Spangled Banner.

TONIGHT'S CARD

Main Bout—10 rounds

Semi-final—8 rounds

Preliminary—6 rounds

Preliminary—4 rounds

Tommy McCarthy, of Norwich, vs. Young Columbo, of New London

Preliminary—4 rounds

Young Lavigne, of the Sub Base vs. Young Lizzio, of Westerly

The above card represents 32 rounds of superlative boxing providing the bouts go the limit, but from present indications there is every possibility that several knockouts will be sprinkled in. But it is safe to say that action is the watchword for this card. Every bout should be bristling with excitement for those who love to see the leather fly.

The bout in which Al Beauregard, of Taftville tries out his new style of fighting against Dodo Jackson, of Newark, tops the card and no better bout could have been arranged. Beauregard, the hard-hitting little Frenchman, is out to make the bout as short as possible as a decisive win over the colored Newark battler means a shot at Johnny Vacca in the Boston Garden later in the month. Jackson, on the other hand, is a sweet puncher and a clever boxer and will give the Taftville fans an unpleasant evening if given the opportunity.

The semi-final sees the return of Al Koziol, local socker, to local rings after a year's campaigning in the amateurs and professionals in Rhode Island, Massachusetts and Canada. Koziol tackles the tough Johnny Mack of New Haven, over the eight round route. The majority of local fans consider Mack as the toughest opponent Koziol has yet met but the local leather flinger denies this. He claims that he has met just as tough, if not tougher, boxers than Mack and has beaten them. He says that Johnny Sousa, who is better known as Young Lefty, is just as hard a boy as Mack and Koziol stopped Sousa inside of two rounds. He claims that Tommy Rodgers and Young Mango are as tough eggs as Mack but yet he took them over. He also points to his win over Billy Hatfield, Canadian amateur lightweight champion as a boy, who was rated high until he met Koziol. He says that he doubts if the bout goes three rounds as he is out to get Mack quick and get it over with. His trainer, Barney Keenan, is bubbling over with confidence and says that Mack is slated to be another victim for the local lad. Anyway, fans can bet their last dollar that there will be action in big chunks in this bout.

The first Chinaman to fight in Norwich, that is, in the ring, will be seen in the six round preliminary in which Long Sing Que, pride of New York's Chinatown, clashes with Rene Peloquin, of Danielson. Peloquin, since his recent showing in Worcester, is installed as a favorite to take over the New Yorker. Peloquin is a harder hitter than most boys of his weight, an ability which he combines with a certain amount of boxing skill to carry him through to victory.

Tommy McCarthy, local featherweight sensation of a year or two ago, comes back to the local ring after a year's absence to take on Young Columbo, of New London, in a four rounder. Of course local sentiment is with the local boy but the New London boy is conceded more than an even chance, especially by the fans of New London which is to be expected. McCarthy is in much better condition than he was when he last fought in New London several months ago.

The ticket sale is good and the seats are going fast, but the management of the Shyma club announces that a block of reserved seats and rush seats will go on sale at the door.

BELANGER SIGNS FOR BOUT WITH LOMSKI

DETROIT, Nov. 13.—(AP)— Charley Belanger, of Vancouver, light heavyweight champion of Canada, will meet Leo Lomski, of Aberdeen, Wash., here Friday night in a ten round elimination bout for the title recently vacated by Tommy Loughran, Dick Dunn, manager of Olympia arena, announced tonight.

Belanger replaces George Courtney, of Oklahoma City, who was forced out of the fight with an infected toe.

Yale Okun, New York light heavyweight, has been signed to meet the winner of Friday's night's engagement.

BOOTH TO START AT QUARTER AGAINST TIGERS

NEW HAVEN, Nov. 13.—(AP)—Head Coach Mal Stevens announced tonight that Albie Booth would start the Princeton game at quarterback.

This announcement, however, was rather skeptically received by Yale undergraduates who remembered that the Blue flash was scheduled to take the field at the start of the Dartmouth contest, and then was not pressed into service until the second period.

Two other men, who like Booth have not yet appeared in a starting lineup, will, according to Stevens, get the call Saturday. They are Ned Austen, left halfback and a running mate of Booth, and Truxton Hare, who will play left guard.

The scrimmage that was on the books for today was called off in favor of a dummy scrimmage against the scrubs who, for a part of the time, used Princeton plays of last year. One of the features of the drill was a long forward passing practice, both on the offensive and defensive. Stevens was sorely disappointed at the Blue defense against Maryland's aerial game last week.

INDOOR TRACK TEAM PLANNED AT ACADEMY

Plans for an indoor track team at the Academy are now underway, it has been announced and some definite word is expected before many weeks. This will be the first team of its kind in the history of the school.

John P. Murphy, cross-country coach, is sponsoring the idea and expects to bring some of the leading schools of Connecticut, Massachusetts and Rhode Island here. It is planned to hold home meets at the state armory. A schedule of ten meets will be drawn up.

Holding over from the championship track team of last spring are expected to be enough men to form the nucleus of the squad. The cross-country squad, which was composed for the most part of lower classmen, including two promising freshman, Lambert and Lyons, would also contribute material. The first meet would probably be held after the first of the year.

Interspersed with the school events would be amateur competition, including probably some of the better known former and present college stars.

ALL STARS WIN FROM BASE AT ROLLER HOCKEY

A large crowd witnessed and enjoyed a fast game of roller hockey last evening between the All Stars of Norwich and the Sub Base, the former team winning 8 to 6.

Although it was the sailors' first game of roller hockey, they proved to be wonderful players, the crowd going into an uproar whenever they scored a goal. More excitement was seen in last evening's game than in any game played this season. They are playing a return game next Wednesday night.

The Rangers, also of Norwich, are playing the All Stars this Friday night.

DARTMOUTH HAS LONG DRILL FOR CORNELL

HANOVER, N. H., Nov. 13.—(AP)—The Dartmouth football team practiced under the floodlights again this afternoon, when Coach Jackson Cannell staged a light but prolonged drill for Saturday's clash with the undefeated Cornell machine.

A chalk talk on Cornell's plays took up a great deal of time before the outdoor work was started. Defensive assignments occupied much of the regulars' time and a brief forward passing drill and dummy scrimmage against Red plays rounded out their program.

INSILCOS TEAM WINS FIRST NIGHT GRID GAME

MERIDEN, Nov. 13—(AP)—A crowd of more than 2500 spectators braved a drizzling rain here tonight to watch the first night football game ever to be played in Connecticut.

With 15 floodlights providing ample illumination for the players, the Meriden Insilco eleven, playing under the auspices of the International Silver company, defeated the Bristol Maple Ends by a score of 22 to 6, scoring three touchdowns in the final period.

High school and semi-pro coaches and players, in addition to football officials from cities throughout the state, witnessed the game.

WOODCOCK WARNS ALUMNI ABOUT PRINCETON TICKETS

NEW HAVEN, Nov. 13.—(AP)— All Yale alumni will be held responsible for tickets issued to them for the Princeton game, Harold F. Woodcock, general manager of the athletic association, announced today following discovery of alleged fraud in obtaining tickets for Saturday's contest in the Yale bowl.

Woodcock reminded the alumni of their pledges of personal use of the pasteboards when application was made.

According to the general manager, an instance of an application made in the name of a dead alumnus, has been uncovered.

Are you going to the fights tonight? Aw come on, let's go.

And speaking of fights reminds me of a little domestic affair that I heard of not so long ago.

It seems that Mrs. John's better half had been going out with one of the boys, we'll call him Mr. Joe.

John had been coming home every other night with a beautiful skin-full even for these arid days of prohibition.

Mrs. John did not like her husband's way of downing the liquor evil or we might say, the evil liquor. So she took Mr. John to task for his indiscretions.

She laid the law down in no uncertain terms. Mr. John was to have nothing more to do with Mr. Joe whose company was a bad influence on Mr. John.

And like all good husbands Mr. John swore faithfully that he would have nothing more to do with Joe, remarking "That he did not care for Mr. Joe's company anyway."

One night he and Mr. Joe had got beautifully illuminated and had the brilliant idea of borrowing an automobile from a friend and going for a ride into the country.

Well, that was all right. They had their ride and were returning to the city when Mr. Joe said that he would take Mr. John home. Mr. John remembering his promise to his storm and strife, got out at the corner of the street and walked the rest of the way home.

Friend wife was waiting for him. Of course she asked where he had been and he nonchalantly said that he had spent the evening at the club with a few friends of whom Mrs. John highly approved.

Nothing more was said and the John family retired for the night. Mr. John had no more dropped off to sleep then the doorbell rang, and rang insistently.

Mrs. John put on a dressing gown and went to the door. There stood Mr. Joe teetering back and forth on the porch. Mrs. John was furious. And she took little pains to show it.

"You know my husband does not want to see you and what's more he's not going to see you. I've told him that and he agrees with me that you are not a fit person to associate with. No, get out," she says before Mr. Joe can say a word.

Mr. Joe teeters some and just grins. "Say, who in h—l wants to see your husband? Just ask him who in h—l this car belongs to that we've been riding around in all night?"

And then Mrs. John had some questions to ask Mr. John that kept him awake the rest of the night.

ACADEMY PREPARING FOR STONINGTON GAME SATURDAY

The Academy is preparing for its second-last game of the season Saturday with Stonington high at Stonington. This will be the eighth game on the schedule and the first out of town.

The Wildcats still have a chance to tie for second place in the conference standing by winning their remaining two games. The locals, with one victory in three starts, have two points and with the two games yet to be played, with Stonington and Bulkeley, have a possibility of six points. Windham, with all its games played, has six points and Stonington, with one more, has four points. By winning Saturday, the Wildcats would jump into a tie for third place with Stonington.

Saturday's game is seen by some as a tune-up for Bulkeley, which follows a week later. Although the Whitneymen will strain every effort to beat Stonington they will also have in mind the objective game of the year with the Tigers, which, despite the many big city teams both schools take on, still is the main attraction in the minds of the players and their rooters from both cities.

INVESTIGATION OF ACCOUNTS OF N. Y. GIANTS DEMANDED BY STOCKHOLDERS

By WILLIAM J. CHIPMAN
(Associated Press Sports Writer)

NEW YORK, Nov. 13.—(AP)—Leo J. Bondy, treasurer of the National Exhibition company which owns and operates the New York Giants, admitted tonight that he and Charles A. Stoneham, president of the club, had been served with summonses demanding a court accounting of $410,000 disbursed by the club, mainly to the president, over a period of years from about 1919 to about 1926. The summonses were drawn in behalf of William F. Kenny, wealthy Brooklyn contractor, who some months ago purchased the one-fifth interest in the Giants held by Arthur E. Soden and William H. Conant of Boston, and 13 other minority stockholders.

Mr. Bondy added that there was no secret about the disbursement of the $410,000 to Mr. Stoneham, but that every loan to the president had been approved not only by the board of directors but also by the stockholders. Many more of the transactions, he added were not loans but payments to Mr. Stoneham of money the president had advanced to the club, notably $95,000 returned to the club head on July 6, 1920, after he personally had paid the Philadelphia club that amount a month earlier for the release of Dave Bancroft, then a star shortstop.

The treasurer was under the impression that the 14 complainants had "looked merely at the disbursements" and had "failed to consider what they were for or whether the amounts had been returned to the club treasury." A firm of certified public accountants Mr. Bondy added, had gone thoroughly over the club books at the time Mr. Kenny purchased his stock and had "found everything in order."

Francis X. McQuade, a New York city magistrate, was treasurer of the club during the period covered by the disputed disbursements. Judge McQuade was not a party to the suit and did not vote his stock yesterday when all of the officers and the directorate were re-elected, but Mr. Bondy said he and Mr. Stoneham would ask the court to make the former treasurer a co-defendant.

Officials of the National Exhibition company refused to commit themselves, but comment was free along the baseball rialto to the effect that Judge McQuade, ousted as treasurer of the club eighteen months ago, had taken a prominent part in bringing the suit.

Declining comment upon the McQuade "revenge" angle, Mr. Bondy professed to be at a loss regarding the motives of Mr. Kenny and his thirteen associates, two of whom Mr. Bondy says voted yesterday to reelect Mr. Stoneham and assured the club treasurer that they had "no intention of bringing such a suit." Those two stockholders, Mr. Bondy continued, plan to withdraw from the case.

Another allegation mentioned in the complaints was the failure of the National Exhibition company to promote boxing matches in its own behalf at the Polo grounds. Organized independently to avoid forcing minority stockholders into the boxing business, the Polo Grounds Athletic association at the end of five years has only its capital of $100,000 and no profits, according to Mr. Bondy. The National Exhibition company always has received a fair rental for its grounds and all of the concession money, Mr. Bondy says.

The most profitable bout ever held at the Polo grounds, the Dempsey-Firpo thriller of 1923, was promoted by Tex Rickard and not the Polo Grounds A. A. This fight netted the National Exhibition company $50,000 rental and the concession money.

Mr. Bondy pointed out that in eleven years of Stoneham operation had developed its activities in such a manner that on a $250,000 capital it has been able to declare stock dividends of 400 per cent and cash dividends of the same amount.

CLAIMANTS FOR 124 NEW RECORDS BEFORE A. A. U.

NEW YORK, Nov. 13—(AP)—A batch of 124 applications for record performances made during the past 12 months is to come up before the record committee of the Amateur Athletic union at its meeting at the annual convention of the union, to be held at St. Louis Nov. 17, 18 and 19. Of these new marks, 76 were made in track and field and 48 in swimming.

George Simpson, Ohio State university sprint star, Eleanor Holm of the Women's Swimming association, New York, and John McSheehy, outstanding backstroke swimmer of New England, lead in individual performances with five records claimed for each.

Among the unusual marks claimed is in individual "Bunion derby" record for a run from New York to San Francisco. The claimant, Abraham L. Montverde, of Mays Landing, N. J., ran the 3,415 miles in 78 days, 10 hours, 10 minutes.

WOOD IS NAMED AS DAVIS CUP TEAM MEMBER

NEW YORK, Nov. 13.— (AP)— W. Barry Wood, Jr., flashy sophomore quarterback of the Harvard football team, has been selected as a member of the American Davis cup squad for next year's international tennis campaign along with such stars as Bill Tilden, Frank Hunter and John Doeg, it was announced today.

Starting its 1930 preparations early, the committee headed by Chairman Joseph W. Wear, of Philadelphia, decided to file a formal challenge for the famous trophy in the American zone as usual, requesting the players to keep in good physical condition and to state if and when they will be at liberty to participate in trial matches.

The committee named the following 17 men as the "tentative Davis cup squad" of 1930:

The committee took no apparent notice of the fact that Tilden has announced his international tennis career is at end and that Hunter's further participation also is considered doubtful.

Ten women players, six of them Californians, were selected for the Wightman cup squad from which a team will be picked to go to England in defense of the trophy next June. Those named were: Helen Wills, Berkeley, Cal.; Helen Jacobs, Berkeley, Cal.; Edith Cross, San Francisco; Marjorie Morrill, Dedham, Mass.; Marjorie Gladman, Santa Monica, Cal.; Mrs. L. A. Harper, San Francisco; Sarah Palfrey, Brookline, Mass.; Mary Greef, Kansas City; Mrs. Hazel Hotchkiss Wightman, Brookline, Mass. and Marion Williams, Pasadena, Cal.

HARDING NOT WORRIED OVER CENTRAL BOARD RULING

BRIDGEPORT, Nov. 13.—(AP)—The action of the Connecticut board of football officials in prohibiting any of its members from officiating at games in which Warren Harding high school is a contestant, failed to worry that school today.

Justin M. Ricker, director of athletics, said:

"I believe the Connecticut board, a group of 20 or 30 men, is trying to force schools to select officials from this organization, and we prefer to make our own choices.

"There are approximately 5,000 bona fide officials in the country, and we should be able to get a couple of them to handle our games of that number."

The board's action was the result of the school's dismissal of Charles Mahoney when he appeared to referee a recent game. Harding high has two more games to play.

KLEIN SETS NEW MARK IN WINNING M-S OPEN

PINEHURST, N. C., Nov. 13.—(AP)—Shooting a sensational 66 for a new course record on the final 18 holes of play, William Klein, pro at the Wheatley Hills club, Williston, Long Island, today won the tenth annual mid-south open golf tournament with a total of 138 for the 36-hole event.

Dan Boardman, Linewood club, Atlantic City, copped second place with a 142. He holed a 35-foot putt on the 36th hole to nose out Francis Gallett, of Milwaukee, who took third by one stroke.

First place was worth $400 to Klein while Boardman got $200, Gallett $150 and Turnesa and Kerrigan $50 each.

The Williston pro topped a classy field of 96 professionals that included five former national open champions. His 66 bettered by one stroke the former course record held by Jack Forester, Forest Hills, N. J.

ON THE SIDELINES by BRIAN BELL

OUT in the West where men are men and football players are versatile, followers of the game are comparing the ability of Bronko Nagurski to that of Herb Joesting, Minnesota's great fullback of 1926 and 1927.

Nagurski has done yeoman service at the fullback position this season although he is not essentially a backfield man, being equally at home in the line or on a flank. He started out playing end, became a tackle and then became adept at throwing himself at opposing lines with the ball under his arm.

The big fellow's ability to play in any spot he lands has been true of other great players. Some men are built for certain positions and no substitute will be readily accepted but in a majority of cases, the best of the game's great can play anywhere.

This was illustrated several years ago, before the Carnegie Foundation conducted an investigation. A college found its football prospects excellent with the exception of a quarterback. There did not seem to be a capable field general and ball carrier combined among the first arrivals.

So an enthusiastic alumnus went to the telephone and put in a call for a former coach in a city 1,000 miles away. The connection was bad and the conversation had to be repeated back and forth by a telephone operator about midway between the two cities.

"Tell Mr. Soandso," said the alumnus, "that we need a quarterback right away. Ask him if he can send us one." The voice of the telephone operator came back, "Mr. Soandso says yes, he will send you Bull Bozo."

The alumnus demurred. To the far-off telephone girl he said: "Tell Mr. Soandso we don't want a tackle. Bozo is a tackle. We want a quarterback."

There was an interval of silence and then the shrill voice of the telephone operator came over the miles of wire. "Mr. Soandso says, 'Never mind what you call him. Give Bozo the ball. He'll do the rest.'"

ABOUT the same time when "ringers" in football were especially plentiful and no college seemed quite complete without a few, a big fellow who had every appearance of knowing his way about a football field appeared at a college. Undergraduates took him in hand to assist in mapping out a course for him.

"That Economics 2 looks good," said the stranger. "Lay off that," he was warned. "It's one of the toughest in school and Old Specs Gadder, the professor who has it, is hard boiled all the way."

"Put me down for it," insisted the football player. "I'll fool him. I'm a student."

TOPORCER DRAWS YEAR'S SUSPENSION FROM BASEBALL

ST. LOUIS, Nov. 13.—(AP)—George Toporcer, star second baseman of the Rochester club of the International league and a former St. Louis Cardinal, stands suspended from organized baseball for one year, under an order issued by Mike H. Sexton, president of the National Association of Professional Baseball clubs, made public here today. The order suspends Toporcer and fines Manager Billy Southworth of the Rochester club $500 for "creating a mob scene," in the final contest of the little world series," between Rochester and Kansas City of the American association at Rochester, Oct. 13.

The suspension, dating from December 1, 1929, comes under a regulation adopted by the National association June 11, 1927, and sent by Commissioner Landis to all major and minor league clubs, umpires, managers, coaches and players.

Toporcer had been considered for a major league berth with the Cardinals in 1930, but club officials pointed out today that even if the suspension order did not bar from all leagues, there is an agreement between leagues which bars dealing with any ineligible or suspended player.

Sexton issued the order on a complaint by Thomas J. Hickey, president of the American association. Hickey said a report from Umpire Goetz charged that Toporcer "butted and shoved" Goetz around after the umpire called him out on strikes in the ninth inning of the game at Rochester and after the game created a mob scene by threatening the umpire for putting him out of the game. Southworth was censured and fined for permitting Toporcer to attempt to re-enter the game after Goetz had ordered him from the field.

The order grants Toporcer and Southworth permission to appeal from the penalties to the national board of arbitration for a period of thirty days.

ENFIELD STUDENTS ENTER HENS IN STORRS CONTEST

(Special to The Bulletin)

STORRS, Nov. 13—Entering a pen of Rhode Island Red pullets in the international egg laying contest at Storrs, a group of agricultural students at Enfield High school, Thompsonville, have established a precedent for similar groups throughout the state, according to Edward S. Walford, assistant poultry specialist at Connecticut Agricultural college.

After selecting the best of their flocks, the class picked from these a pen of 10 birds and three reserve birds to send to Storrs. The pen has been entered in the contest in order to get individual records on pullets which will permit pedigree work to be attempted, the assistant poultry specialist stated.

RENAISSANCE BEATS PLAINFIELD IN FAST ENCOUNTER 46 TO 35

(Special to The Bulletin)

PLAINFIELD, Nov. 13—The Plainfield Pros lost their second game of the season here tonight when they went down in defeat before the powerful offense of the Renaissance five of Brooklyn, colored basketball champions of the world. The final score was 46 to 35. However, it was a whirlwind game from start to finish, especially the first half, in which the score see-sawed back and forth with the end of the half finding the Renaissance ahead 23 to 15.

The second half was very even the visitors accounting for 23 points while the Pros scored three less. The scoring duel between Whitey Bernot and Cappy Ricks was the outstanding feature of the game, Bernot accounting for 15 points while Ricks had two more.

In the preliminary game the Buddies nosed out the Mandell All Stars of Willimantic 20 to 18. The Buddies lost the services of Lang who went out of the game with an ankle injury.

NEW COMMUNITY CHORUS STARTS WITH 75 VOICES

In the auditorium of Westerly town hall Tuesday evening the new Westerly community chorus held its first rehearsal under direction of John B. Archer, of Providence. About 75 local musicians were present and it is expected that at least 25 more will join the chorus, within a few days. It was announced that rehearsals will be held every Tuesday evening and that the first public concert will be given late in December.

PAWCATUCK EATING PLACES CLOSE NOW AT MIDNIGHT

The disturbances of the peace which have occurred from time to time on the Pawcatuck (Connecticut) side of Westerly have caused the town selectmen to take action that has curtailed the length of time that eating places may remain open. A few years ago such places remained open all night and many passing autoists and truck drivers whose business kept them on the road until late hours, were able to stop and obtain food. Then came a double murder on Cottrell street when the plot was traced by the authorities to an eating place which remained open all night. Orders were issued that such places should be closed at 2 a. m., the hour was later made 1 a. m. and has so continued.

As the result of further disturbances, all places of business and amusement in Pawcatuck were closed at 12 o'clock midnight Monday, Armistice day. The selectmen have issued orders that all places be closed at midnight. With the West Side restaurants closed at 12 o'clock those who desired something to eat after that hour flocked over into Westerly.

Under direction of Town Clerk Everett E. Whipple, custodian of the Westerly town hall, painters were engaged Wednesday in renovating and repainting the side walls and ceiling of the town vault in the Town hall building adjoining the town clerk's office where all town and probate court records are stored in fireproof security.

OBITUARY

George E. Chapman

George E. Chapman, formerly of Westerly, died Wednesday noon at the State hospital in Cranston, where he had been cared for since the inmates were removed from the Westerly Town farm. Born in Bradford, he came in early youth, to Westerly where he continued to make his home until he became enfeebled with advancing years. At one time he served as town sergeant of Westerly and took much interest in the Westerly fire department and could be found much of the time at the old Westerly fire department building on Union street until the building was destroyed by fire. For a number of years he was interested in photography and took many pictures of old Westerly landmarks.

Alfred T. McCloy, Jr.

Alfred Thomas McCloy, Jr., infant son of Mr. and Mrs. Alfred T. McCloy, of 9 Mechanic street, Pawcatuck, died Tuesday at the home of his parents on the West Side.

Called By False Alarm

On Wednesday afternoon the Pawcatuck fire whistle sounded from Box 7 at about 1:10 o'clock, but even before the first signal had blown the firemen were notified by telephone that it was a false alarm. Box 7 is located at the plant of the C. B. Cottrell & Sons Co.

Many firemen gathered at the Liberty street station in readiness to respond to a call to fight fire but found that their services were not needed. The whistle blasts were sounded slowly and the number of 75 was counted by the firemen, but this number does not appear in the list of Pawcatuck Fire Alarm numbers.

Tuesday there was a largely attended harvest supper at the Pawcatuck Congregational church given by the King's Daughters.

Teachers Injured

Westerly friends learned Wednesday of an automobile accident in which Mrs. Marion Bonner, special teacher at the Pleasant street school, and Miss Libby Lock, physical training instructor of the Westerly public schools were involved early Monday evening while returning from New York city where they spent the week end. They were given assistance by Harold Burdick, who happened along upon his way home from passing the week end in Westerly. The automobile, owned and driven by Miss Lock was struck by an automobile driven by John Ash of New York city as they were nearing New Haven at 6:30. The New York car came from an intersecting highway and instead of pulling into line, attempted to pass the car ahead and in doing so sideswiped Miss Lock's car. The latter car was badly wrecked and Mrs. Bonner was slightly injured in the legs. Miss Lock escaped injury. The driver of the New York car was arrested on a charge of reckless driving and causing an accident. Mrs. Bonner and Miss Lock spent the night with Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Ring, of New Haven, and returned to Westerly the following day. Mrs. Ring was formerly Miss Ruth V. Davis, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. S. H. Davis, of Westerly.

MANY STOCK ISSUES BREAK THROUGH TO NEW LOW LEVELS

NEW YORK, Nov. 13.—(AP)—Ruthless and unremitting crushing down of quoted values went forward with augmented force on the stock market today, as officials of the stock exchange took action to learn the source of the destructive pressure, and unofficial reassurances as to the nation's financial stability and strength were forthcoming from important sources in Washington.

Again the decline was as orderly as it was persistent, but more than 400 stocks explored low levels, previously untouched this year, and the volume of trading for the three-hour session swelled to 7,761,450 shares, a total unsurpassed in any session of like duration, even exceeding the turnover of 7,184,000 shares of Oct. 7. The pace of trading was relatively smaller than on Oct. 29, however, when 16,410,030 shares changed hands in five hours, or at the average rate of approximately 5,300,000 an hour, compared to an hourly rate of about 2,590,000 shares today.

Losses ran from 2 to a maximum of 29 points, but few leading issues dropped more than 10 points. The Standard Statistics Co., Associated Press price index of 50 leading industrials, was expressed 8.8 points and the index of 20 leading rails, 4.9 points to the lowest levels since Feb. 20, 1928, and that of 20 leading utilities 11.5 points to the lowest since Aug. 27, 1928.

That the continuance of the decline has become highly perplexing not only to the man in the street, but to officials of the stock exchange and leading bankers as well, was indicated in the action of the exchange in requesting members to submit reports of the long and short positions of all accounts. In the absence of bank or brokerage house failures, or indications of serious conditions in industry, the driving of even select investment stocks to levels where they yield from 6 to 10 per cent, has become mystifying.

BOND MARKET.

NEW YORK, Nov. 13.—(AP)—Heavy selling carried bond prices sharply downward today, and at the end of the busy three-hour session the averages showed that all but a small fraction of the gains made over the period of more than a month had been lost.

The liquidation was similar in character to that of recent markets when bonds have been dumped freely by holders needing funds. The loss in The Associated Press combined average for representative rails, industrials and utilities—40 bonds in all—was approximately half a point, bringing the composite price to 93.65 against 93.49, the low mark established late in September.

A feature of today's trading, which reached a volume of more than 22,000,000, was the easiness of United States government obligations. Liberty 3 1-2s declined half a point and the first 4 1-2s went to a new low for the year on a loss of 3-8. Recessions in the remainder of the group were small, but the price movement was in contrast to the strength of governments in recent sessions, when there had been active buying by individual investors and corporations.

NEW YORK, Nov. 13.—(AP)—General Motors reports that October sales of dealers to customers totaled 180,319 cars, as contrasted with 145,171 cars in September and 140,833 cars in October, 1928.

The American Bridge company has received a contract for 12,000 tons of structural steel for New York subway construction.

CHICAGO GRAIN MARKET.

CHICAGO, Nov. 13.—(AP)—All grain achieved a paradox feat today, collapsing to new low price records for the season, but averaging higher for the day and finishing strong. Big overseas demand which developed for wheat, together with widespread better call for domestic millers, more than offset temporary depressing effects of stock market derangement. World stocks of wheat today showed a decrease of 6,038,000 bushels, and sharp notice was being taken of assertions that huge immediate supplies of wheat in the United States have been fully discounted, as well as that 500,000,000 bushels shortage in the 1929 world's wheat crop is beyond dispute.

Closing quotations on wheat were firm at 1 1-4 to 1 7-8c a bushel higher than yesterday's finish. Rye closed at 1-4 to 1 1-8c net advance, with corn showing 5-8 to 1 1-8c gain, oats 7-8c to 1 1-8c up, and provisions unchanged to 27c down.

BLOCK OF WILD GEESE SETS PROPHET TO PREDICTING

Mate Carl Ashcraft, of the boat Roberts who is the weather prophet in this fishing village, was going to the shore with his lunch, around 5 o'clock when he heard a noise in the air. It was a large flock of geese about 150 of them headed southward. Weather Sharp Ashcraft stopped and turning to a fisherman, like Jackson, said: "Do you see them wings moving slow? Well that is the winter weather sign. These geese know that they need no over shoes or overcoats. They will give the north a hard winter!" The weather guesser was telling the rest of the fishermen at Orando dock. "We will have a few days of warm weather—then a little rain and plenty of wind, then turning cold. The heavy underwear will be taken from its resting place and be put on by the men, while the ladies will bring out the racoon coats. About the middle of December, around the 21st, a snow storm will cover the ground about 4 inches so to greet St. Nick with his reindeer. It will make the children with new sleds happy.

Around the 30th of December, it will be freezing and make ice. The cold snap will last several days and the icemen will have a chance to wear a summer trade smile. About Jan. 4, they ought to have the houses full of 8 1-2 inch cakes. A big snow storm will come, near the end of the month. February month will be mixed weather, snow, rain and two snow storms with a few warm days thrown in. The coal men will keep busy for the nights will be cold with mean, north-east wind. March will be windy and keep the fishing boats tied up three times a week. The river will have an ice covering for a few days, but not strong enough to hold any who are to go eeling. Weather Guesser Ashcraft is a mystery to the fishermen and everyone who knows him. He is the youngest fisherman sailing out of the harbor, only 22. Ever since he was 16 years he was a crackerjack on telling the weather. He watches the clouds roll and can tell within 5 hours what kind of a day we will have. He is the only weather guesser who can smell with his short nose and tell what way the wind is blowing and when the rain is coming. The fishermen have a glass to go by, but they all go to the young weather guesser for the dope. When pulling in the nets around Block Island, he can see a storm coming miles away and the fleet will pick up and head for shore.

AN ANCIENT PREJUDICE HAS BEEN REMOVED

AMERICAN INTELLIGENCE assures the freedom of the press—Public opinion has been freed from the tyranny which denied it the right to pass judgment on public questions.

"toasting did it"—

Gone is that ancient prejudice against cigarettes—Progress has been made. We removed the prejudice against cigarettes when we removed harmful corrosive ACRIDS (pungent irritants) from the tobaccos.

YEARS ago, when cigarettes were made without the aid of modern science, there originated that ancient prejudice against all cigarettes. That criticism is no longer justified. LUCKY STRIKE, the finest cigarette you ever smoked, made of the choicest tobacco, properly aged and skillfully blended—"It's Toasted."

"TOASTING," the most modern step in cigarette manufacture, removes from LUCKY STRIKE harmful irritants which are present in cigarettes manufactured in the old-fashioned way.

Everyone knows that heat purifies, and so "TOASTING"—LUCKY STRIKE'S extra secret process—removes harmful corrosive ACRIDS (pungent irritants) from LUCKIES which in the old-fashioned manufacture of cigarettes cause throat irritation and coughing. Thus "TOASTING" has destroyed that ancient prejudice against cigarette smoking by men and by women.

"It's Toasted"—the phrase that describes the extra "toasting" process applied in the manufacture of Lucky Strike Cigarettes. The finest tobaccos—the Cream of the Crop—are scientifically subjected to penetrating heat at minimum, 260°—maximum, 300°, Fahrenheit. The exact, expert regulation of such high temperatures removes impurities. More than a slogan, "It's Toasted" is recognized by millions as the most modern step in cigarette manufacture.

LIBERTY HILL

Mr. C. L. Cleland and Mr. Ed MacCullough of New York spent the week end with Mr. and Mrs. John Kinnaird.

Seth Oden of Village Hill has dug a well 42 feet deep which has seven feet of water in it.

The Bulletin speaks of Friday as a day of drizzly rain and a steady heavy rain in the evening. Here there were only a few sprinkles in the day time and not enough to measure in the evening.

There has been no heavy rain since a week ago Sunday when it rained hard for a while Sunday morning, but it did not hinder people coming to church.

Leon Choquette and family of Southington and Vernon Choquette, of Stratford were week end visitors with Mr. and Mrs. J. A. Choquette.

Mr. and Mrs. Earle Hoxie and Mrs. Vera Hoxie of Norwich went by automobile to Peekskill, New York. The round trip was over 300 miles.

Callers on Mr. and Mrs. John Kinnaird Saturday were Mr. and Mrs. W. D. Cleland and W. D., Junior, L. Knouse, Mr. and Mrs. Milton Winsor and daughter Natalie of Plainfield, Miss Marion Cleland and Miss Edna Carpenter of Willimantic.

Considerable repair work is being done on buildings belonging to C. E. Goodrich, E. C. Payson and John Clarke.

The second coat of trap rock on the Jonathan Trumbull Memorial highway will have been put on this week above Chestnut Hill, Lebanon end, to and across Liberty Hill. Now the men are working on the shoulders towards Lebanon.

Horace Foote has just completed painting his buildings. Mr. Foote believes it economy to give buildings a coat of paint frequently.

Armistice day was observed by the community flag being hoisted and by individual flags being displayed.

Callers on Mr. and Mrs. John Clarke Sunday were Mr. and Mrs. Walter Holden, the former's mother and a friend from Norwich.

Mrs. Jennie Smith, her son-in-law and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. Hodges, Mr. and Mrs. Frank Spaulding, all of West Haven, called on Mr. and Mrs. J. George Clark Sunday afternoon.

Rev. and Mrs. John H. Knott attended the 62nd annual meeting of the general conference of Congregational churches at Ansonia. As delegates of the Exeter-Liberty Hill church, Mr. Knott's subject Sunday morning was an account of the meetings.

Mrs. Lizzie Babb, of South Thomaston, Me., has a crimson rambler which for the second time this year, is displaying clusters of roses in spite of frost and cold. The rambler is very noticeable towering over the surrounding vegetation which is sear and brown.

POETRY

Woodland Delights.

Oh! the glory of the mountains
That point up to the skies
And hold the sunny fountains,
There the speckled trout defies.
Mighty hemlocks rise to hover
Shaded fern beds beneath,
Wild vines go creeping over
Gray boulders, rocks and heath.

Oh! the music of the streamlets
A-splashing round the nooks—
The floating autumn leaflets
Riding ripples on the brooks.
How the waters rush and tumble
O'er rugged rocks and dash
Down the mountains with a rumble
While the sunset winks a flash.

Oh! the fragrance of the woodland!
How I love to smell the flowers
And variegated tea plants—
The herbs just after showers.
The air is so refreshing
It builds my life a-new
Each breath recounts a blessing
From God—like a drop of dew.
—Francis F. Duelbelbiz in The Path finder.

The Torch of Liberty.

I saw it all in Fancy's glaze—
Herself, the fair, the wild magician,
Who bade this splendid day dream pass
And named each gilded apparition.
'Twas like a torch race—such as they
Of Greece performed, in ages gone,
When fleeting youths, in long array,
Passed the bright torch triumphant on.

I saw the expectant nations stand
To catch the coming flame in turn;
I saw, from ready hand to hand,
The clear, through struggling, glory burn,
And oh, their joy, as it came near,
'Twas in itself a joy to see.
While Fancy whispered in my ear
"The torch they pass is Liberty!"

And each as she received the flame
Lighted her altar with its ray;
Then, smiling, to the next, who came,
Speeded it on its sparkling way.
From Albion first, whose ancient shrine
Was furnished with the flame already
Columbia caught the boon divine,
And lit a flame like Albion's, steady

Shine shine forever, glorious flame,
Divinest gift of gods to men!
From Greece thy earliest splendor came,
To Greece thy way returns again.
Take, Freedom, take thy radiant wand;
When dimmed, revive; when lost, return
Till not a shrine through earth be found
On which thy glories shall not burn.
—Thomas Moore.

(Special to The Bulletin)

NEW LONDON, Nov. 13—A roof fire, occasioned by sparks from a chimney at the residence at 349 Ocean avenue, occupied by Peter Perenteau and Patsey Domenco, caused an excited person to summon the fire department shortly after 8 o'clock tonight. An alarm was rung in from Box 55, opposite Lawrence hospital. Deputy Chief Calvin Edmunds and four pieces of apparatus responded, but there was no need of the services of the department, for the few burning shingles that had been ignited had been extinguished before the firemen arrived at the house. The damage will not exceed $25.

Antoinette Pauli, alias Alice Whitnall was arrested tonight by State Police Officer Donald Brown charged with intoxication and breach of the peace. Her husband is Chester Pauli.

Other tests of the water made recently disclose that the water is in safe condition for consumption.

ANDREW SANFORD ABLE TO LEAVE THE HOSPITAL

Andrew Sanford, a painter residing at 125 Lincoln avenue, who has been a patient at Lawrence-Memorial Associated hospital several weeks, was discharged today. Sanford sustained a fractured skull when the automobile in which he was riding with two companions and which was being driven to New London after leaving two young women at their homes in Norwich, crashed against a telephone pole in Uncasville. The occupants were hurled to the highway and the automobile was destroyed by fire.

PLAINFIELD MAN'S CAR ONE OF A PAIR STORED

Two automobiles were seized by the police last night and placed in storage because of the owners using private property, the highways to park them. One is owned by Fred A. Brown, Appanoag R. The other car is owned by Ivar Sadri, Plainfield, Conn., and was found parked in Robinson's lot, off Willetta avenue.

MISSING WORCESTER GIRLS SOUGHT IN NEW LONDON

The police of Worcester, Mass., today requested the New London police to be on the lookout for two girls, Florence Brown, 17, and Grace Brown, 20, who had run away from home and who, it was believed, would come to this city. The girls have arrived in New London, but neither was apprehended. One of them visited the submarine base during the early forenoon. The girls are not related.

The two girls reported by the Worcester police as having run away from that city Monday, and having been suspected of coming to New London, were reported by State Police Officer Donald Brown today as seen on a truck of the Atlantic & Pacific company headed for Providence.

NORWICH STATE HOSPITAL IS GOAL OF TEDDY GINGO

(Special to The Bulletin)

NEW LONDON, Nov. 13—Teddy Gingo, North Bank street, employed as a restaurant cook when he is not in jail, was taken from the county jail here today and transferred to Norwich State hospital. City Physician George P. Cheney adjudged Gingo insane. He was taken to the hospital by Captain of Police Charles A. Pinney and Automobile Patrol Officer Elwood Bailey. Gingo was serving a sentence of three months in jail, having been convicted in the police court Aug. 24, last, of a charge of breach of the peace. Recently he caused Jailer Winder Reed much trouble because of his eccentricities and his mental examination and commitment resulted. Gingo was arrested numerous times for seizing and embracing young women whether they were on the street or at their place of employment. On one occasion after having been committed to jail for seizing a woman, he escaped and when captured was on Rowers street at his favorite pastime of attempting to stage an open-air necking party.

Rose McEwen, Mary H. McEwen, Alice Ganey McEwen and Annie McEwen Foran, heirs and heirs-at-law of James and Johanna McEwen, have sold a building lot on Eastern avenue to Lillian B. Clinton of Groton.

There was no change today in the condition of Frank G. Nichols, 56, of 92 Poquonoc road, Groton, who sustained a fractured skull Monday night when struck by an automobile driven by a hit-and-run driver on Poquonoc road. Nichols is still on the critical list at Lawrence-Memorial hospital.

ANNOUNCEMENTS

Palace Theatre

Fate made a football of him, and this is his story—"Skin Deep," the Vitaphone all-talking screen drama which is now playing at the Palace theater, and will be kept at that popular playhouse through Friday evening. Here is stark drama—the naked recital of the agonies of one man's soul—a man against whom all the world seemed ranged—friendless, alone, imprisoned falsely, yet believing in the goodness of faith of one woman—and being laughed at for his faith.

Joe Daigy was a hard boiled son of the underworld. In fact, they didn't make 'em any harder than Joe—unless it was Blackie Culver, leader of a rival uptown gang of gunmen. Joe was hard but he melted when he met Sadie Rogers, not seeing her for what she was—a hard-hearted little gold-digger, who knew other ways of making money than by dancing in a cabaret, her regular job. But took her for what he thought was her sweetness. She married him because she thought a man of his calling would be able to give her a fat, easy living.

But he didn't. Sadie soon found out that she had made a mistake, for Joe, stirred by his new-found love, had decided to "go straight." Sadie was furious when Joe announced that he had mailed back to the district attorney a package containing $100,000 in bonds. She remembers that Blackie has been an old lover of hers so she goes to him and together they frame Joe and have him tried and convicted, being sent to state's prison for five years. Joe does not know that they have framed him. He enters prison thinking that the district attorney is the one to blame for his predicament.

Beginning Saturday at the Palace is another Vitaphone smash, the all-talking, singing smash, "Footlights and Fools," starring Colleen Moore in what critics have called her greatest role. Here is a picture in which the star's gowns are worth a queen's ransom and which in its entirety is a dish for a king.

A brilliant bit of color is added to the bill by The Doll Shop, a regular vaudeville color-talkie, in which the dolls in the old dollmakers shop, come to life in the midnight hours and stage a programme of ballet numbers, "in soldier dances, toe dances, and acrobatic feats that are top-notchers."

Broadway Theatre

That a botanist, however dumb, makes a good (?) policeman, is clearly proven by Harold Lloyd, "king of comedy," in his first talking picture, "Welcome Danger," which is delighting daily crowds at the Broadway. To his vast delight, the botany professor played by Lloyd finds that criminals, like the leaves of trees and plants, can be distinguished by their "fingerprints," and he immediately determines to fingerprint everybody and thus stamp out crime. How he disrupts the efficient Bertillon department of the Frisco police, starts a civil war in the force, with every "cop" suspecting every other officer, even to the commissioner, makes a fast moving and very comical story, but when he butts blindly into the fiercest tong war ever started in Frisco's Chinatown, then the fun becomes fast and furious, with the audiences helpless from laughter. Incidentally, Harold finds the girl of his dreams in dainty Barbara Kent, and after a hectic motorcycle ride in search of a minister, lands with his dream girl in "Heaven," beautifully painted on a huge billboard. The latest Fox Movietone news, coupled with Lillian Roth, famous vaudeville star, with her Piano Boys, completes a more than two hour program of constant delight. "Sweetie," that dazzling collegiate all-talking pep-o-comedy, starring Nancy Carroll, Jack Oakie, Helen (Baby Talk) Kane, and William Austin, with a big beauty chorus singing a dozen snappy song hits, and featuring the newest dance, the "Prep Step," is scheduled to open next Saturday for a brief stay.

Breed Theatre

The most famous Hawaiian troupe of entertainers in America today is Aldrich's Imperial Hawaiian Singers and Instrumentalists who will be given an elaborate presentation at the Breed theatre for three days starting today. Billed everywhere as "the attraction extraordinary," they offer a most delightful program of entertainment savored with the atmosphere of the beautiful South Sea Islands.

There is a difference in this distinctive act that makes it superior to any act of its kind. It is a de luxe film and musical combination that stands in a class by itself. There is no act like it today in vaudeville, for here the brilliant native Hawaiian instrumentalists and singers work in connection with a wonderful film production entitled "A Trip to the Hawaiian Islands."

One seems to forget that the musicians are on the stage as their crooning tune carries one away in day dreams and makes one live the scenes of beauty flashing upon the screen. All one seems to see are the beautiful "shots" of the Hawaiian Islands, of dancers and lovers and natural grandeur all blended into a delightful picture story and told to the strains of the music of the native instruments, music of which there is none more beautiful.

One of the most absorbing sea pictures that has appeared in recent years, "The Far Call" presents for the first time the activities of fur poachers in the Pribilof Islands of the North Pacific, where millions of fur-seal have their breeding grounds. Charles Morton and Lelia Hyams head the cast.

TELLS WOMEN'S CLUB HOW STATE KEEPS WATER FIT FOR HUMAN USE

A matter of particular interest to the community was the topic of an interesting address given by Warren J. Scott of Hartford, chief engineer of the state department of health, at the Waurezan hotel Wednesday evening under the auspices of the civics department of the Woman's City club. This is the second time Mr. Scott has appeared before a Norwich audience for the purpose of telling his listeners what the health department is doing and attempting to do in protecting the state's water supplies. He was introduced by Mrs. Conway.

The state department is primarily interested in the safety of its water supply, said Mr. Scott, and the main disease with which it has to contend is typhoid fever, the death rate from which in the past few years has been vastly decreased due in part to better water supplies, better food supplies, the public and the officials in charge of water. The greater part of the supply is taken from the surface, he said. The methods by which it is protected are by storage, treatment by filtration and treatment by chemical, these two latter types being called slow sand and rapid sand.

Fairview Has Chlorine Plus

The department is interested in the physical characteristics of the water, he continued, such as the odor, color or taste of water, these sometimes being caused from the fermentation of leaves and other materials and plant growths, which form or collect in the reservoirs. He explained the methods used by which the objectionable tastes and odors can be eliminated in using blue vitriol etc. The water coming from the Fairview reservoir has too much chlorine in it, he said, but I had rather have it this way as it is a certainty that the bacteria has been killed, even though there is an objectionable odor. This taste can be disposed of only after increased care in the addition of chlorine to the flow of water or by tests.

The water from running streams tastes better than from the reservoirs, the speaker said, but matter may run into the streams that may be the cause of disease. We believe that the streams are potentially dangerous unless they are treated. As some of the public supplies are taken from wells and springs these are regularly analyzed by the department, almost every month.

We are fortunate we are able to get our water from relatively uncontaminated water supplies, he added. We have no public sewage discharging into any streams which we are using for drinking water. This is not the case in the west as several cities use the water for drinking purposes from rivers into which sewerage has been discharged. That idea seems repulsive to us, but with the modern methods of purification there is no danger in it; furthermore in a number of years we may have to do this.

The state is trying to keep down the pollution of streams so that when we have to turn to this method of securing our water the purification plants can handle them as they will not be too grossly polluted, he stated. We are also trying to avoid the pollution of beaches and shell fishries. A survey of the beaches has been started.

There are several methods of sewerage treatment, two of which are screening and filtration, he said, with the state itself attempting to set an example by putting in sewerage treatment plants. Plants are now being installed at Uncas-on-Thames, Norwich Tuberculosis hospital and at Niantic, these to be in operation in a short time. In almost every city and town in the state, treatment plants have been put in or an engineering survey has been made to ascertain the cost of such.

Norwich Chlorinating Plants

The Deep River reservoir was built here as a result of the drought that occurred here several years ago, and when the water is finally turned into use Norwich will have three reservoirs, all of which are treated by chlorination plants. If the dry spell continues it will become very serious for some cities. Two cities, West Hartford and Lakeville, are the only ones so far in the state that have run out of water. The former city is pumping water from the Farmington river and has installed a chlorinating plant there. Lakeville has been securing its water from a large lake, but is now setting it from a driven well. In closing he said it very difficult to get the cities to do anything unless they run up against it like these two places.

The speaker was given a vote of thanks for his speech, after which he was asked and answered a number of questions.

ELLIS ISLAND WORK SHOWN TO C. A. R. SOCIETY

The November meeting of Gen. Ebenezer Huntington society, Children of the American Revolution, was held Tuesday afternoon at 4 o'clock at Mrs. Charles V. James', 90 Broad street, the junior president, Agnes L. Greenman, presiding. There was a large attendance.

The meeting opened with the singing of The Star Spangled Banner, followed by the Lord's prayer, the C. A. R. creed and the salute to the flag.

The reports of the officers were read, the treasurer's report showing a good balance in the treasury. The president mentioned the state meeting held in Norwalk in September, and Mrs. Latimer, the speaker for the afternoon, told of the state flag which Gov. Trumbull had presented to the state C. A. R. society.

A large number of articles for use in the Ellis Island kindergarten were brought, including pencils, writing pads, books, work materials etc. These will be sent by Dorothy B. Stewart, chairman of the Ellis Island committee, and several of the articles will serve for the Christmas season, instead of sending a separate box at that time.

Mrs. Latimer, of Hartford, D. A. R. state chairman for Ellis Island, then gave a most interesting account of her visit to Ellis Island the previous day, describing the arrival of the immigrants, and the various rooms through which they had to pass; the health examination, the passport room, the railroad room, the sleeping and dining rooms, and for the unfortunates, the detention room.

The materials sent are for the use of those who for some reason, are not immediately passed on to their destination, the men being as expert at knitting as the women. In the kindergarten, the children are instructed in many things, the speaking of the English language, the English names for common articles, and reading. Mrs. Latimer exhibited specimens of work done at Ellis Island.

Pictures of New York, showing the places these immigrants would see, were then shown by Miss Nancy E. and Miss Mary E. Lucas, who very kindly used their balopticon which brought out the views most distinctly.

A vote of thanks was given to Mrs. James for her hospitality and one to Mrs. Latimer for her interesting talk, and to the Misses Lucas.

The hostesses for the day, with Mrs. James, were Mrs. Clarence A. Spear, Mrs. Allyn M. Brand and Mrs. Albert H. Riese.

The next meeting will be held on Tuesday, December 2, at Mrs. Albert J. Sinay's, 55 Spring Garden avenue, the topic being, Major John Mason.

SENATOR CARAWAY ASSAILS LOBBYISTS AS PARASITES

Chairman of Senate Lobby Committee Tells Radio Audience That Lobbying Tends to Destroy Confidence of the Masses—Places Connecticut Manufacturers' Association in Class That Seeks By Direct Contact to Control Either Legislative or Executive Branch of Government For Their Own Profit.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 14.—(AP)—The great majority of lobbyists on national legislation were assailed over the radio tonight by Chairman Caraway, of the senate lobby committee, as parasites, "who gather in the widow's mite and the children's pennies and appropriate them to their own use."

Participating in the Evening Star forum over the Columbia system, the Arkansan said, "all lobbying of necessity tends to destroy the confidence of the masses in the integrity of their government," and predicted that if the lobbyists "could but be known, none would be found so lowly as to do them honor."

Caraway's address was made after another busy committee today, during which most of its time was occupied with questioning Royal D. Mead, treasurer of the Domestic Sugar Producers' association and vice president of the Hawaiian Planters' association. It also heard briefly again from J. A. Arnold, head of the Southern Tariff association.

Tomorrow the committee plans to question Edwin P. Shattuck, attorney for the United States Sugar association, and Dr. W. R. Cathcart, of the Corn Products Refining company, both of New York city.

After saluting "the unseen and unheard audience," Caraway tonight divided lobbyists into four classes. In the first he placed "those who seek by direct contact to control either the legislative or executive branch of government, or both, for their own profit."

"This group, of course," he said, "will include those like the Connecticut Manufacturers' association which had its paid employe, Mr. Eyanson, while still in its pay, placed on the government payroll as a clerk to a senate committee and thus securing for it a direct representative in the secret meetings of the senate finance committee drafting the present tariff bill."

"Of course it expected and doubtless did by this device secure great advantages for the members of its association and those who are engaged in similar business by means of increased duties on wares manufactured by them."

Caraway said the second group "represents organized effort—seeking by both direct contact and propaganda the same end—advantage for their group."

He added that in this group are found men like H. A. Austin, of the United States Beet Sugar association, "who admitted rather boastfully that he had expended $500,000 to create sentiment for a higher duty on sugar," and H. C. Lakin, of the Cuba company "who disclosed that he had poured out nearly $100,000 during the pendency of the present tariff bill to prevent the raise of sugar duties and the cancellation of the differential in favor of the Cuban producers."

Joseph R. Grundy, president of the Pennsylvania Manufacturers' association, was placed in the third classification, which Caraway said "brings together those who seek to control government by financing political campaigns."

"They aim to write party platform," the Arkansan went on. "They collect vast sums from special interests to corrupt elections. Naturally in that group and speaking for it, you will find men like Grundy who before the committee investigating lobbying actually gloated over the fact that he had helped to raise more than $1,000,000 to finance the last republican campaign, nearly every dollar of which had come from the people who were interested in tariff legislation."

Caraway classified in the fourth group those "who are the willing tools of any who will pay."

"They serve any master for hire and betray any interest if treachery will yield a profit," he asserted. "They have neither conviction nor honor. They represent only organized greed.

"Of course, with them is J. A. Arnold, head of the Southern Tariff association, the American Taxpayers' league and other so-called organizations who function for profit only. Arnold set forth their creed when before the senate committee in his oft repeated boast that he "sought money from all sources and refused it from none."".

TWO BORDER PATROLMEN SUSPENDED AFTER SHOOTING

OGDENSBURG, N. Y., Nov. 14.—(AP)—Ernest Sabray, 27, of Brasher Falls, died in a Potsdam hospital this morning of a bullet wound in the head a few hours after he had been brought there by a border patrolman. State and federal authorities tonight were investigating the circumstances surrounding the fatal shooting.

Patrolmen E. F. Watrous and H. J. Whittam were suspended from duty after a conference here between John C. Tulloch, chief customs collector; District Attorney W. D. Ingram, of St. Lawrence county, and other state and federal officials. The district attorney said his investigation of the affair had not been completed and that no action by the state had yet been contemplated. Collector Tulloch made no statement.

Ingram announced, after the conference, which was attended by Watrous and Whittam, that Sabray's automobile contained nearly $2,000 worth of wine, ale and whiskey. He declined to make known any of the circumstances surrounding the shooting but said the men had been suspended by Collector Tulloch pending outcome of the investigations.

Sabray was brought to the General hospital at Potsdam about 7:30 this morning by a border patrolman who refused to reveal his name after taking belongings from Sabray's pockets, leaving only a pocketbook from which identification was made. A second patrolman followed in another machine. The windshield of the car in which Sabray was brought to the hospital was shattered by a bullet.

LACK OF ENFORCEMENT MATTER OF GREAT CONCERN

WASHINGTON, Nov. 14.— (AP) — Again taking up the cudgels for law enforcement in the District of Columbia, Senator Brookhart of Iowa told the senate today that "earnest persons" throughout the nation are appalled and bewildered at the failure of the congress to properly govern this small territory that is in its trust and charge.

"The failure of the officers of this government to enforce its laws throughout the nation has become, as President Hoover suggests, a matter of great concern," he said, "but the utter failure of congress to properly govern the District of Columbia is a matter for even great concern, because if crime can continuously increase and flourish here at the seat of the government what can be expected as to the rest of the nation?"

HARTFORD WOMAN HEADS CONN. WOMEN VOTERS

HARTFORD, Nov. 14.—(AP) — The long skirt triumphed at the convention of the Connecticut League of Women Voters, here today, when after considerable discussion, a resolution asking that the league exert its influence against the new style was defeated by an overwhelming majority. Introduced by Mrs. Ruth M. Dadourian, wife of Prof. H. M. Dadourian, of Trinity college, the resolution was "killed" at the morning business session.

Conclusion of the balloting at the two-day convention brought the re-election of Miss Mary Bulkeley, of Hartford as president of the league. Mrs. Annie G. Porritt, of West Hartford, Mrs. Emerson R. Newell, of Greenwich, and Miss Elizabeth W. Farnham, of New Haven, were re-elected vice presidents, while Miss Edna L. Tyler, was chosen as the fourth vice president, succeeding Mrs. Herbert Knox Smith, of Farmington.

ANNOUNCE REGULATIONS FOR INTERNATIONAL BANK

BADEN-BADEN, Nov. 14—(AP)—The regulations which financial experts of seven nations drew up here for the New York bank for international settlements were given out today. The development came after the conference itself had neglected to make provision for publication. Dr. Hjalmar Schacht, chief German delegate, being the principal source of information.

While the statutes and charter were being given to newspaper men in their entirety, the trust agreemnt was kept secret. It was explained that this portion of the work had not progressed beyond a preliminary draft form and that its final text must await a second conference of the war preparations powers at the Hague.

The statutes contain seven chapters. They cover the objects of the bank, the manner in which its capital is to be raised and allotted from and to the contributing countries and regulations for the management, accounting and meetings of the bank. Dr. Schacht said the statutes would be incorporated in a special Swiss law which later will be part of a treaty to be concluded between Switzerland and the organizing powers.

Every effort was made to include in the statutes prohibitions that would prevent the bank from becoming a political instrument. No executive official of any country may be a member of the governing board except the governors of central banks of the various nations. All members of national legislatures also are barred from active places in the new institution.

NO FURTHER DELAY IN M'MANUS MURDER TRIAL

NEW YORK, Nov. 14—(AP)—The trial of George A. McManus for the murder of Arnold Rothstein, will go ahead on Monday even if Alvin C. Thomas is not present, District Attorney Joab H. Banton, said today. Previously the district attorney had said he might seek a further adjournment in the twice delayed trial of the Broadway gambler if Thomas was not able to be in court Monday.

Mr. Banton said he had been informed by Thomas' physicians in Milwaukee where McManus' gambler associate is in a hospital with pleurisy that it seemed likely Thomas would be able to come here and testify before the trial had closed.

The district attorney also denied that Detective Charles Donohue, of the New York police department was in Milwaukee to take a deposition from Thomas, as was said in dispatches from Milwaukee to be his purpose there.

Donohue, Mr. Banton said, merely had been sent to the Wisconsin city to check up on Thomas' physical condition.

BANDITS GET $15,000 IN BANK ROBBERY

OMAHA, Neb., Nov. 14—(AP)—Although employes and customers of the Farmers and Merchants bank of Benson, suburb, had identified two police gallery photographs as those of two of the six men who robbed the bank at noon today, police had found no trace of the robbers. Tonight police refused to reveal the names of the men identified.

Descending upon the bank building during the noon day rush, the robbers held up five employes, several customers, systematically looted the cash drawers and escaped with approximately $15,000 in currency. They passed up silver and securities.

The first warning of a holdup came when one of the men fired a bullet into the ceiling. One robber watched the entrance, another, with a sawed off shotgun, herded the employes and customers into a corner and three did the looting. The sixth waited outside near their automobile.

Several persons who walked past the bank and saw the holdup through windows, were ordered into the bank by the robber stationed outside. A small boy who attempted to run from a store next to the bank to a police box two blocks away, was stopped by the lookout.

Two shots were fired at employes in the bank when they did not move fast enough to please the robbers and another shot was fired down the street as the bandits sped away in a large automobile.

The car was found late today near the downtown district. A sack, containing $200 in half dollars, was found in the car. Persons living in the neighborhood said they did not notice any one leave the car there.

The maximum penalty for the charges will be asked. This penalty is 20 years imprisonment. The prosecutor expected his announcement that he would seek a joint trial for the men involved.

Sheriff Adkins said he was called to the scene and a group of strikers surrounded him. Wes Fowler, one of the defendants, told him "you have played hell by coming here," Adkins stated. The sheriff said the strikers threatened him and Fowler said his (Adkins') gun "hasn't got any nerve at the handle of it."

The jury was out one hour and seven minutes. McGaw will be sentenced tomorrow. He faces a sentence of from one to 20 years under Ohio law.

The charge resulted from the shooting last spring of Pillegi during an alleged liquor raid on his restaurant. McGaw was alleged to have wounded the restaurant man, who the officer said, reached under the counter as though to seize a pistol.

John Kramer, counsel for McGaw, said he would appeal the verdict.

State and defense rested their cases yesterday after a two-day trial. McGaw concluded the defense testimony with assertions that he showed his badge and threatened to shoot if he were not permitted to leave the restaurant unmolested after purchasing a glass of alleged liquor.

McGaw testified that Pillegi struck at him as he attempted to leave the building to join deputy sheriffs who were waiting outside.

LOOK FOR REDUCTION IN TAXES BY CHRISTMAS

WASHINGTON, Nov. 14.—(AP)—Another tax reduction—a one per cent cut in rates to all individual and corporation income taxpayers on next year's federal dues—was on its way today with congressional leaders of both parties hopeful of its approval before Christmas.

While the price-collapsing stock market was reacting favorably after this news from the capital, a new message bearing hope to business went forth from the treasury late in the day, the federal reserve board announcing a reduction in the rediscount rate of the New York bank from 5 to 4 1-2 per cent.

Both propositions were regarded by many as the outgrowth of the white house conference yesterday attended by the treasury and reserve board officials, but Secretary Mellon stated explicitly today that the tax reduction had been considered previously, that its pronouncement was merely a coincidence with the stock market situation; and that it was proposed because of a confidence in the continued prosperity of the country.

Former Chief Justice Gets $50,000 Verdict

CHANDLER, Okla., Nov. 14.—(AP)—A verdict of $50,000 against the Oklahoma Publishing company in favor of Fred P. Branson former chief justice of the state supreme court was returned by a district court jury here today in Branson's libel suit against the publishing company.

The case grew out of the attempted meeting of the legislature in December, 1927, when purported articles of impeachment were voted against Henry S. Johnston, then governor, Harry B. Cordal of the state board of agriculture, and Branson. The meeting was held at the Huckins hotel after national guardsmen had prevented the legislators from assembling at the capitol.

In reporting the meeting, the Oklahoma City Times, published by the defendant company, printed two of the charges purported to have been lodged against the chief justice. Testimony developed that the second charge had not been voted by any committee although it appeared on copies of the proceedings given to newspapermen.

In his instructions to the jury Judge Hal Johnson held that publication of the first purported charge was privileged but that publication of the second was unprivileged and libelous.

Robert Rainey, chief counsel for the publishing company, said the case would be appealed to the supreme court.

STOCK PRICES RALLIED $2 TO $20 A SHARE

NEW YORK, Nov. 14.—(AP)—Stock prices rallied $2 to $20 a share, and held most of their gains, today, as the country's leading financial authorities took steps to restore public confidence.

The stock exchange inquiry into the character and source of recent "short" selling, coupled with the overnight announcement of proposed cut in federal income taxes, sent "bear" traders scurrying to cover, and attracted a large volume of investment buying by interests who were awaiting indications of a definite turn in the market. Trading failed to maintain the terrific pace set yesterday, but total sales for the three-hour session ran over 5,500,000 shares.

After the market closed, the New York Federal Reserve bank reduced its rediscount rate from 5 to 4 1-2 per cent, foreshadowing a general reduction throughout the Federal Reserve system, and announced a decrease of $710,000,000 in brokers' loans to $4,172,000,000, the lowest level since June, 1928. This brings the total shrinkage in loans during the past three weeks to nearly $2,500,000,000, the most drastic reduction for any similar period on record.

The rally in stocks today followed a week of almost steadily declining prices during which the market had struck a new bottom on three separate occasions. Prices of many leading issues had been carried to only a small fraction of the year's high levels, quotations of several offering very attractive dividend yields at current rates of payment.

Floor brokers on the New York stock exchange, many of whom had been depressed by the destructive wave of liquidation, greeted the opening bids with cheers, which were reechoed in hundreds of brokerage houses as illuminated stock tickers carried a record of the opening transactions. Smiles again appeared on the faces of those who crowded the customers' rooms of the large commission houses.

Initial transactions in the leading issues ranged from 5,000 to 40,000 shares, with the gains running all the way from a few cents to $16 a share. A wave of profit-taking followed the initial bulge and then prices moved upward again, crossing the opening levels, and closing around the day's high levels.

CONDEMNED SLAYER GETS RESPITE UNTIL NOV. 29

BOSTON, Nov. 14—(AP)—A respite until November 29, was today granted Charles Trippi, Jr., of Fitchburg, condemned slayer who was under sentence to die next week by Gov. Frank G. Allen with unanimous approval of his council.

The respite was granted to permit further investigation of Trippi's mental condition. The governor's action follows a hearing yesterday at which Michael H. Shanley, Trippi's counsel, recommended such an examination. Dr. L. Vernon Briggs, alienist, supported the contention that although Trippi was sane when he killed Fred Pfluger, a state prison guard, his mental condition has changed in the past six months.

Trippi shot the guard while attempting to escape. He was serving a jail term for robbery.

SENATE VOTES NIGHT SESSIONS ON TARIFF

Attempts to Put Bill Aside Until Regular Session of Congress Next Month Fail—Verdict Against Adjournment Nov. 23 Was 51 to 34—Motions For Night Sessions Carried Overwhelmingly—Western Republican Independents Voted Against Proposal to Adjourn.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 14.— (AP) — After defeating moves to adjourn congress for a rest before the December session begins, the senate shouted "aye" today to a motion for night meetings and hours later quarrelled over the how and why of it all.

Lights glowed in the chamber tonight for the first time in the special session as senators continued to thrash out their tariff differences, but the mind of more than one was on the sharp interchanges which preceded dinner. The verdict against adjournment November 23 had been 51 to 34, to the surprise of the veterans Simmons of North Carolina, democratic tariff spokesman, and Jones of Washington, acting republican floor leader.

In offering the week's rest proposal, Simmons counted on support from the majority ranks pledged by Jones—but instead a sufficient number of newly elected republicans combined with opponents of adjournment to defeat the resolution. Thereupon Senator Harrison, democrat, Mississippi, shouted "there's been no double-crossing on this side" and a motion by him for night sessions carried overwhelmingly.

With that, Senator Copeland, democrat, New York, served notice that tomorrow he would propose to adjourn next Saturday. He had advocated a senate rest as a physician, but tonight there seemed little chance of success for his resolution.

Senators Vandenberg, of Michigan, and Sackett, of Kentucky, were generally credited with lining up the 12 or 15 republicans belonging to the newly-elected group in the surprise revolt against the leadership.

The group of 14 western republican independents who have boiled the Hoover farm relief and tariff programs likewise voted against the adjournment. However, the two factions of republicans are diametrically opposed on the Hoover policy, with the newly elected members aligned solidly with the administration.

"I said I thought the regulars would support the resolution if it came from the democrats," said Senator Jones "and I had good reason to believe that would be the case."

The veteran Senator Smoot, of Utah, the administration man in charge of the tariff bill, recalled that he has spent almost every minute of every day on the tariff bill since last May, and said he was willing to die in his tracks, if necessary, working for adoption of a tariff measure. He insisted it could not be accomplished before the regular session in December, however, and endorsed a week's holiday.

Senator Harrison declared, "Most of you who voted against the adjournment have had your trip to the Canal Zone or your trip home but most of us on the finance committee have not been away from here for seven months."

"You can't fool your people by refusing to vote a week's recess," shouted Harrison, pointing to the republicans. "I hope that during these night sessions that you gentlemen—some of you new ones—will be found here to answer roll calls so you won't have to answer to your constituents. Get together and get some kind of leadership on that side."

SENATE VOTES INCREASES IN MANY FARM TARIFFS

WASHINGTON, Nov. 14—(AP)—Denied a week's recess by an uprising in the ranks of the republican regulars, the senate spent three hours overtime on the tariff bill at its first night meeting of the special session tonight and adopted with unprecedented celerity a score of republican proposals to increase duties on various agricultural products.

Not one roll call was taken as the tired legislators approved all raises in farm tariffs proposed by the finance committee republicans on milk, cream and other dairy products. A well filled gallery looked on while the senators worked.

Defeat suffered by the committee group was on rice and the result of this action was to increase all rice duties in conformity with rates in the house bill. The finance committee had proposed restoration of rates in existing law on this product.

A contest on cherry duties was on between senators from New York and Maryland on the one hand, and California members on the other when the recess hour of 10:30 p. m. was reached and a decision was deferred until tomorrow.

A statement by Senator Copeland, democrat, New York that a vote should be postponed because Senator Edge, republican, New Jersey, who was absent, desired to speak on the subject, brought Senator Johnson, republican, California, to his feet with a declaration.

"Senator Edge ought to be here."

He added that absence of senators should not be an excuse from now on for putting off votes on any item in the bill.

EAST HAMPTON'S TAX SHORTAGE AT LEAST $30,000

EAST HAMPTON, Conn., Nov. 14—(AP)—A shortage of at least $30,000 in the accounts of four tax collectors of this town who have held office during the last 16 years, was indicated today as taxpayers, billed as "delinquents" appeared to satisfy claims against them.

H. N. Alexander of New London, an auditor, sent bills to 1300 taxpayers for "unpaid" taxes dating back to 1913. An opportunity was given them to adjust the claims, and fully 300 came today, armed with old receipts, cancelled checks and other papers.

At the conclusion of the first day's hearings a check showed that $10,000 in "unpaid" taxes had actually been settled many years ago. In many instances a $75 tax was entered in the books as $50, and $50 taxes entered as $35.

Four clerks will be on duty tomorrow at the town hall to adjust the claims of the other taxpayers. They will be aided by state police to keep order.

Alexander was employed to make an audit following the arrest of Herbert D. Watrous, former tax collector, who is charged with misapplication of funds.

MINER CONFESSES HE CAUSED MAN'S DEATH

COSHOCTON, Ohio, Nov. 14—(AP)—Police Chief Ray Duling announced tonight that he had obtained a confession from A. A. Harris, 27, Coshocton county miner, that he and Felix Marlatt, 31, also a miner were responsible for the electrocution of Charles Newell, 27 at the Warwick mines of the Barnes Coal and Mining company last Sunday night.

Newell was killed instantly when he touched a live wire that had been attached to a gate leading to the mine property.

Harris, according to Chief Duling, admitted that he and Marlatt wired the gate "just to have some fun" with members of the Newell family. Harris was said to have admitted that the gate was charged by connecting the iron latch with a trolley wire over the mine tracks nearby. The connection was first made with insulated wire to shock two Newell children who had passed through the gate to gather coal, but they failed to touch the gate.

According to Harris' story the two men removed the insulated wire and made the connection with telephone wire.

Guild in charge. The resignation of Kenneth N. Hillhouse as a member of the board was accepted with regret. Mr. Hillhouse explained that lack of time to devote to the work entailed in the committee led to his resignation. He has completed two years of his term, which has 12 more months to run. His successor will be chosen at the regular meeting of the committee.

The school committee and town of Windham received the compliments of Franklin Pierce of Hartford, director of secondary schools in Connecticut, on the low cost of education in the town and the excellent organization of the teaching staff. This word of praise and an approval of the standards of Windham high school for the year 1929-'30 in its outside tuition program, were contained in a letter from Director Pierce as read at the school committee meeting.

The properties committee of the board is to take up with insurance companies the matter of an adjustment on an accident in which Clarence Wallen, a North Windham boy, was run over by one of the school busses operated by John W. Hnizdo in Windham, a week ago. Driver Hnizdo reported to the school board that a tree had blown down across the road, blocking the way. Mr. Hnizdo stopped the bus and got out to clear the road. The brakes were released in some manner and the machine started to roll back down an incline. Most of the children got out safely but the Wallen boy fell, one of the wheels passing over his leg, breaking it above the ankle.

Work on the proposed alteration and addition to the third floor of the high school building to provide increased facilities for pupils, pursuant to a vote at the special town meeting, will be started at the close of the school year in June. The school board will secure an architect to make the necessary plans for the construction of one large study room to accommodate about 50 pupils.

This year on his visit there he found that for the most part his trees had been stripped. He found no one about the orchard who might have done the picking, but he did find the bagged apples lying on the ground, presumably to be taken away later. The owner of the apples loaded the bags into his car, and mentally thanking the would be thief for doing the labor of picking, hit the road for Lynn.

CRAB WITH CLAWS LIKE LION—GOLD RING IN GIFT CODFISH

Capt. Mike Swan came in from the fishing ground having 28 barrels of fish on his boat Bopesp. He also had the largest blue shell crab ever seen at the packing house dock. It was 20 inches from claw to claw and across the back was 9 inches. The claw was big as a lion's claw. Capt. Swan caught it in his net off Block Island. The fishermen were surprised to see such a big crab. He also gave away a small codfish to Peter Burns. While Mr. Burns was cleaning the fish, his knife struck something which proved to be a lady's gold ring; but it was so worn that the initials on it could not be made out. He will keep the ring for good luck. It seemed a strange thing for a fish to get hold of. An old-time sea captain said years ago a large steamer was sunk there and many lives were lost so he thinks that fish got the ring that way on the bottom of the ocean.

The monster crab was so large that Capt. Swan at first thought he had a sea turtle in the net. That crab damaged his net badly. He will have to lose a day of fishing to mend the seine. The crab was given to Mike Passi and a crab salad will be made from it.

From the packing house dock over 200 barrels of fish was forwarded to New York by trucks, the largest shipment fro mthis fishing center for some time.

PALM BEACH GUARDS ITS AESTHETIC VALUE

PALM BEACH, Fla. (AP)—Bullfights, bowling alleys and blacksmith shops have been banned in this community of winter sunshine and swank.

Such mundane endeavors, the town council agreed unanimously, was not in keeping with the aestheticism of the resort.

Therefore, an ordinance bars tourist camps and barbecue stands; bedspring and mattress factories; junk yards, poulry enterprises, dry cleaning establishment using steam boilers, ice plants, laundries, livery stables and shooting galleries—the latter if operated for hire or profit.

COURT PERMITS WOMAN'S TESTIMONY FOR HUSBAND

MEMPHIS, Tenn. (AP)—An ancient rule of law in courts of the United States and England, forbidding women from testifying in defense of their husbands, has been ignored by a federal judge here.

Judge H. B. Anderson of the west Tennessee district declared women can testify in his court in defense of their husbands. For decades they have been prohibited from doing so. The practice has been abolished in many state courts, but still holds good in some federal courts.

The rule was set aside by Judge Anderson during trial of a man on charges of selling narcotics. The defense called the man's wife and the government objected.

"I know the rule you plan to invoke," Judge Anderson told the prosecutor, "but the rule that a woman can not testify for her husband in criminal cases in federal court is ignored in this district because I think it is senseless and barbarous."

Eleven clubs from the larger universities of the country are members of the association, formed last spring in Detroit. At present the only member of the association to own its own plane is the Harvard club.

THE THANKSGIVING SEASON RAPIDLY APPROACHES and those of us who neither ache nor itch should be mighty thankful.

We should not only feel it and look it, and act it, but we should also dress it, for its effect upon others.

We don't dress so much for ourselves as we do for others; we enjoy giving others the pleasures which they find in our neatness and comfort.

There is no greater assurance of being well dressed than wearing a garment bearing the label of "Printzess" or "Craigleigh" or "Toy Town Tailleurs".

Quality is apparent in every line of these garments which are priced from $19.50 to $49.50 each—and satisfaction in service lasts over a period of years.

No Progress In Getting Industry

It was said today that no recent prograss of importance has been made with the effort to get a silk manufacturing concern to locate in this town, although that has been a prospect for a number of weeks. It so happens, however, that there are prospective purchasers for the idle plant of the American Woolen company at Elmville. The mill company has been disposing of some of its real estate holdings in that community and, it is understood, is in a receptive mood for bids for the mill, a two-story brick structure with basement that was operated as a woolen mill for more than a generation.

Mr. Funero's defence was that he was willing to support his wife, but that she declined to go to Norwich to make her home with him. He was adjudged not guilty.

New Sidewalk Construction

The borough's sidewalk building program is progressing. Along the westerly side of Mechanic street new walks have been built from near the A. F. Wood property almost to Westfield avenue. It is hoped to complete the walk along Mechanic street to North street before real cold weather sets in. The work is being done by the borough.

While the matter is not getting any great amount of general attention just now, some of Killingly's residents continue to give thought to the general revaluation of Killingly's property that must be undertaken in 1930. It is hoped that the work may be completed before the time for filing tax lists in October of next year.

Signs Of Winter

Flocks of wild geese have been reported flying southward over territory to the east of here the past two days. Against this widely accepted sign of impending cold weather is the old saw that real winter will not set in until rivers and ponds are full.

This year the annual senior play at Killingly high school is to be Skinner's Dress Suit. Instead of being given after the holiday season, as in other years, it is to be presented this month.

Attorney A. G. Bill, a Yale alumnus, and Mrs. Bill are to be in New Haven Saturday for the Yale-Princeton game. They are to make the trip with Mr. and Mrs. William T. Mullally of New York, relatives.

To Present Candidates' Names

A nominating committee that has been selected and that is headed by Attorney Harry E. Back will present the names of candidates for offices in the chamber of commerce at the annual meeting to be held in December. President E. B. Wilbur heads a delegation of the chamber that plans to attend the New England conferences in Boston the coming week.

Miss. Lillian. E., Bailey. returned today from a visit with relatives in Forestville and also from attendance last evening at a meeting of Wadhams corps, W. R. C., Waterbury, that organization entertaining the state department officers, Miss Bailey being the department councilor.

Mrs. Minnie Mathieu of Willimantic, department president of the Daughters of Union Veterans of the Civil war, will be among the guests when the annual inspection of Mary A. Livermore Tent is held Friday evening in G. A. R. hall.

To Organize Court League

Representatives of various churches met with L. Edwin Hill this evening to discuss with him, as secretary of the County Y. M. C. A. the project or reorganizing the Inter-Church Basketball league to play through the remainder of the fall and during the winter season. Last season this league included teams representing the Westfield Congregational church, the Baptist church, St. Alban's church and Methodist Episcopal church, all of Danielson, and the Congregational church of Dayville.

PUTNAM

DEMOCRATS STILL WITHOUT TWO LEADING CANDIDATES

(Special to The Bulletin)

PUTNAM, Nov. 14.—The 1929 city political campaign is virtually at a close. With the passing of this day and no candidates put forth for mayor or alderman-at-large, the democrats leave the field open to Mayor Charles A. Richard and Warren S. Ames, alderman-at-large.

Only one contest will take place on election day. James J. Charron, democrat, and Harvey J. Grinsell, republican, will oppose each other for the office of tax collector. Both are well known business men. When nominated a week ago by the republicans, Mr. Grinsell made his debut in politics. Mr. Charron, on the other hand, in the fall town election was defeated for a place on the school board, losing by a small vote.

Following the close of the general democratic caucus last Tuesday, the city committee stated that they made every effort to secure candidates in order to fill the ticket, but at the 11th hour were without prospects.

CONDITION OF EDMUND DUBOIS CONSIDERED CRITICAL

(Special to The Bulletin)

PUTNAM, Nov. 14.—The condition of Edmund Dubois of Walnut street, popular city official who has been ill for a month, was reported late this afternoon as steadily failing. Physicians attending the democratic city chieftain held out scant hope for his recovery today. Mr. Dubois' condition came to be regarded as critical when he was unable to absorb nourishment. Inability to take food at regular intervals has caused him to lapse into semi-consciousness at times. On Sunday, Oct. 13, Mr. Dubois suffered a paralytic stroke and has been confined to his bed since.

Mr. Dubois has been a resident of this city for many years. He has always been active in democratic political circles and is chairman of the party town committee. For the past six years, Mr. Dubois has been an alderman from ward two. Because of illness he was forced to retire from the council this year and he will be succeeded by his son, Joseph Dubois, in the forthcoming administration of city government.

POLICE OBTAIN NEW CLUES IN TWO ROBBERIES

(Special to The Bulletin)

PUTNAM, Nov. 14.—The shroud of mystery surrounding the two burglaries at St. Mary's parish house in this city and at the home of John Demetrie in North Grosvenordale is yet to be pierced by police investigators, who are attempting to solve the case. Captain of Police Jarvis said this afternoon that new clues were obtained this morning at the parish house which will require several days to run down. As the investigation progresses, police are beginning to link the Putnam and North Grosvenordale jobs, committed Sunday morning, with the wholesale robbery at the Dupre Specialty shop, which occurred nearly a year ago, and which is still unsolved. In the case of the Dupre break, coat hangers and clothes stretchers were found strewn along the highway between Putnam and Chepatchet and this was also true of the North Grosvenordale case. Clothes belonging to Demetrie were found along the road in the general direction of Providence. This fact has led the investigators to direct their work to Rhode Island cities in the hope that connecting links will be uncovered.

Both Captain Jarvis and Lieutenant Urquhart of the state police barracks at Danielson have co-operated in every way with the press. When interviewed for additional details on the robberies this morning, the police captain asserted that he was in possession of substantial information which he is confident will effect a solution of the case, but felt that it should be withheld from print until the investigation nears a successful climax.

Married Nov. 2

Announcement has been made of the marriage of Miss Martha Flanigan of Hartford to George W. Child, also of Hartford, a former resident of this city, son of Mr. and Mrs. John E. Child of East Woodstock. The wedding took place on Saturday, Nov 2, in Springfield, Mass.

Work has been started by the town of Woodstock in the renovating of the Palmer Memorial hall in Woodstock Hill. When completed, this modern structure will house the legal statistics of the town. Offices will be made for the town clerk and judge of probate. An appropriation to effect this change-over was made at the annual meeting of the voters of the town last October.

The September session of superior court, which adjourned three weeks ago, will be concluded in December, it was said today. Judge Edward M. Yeomans of Danbury, presiding magistrate, will open court in Willimantic on Dec. 3. There are still many cases on the docket and it is believed that many more sittings will be held in this city before the close of the term.

A pruning demonstration is being arranged by the Windham County Farmers association, which will take place next Tuesday afternoon at 2 o'clock at the fruit farm of H. M. Woodbury, Woodstock Hill. Fruit growers in this section have been urged to attend the demonstration which will be conducted by state experts. Actual pruning demonstrations will be made on apple and peach trees. Mr. Woodbury's farm is unusually well adapted for this agricultural meeting, since his orchards contain many excellent varieties. County Farm Agent Raymond E. Wing is co-operating with Mr. Darrow, a specialist, who will conduct the demonstration.

Andrew F. Donovan, son of Mr. and Mrs. A. P. Donovan of Lyons street, for the past five years in the service of the New England Transportation Co., has been promoted to starter of the company's lines at the Worcester depot in Worcester, Mass.

Schools Hold Evening Session

As a part of the programme for the observance of American Education week, all schools in the city were in session here this evening, the purpose of the night sessions being to enable parents and friends of the students to visit the classes. All students enrolled above the third grade were in school tonight. Classes convened at 6:45 and continued until 9 o'clock with the usual daytime routine being followed.

Mrs. Louis Lamb, formerly Miss Jessie Hibbard of Woodstock, died Wednesday in South Hadley Falls, Mass. Mrs. Lamb was 45 years of age. She was for a time a member of the nursing staff at the Day Kimball hospital. Surviving her is a brother, Winfield Hibbard, of Springfield, Mass.

PUTNAM SCOUT COMMITTEE BUSY WITH OBJECTIVES

According to the Norwich Boy Scout headquarters, the Putnam Boy Scout district committee, which held its first major meeting at the chamber of commerce in Putnam, Tuesday evening, is actively engaged in preparing for the training course to be started there during the first week in December. Scoutmaster George Barker, Frank Gleason and John P. Crouin will head up this committee, which has set up as an objective, 25 men to be enrolled in the course.

The civic service committee will be headed up by Walter King and L. A. Gilman. This committee will have charge of all civic service to be rendered by the scouts of Putnam for the community.

On the troop organization committee will be Rev. Joseph D. Casey, Scoutmaster Frank Gleason, Thomas Igo and other prominent local men. This committee will attempt to start several new troops in Putnam during the coming month.

The finance committee will consist of Edward W. Mullen, Leslie F. Bearce and a local Putnam banker. The publicity committee will consist of Francis Murphy, representing the St. Mary's troops; Frank Gleason, representing the Woodstock troop, and Geo. Barker, representing Pomfret.

According to H. D. Larrabee, chairman of the territory committee, the purpose of the training course to be started in Putnam is to give those taking it a greneral knowledge of the aims and content of the Boy Scout program with stress on the methods which can be used to teach this program to boys. It is intended to give the new scoutmaster a logical viewpoint of scouting and a systematic basis upon which he may build his future activities with boys. The class will be conducted similar to the class now being conducted in Norwich, that is in such a manner as to make it as much like a real Boy Scout troop as possible. The students will be organized into a troop, with definite patrol organization. Each patrol will have its patrol leaders, name, yell, song, etc. The troop will have a scoutmaster, senior patrol leader, scribe and other officers needed. The students will have several projects of various kind to carry out. The whole course will contain many games, contests, stunts, methods, and materials which can be taken back to the leader's own troop for use.

Rev. Joseph D. Casey will serve as chairman of the district committee with Walter King as an associate or alternating chairman.

MISSIONARY SOCIETY AIDS HOSPITAL AND SCHOOLS

The Woman's Missionary society of the Congregational church met at the home of the president, Miss S. K. Adams Thursday afternoon. During the business meeting it was voted to use twenty-five dollars of the appropriation for a library unit at Tougaloo college. Christmas gifts were brought, to be sent away, and it was voted to send them to Brewer hospital, in South Carolina. The coats and hats recently donated by Arrmoney & Sons are to be sent to Rev. F. J. Working at Atlanta, Ga. Several thank-offering envelopes were received. A Thanksgiving service opened the meeting. The hostess served refreshments at the close.

Heard Letter From China

Miss Beatrice Cathcart entertained the World Wide Guild, Girls at her home Tuesday evening, eleven being present. One new member joined the guild. The president, Winifred Scates arranged the program, the subject being And so it Reached Our Ancestors, based on the study book. The aim of the subject was to prove that Queen Victoria's statement is true: that the Bible is the secret of England's greatness, because of the historical foundation of English civilization. The topic was divided in three sections—Early Britains; Story of Ethel Berga and Paulinus and Story of Caedmon. Each month a letter is received from a missionary. At this meeting a letter was read from Florence A. Webster, of Union Girls' school in Hangchow, China. During the business period, it was voted to hold the annual vesper service on the first Sunday in December. Miss Cathcart served nut sandwiches, wafers and cocoa.

Mrs. C. O. Peterson received a letter Thursday from her son Clifford stating that he was in Albany, N. Y. ANTI-ALCOHOL DRIVE IN SOVIET RUSSIA

MOSCOW (AP)—It takes $750,000,000 worth of vodka and wine each year to satisfy the thirst of Russia's 146,000,000 people, according to statistics of the Soviet Anti-Alcoholic society. This is more than is used to maintain the Red army and navy, and is said to be equal to the sum invested in developed Russia's heavy industry.

The family of a Moscow laborer, says the society, spends an average of $89 on vodka annually. To every 10,000 population in the Soviet Union there is only one club, while there are five wine shops.

Largely as a result of agitation by the society, the government has decided to reduce the output of vodko for the next five years from 237,600,000 gallons to 105,000,000 gallons. The vodka consumers rejoice that they still have a five-year supply of vodka to guzzle.

MECHANIC'S DRAMA IS HIT IN ENGLAND

LONDON (AP)—A $15-a-week engine fitter from the locomotive shops at Mexborough has written the "What Price Glory" of Britain's long labor-capital war.

He is John Davison, whose "Shadows of Strife" was presented at the Birmingham Repertory theater and made such an impression that Sir Barry Jackson, the London producer, is planning to bring it here for a metropolitan premiere.

The play deals with the reactions in a miner's household of the great general strike of 1926. Davison wrote it when a shut-down of coal mines threw him out of work.

He also has written poems, novels and short stories, but literary profits have not enabled him to give up his railroad job. A wife and three children are dependent on him.

After seeing his play enthusiastically welcomed at its Birmingham debut, Davison wanted to see another performance of it but had to hurry back to Mexborough and to work. The two days' leave of absence granted him by the railway company were up.

BUILDERS ERASE SCARS OF HISTORIC 1918 FIRE

MINNEAPOLIS (AP)—Industry of the carpenter, the mason and the gardener have removed almost all of the scars left by the historic forest fire of eleven years ago.

The fire, which began on October 12, by nightfall of the following day left a smoldering trail across six towns including Moose Lake and Cloquet in northeastern Minnesota. The property loss was $30,000,000 and 452 persons were killed.

All the debris has been removed, communities have been rebuilt and farms rehabilitated. Cloquet, today, is outstanding among small cities. Burnt over stands of timber have been challenged through the decade by young growth sweeping up from the ash-enriched earth.

The fire followed a long drought. A 60-mile gale fanned the several small fires into monstrous blazes. Twelve thousand persons were homeless when the fire passed. Because of the more tragic war occurrences, the enormity of the catastrophe was somewhat obscured.

A THREE DAYS' COUGH IS YOUR DANGER SIGNAL

Coughs from colds may lead to serious trouble. You can stop them now with Creomulsion, an emulsified creosote that is pleasant to take. Creomulsion is a medical discovery with two-fold action; it soothes and heals the inflamed membranes and inhibits germ growth.

Of all known drugs, creosote is recognized by high medical authorities as one of the greatest healing agencies for coughs from colds and bronchial irritations. Creomulsion contains, in addition to creosote, other healing elements which soothe and heal the inflamed membranes and stop the irritation, while the creosote goes on to the stomach, is absorbed into the blood, attacks the seat of the trouble and checks the growth of the germs.

Creomulsion is guaranteed satisfactory in the treatment of coughs from colds, bronchitis and minor forms of bronchial irritations, and is excellent for building up the system after colds or flu. Money refunded if not relieved after taking according to directions. Ask your druggist. (adv.)

FURTHER TAX REDUCTION

At the time when it was established that the last fiscal year showed a pleasing surplus there were intimations that there would be a reduction in federal taxation depending, of course, upon such conditions as developed.

The form and the amount were indefinite, but it is the opinion of Secretary Mellon that it should come in connection with the tax on the 1929 income and that it should come in the form of a 1 per cent reduction all along the line.

That this view, approved by President Hoover and tentatively supported by congressional leaders who were brought into conference, should be expressed at this time cannot fail to result in much good. It clearly indicates the sentiment of the administration and those closely in touch with the affairs in this country and bolsters up the oft-repeated statement that there is nothing fundamentally wrong with the country or business. It clearly indicates the confidence that is placed in business conditions and cannot fail to have a beneficial effect in offsetting the reactions to the stock market conditions which have been prevailing.

From such a knowledge of the conditions as can be expected for the remainder of the calendar year, or even the fiscal year, those at the helm are confident that the income tax payments will go ahead of those for the year 1928. That being the case, in spite of the stock market situation, it means that a surplus can be expected equivalent to if not larger than for the last fiscal year. In view of that, it is felt that the time is ripe for the extension of another tax reduction to the individuals and corporations and the idea of making a general cut of 1 per cent means that all are going to experience the benefit of it.

The indicated cooperation of congress with the recommendations, insofar as the leaders are able to commit themselves, demonstrates the soundness of the plan as well as the desirability of it at this time, and when put up to congress there should be little delay. The time for it is well chosen.

VOTING MACHINES

The advantage of voting machines was clearly demonstrated in the recent election in New York city where all precincts were equipped with them.

There were complaints the day after the election by the mayor that voters had been denied their privilege because the machines had not been set up in time for the voters to use them in the early morning, but that, it is apparent, was the fault of the election officials and not the machines.

It was at the November election that the question of adopting voting machines came up for a decision before the people of Philadelphia, and other Pennsylvania cities, and in the Quaker city the vote was in their favor.

In both of these cities there has been a strong demand for machines because of the conditions which have surrounded elections. They are certain to overcome just such a situation as exists in Boston at the present time.

In the recent election, a non-partisan contest, former Mayor Curley was successful by such a large plurality that there seemed no ground for demanding a recount. Yet there were so many claims of irregularities put forth that the second high candidate asked for a rechecking of the vote. He frankly declared that he did not expect any change in the outcome but he wanted the claims about conditions cleared up.

The recounting has progressed to a point where the candidate asking for it has declared he has no further interest. It is established that there were no such irregularities as were claimed but there were all kinds of errors made in the counting. Instead of the unsuccessful candidate gaining from the recheck thus far, it has been Curley who has gained. Blocks of votes which were cast for one candidate were found credited to the other, and vice versa. There were the clerical errors which invariably feature the counting when individuals undertake the task and there are times when such errors are sufficient to upset the result.

If Boston had had voting machines there would have been no such situation. There would have been no chance for irregularities and the votes would have been counted as they were cast without any question as to intention and without the chance of counters crediting them in the wrong place.

A FINE APPOINTMENT

The importance of the British ambassador to the United States is in no way overlooked by Premier MacDonald in his choice of a successor to Sir Esme Howard. To the latter, the premier paid a glowing tribute while in this country and well did he understand the importance of picking a man that could and would fill his shoes.

Sir Ronald Lindsay has been selected as the British representative to this country, not because he has been a shining political light in England, not because he was actively engaged in backing the labor party, or any other party in the recent election, but because he measured up to the requirements for the office. He has been and is at the present time undersecretary of state for foreign affairs and chief of the foreign office. He thus knows what is expected of him and he gets the appointment because of his qualifications. Having devoted himself to the foreign service of his country for years, he has had that valuable training which the premier recognizes and wants to employ for a particular purpose.

Sir Ronald will not come here for his first experience in ambassadorial service. He has filled such posts with distinction in Turkey and Germany, but he has had the advantage of being attached to the British embassy in Washington on two different occasions, so that it will be nothing new for him to come to this country. Further than that, he has the advantage of an American wife. Thus may this government feel that a wise choice has been made in the successor to the present ambassador even as the British government does in naming him.

Relationships between the two countries were never better. Much is being anticipated in the way of results from the coming London conference and it is to be expected that there will continue to be important questions in the future, as there have been in the past, coming up between the two governments. This means that experienced and capable men are needed by the respective countries as their representatives and the appointment gives recognition to the need.

MORE SHIPS SOLD

When we have sold our merchant ships it has invariably been stipulated that they should remain under the Stars and Stripes. It has been our purpose to encourage shipping operations instead of turning the vessels over to other countries.

Announcement has just been made to the effect that 30 vessels have been disposed of by the shipping board to J. G. Ohsol for a little over a million and a third dollars, to be put into the Russian trade. They will carry cargoes from this country to Russian ports and then be placed under foreign registry.

These are vessels which have been laid up for a period of seven years. If they were horses they would have been eating their heads off. The probabilities are that they might remain at anchor for another seven years so far as any demand for them might arise that would put them into operation under domestic registration. The vessels are taken as they are, alterations being subject to the new owner's desires and while they go to foreign registry the deal is probably the best that could be expected. It is preferable to keeping them swinging idly at anchor and deteriorating and it is better than sending them to the junk heap, even though the price obtained represents only a small part of the cost of construction.

We can derive satisfaction from the deal to the additional extent that aside from getting rid of the ships it will mean the movement of a considerable quantity of American goods to Russia with the expectation that this will be only a small part of the volume of trade which will be stimulated thereby. Our trade with Russia has been considerable and growing and it is trade which does not depend upon the recognition of the soviet government.

EDITOR SHERMAN RETIRES

It is going to be a decided change for Clifton L. Sherman, editor of the Hartford Times, when he retires, according to announcement, the first of next month and takes himself to Florida. It is going to mean much more than a change of climate for it means breaking away from long years of close application to newspaper activity for a rest which he has reason to feel has been fully earned.

For about two score years, Mr. Sherman has been identified with some Hartford newspaper and all the way from telegraph and state editor to editor-in-chief, and none know better than those who have been closely associated with him what that service has meant, although the results of his labors have been indelibly printed upon both the Courant and the Times. It was the loss to the former that was the gain to the latter when he went from the managing editorship of one to the other a decade ago and for the past eight years, since the death of W. O. Burr, his influence as editor and stockholder in the Times has been conspicuous, especially in the character of newspaper produced.

Hartford as well as the Times has reasons to regret the retirment of Mr. Sherman and even though such was indicated by the sale of the paper some time ago it has the satisfaction of knowing that he had shed an influence there for the good of the community as well as the institution which he helped to build. He was one of those closely identified with the Hartford newspaper men of other days, men who gained wide distinction in city, state and nation, and there is no mistaking the fact that his retirement from such activities is going to create an unusual situation as well as much regret.

THE WORLD AT FIFTEEN

Ernestine looked gloomy. She pushed back a lock of hair with no regard as to where it draped itself and flopped into a big chair.

"Life is so queer," she complained. "Just as you think you have accomplished a little good something drops on you hard. It sort of discourages you in trying to lend a hand and all that. The reason I took so much interest in Florry in the first place is that it does exasperate me to see a girl miss all her good points and ignore chances the way that girl does. She seems absolutely fated and if any girl needs guidance I'll say she does.

"And Harry is just about as bad. It all started when Florry refused to speak to Harry and he came to me and said Gee, what was the matter with Florry and would I please find out and let him know, because otherwise, so far as he could see, he would be tottering into his grave without a word from her. So I asked her right after the history period and Florry was nearly weeping.

"She said it was no such thing—that Harry had passed her the day before in a dark hall and refused to speak to her. And then Harry declared he had never laid eyes on her in the hall and altogether it took me a week to get that affair straightened out and the two of them friendly again.

"Something was always happening to those two. Florry would see Harry eating a chocolate sundae with some other girl after he had solemnly promised her not to take any one else out. Then she would write him a note saying she never wanted to speak to him again and send it back with the little leather workbox Harry had given her on her birthday filled with candy.

"And Harry would nab me as I was rushing to gym to say it was all a mistake, that Althea just came and sat down at his table to tell him something and how could he help it and wouldn't I please try and straighten things out with Florry. He looked so mournful that I couldn't help but sympathize. I told him that what he should do was to exert a firm hand and make Florry stop being so childish and silly. And the idiot thought I meant to roar at her, which he did.

"You can't roar at Florry. Instead of getting mad she bursts into tears and when she cries her eyes are all washed out looking. I pointed this out to her and she went right up in the air and said she'd thank me to tend to my own good looks, and that because three boys had asked me to the school dance was no reason for my thinking I was fitted to give the rest of the world advice on how to conduct their love affairs. I must say I was surprised. When all I was doing was trying to boost Florry along!

"Florry's mother is quite Victorian and began to object to seeing Harry around the house so much. She said no girl Florry's age needed such assiduous attention. So that made it very hard for Florry and Harry and interfered with their settling all sorts of important questions which were always coming up. When I saw how worried they were I had a bright idea. If I came to see Florry and Harry came with me, why, her mother could not object to my having an escort—now, could she?

"And I could always play the piano or something while they talked. That worked beautifully, although it was rather a nuisance to have Harry hanging around my house so much waiting for me to find time to go over to Florry's with him, and I certainly did get tired having to listen to all he had to tell me about how she misunderstood his every action. But I will sacrifice a good deal for a friend, and I was bound to educate Florry.

"Because with her careless use of lipstick and rouge and the way she will wear moonlight mist hosiery with a dress with brown in it and never look up through her lashes, she is a caution. I'd tell Harry the color of neckties Florry liked and then I'd suggest to Florry that she laugh a lot more—because Harry liked girls who were full of pep. But do what I would, those two always were in trouble and now it's the limit!

"Why," Ernestine explained dismally as she sighed and collected her belongings, "Florry won't speak to me at all now, because—well, Harry seems just to have lost all interest in her and sticks around me all the while and I can't get rid of him! Why, I have just about as much use for Harry myself as I have for Lenin's tomb! That boy is forever on hand and I don't get a chance to speak to another living soul and I'm about crazy!"—Exchange.

By EUGENE L. SIMPSON
Associated Press Staff Writer

WASHINGTON, Nov. 14—Glancing over the official biography of James William Good, secretary of war, the Bystander noted that he was graduated from Michigan university in 1893.

That may prove to be a very significant fact in football history. Unless memory is at fault, Mr. Good must have been either an undergraduate or a very recent graduate of Michigan at the time of the furor over football professionalism, so-called, which led to the first adoption of inter-collegiate player eligibility rules.

Undoubtedly he has personal recollections of the circumstances which led to that action, for Michigan was a storm center of the controversy of the '90's.

Now Mr. Good is head of the war department and virtually is final arbiter for the army of the dispute between West Point and Annapolis over the navy's insistence that the inter-collegiate three-year rule be applied to any future army-navy football classics.

Yet he knows of his own knowledge that the rule had its foundation in charges of professionalism and near-professionalism in college football that could not possibly rest against either West Point or Annapolis.

And that is very apt to influence his mind toward complete support of the West Point authorities in rejecting navy overtures for adoption of the three-year rule, as having no bearing whatever on inter-academy sports.

Degrees Already.

That West Point has an advantage over Annapolis in the number of ex-college men who turn to service life is obvious.

At present nearly half the West Point cadet corps is composed of men who have college degrees already or have previously attended colleges.

Owing in part to the lower minimum and maximum age limits at Annapolis, fewer college men go there. Not many are graduated from college young enough to enter the naval academy.

But the edge army has on navy in recruiting college students generally rests on a wider basis than that. Almost every college has some kind of military courses to offer and soldiering is compulsory in many.

The whole national defense idea on which post-war military policy of the government rests is based on having a continuous flow of young collegians into the officers' reserve corps.

The navy has similar training units, but on nothing like army scale. In war it would have no need for such numbers of officers from civil life as would the army.

In these circumstances, it seems natural that more collegians go to West Point than Annapolis. More of them already know something about army life, professional or social.

Compromise Unlikely.

Secretary Good is not very apt, so far as the Bystander can learn, to press West Point toward any compromise with Annapolis of the army contention that eligibility of football men should be guaranteed by the good faith of each academy.

If neither institution needs purging of taints of athletic professionalism—and nobody has charged that they do—adoption of the college three-year rule could only be designed to establish between them a sort of artificial football parity.

Handicap football does not sound very sporting, and Secretary Adams' gesture from the navy side for a football rapprochement as yet has produced no way of escape from the deadlock.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Wet Philosophy Is Antiquated

Mr. Editor; Dear old "Sumptuary" is on duty again—or yet! A certain clergyman over in Worcester declares that he is "opposed to making liquor buying a crime" (as proposed by Senator Sheppard) "because there is a limit to which sumptuary legislation may be permitted to go." The troubled clergyman indicates that he is dubious about the entire philosophy of prohibitory legislation, especially the Volstead act, "which is already burdened with all the handicaps it can afford in the matter of its enforcement." And, quick to see the advantage of the clerical declaration to the wet cause, a leading wet newspaper pertinently inquires, "Why should such a law be more sumptuary than that which we now have? What essential difference is there between forbidding one to buy or use liquor, and prohibiting the manufacture, sale, transportation and importation thereof?" And so, the whole eighteenth amendment goes by the board! Presumably, also, the Ten Commandments!

Well, who or what is this dear old "Sumptuary?" Take down your dictionary and read: "Sumptuary, of or pertaining to expense; especially limiting or regulating expense or expenditure, as the action of a state restricting by edict private expenditure in directions where it is deemed injurious; or fixing the price of commodities or wages." Mark you—not a word about "porhibition;" just "limiting," "regulating," "restricting." Then turn to the definition of 'law;" run your eye down to "sumptuary laws—laws that restrict individual expenditures as to food, clothing ,etc.; specifically applied in the United States to laws regulating the traffic in intoxicating liquors." Not "prohibiting," mind you, but "regulating." Ain't it awful, Mabel?

Every such law is "sumptuary," and the Worcester clergyman, to be consistent, ought also to denounce Governor Smith and Mayor Walker for their excessive anxiety about all-night "night clubs," naked dancers; rebuke the authors of statutes and ordinances prohibiting or even "regulating" these public nuisances; the worried dominie should advocate the repeal of laws and ordinances prohibiting tainted food and contaminated milk; for all such laws are plainly "sumptuary;" and seriously "interfere with domestic tastes and habits," which in the estimation of the wets is a far worse crime than liquor selling!

How the liquor men do love that word, "sumptuary," and its "specific use" (really, twisted use) "in the United States." Why, Mr. Editor, that is about the first word that I heard in my prohibition infancy, more than 40 years ago. By that term the liquor men denounced regulatory "license" laws, the return of which they now so ardently desire; "local option," which interfered with "the trade" in spots, was similarly terrible from the sacred standpoint of "personal liberty;" but now, the return of "local option," and the "right of each state" to determine the "content" of its own booze, is become the essence of American liberty!

Reverting to the proposition of Senator Sheppard, to pass a law making the buyer equally guilty with the seller, let me say that in my judgment such a law is impractical and probably unnecessary, for these reasons: Impractical, because hampering enforcement by making the buyer equally evasive with the seller; probably unnecessary, because it would seem that under any fair, sensible and logical interpretation of even common law, the buyer is not only equally guilty but a party to the sale—at least, particeps criminis. It is hard for the ordinary layman to understand how a sale can be complete without a buyer, as well as a seller. But bear in mind that this question is now on the way to the highest court, and the final decision of that tribunal will determine the course to be followed by the legislative and executive departments.

As to the moral guilt of the buyer, there can be no question. If there were no buyers, there would be no bootleggers. The plain truth is that the high-class wets, who insist upon having their liquor, are the mainstay of the bootlegger, and of the corruption resulting. Many of them do not realize their responsibility. Of course they can embarrass President Hoover and discredit constitutional government as long as they think best. But is not their course absolutely indefensible from any fair standpoint of loyal citizenship?

YOUR HEALTH

A Word For Your Throat.

By Joseph W. Miller, M. D.
New York, N. Y.
(From Gorgas Memorial Institute)

Tuberculosis of the larynx, as we know it today, is always secondary to or a complication of tuberculosis of the lungs.

In former days this complication was dreaded by the family physician as well as the throat specialist, and the man or woman afflicted with laryngeal tuberculosis was regarded as doomed.

But happily this is not the case today. With modern methods of early diagnosis and treatment this dreadful malady has often been nipped in the bud. No one who consults his family physician early and sees a competent throat specialist when such symptoms as hoarseness, pain or a choking sensation in the throat arise, need fear that death is imminent. On the contrary, since pulmonary tuberculosis is today much earlier and more easily recognized, fewer patients develop the graver complications such as laryngeal tuberculosis. And those who do have much better chances to recover than in former days.

The main factor in the cause of laryngeal tuberculosis is the frequent passing through the larynx of infected lung secretions—tuberculosis sputum. Also the act of coughing throws the larynx into a spasm and its frequent repetition injures the delicate mucous membrane which is constantly being bathed in tuberculous lung secretions. This condition soon gives rise to an inflammatory swelling which on breaking down becomes very painful due to the exposed nerve endings in the ulcerations.

From the above description of the cause of laryngeal tuberculosis, it is obvious how important it is to first put the larynx at rest and then concentrate attention on the lungs in order to stop the cough and so check the passage of the infected lung secretion through the larynx.

In order to accomplish this the "silent treatment" should be instituted at once; that is the patient should abstain from talking either aloud or in a whisper, but instead should write his thoughts on paper so that the larynx be put completely at rest. Whispering is worse than talking aloud as it requires greater effort.

While a stay in the country may be of great benefit in some forms of pulmonary tuberculosis, it is of no use at all in laryngeal tuberculosis, particularly the ulcerative types. What benefit is the fresh air to the sufferer when he or she is unable to swallow? Such cases are far better off in the city where they can obtain appropriate treatment at the hands of expert throat specialists or at a sanatorium devoted to the treatment of laryngeal tuberculosis. Expert medical attention, good food, fresh air and sunshine and above all rest, both mental and physical, will in a great number of cases take care of the tuberculous lung condition.

In recent years ingenious light machines have been constructed yielding concentrated artificial sunlight which can very readily be made to strike at the diseased larynx and so bring about much more rapid healing and relief to the turberculous larynx.

A Battle Creek physician says, "Constipation is responsible for more misery than any other cause."

But immediate relief has been found. A tablet called Rexall Orderlies has been discovered. This tablet attracts water from the system into the lazy, dry, evacuating bowel called the colon. FOR SUPERIOR COURT ON BURGLARY CHARGE

Two Taftville men, John Sullivan, 32, and George Shadlock, 29, were bound over to the criminal superior court Thursday morning on the charge of statutory burglary last Saturday night at the place of Julian Falcone, 166 Norwich avenue, Taftville. The men were arrested by State Policeman Arthur Whitmarsh, who recovered a cash register that had been taken out of the place. A clock, three boxes of cigars and some tobacco were also taken.

Shadlock pleaded not guilty and was tried in the city court, but Sullivan, for whom Thomas M. Shields was counsel, entered a demurrer, which was overruled by Judge A. F. Libby.

The evidence presented against Shadlock was through Julian Falcone, owner of the place; John Broderick, who had been in the place Saturday night with Sullivan and Shadlock; "Sheik" Leonard, who bought the cash register from Sullivan, and George Moore, a taxi driver, who drove the two accused men to Taftville when they hired his cab and who brought them back to the city, carrying the cash register.

The testimony was that both men were pretty thoroughly intoxicated most of the time.

They were out on bonds of $500 each until the superior court trial.

LINDERSON PRESIDENT OF E. C. MILLS ASSOCIATION

Alfred Linderson, overseer of the frame spinning department of Ponemah mills, Taftville, was elected president of the Eastern Connecticut Mills association at the annual meeting held Thursday evening in Ponemah hall. Prentice W. Chase of Jewett City was elected secretary-treasurer and vice presidents elected were Samuel Truesdale, Samuel Boyd, Fred Taylor, Ian Ainsworth and Edward Leonard.

Supper was served under the direction of Clarence J. Nagle. During supper, Clayton Sharples was song leader. The menu was:

NORWICH MEN WIN TUMULTUOUS APPLAUSE IN "WOMANLESS WEDDING"

The amateur production, the "Womanless Wedding," sponsored by Faith Trumbull chapter, D. A. R., Inc., and given under the management of Mrs. Albert N. Wagenen, regent, the museum committee, opened its two nights' run Thursday evening at Masonic temple, corner of Sachem and Washington streets, before an audience that nearly filled the large auditorium. The play, which was presented through the Sympson Levie Producing company, of Bardstown, Ken., under the direction of Miss Bulamae Sympson, was delightfully given and received almost continuous applause throughout from an appreciative audience.

From the time that the butler, which part was excellently taken by Attorney Charles L. Stewart, announced, "There's Going to be a Wedding Tonight," until the time that the couple were united in the bonds of "matter-of-money," by the bishop, who was none other than Ebenezer Learned, Sr., the gathering was kept well entertained. Burst upon burst of applause was showered upon the different characters as they came through the exit and filed through the auditorium to their places on the beautifully decorated stage with its baskets of flowers and lighted candles and furniture appointments.

Each of the guests were announced by the butler, the first two to appear being the punch girls, Raymond Camp and Dr. E. S. Burdsall, who were kept busy during the evening serving the liquid refreshments to the guests. The present girls, Alfred Lillibridge and Flint Brayton, were also kept on their toes receiving the bridal gifts. Joseph C. Worth and William G. Park, the bad little brothers of the bride, kept the audience in a happy mood with their capers, they being exceptionally good, and the twin sisters, Kirk Ricketts and Russell Baird, were just too cute for words.

The role of the bride's weeping mother was finely delineated by F. Russell Smith, as was the part of the bride's father by Albert M. Van Wagenen. Frank Carberry and Dr. E. J. Jones as Ikey Rosenstein and the Old Maid Aunt respectively, also proved to be stars of the evening and the appearance of L. M. Crandall and Joseph T. Hynd as the bride's grandmother and grandfather were also dignified. Cecil Wetherbee as Charlie Chaplin was among the early guests at the wedding and almost one of the most important ones as far as the audience was concerned, for they kept laughing at his antics all evening.

Lawton Brayton and Ed Rich, as the uncle and aunt from Voluntown, where live so many characters, gave a successful portrayal, and the appearance of Al G. Bliven as Fritz Fritz Kreisler could not be outdone. The role of Mary Pickford was well portrayed by Walter LaFontaine and the groom's mother and father were very nicely delineated by Dr. A. J. LaPierre and Walter Gilbert. All eyes were cast upon James J. Moore who was the fashion plate and carried the part out to perfection. The part of Sis Hopkins, taken by George Turner, was all that could be asked for. Sir Harry Lauder, taken by Frederick Powers, was one of the big hits of the evening, as was Thomas Edison played by Louis Geer, and Mrs. Edison by Judge H. H. Pettis.

Henry C. Griswold, as the Spanish girl, won well merited applause from the audience, as did Edward Jewett as the country cousin, who brought a small suitcase to the wedding. Pat O'Grady and Rosie O'Grady, played by F. J. Maples and C. W. Nay, brought down the house and Lyle Fillmore as Annie Laurie was a scream. Walter Camp and Judge A. F. Libby, as the hen-pecked husband and devoted wife, were well suited to the roles. Governor Trumbull and Mrs. Thumbull, as portrayed by Herbert Gallup and Albert J. Bailey, made the gathering feel honored. Bruce Rogers, as the flapper 1920, was a wow with her imitations. The aide to the governor and wife was well taken by J. E. Leach.

William R. Frisbie as the Negro mammy, the baby sister, by Joe French and Rastus and Sambo portrayed by Lawrence Hamilton and Dr. Clarence Thompson, respectively, got all eyes and held them. Dr. Charles C. Gildersleeve as the Kentucky colonel was all that could be desired and his lady, Ben Galpes, was enough to grace any home in that state. Edward Connelly, playing the part of Schumann Heinch, and as usual was showered with well merited applause. No better person could have been secured to present this part. Harry Powers, as the village school marm, could not be excelled, as the groom's grandmother and grandfather were also well cast and Charles Saxton and Archibald Mitchell, IV, entered with all the dignity of true generals.

As Theda Bara, Eben Learned, Jr., brought down the house and Albert Comstock and Harold E. Robbins were a conspicuous couple. Frank G. Aubrey, as Galli Curci, won the approval of the audience, as did Roy Judd and William A. Lund, as Henry Ford and Mrs. Ford, Dr. Alexander Abbott as Martinelli, was a big hit of the evening.

The bridal party, which consisted of John Powers, as best man, and Dr. Archibald Abernathy, Charles Gilbert, William H. Dawley and Leonard Partridge, as groomsmen, and John Dick, Louis Quinson, L. Goffe Briggs, Arthur Thompson and Earl Stamm as bridesmaids; Arnold Smith, as maid of honor, and Mayor LeRoy Robbins as matron of honor; Miles Mann and T. R. Sage as flower girls, headed by the bishop, taken by Ebenezer Learned, Sr., was indeed the most shining part of the play. After the appearance of the attendants, Dr. Hugh B. Campbell, exquisitely gowned and of large proportions, entered with the bridegroom, Joseph French, very abbreviated in stature, this having the appearance of a Mutt and Jeff act. Mr. French was the guess who of the outfit, his identity not being divulged until the performance Thursday night. Edwin Colt was the trainbearer and he surely held it high. The ring bearer was no other than Leonard Royce and there was no reason for the ring being lost or misplaced when one saw the size of it. The contents of the ceremony must be heard to be appreciated, and it does not follow the usual custom. So tiny was the bridegroom whose voice could be heard plainly through the auditorium, that he had to use a chair to kiss the bride after the ceremony, as his better half was a towering specimen of humanity. The bride's voice was very weak — it should not have been.

The music for the play was provided by Miss Ruth L. Drechsler, piano, and George Gulle, violin, who also played before the opening of the production.

A feature of the evening were the vocal selections rendered by various members of the cast, which was as follows:

TO CHARGE JURY IN $5,000 AUTOMOBILE SUIT

Before Judge Earnest C. Simpson and a jury in superior court in New London, trial was begun Thursday afternoon in the superior court at New London in the suit of Catherine Palencar of Old Mystic for $5,000 damages against Frank White of North Stonington and Andrew Palencar, her father, in whose automobile she was riding when she was injured in an accident June 17, 1928, at the junction of the Norwich-Mystic and Westerly highways.

On motion of C. V. James, counsel for Andrew Palencar, the suit was dismissed as to this defendant when it was shown that the girl was a minor and therefore could not sustain a suit against her father.

The trial then proceeded against the defendant White, who was represented by Attorney B. H. Hewitt. The plaintiff's counsel was G. C. Morgan. The plaintiff rested its case just before 1 o'clock and in the afternoon the defendant's case was put in and the arguments were concluded before the jury. Judge Simpson will charge the jury when the court session is resumed next Tuesday.

The jury hearing the case consists of the following: New London—Walter D. Beckwith, Thomas F. Gannon, Lawrence S. Farnen; Groton—Walter E. Burdick; Montville—Frank J. Martin, John Adams, Waterman F. Brown; Waterford—Alfred G. Chappell, Vine W. Starr; East Lyme—Frederick W. Harvey, Thomas J. Mill and Charles H. Luce.

JANITOR-PAINTER TO GIVE EXHIBITION IN SPRINGFIELD

John F. Twomey, who is janitor of the High School of Commerce at Springfield, is holding his first exhibition of oil paintings there, showing a group of about 15 landscape and marine paintings which he has completed in the last year.

With this, his initial exhibition, Mr. Twomey is making his debut as a professional artist under the friendly eyes of a faculty who have encouraged and spurred him on in his efforts to master the brushes and paints which have intrigued him for 60-odd years.

Not until last year, however, did he receive the benefit of any special training, when Samuel E. Armour, art teacher, took an interest in his work. Since then Mr. Twomey on his week-end painting trips with Mr. Armour has absorbed considerable from his mentor. Although for years he has painted landscapes in chalk and water colors, not until this spring did he take up oils.

Mr. Twomey, who is a brother of the late Capt. D. J. Twomey of this city, was in business here for a number of years before going to Springfield.

STATE HUMANE SOCIETY SHOWS WORK OF MONTH

The monthly meeting of the directors of the Connecticut Humane society was held this week in Hartford, President Charles A. Goodwin presiding. Monthly reports from the supervisors of the family and animal departments contained the following interesting items:

In the family department, 295 families involving the welfare of 357 children were under investigation. Forty-six children were given hospital or medical care and 60 were placed in homes with relatives or agencies. Conditions were improved in 82 homes, three homes were re-established and seven children were legitimatized. Nineteen children were committed to county homes, five to the selectman, two to Long Lane farm, two to correctional institutions, one to the school for the deaf, one to a state hospital. Two conservators were appointed. Thirteen petitions for commitment are still pending. Thirty-two persons were prosecuted for crimes against childhood, seven were sentenced to jail, four to the state farm for women, 13 paid fines and cost. Fifteen were given suspended jail sentences and placed on probation.

The animal department report showed that during October, 364 complaints were received charging abuse or neglect of animals. Of these 173 were for injured, sick or disabled animals, 64 strays, 16 for beating or cruelly treating, 41 for working when lame or unfit, 45 without food and shelter, 22 taken from work, 24 given veterinary care, 127 injured small animals care for, blankets provided for 10, 22 taken from work, advice given in 146 cases and warnings issued to 53. In the patrol work 388 horses were examined, 117 stables visited, shoes ordered for 60 horses. Six animal stores were inspected and 42 slaughter houses. Homes were found for one horse, 24 dogs, and 23 cats. Twelve dogs and 2 cats were returned to their owners and 570 sick or unwanted small animals were humanely destroyed. Prosecution was necessary in four cases, resulting in fine and costs for two and one being placed on probation.

CONNECTICUT COLLEGE NEEDS MORE SCHOLARSHIPS

An increased number of scholarships with larger grants as a means of relieving the financial difficulties of students were recommended by Dr. Katharine Blunt, president of Connecticut College for Women, in an address Thursday before the New London Rotary club at the weekly luncheon in the Mohican hotel.

Dr. Blunt's address was based on four points which impressed her most during her tenure of office as head of Connecticut college which began with the fall term this year. Financial problems of students, she said, are the basis of one of the most troublesome tasks in the administration of college affairs.

SCOUT EXECUTIVE SELLMAN ATTENDS SEMINAR AT YALE

Scout Executive John L. Sellman will attend a seminar at Yale this (Friday) afternoon on Boy Scout work. Dr. Hugh Hartshorne, who will lead the discussion on "The Character Values of Scouting," was one of the authorities frequently consulted by Dr. Hurt Baunder and Sellman on the Younger Boy program. While at Yale, Mr. Sellman will try to arrange for Major M. D. Moue of the British Boy Scouts association to appear before the Rotary club in December. Major Moue is now instructing in Boston university.

Nature Lecture At Poquetanuck

At the Poquetanuck Parent Teacher association held Wednesday, it was voted to install electric lights in the Poquetanuck school. At the close of the business meeting, Dr. E. G. Rowland, of the Connecticut State hospital, gave a most interesting lecture on the "Problem of the Restoration of Nature's Balance." Dr. Rowland showed the practical extinction of wild life and pleaded for cessation of hunting as the most practical means of avoiding the extinction of animal life. The discussion of problems suggested by the lecture was enjoyed by many present. Refreshments were served during the social hour that followed.

WAS VETERAN OF N. Y. MOUNTED POLICE FORCE

The death of George Madison Hubbard last week at his home in Packer removes one of the old police veterans of New York city. After 29 years of service he was retired on a pension.

Mr. Hubbard was born in Islip, N. Y., Dec. 29, 1862, the son of George and Mary Brown Hubbard. After he had graduated from school, the family moved to New York city. He was one of the mounted squad on the New York force, whose duty it was to catch the runaways on Fifth avenue and Jerome avenue, where the fast horses used to race. Members of the Vanderbilt family, General Grant and other notables were familiar figures on the driveway to Officer George Hubbard. After automobiles came, the squad was broken up and he was sent to the Bronx and was serving there when he retired. There were three of the Hubbard brothers on the police force, of whom the only one now living is Oscar Hubbard, of Westminster, who is also the only surviving member of the Hubbard family of six boys.

Mr. Hubbard was twice married and had five children by his first wife who died in 1924. He married for his second wife Mrs. Mary J. Sands, of Packer, on Nov. 1, 1925, and she survives him. He also leaves a son, George, of Plainfield; Harold, a fireman in the Bronx, N. Y., Raymond, at home, ten daughters and seven grandchildren.

Funeral services were held at his home last Thursday, Rev. James Higgins officiating. Sons and sons-in-law were the bearers and burial was in Westfield cemetery, Danielson. The floral tributes were many and beautiful.

RAILROAD SEEKS TO DISCONTINUE FIVE STATIONS

The public utilities commission will hold hearings Dec. 17 on the petition of the New Haven railroad to abandon the stations in Waterford, South Lyme, Grove Beach, West Haven and the Connecticut river station in the town of Old Saybrook. No trains, express or local, have stopped at any of the stations named in years, nor have any of the stations been used by the railroad. The station at South Lyme, in fact, has been leased out for use as a general store.

The stations, however, cannot be formally abandoned except with permission of the public utilities commission and it is this assent that the railroad now seeks. The hearings are scheduled as follows: West Haven, 9:15 a. m.; Grove Beach, 11 a. m.; South Lyme, 11:50 a. m.; Waterford, 1 p. m., and at the Connecticut river bridge, 3:30 p. m.

Any residents of any of the towns may appear at the hearing and register objections to the abandonment of any of the stations named, but facts to support their contentions must be submitted.

LIONS PREPARING FOR DINNER FOR BOYS

A report given by Louis Fontaine, chairman, at the meeting of the Norwich Lions club Thursday noon at the Wauregan hotel, was to the effect that arrangements have been completed for the Thanksgiving dinner, Thursday, Nov. 26, for the poor boys of the city. President Charles W. Cassidy presided at the meeting with Rudolph Henschel acting as songleader and Fred Geer at the piano. Earl Taggart received the congratulations of the members upon a recent addition to his family.

R. B. Hamilton, manager of the Palace theatre, who was the speaker for the luncheon meeting, explained the operation of the talking pictures and alluded to the New Year's party to be given at the theatre Saturday morning, Dec. 28, for the benefit of the local children. The party is to be given by the theater in cooperation with the Lions club. Mr. Hamilton said that Warner Bros. would be pleased to furnish a good feature picture and a snappy comedy for the event. He was given a rising vote of thanks for his talk and offer to assist the Lions.

The meeting voted to secure the services of the Boy Scouts of the city, who rendered such valuable assistance at the New Year's party last year. The meeting closed with the Lions roar in honor of the speaker.

REV. ROBERT A. BEARDSLEY APPOINTED TO BETHEL

Rev. Robert Arthur Beardsley, of Naugatuck, who was ordained to the priesthood by Bishop Nilan at St. Joseph's cathedral, Hartford, in May and since then has been assisting in a number of parishes, has been assigned by Bishop Nilan to Bethel, Fairfield county, as assistant to Rev. Father Kennedy. This is considered an especially fine parish and an appointment which affords Father Beardsley opportunity for very important work.

The young priest is a nephew of Roderick F. Sullivan and Miss Elizabeth A. Sullivan, R. N., of McKinley avenue, Norwich. His parents, Mr. and Mrs. Robert Beardsley reside in Naugatuck, his mother being the former Miss Celia Sullivan of Norwich, a successful teacher before her marriage.

FILLING STATION PERMIT FOR GALLOWS HILL PLACE

John Eyberse was granted a permit to build a gas filling station upon his premises abutting on Gallows Hill (Canterbury turnpike), following a hearing of the joint zoning board for the city and town of Norwich in the mayor's office at the court house Thursday morning. The permit was given for a three year period, and was granted without opposition, Mr. Eyberse being the only person to appear at the hearing.

COACHES "TEACHING MEN DISHONESTY" IF THEY INDUCE THEM TO TAKE AID

NEW YORK, Nov. 14.—(AP)—Young men who accept financial aid in return for services as college athletes, are "false to the ethics of sportsmanship," declared Dr. Howard J. Savage, co-author of the Carnegie foundation's recent sensational report on recruiting and subsidizing, in an article for the current issue of "Sportsmanship."

College coaches and directors who induce them to do so are charged with "teaching your men dishonesty."

"For the abuses of recruiting and subsidizing which beset our college and school athletics the code of the sportsmanship brotherhood," Dr. Savage says, "suggests a powerful antidote: keep faith with your comrade.

"This maxim, if honestly followed by athletes, coaches and directors, and the friends of school and college sport, in a comparatively short time would entirely change the complexion of athletics.

"The supposedly amateur athlete who subscribes to the code, knowing that his services on the diamond or the football field are bringing him a livelihood or part of a livelihood—material or monetary benefit to which he has no moral right—is false to the ethics of sportsmanship.

"The college coach or director who solicits school athletes with promises of scholarships or nominal and overpaid jobs or other similar advantages in exchange for athletic performances is teaching young men dishonesty.

"The notion that 'others get away with it, I can,' makes matters much worse.

"No true friend of American sport and sportsmanship can be easy in his mind when he reflects that, the country over, one college athlete in seven is probably subsidized."

LEADING COLLEGES CLASH IN CROSS-COUNTRY THIS WEEK

NEW YORK, Nov. 14.—(AP)—Leading colleges in the east will clash in cross-country as well as football this week end.

Princeton and Yale, whose elevens meet at the Yale bowl Saturday, will send their best long distance runners into action in their annual dual meet tomorrow at New Haven. Princeton is unbeaten, having defeated Rutgers and Lafayette, while both Cornell and Harvard have taken the measure of Yale.

In another meet that will serve as a Friday preliminary to a Saturday football game, the Red runners of Cornell race the Green of Dartmouth at Hanover. Cornell has the better record. Williams and Wesleyan run at Middletown in another Friday feature.

The Syracuse-Colgate and Pittsburgh-Carnegie meets are scheduled for Saturday, shortly before the football teams of the same institutions collide.

With the dual meet season fast drawing to a close, most of the college hill and dale squads are pointing for the title events beginning with the middle Atlantic intercollegiate championship at Van Cortlandt park, New York, Saturday; the New England intercollegiates at Boston, Monday; and the metropolitan title run here Tuesday, and winding up with the Big Ten championships at Columbus, Nov. 23, and the eastern intercollegiates at New York, Nov. 25.

BASKETBALL SEASON OPENS TONIGHT AT PARISH HALL

The local basketball season will open this evening at Parish hall, Taftville, when the Taftville Crescents meet the Y. M. C. A. Outaws, starting at 8 o'clock. Both teams have been practicing for several weeks, so that a mid-season brand of basketball should be on tap.

The Outlaws will line up with Aubrey Brown, of the C. P. C., who played with the Taftville team last year, at left forward; Ray Yerrington, former Academy captain, at right forward; Les Pingree, ex-Academy luminary, and Enos Eccleston, both former Crescent players, at the guards, with the center post as yet undecided.

The Crescents will pick their team from Peltier, Lefty Dugas, Finn, Phaneuf, Labarre, Lamory and a newcomer, whose identity will remain a mystery until game time.

There will be no admission charged, as the Shyma club has donated the use of the hall for the evening.

NEW LONDON OCKFORDS MEET LEAGUE CHAMPS ON SUNDAY

Sunday afternoon at Mercer field, New London, the New Britain Nutmegs, recently crowned champions of the Eastern Professional league, will be the attraction, facing the Ockfords, who held the strong New Haven Williams outfit to a scoreless tie last Sunday. The Hardware City team clinched the title last Sunday by defeating the Hartford Giants, but do not intend to let up a bit and will strive to stop the Ockfords, who claim to be on the upgrade the past few weeks after a slow start. This is the last league engagement for both elevens.

HOLY CROSS CRUSADERS READY FOR HARVARD GAME

WORCESTER, Mass., Nov. 14.—(AP)—Holy Cross completed its preparations for Saturday's objective football game with Harvard today with a long dummy scrimmage session in which the Crusader varsity was on the defense against Crimson plays thrown at them by the freshman eleven. The Crusaders, following their custom this season, will do no work tomorrow aside from gathering for a short drill in the afternoon. It seemed certain tonight that Tony Manfreda and Hank Garrity will open the Harvard game at the Holy Cross halfback posts.

FIREMEN TO MEET TEXACO A. C. IN INDOOR BASEBALL

Saturday afternoon at the Y. M. C. A. gym, the newly-organized indoor baseball team of the Norwich Fire department will play its first game against the Texaco A. C. of this city. Much interest is being shown and a large crowd is expected. The game will start at 3 p. m.

EASTERN GRID OUTFITS WIND UP WORK FOR SATURDAY

NEW YORK, Nov. 14—(AP)—Satisfied or not, eastern football coaches called a halt on intensive work by their gridiron charges after workouts today with actual competition only another day away.

All up and down the line there were long drills on fundamentals, dummy scrimmages, and work on defense and offense as college mentors sought to iron out all defects before Saturday's frays.

Princeton's Tigers went through their last home practice session of the year, spending the afternoon on a drill on the defense and on signals. The Tigers wind up their unsuccessful season against Yale at New Haven on Saturday.

After a short signal drill Cornell's varsity squad, 33 strong, entrained for Hanover where Dartmouth's powerful Indians are to be met. Dartmouth spent the afternoon tossing forward passes indicated that the Indians will attempt to fight fire with fire. Cornell has enjoyed great success with the forward passing game this season.

A dummy scrimmage wound up Penn's preparations for Columbia's Lions who were given a two hour workout. Walter Masters, Penn backfield ace, probably will not get into the game. He has not fully recovered from a separation of the shoulder suffered in the Penn State game. Columbia probably will be at full strength with Hewitt, Scott, Stanczyk and Liflander or Joyce in the backfield.

With Jim Douglas, varsity end, back in harness, it appeared that Arnold Horween would be able to send his regular first team into the fray with Holy Cross. Before a light workout, Horween gave a blackboard lecture on the strength and weaknesses of the Purple's running game. A long dummy scrimmage was the feature of Holy Cross.

Signal practice and other light work was what Syracuse's varsity was called upon to do but Coach Andy Kerr, at Colgate, had his first string team scrimmage against the scrubs, equipped with Syracuse plays, for an hour.

Both Pitt and Carnegie retired to the country tonight for the final polishing-up process before their big battle in Pitt stadium on Saturday. Twenty-eight members of the West Virginia squad entrained for Washington where Georgetown is to be encountered.

YALE FOLLOWERS DOUBT THAT BOOTH WILL START TOMORROW

NEW HAVEN, Nov. 14—(AP)—Little Albie Booth wasn't in the varsity lineup today and Yale undergraduates, after witnessing the short practice, inclined to the belief that Coach Mal Stevens is kidding the public.

At least his announcement of yesterday that the Blue backfield star would appear for the first time this season in the starting lineup against Rover's Tigers seemed to be a bit off when Booth was at the quarterback post on the second team this afternoon.

Bob Hall, another lightweight, was calling signals for the varsity and had Charley Snead with him in the backfield in the place of Ned Austen, Albie's running mate. The rest of the team, however, was unchanged from Steven's announcement.

Hall was injured in the Dartmouth game, and was out of the Maryland game last week. His place in that contest was taken by Bob Wilson, who was on the field today with a noticeable limp.

A forward passing drill, chiefly on the defense, featured today's practice. The remainder of the hour and a quarter session was given over to dummy scrimmage and signal practice.

A short workout will be held tomorrow afternoon, following Princeton's use of the bowl at 2 o'clock.

It was announced today that Fred Linehan, substitute guard, injured in the game with Dartmouth, would be out for the rest of the season.

CHAMPION BRUINS TRIM DETROIT IN OPENER

DETRIT, Nov. 14.—(AP)—The Boston Bruins, world champion National league hockey team, opened their 1929-1930 season here tonight with a smashing 5 to 2 victory over the Detroit Cougars in a rough and tumble battle that brought a total of 29 penalties to the two teams. Eddie Shore, Bruin defense man, and "bad boy" of the National league, received four trips to the box during the fray.

It was a nip and tuck affair during the first period, ending up in a 0-all score. Then the Bruins turned loose a driving attack that left the Cougars far behind, in spite of brilliant passing and skating by Captain Reg Noble, Cougar defense man and Bobby Connors, Detroit wing man.

Coonie Weiland, Bruin wing man, was the pivot of the Bruin offense, scoring two goals and engineering passes that resulted in two more. Norman "Dutch" Gainer and George Owen, Bruin forwards, upset the Cougar offense strategy and, repeatedly turned back the Detroit passing attack.

RANGERS TAKE OPENING CLASH FROM MAROONS

MONTREAL, Nov. 14.—(AP)—The New York Rangers took Montreal's opener of the National Hockey league season from the Maroons tonight by a 2 to 1 score. The teams were ragged and far from mid-season form.

The Ranger rookie front line tallied the opening goal in the second period on a pass from Quenneville to Goldsworthy. Sparky Vail joined them in the rush. Bill Cook made it 2-0 early in the third period on a clever solo rush. Dave Trottier duplicated the feat for the Maroons' only score a few seconds later.

The Rangers played without their big defense star, Ching Johnson, but his veteran mate, Leo Bourgeault, and a rookie, Yip Foster, made a sturdy rear guard. Penalties were frequent with two going to Frank Boucher, perennial candidate for the clean play trophy.

STONINGTON FAVORED OVER WILDCATS

From Stonington comes word that Coach Leo Smith's men are confident of turning back the Academy threat of their third place position in the conference standing in the game there Saturday and the feeling persists in the community to the south that the Wildcats will take a decisive defeat. Stonington, since its defeat by Westerly Monday, is frothing at the mouth and straining at the leash for tomorrow's clash.

Records of Academy-Stonington games in the past ten years give a big edge to the Academy, but this year Stonington will enter the game a favorite and perhaps this is the first time this has been the case since the war. Last year when Stonington won over the conference championship, they were trimmed by the Wildcats in a non-conference game, 24 to 0, which left no doubt as to the superiority of the Red and White.

Coach Whitney has been endeavoring to correct the faults during practice this week that turned last Saturday's game with West Hartford into a rout for the visitors. The locals are capable of much better football than they showed then and their supporters are hopeful they will stage an about-face on the morrow. And with the Bulkeley game only a week away, there is an extra incentive for them to pull together and put on a grand closing rush in the final two games of the Say, ain't this cauliflower industry a tough business to be in.

A guy in this business takes more lickings than if he was in the stock market. They may not hurt his pocketbook as much but they sure do raise the old Harry with his complexion and his bridge work.

I think I'd rather earn my living fighting buzz-saws or wrestling locomotives or some such gentile job. I've no craving to stop one of the gloves with a ton of bricks in it such as were thrown around so promiscuously up at Parish hall last night.

Poor Johnny Mack must have thought that all the gloves that Spalding made in the last ten years was in the ring last night, and all coming his way. I never saw a boy catch so many haymakers and stand up under it.

We go on record as saying that Koziol is one socking little field and if he ever goes to take a sock at us we sure hope there's a motorcycle handy and it's in good running order.

The kid sure got a big hand even from those that went there to see him get beaten. The general opinion is that Al has got a big opinion of himself but it looks more like the confidence of youth just bubbling over. Whether this is true or not he sure delivers the goods.

Al Beauregard sure had a tough time of it with Jackson for the simple reason that Jackson would not fight. Al showed his new form for about two rounds and then went back to the old swinging style as soon as he was stung.

Tommy McCarthy looked as good as we ever see him look. He was fast, but showed a lack of a good left hand and was inclined to waste his strength on the head of his opponent. Of course, Columbo was a tough boy to get to open up.

Young Lavigne looks like a comer if he can get somebody to handle him who can stow him a few things. Peloquin is another comer and looked mighty good against a clever boxer.

Say, I'll bet that Chewing gum stocks take a jump today if the consumption of chewing gum has anything to do with the stock. If there was anyone in the hall who did not chew gum last night please raise your hand.

Everybody I looked at had a gob of gum stuck in his mouth. And from the looks of my shoes everybody parked it on the floor after the bout, that is, with the exception of those that didn't swallow it during the Koziol-Mack bout.

It was funny to watch some boy chewing away at his gum as he watched the fight. You didn't have to look at the ring to know what was going on. When things were slow he chewed slow and when there was something doing he increased his speed.

And speaking of gum one of the fighters had his knocked loose from his mouth and it landed in the lap of a spectator. The gum, I mean.

Well it was a good card and the Shyma boys deserve a lot of credit.

BABE RUTH TO BE OFFERED A YEAR'S CONTRACT

NEW YORK, Nov. 14.—(AP)— Col. Jacob Ruppert and Edward Grant Barrow, holders of the Yankees' purse strings, departed this afternoon for a session at French Lick to prepare themselves for the ordeal of signing Babe Ruth to a new contract. The Babe has just served out a three-year document calling for $70,000 a season.

The colonel, as usual, delegated Comptroller Barrow to do most of the talking, or nodding but it was gathered that the astute business manager of the Yankees would offer the home run slugger terms for no more than one season, even if they came a bit higher than the figures Ruth would demand in a two-year document.

Ruth has informed friends that he will ask $85,000 for one year or $75,000 a season for two years. Negotiations with Ruth, Barrow said, would not be completed until sometime in December, the business manager himself will return from French Lick in time for the Notre Dame-Army game at the Yankee stadium on November 30, but Col. Ruppert will remain at the resort until time to depart for Chattanooga, where the minor leagues will meet early in December.

KAPLAN MEETS CABANA AT NEW HAVEN TUESDAY

(Special to The Bulletin)

NEW HAVEN, Nov. 14.—Al Weill has a fine bout—the return match between Kid Kaplan and Emery Cabana—all set for his show to be staged at the Arena here on the night of November 19, but he isn't depending entirely upon the qualities of the two main bout performers, for he has arranged an all-star preliminary cast.

For his semi-final go, he has contracted Jimmy Watts, Atlanta featherweight and Hughie Devlin, clever little New London boy. Devlin has been making quite an impression down in Gotham, so much that he immediately attracted the attention of the promoters of the state.

In another eight rounder, Jack "Red" Knight will be pitted against Joe Carpino of New York. Knight, who has yet to meet defeat since turning pro, is meeting a clever little scrapper in Carpino, who in his last showing in the Elm City won over Johnny Andrews.

Another undefeated battler, to appear in a six round setto with Tony Ferrante of New York, is Marty E. Sampson. Sampson has been meeting all comers lately.

In the opening bout of the evening, Johnny Andrews, New Haven lad, will take on Oscar LaRose, Cuban glove swinger. LaRose is a stablemate of Kid Chocolate.

BLACKHAWKS AND LEAFS IN FIRST TIE GAME

TORONTO, Ont., Nov. 14.—(AP)—The Chicago Blackhawks and Toronto Maple Leafs divided points and honors tonight in the opening game of the National Hockey league here when they finished in a 2-2 deadlock after overtime.

All of the scoring came in the second period. Apparently both teams gave all they had to give in that frame for they were weary and worn in the third and extra periods. There was much confusion over the new hockey rules in the first period when eight penalties were meted out.

BEAUREGARD WINS ON DECISION AND KOZIOL KAYOES MACK IN THE THIRD

The "patrons of sock" were treated to a rare dish of action last night at the Shyma club boxing bouts at Parish hall when they witnessed five of the most torrid bouts ever seen on one card in the eastern part of the state. When the resin dust had settled three local boys stood out as winners, Al Beauregard, who took a close decision from Dodo Jackson, of Newark, N. J.; Al Koziol, who knocked out Johnny Mack, of New Haven, in the third round, and Tommy McCarthy, who took another decision from Young Columbo, of New London.

Rene Peloquin, of Danielson, and Young Lavigne, of the Sub Base, were the other two winners, Peloquin beating Long Sing Que, of New York, by a wide margin, and Lavigne taking Young Lizzio, of Westerly, in another easy bout.

The main bout of the evening was perhaps the most uninteresting of the card due largely to the exceptionally fast bouts that preceded it. Little Al Beauregard, of Taftville, did his best to make a fight of it but Dodo Jackson, colored bantamweight sensation of Newark, N. J. was loath to mix it until the last round. Beauregard did all the leading and was the aggressor throughout the bout, Jackson being content to hide back of an impregnable defense. Occasionally Jackson would flash out with his right and a left which did not appear to bother the Taftville lad to any extent. Neither could Beauregard penetrate the defense of Jackson to land any real telling blows. Beauregard had a slight edge in the eight and ninth rounds giving him enough points to carry him through to the decision despite the last minute rally of Jackson in the tenth.

This tenth round was a whirlwind of action, Jackson coming out of his shell to stand toe to toe to slug with the Frenchman. And Beauregard was willing to swap punches in this round. Jackson seemed a trifle fat around the waist-line and the ten rounds left him in a more exhausted condition than the Taftville boy who had done all the fighting.

Koziol Flattens Mack

Al Kobiol, the Norwich Cyclone, proved that no matter how tough they come he's just a little bit tougher, when he sent Johnny Mack of New Haven, to the canvass for the full count in the first minute of the third round of the eight round semi-final. This bout was one of the most torrid affairs ever seen in Norwich and was a bout that had the crowd standing in their seats.

Koziol, noted for his continuous hammering of an opponent, flew at Mack like a tiger at the tap of the first gong. And he kept tearing until Mack was beaten to the floor at the start of the third round. The New Haven lad, as game as they come, took a pummeling that was enough to put six men in the hospital. He kept fighting until he did not have a leg under him. Koziol started early in the first round to lace in punches to Mack's head and body and it was easy to see that it was just a matter of time before Mack would drop. The second round found Mack still tearing back at the relentless driving of Koziol. Twice he went to the canvas under the barrage of blows, once for a count of nine and once for five. He was pretty groggy but he managed to last the round.

In the third, Koziol met Mack as he rose from his stool, started his rain of dynamite until Mack dropped helpless to the floor to be counted out. It was a clean-cut victory for Koziol and sets him up among the leading lightweights of the state.

Koziol said after the bout that he attributed his victory to the inspiration he got from boxing three rounds early in the day with gloves that had been worn by Stanley Ketchell, one of the world's greatest middleweights. The gloves were given to Charley Conrady by the Michigan Assassin many years ago.

Peloquin Beats Chinaman

Rene Peloquin, of Danielson, took a decision from Long Sing Que, the fighting Chinaman from New York's Chinatown, in six rounds of good milling. The Chinaman proved a good boxer but without a punch, while Peloquin hit much harder. The New Yorker tired in the fourth and it was easy sailing for Peloquin in the next two rounds.

McCarthy Wins

Tommy McCarthy, of Norwich, took a clean-cut decision from Young Columbo, of New London, in four rounds of gruelling fighting. McCarthy the cleaner puncher of the two, had a little difficulty with the Filipino's rushing and charging. The Norwich boy in the third and fourth rounds slammed through the New London lad's defense by sheer force to take the verdict.

Lavigne Outclasses Lizzie

Vic Darr Challenges

Announcer Arthur Roy introduced Vic Darr, local boy, and Darr challenged the winner of the Koziol-Mack bout. Barney Keenan, trainer of Koziol, after the show laughed at Darr's challenge, saying that Darr should go and get a reputation before issuing such a challenge. And another thing Mr. Keenan said, was that he doubted very much if Darr could make 137 pounds for Koziol if they did fight, Darr now weighing close to 144 pounds.

Jack Conway did a mighty fine job of refereeing and his decisions met with the approval of the crowd. The house was jammed to the doors and there was only high praise for the card and the club that put it on.

DARTMOUTH DRILLS ON PASSING FOR CORNELL TILT

HANOVER, N. H., Nov. 14.—(AP)—The Dartmouth football team ended its rugged preparation for the undefeated Cornell eleven here today by engaging in a long forward passing drill. The workout indicated that Coach Jackson Cannell planned to have his Green machine match passes with the Dobie-coached team, which has used the air game with great success this season.

Bill Morton, who now appears to be the Green's regular quarterback, and Shep Wolff were on the heaving end of the passes during most of today's dummy scrimmage. They tossed to every possible receiver on the squad and had remarkable success on passes to Bill McCall, sophomore halfback, who made several long gains through the second team.

Skirn Wesleyan Captain

MIDDLETOWN, Nov. 14.— (AP) — Thomas Skirn, of Philadelphia, was elected captain of Wesleyan college soccer football team at a meeting of the letter men tonight. Skirn has played center halfback for the last two seasons.

PHENO TOMBARI PLAYS LAST GAME FOR AGGIES

STORRS, Nov. 14.—(AP)—Seven seniors will play their last game of football for Connecticut Aggies Saturday, when the Nutmeggers appear against Rhode Island State at Kingston. The squad will leave here Saturday morning. The men who will appear in the lineup for the last time are Captain Hawkins, Tombari of Norwich, Stangle and Ruffkess, linemen, and Ryan, Lamoureaux and Flydal, backs. There was no practice today, the whole squad going on the annual football hike.

IRON MAN JOE McGINNITY HAS PASSED ON

NEW YORK, Nov. 14.—(AP)—Joseph J. McGinnity, "Iron Man" of the Giant pitching staff 25 years ago, who, with the late Christy Mathewson, started John Joseph McGraw along the road to his first successes in New York, died today at the home of his daughter in Brooklyn. He had been critically ill since last August when he underwent an operation for the removal of a tumor.

The funeral will be held at 10 o'clock Saturday morning in the Church of Our Lady of Rest, and burial will be in a Brooklyn cemetery.

The seventh of McGraw's 1903 immortals to take his final strikeout, McGinnity was a particular crony of the Giant manager. "It is always hard to witness the passing of one of the old guards," said McGraw, "Joe was a real credit to the game."

McGraw first knew McGinnity in Baltimore where Joe began in 1899 a major league career which was to last ten seasons, more than six of which were spent with the Giants. Moving to Brooklyn in 1900, in the merger with the Baltimore team, McGinnity earned the title of "Iron Man" by pitching in six winning games against Pittsburgh in seven days, enabling Brooklyn to win the pennant.

McGinnity jumped to the newly-organized Baltimore Americans in 1901 under the management of McGraw, and with McGraw jumped back to the National league in mid-season of 1902, when the little Napoleon took over the Giant management. The Iron Man and Matty pitched the trailers of 1902 into second place in 1903, and with some additional help won McGraw's first pennant in 1904. McGinnity pitched and won three double-headers late in the 1904 campaign.

The Iron Man's major league days ended after the season of 1908. He next pitched and managed in Newark, and remained active in one minor league or another until just four years ago. As player-manager of Dubuque, Iowa, in the Missouri Valley league, McGinnity pitched in 20 games in 1925 at the age of 54.

McGinnity was born at Rock Island, Ill., on March 19, 1872.

GOLF BODY CONSIDERS EXPENSES FOR AMATEURS

NEW YORK, Nov. 14.—(AP)—The U. S. G. A. at its quarterly meeting today, considered the question of associations paying the expenses of amateur golfers participating in the annual Lesley cup matches, a competition involving Massachusetts, Pennsylvania, New York and Canada.

No decision was announced but indications were that the question will be decided by a pronouncement from the U. S. G. A. within the next two weeks.

The meeting brought the members of the executive committee, with one exception, to New York. Harrison R. Johnson, the amateur champion, was absent. Robert T. Jones, Jr., the open champion, and other star playing members of the executive committee attended.

CANADIENS AND OTTAWA BATTLE TO DRAW BEFORE 8,000

OTTAWA, Nov. 14.—(AP)—The Montreal Canadiens and the youthful Ottawa Senators fought through 70 minutes of hectic hockey to a 3-3 tie in the opening tilt of the National Hockey league schedule here tonight. A crowd of 8,000 filled the auditorium.

The close knit combinations of both teams took the new forward pass rule with ease, but the players had many difficulties with the other new rulings. Most of the penalties came from violations of the new anti-defense rule.

The Senators' cleverness and straight shooting offset the speed of the flying Frenchmen. They came from behind twice to tie the score and take a lead at the end of the second period. Joliat's goal in the middle of the third frame brought the final deadlock.

BATTALINO OFFERED $25,000 BY PHILLY PROMOTER

PHILADELPHIA, Nov. 14—(AP)—Announcement was made tonight by Peter Tyrell, matchmaker for the Arena, that he had wired an offer of $25,000 to Battling Battalino to defend his featherweight championship against one of three men in this city. The list of opponents comprises Benny Bass, former 126-pound king; Harry Blitman and Lew Massey.

Battalino, who has seen no action in the ring since he wrested the title from Andre Routis, because of an operation on his hand, was given the privilege of fixing the date for the bout, although Tyrell expressed a preference for Christmas afternoon.

SAMMY BAKER KAYOES PUGILISI IN SEVENTH

Hockey Pirates Buy Cliff Barton

PITTSBURGH, Nov. 14— (AP) — Benny Leonard, owner of the Pittsburgh Pirates of the National Hockey league, tonight announced the signing of Cliff Barton, right wing of the Port Arthur club, Canadian amateur champions last year. A member of the Pirate squad is to be dropped to make room for Barton but it was not disclosed who would be released.

Albany Wins in Roller Hockey.

ALBANY, N. Y., Nov. 14.—(AP)—Albany rallied for three goals in the fourth period tonight and beat Bridgeport 5 to 3 in a fast American Roller Hockey league game. Albany played strong defensive. Barnikow starred in goal circle for Bridgeport.

Phillips-Andover Captain

ANDOVER, Mass., Nov. 14.—(AP)—Francis B. Wilson, of San Jose, Costa Rica, was elected captain of the 1930 Phillips-Andover academy football team here today. He is preparing for Stanford university.

HIGH SCHOOL SPORTS

Following their hectic but poorly played game last Saturday, Naugatuck and Torrington are about to break off relations, it is rumored. There were plenty of fist fights during this engagement, these coming between the rabid supporters of the two schools.

The Academy and Bulkeley are both likely to lose their week end games as each will preserve its real strength for the annual classic the Saturday after.

Many fans in the state are trying to cook up a Stamford-Torrington game for the state title. It is even suggested that the Yale bowl might be secured for such a tilt, which no doubt would draw a mammoth audience. Each team closes its season this week.

Connecticut high school football may have another of its ex-stars in a prominent place at Yale, if Fay Vincent, Ell lineman, is elected captain next year as some think will be the case. Vincent formerly played with Torrington high.

Our guesses last week were the Academy to win, 12 to 0, from West Hartford; Bulkeley to win, 13 to 7, from Manchester; Chapman Tech to win, 7 to 2, from Putnam; Windham to win, 6 to 0, from Bristol, and Westerly-Stonington a tie either way. The latter was exactly right for Westerly won 7 to 0, but the rest were considerably off. N. F. A. lost 35 to 0, Windham lost 14 to 0, Bulkeley lost 12 to 6, and Chapman Tech won, not by 7 to 2, but 46 to 0. Two right on the teams here.

This week we'll guess Chapman Tech to beat Bulkeley, 14 to 0; N. F. A. to lose to Stonington, 13 to 0; Windham to beat Manchester, 7 to 6; Westerly to take Warwick, 13 to 6.

The football game for the fans today is at Westerly where the Rogers outfit, with only one defeat in seven starts, meets a Rhode Island rival, Warwick.

And—They say that there is a player on the Stamford high unbeaten eleven that has seen 36 summers—also that the average age of the team is 21 or over—the East Hartford team is to get a banquet from the chamber of commerce for winning the Central Connecticut league title — Academy baseball teams have won their league title for five-straight years now and no banquet yet—last practice of the season today for Windham — little Plainfield has two of its best performers out for the year with injuries — last year the Academy started another winning streak at Stonington's expense, winning 24 to 0—the year before Stonington won, 6 to 0, for the first time in six years—if the Academy loses Saturday they will have lost as many games this year, six, as they did in the two seasons, 1927 and 1928.

Nature's Needlework

Put by your skeins of scarlet wool;
Those brilliant floosies reel away;
For, see, the autumn wood is full
Of color, thrice as rich as they.
Behold, the dogwood tree that May,
Begirt with cincture white as milk,
Now rays her jeweled branches wide
And shames your knots of gorgeous silk.

No linen's glossy breadth could catch
The gleams that skim the autumn lands;
Nor finest of your threading match
The golden dodder's curling strands.
Not even a woman's fairy hands
Could picture yonder tuft of grass,
Nor stitch in half its radiance
One single leaf of sassafras.

Then drop the needle and the hook;
Your silks and flosses neatly wind;
Come, gather cat-tails by the brook;
Your heart to autumn's charms unbind
Dispose your senses and your mind
To placid, soul-restoring rest;
Forsake your mimic buds, and own
That Nature's needlework is best.

STOCK PRICES MADE IMPRESSIVE RALLY IN YESTERDAY'S MARKET

NEW YORK, Nov. 14.—(AP)—Convincing evidence that both Washington and Wall street have determined upon a campaign of action to lift destructive pressure from the stock market and to fortify industry against injury, sent stock prices into a spirited and impressive rally today which cancelled approximately two-thirds of the drastic losses of the previous two days. Leading issues surged up 2 to 20 points.

The day brought forth a flood of developments which will hasten the flow of funds released from speculation into industry. Most conspicuous among these was a further reduction in the New York Federal Reserve rediscount rate, placing it at 4 1-2 per cent for the first time since July, 1928.

It was definitely indicated in Federal Reserve circles that credit will be made as cheap as can be regarded as consistent with reasonable safeguards against inflation. The Federal Reserve is understood to have assurances of the co-operation of European central banks, which are expected to reduce their rates to bring them in line with the New York rate and prevent an outflow of gold from this center.

The Federal Reserve weekly announcements, which are made after the close of the market, disclosed a reduction of $710,000,000 in brokers' loans, carrying the total down to $4,172,000,000, the lowest level since June of 1928, and comparing with the record total of Oct. 2 of $6,804,000,000. In the past three weeks, the loan total has been cut down by the amazing figure of $2,462,000,000, a reduction unparalleled since the deflation period of 1920-21, and then it took months to accomplish what has now been done in three weeks.

The Reserve compilations disclosed a marked strengthening of banking position. The New York banks reduced their brokers' loans by $320,000,000, practically ridding themselves of the burden assumed three weeks ago when out-of-town banks and nonbank lenders rushed to withdraw their stock exchange loans. The New York banks' borrowings at the Federal Reserve were cut down to only $40,000,000.

MERCIER ASSEMBLY OBSERVES TENTH ANNIVERSARY WITH BANQUET-DANCE

A ringing and eloquent eulogy of Cardinal Mercier, the great Belgian cardinal after whom the Norwich assembly of the Catholic Ladies of Columbus is named, delivered by Rev. John J. Reilly, curate at St. Patrick's church, was the address of the evening when Mercier assembly No. 12, held its tenth anniversary banquet Thursday at the Wauregan hotel.

Covers were laid for 150 at the tables which were set in the form of the letters C. L. C. and were in the colors of the organization, yellow and white, with yellow chrysanthemums and yellow crepe paper used for the decorations. The room was in candlelight as the members and their guests marched in, with Miss Mary Weller, the assembly organist, at the piano.

The guests, who were seated at the head table with the president, Miss Loretta Gadle, were Rev. Francis May, Mt. Carmel; Revs. W. A. Keefe, John J. Reilly, Myles P. Galvin, P. M. Coholan, of this city; Rev. A. A. Jalbert, of Baltic; Rev. W. H. Kennedy, of Southington; Miss Margaret Crane, Hartford, state president; Miss Charlotte M. Holloway, New London, state councillor; Mrs. Margaret Dutton, of this city, past state president; Mrs. Mary Herlihy, president of Joint assembly, New London; John P. Corcoran, Mrs. Lillian Mahoney, South Manchester, state vice president, and Miss Lucy Murphy, of this city, state treasurer.

After the opening ode, Come Holy Ghost, the assembly chaplain, Rev. W. A. Keefe, said grace and the menu was served as follows:

Fruit Cup ..... a la Gadle
Chicken Soup ..... Minstrel Special
Roast Chicken with Dressing
a la Desmond
Cranberry Sauce ..... a la Dutton
Celery — Olives ..... Finnegan
Waldorf Salad ..... a la Maloney
Mashed Potatoes ..... a la Murphy
Mashed Turnips ..... a la Burke
Ice Cream ..... Mercier Delight
Fancy Cakes ..... a la Carney
Rolls—French Bread—Tea—Coffee

Toasts and Songs

During the banquet hour there were interesting responses to a number of toasts, Miss Margaret R. Sullivan being toastmistress and the responses given as follows: Our Clergy, Miss Mary Hamill; Our State Officers, Miss Elizabeth Mahoney; Our President, Miss Madeline Fitzgerald; Our Past Presidents, Miss Margaret Daly; Our Officers, Miss Mary Maloney; Our Charter Members, Miss Marguerite Delaney; Our Assembly, Miss Lucy Murphy; Our Departed Members, Mrs. Nellie S. McHale.

The prophecy was given by Miss Katherine Hallahan, the history by Miss Agnes White and the song numbers included the state song to the tune of the Long Long Trail, by Miss Mary O'Neil and the assembly song of which Miss O'Neil is the author.

Address Of Welcome

After a graciously expressed address of welcome by the president, Miss Gadle, the Mercier assembly chaplain, Rev. W. A. Keefe, spoke briefly in an interesting way, and was followed by the state chaplain, Rev. Francis May, and the first chaplain of the assembly, Rev. W. H. Kennedy, preceding the address by the speaker of the evening, Rev. Father Reilly, whose subject was Cardinal Mercier.

Address Upon Cardinal Mercier

In the course of his address which was followed with the closest attention and frequently applauded, the speaker said:

There are times in the lives of all of us which naturally call for a pause, there are moments in the lives of nations which stand out by themselves and demand attention, there have been moments in the history of the church on which the entire world riveted its gaze and there are moments in the lives of organizations that are unusual, extraordinary and productive of thought and meditation. Such a moment is the present one when your assembly gathers together to celebrate its tenth anniversary. It is true you are too young to indulge in reminiscences. The memory of your founding and institution is still green and vivid with you all, you are not old and consecrated by length of years as some societies go but neither are you tottering, feeble or marked with those dissensions grey old age is sure to bring. Your organization is young and strong and vigorous and enthusiastic, it does not take its place alongside other older, more venerable, more historic organizations but rather you are what all others were when they were in their heyday, you are history in the making. To recall your deeds, your activities, your Catholic action in the past ten years is altogether unnecessary. Many of you have taken a leading part in these and to praise you for it seems too much like painting the petals of a rose or beautifying what is already exquisite and beautiful. It can only be said in tribute to you that your organization stands today pre-eminent among all Catholic organizations in this locality and it should bring a blush of shame to anyone who calls herself a Catholic woman and is not listed as a member of your assembly. If any stranger were to ask me where to find the ideal type of Catholic woman in Norwich I would answer and I think all the priests of Norwich would answer, "You will find her in the Ladies of Columbus."

Cardinal Mercier's first impression on the world though not so noisy as his last yet just as far flung and entitling him to as great an amount of fame was his learning and his intellect. Long before the guns of the World war boomed, Mercier had been called upon by the pope himself to be the champion of Catholic doctrine. Solely through the influence of the scholar Mercier there rose at Louvain the Catholic University of Belgium, an institute of philosophy which proved a bulwark against the falsehoods which were threatening the thought of Europe at the time. This is a work not interesting to most of us and yet it was his greatness shown during those years that brought about that unheard of exhibition of appreciation and approval on the part of even non-Catholic universities when they heaped upon him their honor and degrees during his visit to America.

It was as the fighting Cardinal that Mercier set the tongues of the world a-wagging. After the fall of the forts at Liege the German army made quick work of the rest of Belgium. They over-ran the whole of Belgium save a little strip down near France where the king and queen with what was left of the army stayed for the rest of the war. The only force left in the whole of Belgium, in the whole of a land overrun by a brutal enemy was the moral force of Cardinal Mercier quietly praying in his chapel at Malines. It was force defenseless before one of the finest armies that ever marched. It appeared weak and feeble, the Belgium army could not stop the German how could one lone man and yet it was a force the Germans could never break. They resorted to every means, they flattered him, they tried to ruin his reputation down at Rome but Mercier with his vehement pastoral sermons and messages scourged the German occupation and made them feel like fools. Right there in the midst of times that were most tense he held a celebration in the church of Saint Gudule in Brussels and preaching himself with a whole regiment of Germans around the church he prophecied that when the anniversary of Belgium's independence would be celebrated an event taking place this year by the way, Belgium would be restored and Germany would be doing penance. Time and time Von Blasing, the German governor of occupation, would come to his palace at Malines and storm and rant while the Cardinal quietly saying his beads would wait until the storm was over and then with that logical mind of his, with his gentle manner he would cut through the governor's duplicity and he would leave worse than when he came. It was no wonder that Von Bissing died under the strain of trying to defeat the cardinal. It was the cardinal's fervent prayer that he should live to see his beloved Belgium rid of the German army and he lived to see King Albert and his queen enter the city of Brussels at the head of the army and go to a mass of thanksgiving sung by the cardinal. The German army itself was led to respect and revere this great man of God. On the day they began their retreat the governor sent a memorandum to his eminence which was an admission of defeat, "In our eyes," the memorandum read, "you, Cardinal Mercier, are the living impersonation of a people which revere you as its pastor and heeds you as its counselor. It is to you therefore that the governor general on the evacuation of your territory surrenders spontaneously and of our own free will all Belgiums who have been imprisoned or deported. I have not lived four years among you people without learning to esteem you and appreciate your patriotism and your worth." This from a bitter enemy is perhaps Cardinal Mercier's greatest panegyric.

MERCIER ASSEMBLY'S TENTH ANNIVERSARY

After the war Cardinal Mercier became the idol of the world. France put him among her immortals, made him a member of the French academy. His path through America was one of triumph for himself and glory for his church. He was called by journalists the man who brought brute force to its knees, the grandest figure in the world and through it all Cardinal Mercier remained the simple soul he had always been, humbler, if anything, than he was before. We met him shortly after his return from America and he spent a whole afternoon talking to us, joking with us and autographing pictures for us. After a two hour audience he brought us, about twenty in number, into his little chapel where he had so often gone himself during the gloomy moments of the war and there, with us around him, on his knees he asked the first priest to make these Americans what he called priestly priests. In parting he said that if ever we needed a friend while in Belgium we might call on him. Some one with the usual American tendency to clinch a bargain on the spot asked him if he would ordain us and he answered that he would.

One of the works which was demanding the attention of the cardinal before he died was the bringing back to communion with the Catholic church that branch of the non-Catholic church wich is known as Anglicanism. Though nothing official was accomplished Mercier with the permission of the pope held what were called conversations at his palace at Malines. Chief among those who represented the Anglicans was Lord Halifax and here perhaps for the first time in four hundred years Catholic and non-Catholic scholars sat together to discuss frankly and cordially their differences. Out of these discussions came nothing but promise for the future, though out of them too came a lasting friendship between Lord Halifax and Cardinal Mercier. On his death bed the cardinal sent for Halifax and together they assisted at mass in the cardinal's room. The sight of these the prince of the church rapt in the presence of the blessed sacrament and Lord Halifax one of the noblest figures in the Anglican church kneeling [illegible], both bowed before the same heavenly Father, was one of the historic scenes in the cardinal's life. Before Lord Halifax went away the cardinal drew from his finger his archbishop's ring, he gave it to his friend. And the Anglican champion of the pact with Rome took away with him the ring of a Catholic archbishop as a symbol of union with Rome.

Surely your assembly graced with the name of Mercier will never be content to remain commonplace and mediocre. You will have been ill-named if you do not keep before you and put quite fully in your lives the ideals which the name of Mercier suggests. And as the cardinal stood so high towering above the smal things of this world with his physical presence and his personality we look to you the women of Mercier assembly, representative of Catholic womanhood in Norwich, to be above reproach, high, isolate, solitary and free from the contaminations of the modern world. As the cardinal stood for Christ against the world, as he stood for peace and love, charity and kindness against the sordid things that the World war stirred up so should you in your lives as individuals and in your life as a Catholic society be faint reflections of Mercier the Catholic, Mercier the hero, Mercier the idol, that one day you may be greeted by Mercier, the saint, in that final resting place of heroes and saints, that place that goes by the name of heaven.

FRANK G. NICHOLS DIES—KILLED BY UNKNOWN DRIVER

(Special to The Bulletin)

NEW LONDON, Nov. 14—Frank G. Nichols, 56, of 82 Poquonoc road, Groton, died early today at Lawrence-Memorial hospital, from a fractured skull, having been fatally injured by a hit-and-run type of driver. Nichols sustained his injury Monday night. No clue to the identity of the driver has been obtained by the state police, as he extinguished his tail light immediately following the car hitting the pedestrian.

Nichols and two companions left from the yard of the Max Pollack company, Poquonoc road about 6:15 Monday evening and going to the highway proceeded in a northerly direction toward his home. The three men had walked but a short distance when the automobile, a sedan, traveling at a high rate of speed approached, headed toward New London. The speed was not reduced, neither did the driver guide the car away from the pedestrians, with the result that although Nichols was well to the right hand side of the road, he was struck with great force.

POLICEWOMAN DISCOVERS RUNAWAY GIRLS WITH TARS

(Special to The Bulletin)

New London, Nov. 14—A typical sailor rendezvous, 79 Garfield avenue, was probably broken up today with the arrest of Mary Miranda, 18, of Fall River, Mass., and Florence and Grace Brown, aged 17 and 20, respectively, but not related, of Worcester, Mass., also William S. Gallagher, Edward B. Ziengenfus and Fred Irons, all of the submarine base. All are charged with lascivious carriage. The girls were locked up at police headquarters and will be in court tomorrow, while the sailors were delivered into the custody of officials at the submarine base, who assured the local authorities that the bluejackets would be before the court Friday.

Yesterday the police of Worcester requested the New London police to arrest the Brown girls if they appeared in New London, as it was thought the runaways were headed this way. The local police obtained information that one of the girls had been at the submarine base earlier in the day. No trace of the girls was obtained until this forenoon when Policewoman Jane H. Cassidy was informed that the runaways were probably two of the girls consorting with the sailors at the Garfield avenue house. Accompanied by Automobile Patrol Officer Thomas Cavanaugh, the policewoman went to the house, a small one-story brick building and found the Worcester and Fall River girls there with the sailors. The six were taken to police headquarters where the girls admitted their relationship with the sailors. The house is rented by a sailor named Montgomery, but he was not found.

Broadway Theatre.

Hey-hey! C'leegiate! Ray-ray! N. F. A.! The whole town will go collegiate tomorrow when Nancy Carroll and her peppy cast of whoopee stars flash on the Broadway talking screen with "Sweetie," the newest, jazziest, singin'est, dancin'est musical comedy of them all—the latest hit of Paramount's New Show World. Everybody knows Nancy with her dimples and curves, her curls and cute dancing steps—but Nancy has brought along Jack Oakie, that peppy, jazzy youngster with the lightning feet and winning smile, and his everlasting supply of wise-cracks—and who hasn't heard and loved and wanted to cuddle Helen (Sugar) Kane, the sweetest of 'em all, with her big, big eyes, her enticing dimples and her soft little "baby talk" voice. Then there's William Austin, that perfect "silly ass", ideally cast as professor at Pelham college, that famous institution (co-ed, of course), where all the action of this pepomusicomedy takes place. Figure this out—gay songs, "blue" songs, "torch" songs (naturally they're hot!), college hymns (?), snappy crackling dialogue, beautiful chorus scenes (for in the beginning Nancy is a chorine—and how) and football—well, the N. F. A.-Bulkeley game has nothing on this one for thrills. The radio is humming now with the catchy song and dance tunes of "Sweetie," and it's a cinch everybody's going to learn to whistle 'em. Then there's the "Prep Step," that hot new collegiate dance—one lesson from the Broadway screen and you've learned it for keeps—and don't miss it! Another hit of this big frolic is the work of Stuart Erwin, as the big, dumb blonde guard on the team—and is he dumb! By the way, Nancy Carroll has a sweet gift for someone in the list of Broadway fans. Down in Alexander's window is the "biggest chocolate drop in the world" which is being to be given to the person guessing closest to its actual weight. Made in Alexander's own candy kitchen, this huge candy titbit is a masterpiece of the candymaker's art, composed of the choicest materials, and triple coated with the finest chocolate—guessing coupons are obtainable at the Broadway box-office and must be deposited at the candy store. Added featurettes on the program include Charlie Chase's latest talking comedy "Leaping Love," the new issue of Paramount Sound News and Hughie O'Connell as the veteran reporter in "The Interview," a whoopee comedy. Saturday continuous from 1.30, Sunday two shows at 6.30 and 9, and daily three shows at 2.15, 6.45 and 9 p. m.

Radio Set Selected by Canary Bird

Of the many peculiar things one hears, perhaps the oddest is about the canary bird found in Chicago who is an excellent judge of radio tone quality and who made his own selection of a radio set to sing with, as related by Charles Gomprecht of the MacGregor Radio corporation, Connecticut Zenith distributors at New Haven.

"Last week in Chicago," state Mr. Gomprecht, "one of the prominent Zenith dealers received a request from a woman to deliver a Zenith set to her home for demonstration purposes. The set was delivered and the next day the woman called back and stated the set met with the entire satisfaction of her canary bird and that she would keep it.

"Not having ever heard of a bird being a judge of radio, naturally it was believed the woman was joking but she explained that she owned one of the best trained song birds in the country and that the bird was susceptible only to perfect tone quality in music.

"Desiring to purchase a radio, she had several of the leading makes demonstrated in her home but it was found that the bird refused to sing a note while the sets were operating. It was very evident that the canary was not satisfied with the tone of the sets and accordingly, sat dejectedly in his cage.

"Feeling somewhat disappointed in not being able to obtain a set acceptable to the bird's keen sense of tone, she heard a Zenith and requested the demonstration. Upon hearing Zenith tone, the bird immediately burst into song more beautiful than ever before and would not sing unless the set was going."

"This is the first time I have ever heard of a canary choosing a radio," said Mr. Gomprecht, "but funny things do happen and to my mind, this is one of the funniest."

Palace Theatre.

All talking, singing, dancing—all color, that's "Footlights and Fools," the snappy, sparkling modern Vitaphone extravaganza which opens at the Palace Theatre Saturday. It is the last word in speed and dazzle in merriment and beauty, in brilliance and swift action. And the star is none less than chic little Colleen Moore.

Miss Moore sings three songs written by the famous combination of Bryan and Meyer for "Footlights and Fools." They are "You Can't Believe My Naughty Eyes," "If I Can't Have You," and "Pilly Pom Pom Pice." All of these she sings with a charming Parisian accent in keeping with her role as a fascinating French actress.

As the flashy French actress Fifi d'Auray, the hit of the "Sins of 1930" Colleen runs away with her part. The town goes wild over this charming maid, who is actually none other than plain Betty Murphy whom a shrewd producer took out of the chorus for a year and sent to Paris for training. All the young bloods of the metropolis fall madly in love with her. She is the toast of the town. Famous men, rich men, infatuated men pursue her. They watch her every move from the boxes, they shower her with flowers and invitations, but all the time she keeps her heart for Jimmy Willett, a young fellow whose only visible means of support seems to be playing the races. That is she lets Jimmy go so far and then things begin to happen. But—come and see for yourself.

Today for the last time The Palace presents that stirring epic of misery and tragedy "Skin Deep," in which a man is done a great wrong. If you haven't yet seen this great picture, remember that today is the last day.

BITTER POWER FIGHT AHEAD OF WISCONSIN

MADISON, Wis. —(AP)—On the clear issue of electric power plants, Wisconsin's elections will be fought in 1931.

Fighting for public ownership will be the La Follette republican faction, to which belong Wisconsin's two United States senators, Robert M. La Follette and John J. Blaine.

Allied will be the socialist party which controls Milwaukee and joined with the La Follette group in the last session of the legislature.

Against public ownership will be the republican conservatives, although many prominent conservatives are expected to side with the socialists and progressives.

This was true in the lower house of the legislature during the last session when that body, by a large majority, approved a proposed constitutional amendment which would enable the state to recapture its waterpower sites, now leased to private companies.

The amendment further authorizes the state to enter the business of generating and selling electricity, which would be brought about by condemnation of private owned plants.

SAN FRANCISCO OPENS NEW MAINLAND ROUTE

SAN FRANCISCO —(AP)— By constructing approximately seven miles of paving 100 feet wide, San Francisco has broken the "bottle-neck" which restricted traffic by land in and out of the city.

Ports of the highway were laid on filled-in, ocean-shore ground and other sections were cut through tall hills. The "bottle-neck" was occasioned by cemeteries, which covered a considerable area of the narrow peninsula.

Pedestrian under-passes and 12-foot sidewalks on each side characterize the highway as one of the most modern in the west. It makes a new route to the mainland.

NEW ALASKAN CAPITOL IN SUN PARLOR STYLE

JUNEAU —(AP)— The new capitol of Alaska will resemble a huge sunparlor when it is completed two years hence.

To make the most of the short daylight hours in this locality, architects have arranged for a maximum of windows.

Marble corridors and senate and house chambers with appropriate ornaments will greet the eight senators and 16 representatives when they assemble here in March for a 60-day session.

The governor's suite will be in keeping with the dignity of the office. The various federal and territorial offices, which have been scattered around Juneau since the capital was moved here from Sitka, will be assembled under one roof.

The new capitol will cover 15,800 square feet and will be six stories hich.

At the recessional Chopin's Funeral March was played. Rev. Frederick J. Coholan read the committal service. Burial was in St. Mary's cemetery. Among the large attendance were mourners from New London and Massachusetts. The bearers were Mortimer Murphy, John P. Murphy, John A. Niles, John Blacker, James J. Casey and James P. Sheridan. The floral tributes were both numerous and beautiful, speaking a mute testimony of the high esteem in which Miss Murphy was held by her many friends and acquaintances in this vicinity. Undertakers Hourigan Brothers had charge of the funeral arrangements.

UNIDENTIFIED MAN HIT BY TROLLEY; LEG, ARM AND PELVIC BONE BROKEN

An unidentified man, believed to reside in New London, where he is said to be a janitor in one of the churches, was struck by a northbound trolley of the Connecticut company about 5:30 o'clock Thursday evening between the Norwich Golf grounds and Uncas-on-Thames on West Thames street. He is a patient at the W. W. Backus hospital where he was rushed in the hospital ambulance and was found to be suffering from a fracture of both bones in his left leg below the knee, a fracture of the left forearm and a fractured pelvic bone.

At 1:30 o'clock this (Friday) morning the man had not as yet regained consciousness since the accident and as a result the seriousness of his condition could not be ascertained.

The trolley, which struck the man, was proceeding toward Franklin square, where it was due at 5:45 o'clock and was in charge of Motorman Thomas J. Talley and Conductor Paul Dumont. The man is said to have been running southerly in the middle of the tracks with his head hanging down and was not seen by the motorman until he was within 20 feet of the trolley.

It was reported by Connecticut officials that the reason why the man was not noticed until then was due to the fact that the dimmer on the trolley's headlight had been set because of approaching automobiles. When the motorman saw the man he made every effort to stop the car, applying the emergency brakes, but without avail. The force of the collision sent the man spinning to the west side of the track into the gutter, where he was picked up in an unconscious condition and rushed to the hospital.

who was called in by the Stonington police to make an investigation, had their suspicions directed toward him by certain peculiar circumstances.

According to Rustici, he loaned Alexander a horse several weeks ago to do his plowing. The next day the horse was taken sick, and while attempting to lift it Alexander fell and broke his leg. Alexander visited the Miner farm early Sunday morning, and after Rustici had refused to pay his hospital bill it is charged by Rustici that Alexander threatened to "get even."

Monday morning, 12 hours after the blaze, Alexander abandoned his own farm, leaving live stock in the barn, and departed for parts unknown. His mysterious disappearance and the threat led to his being considered a suspect.

The investigating officers went to interview Alexander and found him missing. He lived alone, and his live stock was apparently left in the barn to starve. The condition was reported to Selectman Arthur F. Babcock and he gave permission for their removal to the farm of George I. Babcock, town pound keeper.

It is understood that Alexander was recently seen in Rhode Island, and Prosecuting Attorney Henry P. Hammacher has issued a warrant for his apprehension.

WILLIMANTIC MAN FINED IN U. S. DISTRICT COURT

Charged with violation of the federal prohibition act, Mariano Mazzola, of Willimantic, alleged proprietor of a pool room at 824 Main street in that city, was presented in federal court at New Haven Wednesday and fined $300 and costs and given a 30-day jail sentence, suspended. He was bound over to the federal court by U. S. Commissioner Earl Mathewson when he appeared before him several weeks ago.

Mazzola was arrested by federal agents on Oct. 25 when they raided the pool room in Willimantic and found 264 quarts of home brew beer, 24 gallons of beer mash and four quarts of alcohol.

TWO BOUND OVER TO SUPERIOR COURT

Fred Ladd, 27, of Yantic and Mrs. Nellie Wheeler, 26, also of that village, who were arrested Wednesday night by Constable Lucius Fenton, were before the city court Thursday morning on the charge of adultery and the evidence presented was enough to have Judge A. P. Libby bind them over to the criminal superior court. Members of Ladd's family furnished $1,000 bonds for him but Mrs. Wheeler was not able to furnish bonds in that amount so that she had to go to jail.

STATE'S DEATH RATE INCREASED IN YEAR

WASHINGTON, D. C., Nov. 14—The department of commerce announces that the 1928 death rate for Connecticut was 1,076.1 per 100,000 population as compared with 1,024.3 in 1927.

Increases in rates (per 100,000 population) from those of the preceding year were from the following principal causes: Diseases of the heart (219.1 to 228.4), cancer 105.1 to 107.5), diabetes mellitus (20.1 to 22.9), and tuberculosis, all forms (65.8 to 66.9). Increases were shown also for pneumonia, all forms (76.3 to 87.9), influenza (14.2 to 18.2), whooping cough (2.4 to 6.4), measles (1.5 to 4.2), meningococcus meningitis (0.8 to 1.4), diseases of the arteries, etc. (19.6 to 22.2), hernia, intestinal obstruction (8.5 to 10.3), and syphilis (9.0 to 9.9). The death rate from suicide increased from 11.4 to 14.2.

The death rate from all accidental causes increased from 66.7 to 74.1, the individual types of accidents showing the greatest increases being automobile accidents (excluding collisions with railroad trains and street cars) (20.0 to 24.4), railroad accidents 2.5 to 3.5), and accidental drowning (5.2 to 7.3).

Significant among the decreases in rates from 1927 to 1928 were those from diarrhea and enteritis, under 2 years (12.4 to 8.0), congenital malformations and diseases of early infancy (63.7 to 60.3, meningitis (nonepidemic) (3.4 to 1.7), diphtheria (5.9 to 5.1), and typhoid and paratyphoid fever (1.1 to 0.6). It is the first time in the history of the state that the rate from typhoid fever was less than 1 per 100,000 population.

Accidental burns (conflagration excepted) showed a decrease from 4.4 to 3.8.

The estimated population in 1928 was 1,667,000 and in 1927 was 1,636,000.

CONTRACTOR WARNED TO RESUME RIVER DREDGING

According to word received by Secretary Walter H. Pilcher of the chamber of commerce from Senator Hiram Bingham and Congressman Richard P. Freeman and through a telephone conversation with the district engineer at Providence, directions have been issued to the contractor to go ahead with the completion of the Thames river dredging job, for which it is claimed there is a balance of funds on hand to complete the work.

The dredging to deepen the channel to 18 feet as far as this city stopped a short time ago when it had reached a point in the lower harbor about opposite the Thermos factory, and it was understood that the contractor had deserted the job because he said the funds had been exhausted.

The district engineer at Providence has been directed to report on the Thames river dredging situation, according to what he told Secretary Pilcher.

ARCANUM MEN GOING TO WESTERLY FOR WHIST PLAY

The team of 12 bridge whist players from the Arcanum club will go to Westerly this (Friday) evening for the third night of play with the Square and Compass club there.

The series now stands one-all, since the Norwich team took the match on the opening night, which was in Westerly, but the Westerly men retaliated by winning when the teams played here last week.

ADVOCATES MENTAL HYGIENE WITH PUBLIC HEALTH NURSING

Dr. Hayen Emerson of the College of Physicians and Surgeons, Columbia university, New York, was the speaker Thursday afternoon in the Sunday school room at the United Congregational church before a meeting of the United Workers in which the work of the mental hygiene department was the special subject.

Mrs. A. H. Chase, president of the United Workers, opened the meeting and Mrs. Louis H. Walden, chairman of the department, introduced the speaker.

Dr. Emerson discussed the place of mental hygiene in public health nursing and gave it as his opinion that it was tremendously important to include mental hygiene in the work of the public health nurse. How was this to be done here? He answered this question by suggesting that the state department of health might be asked to make a study of this and associated communities and there might be an addition to the nursing force of one who would be qualified to impart mental hygiene instruction to the staff of nurses and this could be supplemented by periodic visits for purposes of consultation by a person with greater psychiatric training and experience.

Ernest Senf, 49, of Avery street extension, an employe at the Richmond Radiator company, had his left leg broken above the knee and suffered a wound in his left arm, when he was caught between two castings while at work just before noon Thursday.

He was taken to the Backus hospital after he had been attended by Drs. C. C. and G. H. Gildersleeve.

BOY SCOUTS ASKED TO COLLECT COMICS

A request has come to the local scout headquarters through Dr. K. K. Markoff, of the publicity committee, for the scouts of Norwich to collect funny papers next Sunday and the Sunday following for distribution to the hospitals. According to Dr. Markoff, the magazines recently collected by the scouts were greatly appreciated and many patients have suggested that the comic strips would be interesting pastime reading.

Each scout will be expected to bring a dozen or more "funnies" to his troop meeting next week, from whence the troop messenger can deliver them to the Boy Scout headquarters.

TAFTVILLE

The Basketry club which for several years has been holding meetings in the Red Cross rooms in the Ponemah building has organized for the season and is to hold its first meeting some time next week. Mrs. Albert J. Aberg is the leader.

The Taftville members of the Alumni of the Academy of the Holy Family of Baltic are planning to hold a subscription bridge, the proceeds to be devoted to a fund being raised by the alumni.

Residents of the Maennerchor section report that violets are being picked daily in that locality.

Mr. and Mrs. Arthur E. Atkins of South Second avenue have been recent guests of their son Quintin Atkins of Eastern Point. This week Mr. and Mrs. Atkins have with them their little granddaughter, Miss Ann Porter Staebner of Mansfield.

Letter Mystifies Resident

When Henry Bourdon of South A street received a letter written in a foreign language, this week, he was completely mystified. The envelope bore the correct address, even to Mr. Bourdon's postoffice box number, but he was unable to decipher the message. It was shown to people of various nationalities, including Italians, Germans, Armenians, Syrians, Greeks, Poles and Russians, but all admitted that they had never seen such a queer language before. The envelope bore a Philippine Islands stamp, the sender being one Pedro Aldan of Cavite, P. I. But the writing was not Spanish! Finally one of the Filipino officers at the submarine base at New London was called by telephone, and the letter was "spelled" to him over the wire. He pronounced it to be a mixture of two native Philippine dialects, and had no trouble in translating it. It was an acknowledgment of the receipt of two boxes from Mr. Bourdon, and advising him that the writer was well. Now Mr. Bourdon is wondering who sent the two boxes to Mr. Aldan in his name, or just where the mixup is. Sometime ago the Bourdon family donated some clothing to be sent to foreign missions, and it may be that Mr. Bourdon's name appeared on the box in which the clothing, which eventually arrived at Cavite, P. I., was sent.

Water Continues Scarce

Water continues to be scarce in the surrounding districts. Almost all the residences in Blissville are still without water, and have to obtain it from the spring near the Lisbon bridge, which is quite a distance for some of them. Wells never known to be dry before, have failed this season. The picturesque "mud-hole" is living up to its name at present, and the Lisbon pond is at the lowest level in years.

Joseph Cote has resigned his position with the weaving department of the local mills.

TROLLEYMAN FOUND UNCONSCIOUS IN HIS AUTO ON PRESTON CITY ROAD

The 19th annual Storrs laying contest opened up promptly on Nov. 1 with 1,300 pullets from all over the land answering to the roll call. The complete list consists of 100 pens, but instead of the usual 10 there are now 14 birds in each pen. This innovation is an attempt on the part of the Storrs management to conform with the practice of numerous other contests that have made a similar change. Although 13 birds are entered, only 10 will be reported under this new plan and they will be the 10 highest birds for any given period.

The birds arrived in almost the pink of condition. Perhaps half of them were delivered by automobile by their owners. Such pens, of course, had unusually good care in transit. On the other hand some birds came for more than 3,000 miles by train and by steamer. Three such pens representing all three of the Pacific coast states averaged to lay nearly 80 per cent in the first week after they reached Storrs. All this is pretty fair evidence of good stamina to start with.

Distribution by breeds in the new contest is as follows: One pen each of Australorps and Jersey Giants, six pens of White Wyandottes, 12 pens of White Rocks, 14 pens of Barred Rocks, 28 pens of Rhode Island Reds, and 38 pens of White Leghorns, making a total of 100 pens. Geographically, one finds one pen each from Iowa, Virginia, Wisconsin, Washington, Ohio, Oregon, California, and Vermont; two pens each from Michigan, Missouri, and England; three pens each from Rhode Island, Maine, New Hampshire, and Canada; six pens from Pennsylvania; nine from New Jersey; 13 from New York state; 22 from Massachusetts; and there are 24 on the home team.

The total production for the first week of the contest was 3,229 eggs or a yield of over 46 per cent. This is getting away to an even better start than last year when an almost phenomenal record was made.

White Wyandottes — Ebenwood farm, West Bridgewater, Mass., 39; The Locusts, West Cornwall, 39.

Rhode Island Reds—Harold G. Colt, West Hartford, 60; Donald I. Goodenough, Torrington, 58; Homer R. Rowell, Groveland, Mass., 57; Pine Hill P. Farm, Inc., Weston, Mass., 56; Geo. B. Treadwell, Spencer, Mass., 56.

If Baby has COLIC

A cry in the night may be the first warning that Baby has colic. No cause for alarm if Castoria is handy! This pure vegetable preparation brings quick comfort, and can never do the slightest harm. Always keep a bottle in the house. It is the safe and sensible thing when children are ailing. Whether it's the stomach, or the little bowels; colic or constipation; or diarrhea. When tiny tongues are coated, or the breath is bad. Whenever there's need of gentle regulation. Children love the taste of Castoria, and its mildness makes it suitable for the tiniest infant, and for frequent use.

And a more liberal dose of Castoria is always better for growing children than some needlessly strong medicine meant only for adult use. Genuine Castoria always has Chas. H. Fletcher's signature on the wrapper. Prescribed by doctors!

MAKING CHECK-UP ON SIGNS ALONG HIGHWAYS

Outdoor advertisers who place their signs along the highways and fail to pay the license fee of $100 a year will be forced to pay the fee or remove their signs as the result of a check-up started recently by state police. The state annually collects approximately $39,000 in license fees from individuals, firms and corporations engaged in this class of advertising, but many signs have been placed near the highways for which the tax has not been paid.

State Policemen Frank Starke, of the Stafford Springs barracks has been making a check of the Boston Post road between New Haven and the New York state line, and has notified concerns owning large signs for which the license has not been paid. Smaller signs have been torn down and thrown into discard. The state road between New Haven and Hartford is now being examined.

STORRS, Nov. 14—Frances Lamb of North Franklin has been chosen from among Connecticut 4-H club members to attend the eighth national 4-H club congress which will be held in Chicago, November 29 to December 6. It was announced here today by Miss Elsie Trabue, assistant state club leader. This trip is donated by a Chicago company to the 4-H club girl doing the most outstanding club work in Connecticut, for whom all expenses will be paid.

Gertrude Warnecke of Berlington has been selected alternate. Miss Trabue stated that these two girls were more nearly equal, and the contest more difficult to decide than any other in recent years. The decision was made chiefly on improvement in the quality of work and the ability to further club work by instruction of younger members.

Miss Lamb is 17 years of age and has been in club work for the past four years. She has been a consistent winner with articles exhibited at various fairs, including the Norwich fair, the North Stonington Grange fair, the Pachaug fair, and the No. Franklin Community fair. She also made the highest individual score in judging canned products at the state fair and was there on the champion canning demonstration team. Miss Lamb has been vice-president of both clubs of which she has been a member. The Lamb family have been interested in club work since its inception and an older sister was one of the first club members in the state.

Miss Warnecke, the alternate, is 18 years of age and has been in club work for five years, particularly on clothing, canning, food and room improvement projects.

SHOWS GREAT GROWTH IN TELEPHONE TOLL SERVICE

In order to keep pace with the public demand for toll telephone facilities the Southern New England Telephone company plans to spend $7,600,000 for aerial and underground cables in the next five years, according to Robert S. Judd, traffic engineer of the company, who spoke before the New London district conference boards of the Telephone Employes' association at New London Tuesday.

That the company had improved this type of service to such an extent that an average speed of service on long haul calls has been reduced from six minutes to one minute and that the company will handle 24,000,000 toll calls at an average speed of one minute each next year, was also said by Mr. Judd.

Representatives of all the employes of the plant, commercial and traffic groups of the telephone organization attended the session with business meetings during the morning. Mr. Judd's talk followed luncheon.

Mr. Judd referred to the day not so long ago when all inter-city calls were handled by the toll operator. Then he told of the minor change which permitted the telephone user to place with his local operator such calls as were made to five and ten cent toll points. The gradual extension of this practice to other and more distant points improved the speed of service, but that is more important he said, from the company's standpoint is that this and the other changes in toll practices which have followed from time to time during the past few years, have made it easier and more convenient for the public to place and receive long distance calls. The company recently adopted the practice of having all station-to-station calls handled by the local operators, no matter how far distant the called city is. If a particular person is desired or the calling party does not know the number, the call is routed as before by the toll operator.

Observations of toll line service which are continuously made by the telephone company, Mr. Judd stated, show that 97 per cent of all toll telephone conversations are conducted satisfactorily to the user.

The ease with which inter-city calls are now made has resulted in a heavy increase in this class of telephone traffic, the speaker said, and contributing factors have been the personal warmth which operators put into their work, improvement in telephone instruments and transmission over long distances.

The speaker referred to the big contract that is being carried out by the long lines department of the American Telephone and Telegraph company along the Post road in this state, as an indication of the expected growth in the use of toll telephone service.

The board members attending the meeting represent employes in Norwich, New London, Willimantic and other exchanges in the New London district.

MAKES $45,294 APPRAISAL ON BRIDGEMAN CORPORATION

An inventory of $45,294.08 of the Bridgeman corporation, which is now in the hands of a receiver, who is Sydney P. Smith, has been filed in the superior court by the appraisers, James C. Henderson and E. LaRue Bliven of this city.

The appraisal of assets is given as follows: Machine equipment used in manufacture, $5,980; belting and pulleys, $433.63; tool room and miscellaneous shop equipment, $1,095; miscellaneous materials, $235.54; drawings, patterns, jigs and fixtures, $11,758.91; office equipment and supplies, $490.50; paper box machines, completed and in process, $25,300; total inventory, $45,294.08.

OVER MILLION VISITORS AT THE STATE PARKS

An increase of 55 per cent in the recorded number of visitors at the state parks for the first nine months of this year over the corresponding period in 1928 is announced by the state park and forest commission. The attendance to November 1st totaled 1,151,941 persons as against 764,554 for the same season last year. The above record includes only the known visitors at eighteen of the thirty-eight state parks under the control of the state commission. On the remaining twenty parks there are as yet no custodians.

At Hammonasset beach an automatic tally records each automobile entering the park. During this season 123,656 autos deposited their average load of five persons, or 613,279 in all, including a large proportion of children. The parks next in order of attendance were Wharton brook near Wallingford, 186,689; Kent falls in Litchfield county, 104,823; Hurd park on the Connecticut river below Cobalt with 63,937; Lake Waramaug, 48,350; Black Rock near Waterbury, 47,850. Parks with lesser attendance, but rapidly increasing are Mount Tom, 20,995; Devil's Hopyard in New London county, 16,775; Sleeping Giant near New Haven, 12,601; Fort Shantok on the Thames river, 9,719; Wolf Den, 5,888; Quinebaug Pines near Putnam, 5,156, Squantz pond in Fairfield county, 4,634; Macedonia Brook in Litchfield county, 4,272; Sherwood Island at Westport, where 2,761 people used the unimproved strip of beach held by the state during two months of the season; Buttonball brook, a wayside park near Willimantic, 2,144; Masamoquet brook near Pomfret, 1,496; and Housatonic meadows, near Cornwell Bridge, 392. All these parks show marked increase in use during the past season.

In addition, large numbers of people visited the Putnam Memorial camp ground near Danbury, and Fort Ripley at Groton, each of which is under a separate commission.

The parks not at present requiring a caretaker consist of mountain tops, or undeveloped small areas on lakes and rivers.

A caretaker has recently been placed at Indian Well near Shelton on the Housatonic river, and this park is heavily patronized by local residents. The Nathaniel Lyon Memorial lies within the Natchaug Forest and attracted many visitors this season with its restoration of the old chimney on the Lyon homestead.

It is probable that with the unrecorded attendance, the number of visitors to the state parks in 1929 equalled the entire population of the state, which in 1920 was 1,380,631 people.

NEW R. I. ROAD MAKES CROSS-STATE TRIP SHORTER

Another link in the chain of state highways is being forged by the Rhode Island highway commission with the construction of a connecting link which will unite Westerly with Woonsocket and bring these two extreme ends of the state nearly four miles closer together.

"This new succession of roads, completed within the last three years is 16 1-2 miles in length. It leaves the Farnum pike, leading from Woonsocket up in that part of the Woonasquatucket valley konwn as Wionnilege, and from there ties in with the Putnam pike this side of Greenville. Spragueville is the one village of name on this section of the road.

"Through Greenville and West Greenville the Putnam pike is followed. From West Greenville to North Scituate the link used is the five-mile stretch built in 1926-7. From the North Scituate corner southerly the new road is a reconstruction of the gravel line built by the city of Providence along the east shore of the reservoir.

"This portion had already been relocated and brought to a satisfactory grade when the succession of old country thoroughfares was abandoned by the city, and the through gravel road substituted. The Plainfield pike is crossed at Waterman's corners, two miles north of the Kent dam and three south of North Scituate. Ashland and Saundersville, two oldtime mill villages between Waterman's corner and North Scituate, were lost sight of in the building of the reservoir.

ermans corners and the dam—or more

"The two-mile section between Waterexactly the filtration plant, contains the heaviest reconstruction in the whole stretch. It also contains the most pronounced curves. This is the modern version of the old Bettypond road, from which, it is needless to say, it is decidedly different.

"Below the filtration plant the new road reaches Hope, again a glowing rehabilitation of what was once a stagecoach road, one of the last in Rhode Island to succumb to progress. At Hope, for the present, a short detour covers traffic through the village and out of it, while a handsome bridge is being constructed, a few rods south of the old structure which has been a landmark for generations. This point also affords the most picturesque scenery of the entire road, the waterfall of the Hope Mills being just north of the old bridge and the sparkling north branch of the Pawtuxet below.

"From Hope the road mounts over the high land to the southward, passing through hitherto isolated farming land, and climbing to an elevation of some 300 feet above sea level. From this hill one looks down upon Phenix and some of the most beautiful scenery of the state. Stone walls cut the landscape into checkerboard patterns, and frequently cattle and other farm stock, grazing in the pastures, afford a pleasing glimpse of rural Rhode Island, within a few minutes drive of busy suburban centers.

"Descending to the somewhat lower level of the old Coventry-Green road near Washington, the new road strikes that thoroughfare at the point called Knotty Oak. A tribute to a natural curiosity in the vicinity, the name perpetuates the peculiarities of a gnarled and twisted oak tree in front of the Baptist meeting house. Close by, the cemetery, which bears the same name, covers many acres on both sides of the road.

"Just beyond the old Coventry-Green road dodges under the steam railroad tracks and emerges in Washington village, a visible reminder of the fame in which the Father of His Country was held in the town building days of a century ago. In Washington is the narrow pass between the woolen mill and business property opposite, making the restricted entrance to one of Rhode Island's most popular scenic ways, the Noose Neck Hill road to Westerly.

"This particular entrance is mentioned at this time because a supplementary project of this newest highway work is to describe an arc around Washington, from the point where the railroad is passed, and joining the Noose Neck Hill road at Spring Lake, thus missing the village and carrying out a new principle in state roads 'townless highways.'

"Regarding this new road in general, it may be said that it presents an approximation of a straight line from Woonsocket to the point named on the Coventry-Green road, and thence to Westerly. From the Farnum pike to Washington, the course is almost due south—one could almost travel by compass. The actual reduction of distance between Westerly and Woonsocket is but 3 1-2 miles, although on the map it appears much more. The advantage for through travel will be in the easier directioning. For those living in the hitherto unreached communities, the benefits of the state road are many. Westerly by the new route is 54 miles from Woonsocket; by the shortest previous route 57 1-2.

"The material chosen for this route was bituminous macadam of the penetration type. Five inches of native stone was laid as a base and a two-inch layer of Connecticut trap rock forms the wearing surface. The heating asphalt is poured upon the surface forming the mixture which binds the elements of the road together.

"The uniform width of the line is 20 feet, except on curves and special sections, where, in the discretion of the state board of public roads, it is made wider. At approaches and intersections, such as Waterman's corners, a sweeping entrance is provided for convenience and safety of traffic.

"The entire line has a minimum of grades, all being kept within the tacitly adopted limit of 7 per cent, seven feet of climb in 100 feet of travel, horizontally."

BOY SCOUTS HELP RED CROSS WITH CAMPAIGN

During the past week several scouts have rendered service to the American Red Cross by placing a hundred signs in windows downtown and by inserting cards and literature in envelopes to be sent out. According to the local scout headquarters, more boys are needed to complete the work.

Rhode Island expects to retain the distinction of being the most heavily populated state in the union, after the next census. Its population exceeds 573 persons to the square mile.

SURVEY SHOWS LARGE COWS MOST ECONOMICAL PRODUCERS

The small, refined dairy cow may look best, but the big, roomy cow pays most profit to her owner, according to a survey made by the United States department of Agriculture. In making the study large and small cows within one breed were compared, both purebreds and grades of every age being included.

On an average the largest cows—those weighing 1,500 pounds—exceeded the smallest cows—those weighing 900 pounds—by 83 pounds of butterfat per cow. Their cost of feed was $20 higher, but they returned $43 more per cow in yearly income over cost of feed.

An analysis of figures obtained in the survey shows that as size of cow advanced 100 pounds for each group there was a fairly uniform gain in production of milk and of butterfat, in cost of feed per cow, and in income above feed cost. On the other hand, there was a slight decrease in the butterfat test, but this was not enough to merit special attention.

"Though the group figures always favored the large cows, it was found that many individuals among the large cows in each breed were unprofitable producers and that many small cows in each breed were profitable producers. Therefore in selecting dairy cows of any breed it is not wise to select on the basis of size alone. Size, however, is a factor of great importance."

MORE TWIN LAMBS ARE DROPPED WHEN EWES ARE WELL FED

Not only has science been able to make two blades of grass grow where but one grew before, but it is now able to induce ewes to drop a larger number of twin lambs. Extra feed at the breeding season is the treatment that produces the additional lambs.

This statement comes from the United States department of Agriculture, whose sheep specialists have been at work on the problem for the past 12 years. The results of their work show that liberal feeding just before and during the breeding season, commonly known as "flushing," has given a larger number of twins. While the percentage of increase has varied from year to year, the average has been 16 more lambs per 100 ewes for the flushed ewes than for lots which did not receive this extra feed.

A study has been made of the comparative value of a supplementary grain ration and of extra-quality pasture for furnishing this extra feed. Very little difference was found in the lambing percentages of ewes flushed by these two methods. However, it is usually cheaper to supply the additional feed in the form of extra-quality pasture.

The pasture should be sufficiently luxuriant to cause the ewes to gain rapidly. Seasons sometimes occur, however, in which pastures are too short for this purpose. In such seasons it is advisable for formers to give the flock a supplementary grain allowance of from one-half to 1¼ pounds per head daily, the amount depending upon the size of the sheep and the amount and quality of the green feed available.

"A mixed grain ration consisting of equal parts by weight of corn and oats has been found a satisfactory ration for this purpose. Forage crops, such as soybeans, cowpeas, sweet clover, and alfalfa, in sections where they can safely be used for pasture makes satisfactory pasture crops on which to flush ewes. Bluegrass pasture is also excellent. Although ewes gain readily on young, tender clover, much difficulty has been experienced in getting them to breed while on this type of pasture.

GROW ALFALFA HAY FOR COWS.

Where alfalfa grows well it will usually outyield any other legume. It will make cheaper hay than a legume, which must be seeded every year. Although experiments have shown that well-cured soybean hay is equal in value to alfalfa for milk production, it must be remembered that soybean hay is not only likely to be stemmy but is also more difficult to cure than alfalfa. In view of the success at the dairy experiment farm of the United States department of agriculture at Beltsville, Mr., in raising alfalfa on a heavy clay soil underlaid with an almost impervious subsoil, it is believed that alfalfa can be made to thrive on many soils often considered unsuitable. Alfalfa makes such a good and cheap hay, according to the bureau of dairy industry, that dairymen are urged to not give up the idea of raising alfalfa until convinced of its impracticability either by trial or by consulting some reliable authority.

POSSIBILITY OF FORECASTING SIZE OF APPLES BY STUDY

The possibility of making reasonable reliable forecasts of the size of the apples produced in the Hood river valley, Oregon, is indicated by a study of the factors which affect the size of fruit in the area, made by the Bureau of Agricultural Economics, U. S. department of agriculture. The study covered the period 1914-1928.

"It is now possible, with data available each year on August 1," says the bureau, "to make a reasonably accurate forecast of the percentage of total pack of Newtowns, Spitzenburgs, and Arkansas Blacks combined, which will fall into the large sizes. It will be possible in future years to make a reasonable reliable forecast of size on the first of August, if the conditions are not materially different than the conditions which prevail during the period of the study, and these conditions were usual."

Forecasts of the size of apples are desired by commercial apple orchards, especially in connection with expert business, inasmuch as the export trade prefers the smaller sizes. Contracts for the sale of apples usually are made early in August, and errors in judging the probable sunply of large and small apples may compel shippers to buy in the open market to fill contracts.

The study indicates that inasmuch as the amount of moisture during the fruiting season in the valley is held practically constant by irrigation and the little variation in summer rainfall, summer temperatures have a marked effect upon the growth and development of the apples. Extremes in temperature, either hot or cold, tend to check growth with consequent maturity at smaller sizes. In some years the length of season and amount of rainfall in summer apparently have some influence upon size, but the effect of these factors is not as pronounced as that of temperature.

Thinning, cultural practices, and the use of fertilizer were management factors found to have an important influence upon the development of fruit, but the conclusion is reached that unless there is a marked shift in these practices from one year to another they are not likely to be important for the entire valley in any one year. No systematic record of thinning or other cultural practices, however, is available, so the influence of these factors can not be measured.

HINTS FOR THE FARM

Although it is believed generally that cows will produce more milk if milked always by the same person experiments show results are negligible.

Organic matter used to supply humus to soil may injur crops if applied undecayed at the time of planting. Unless plant substances are applied several weeks before planting, they should be allowed to decay partially before application, preferably in a compost heap, or they may be used first as a bedding for livestock.

Use of mash containing 40 per cent dry skim milk gives good results in connection with efforts to eradicate coccidiosis in chicks. It should be fed when the chicks are in the period between 4 to 8 weeks old.

Summer or early fall is a good time to cull undesirable ewes from the flock. Non-breeding ewes, poor milkers, light shearers, and mother of inferior lambs should be disposed of at this time. It is a good plan to sell aged ewes before they lose their value to the butcher. Ewes of the mutton breeds ordinarily do not breed well or keep in good condition after five years of age.

The best way to get full value from the sweet clover crop in the dry-farming belt is to supplement it with Sudan grass. The latter provides excellent grazing between the time the old sweet clover is finished and the new seeding is large enough for pasture. The grass stubble then makes an excellent seed bed for the next sweet clover seeding.

POETRY

Signs of Rain.

The hollow winds begin to blow,
The clouds look black, the glass is low
The soot falls down, the spaniels sleep,
The spiders from their cobwebs peep.
Last night the sunset pale to bed,
The moon in halloe hid her head;
The boding shepherd heaves a sigh,
For see, a rainbow spans the sky.

The walls are damp, the ditches smell,
Closed is the pink-eyed pimpernel.
Hark how the chairs and tables crack!
Old Betty's joints are on the rack;
Loud quack the ducks, the peacocks cry!
The distant hills are seeming nigh;
How restless are the snorting swine!
The busy flies disturb the kine.

Low o'er the grass the swallow wings;
The cricket, too, how sharp he sings!
Puss on the hearth, with velvet paws
Sits wiping o'er her whiskered jaws;
Through the clear stream the fishes rise,
And nimbly catch the incautious flies;
The glowworms, numerous, and bright,
Illumed the dewy dell last night.

At dusk the squalid toad was seen,
Hopping and crawling o'er the green;
The whirling wind the dust obeys,
And in the rapid eddy plays;
The frog has changed his yellow vest,
And in a russet coat is dressed;
Though June, the air is cold and still,
The mellow blackbird's voice is shrill.

My dog so altered in his taste,
Quits mutton-bones on grass to feast;
And sees yon rooks, how odd their flight,
They imitate the gliding kite,
And seem precipitate to fall,
As if they felt the piercing ball!
'Twill surely rain I see with sorrow,
Our jaint must be put off tomorrow.

—By Edward Jenner.

Refuge.

I shall go down from the stark, gray-stone towers,
Out from this town—the dogs that howl at its gates—
The sad clocks strike the eternal hours
And my refuge waits.

I shall go forth with sandals and a crust
Before the evil, stupid, friendly feet
Have stopped my singing mouth with choking dust
Stamped from the common street.

For hope has planted vineyards in a place
Of valleys where a heart may lie at ease
And dreams can daily with a shy, young thought,
Naked among the silver birchen trees.

There Aeolus will play a willow harp,
Soft as the autumn light upon a hill,
And dipping swallows leave light water rings
Which widen with a motion that is still.

—Hervey Allen.

We Offer Better Toast

To Every Woman
Who Tries This New-Day Bread

Now those who want faultless toast can get it

BY ALICE ADAMS PROCTOR

MILLIONS of American homes now enjoy toast a better way.

Today their toast is always the same. It never varies.

It is even, golden brown. Never scorched. Never a burned edge. It's faultless toast, and they get it every time.

It's a new-day bread that makes toast this way. It's called "Wonder Bread," and please remember that is what you must always ask for.

Will You Test It?

Many women sceptical of what we claim have been won by tossting this Wonder Bread in direct comparison with other brands. This we urge you to do, knowing what you will find. Even golden brown. No scorched edges. Every slice is perfect. Every time.

Cost Us $6,000,000

We spent two years in its development. It cost us $6,000,000. Today it is the largest-selling bread in America.

It is baked by matchless chefs working in immaculate model kitchens. They use only tested ingredients.

They use only a specially milled "short patent" flour made from the heart of the wheat berry. They use double the usual amount of milk, and they pasteurize every drop. Extremely costly ingredients these. But they do give a better bread. So we benefit through tremendous extra sales.

Also they employ a unique baking method. Wonder Bread is "slo-baked." A method that brings you greater digestibility. More delicate flavor. Longer-lasting freshness.

Please Try At Once

So do, please, as the country's wisest women did. Try this new-day bread immediately. Remember to say "Wonder Bread" distinctly.

BRITISH PERTURBRED BY NORDIC DECLINE

LONDON (AP)—The matter of blonds and brunettes has passed the point of mere speculation on which gentleman prefer, and has become a great scientific quandary.

It has become so scientific that E. N. Fallaize, the secretary of the Royal Anthropological institute, strongly recommends a complete and careful race survey to determine which type predominates and whether the world is going to rot as a result.

"From the earliest times," he comments in the current issue of "Discovery," the fair Nordic types have been the rulers and leaders of the communities largely composed of conquered peoples. But owing to the war and economic and political causes, this predominance has diminished."

He arises the question of the ultimate extinction of the tall fair blond and points out that his suggested race survey would also help to determine which is the healthiest coloring and whether the blond decline ought to be forcibly encouraged or stopped by some scientific method.

will make you like waffles better

Waffles are one of America's popular luncheon foods.

In themselves they are tasty but do not constitute a balanced meal.

Served with Arlington Sausage, waffles are more satisfying to the taste, and the rich protein and fat in the sausage provides just the proper dietary menu.

Again we say, when buying sausage, insist on Arlington. Arlington is so easy to say, and means so much to you and your family

It is imperative that your food be of the best. You can assure yourself of the best by using one word—Arlington.

MADE ENTIRELY OF NEW ENGLAND DRESSED FRESH PORK

Arlington Sausage is sold only in one pound blue and white cartons and in this half pound cellophane package.

EASTERN VOLUNTOWN

Mr. and Mrs. William Bitgood had callers, Sunday, from Providence, Oneco, Jewett City, Preston, Hopeville. It was Mrs. George Geer and son, Chester, who came from Hopeville. The son carried Mrs. Bitgood a nice comb of honey, some of his own raising. Mrs. Bitgood was well pleased with it. Mrs. Bitgood had not seen Mrs. Geer for quite a while. They are very nice people, she and her son live alone.

Miss Lizzie Maynard has been visiting on Ekonk Hill the week-end, with her sister, Mrs. Warren Tanner and family and her brother, Harry Maynard and family.

Mrs. Warren Tanner is feeling some better at this writing.

Mrs. Mason Gray had two of her children go to the hospital and have their tonsils taken out. Mrs. Gray is not feeling good. She has a bad leg. It pains her quite a little. She has been painting, papering and white-washing, it was too much for her to do.

Who were the six boys from Oneco that went to the movies at Plainfield Saturday evening and when it was over they went for a ride, got lost and brought up at Clark falls, in Stonington? Part of them tried to walk home but did not know the way. They got to Voluntown and telephoned to Plainfield for some one to come after them. The others went to Norwich and took the bus to Plainfield. From there they footed to Moosup, where they telephoned to Oneco. Some one went and got them. I bet it has learned them a lesson. They have sore feet besides being tired.

Henry Wallace, of Lisbon, Floyd Barber and Jael Barber, of Jewett City and Harold Bitgood, of Pachaug, called on Mr. and Mrs. William Bitgood Armistice day and ate dinner with them.

Mrs. George Watson and Maurice Harrington spent Tuesday evening with William Bitgood.

Hunters are plentiful but they say that there is no game. Rabbits and squirrels are scarce. There is nothing for them to eat.

Lawyer James and wife and his mother, Mrs. Alexander Jordan, of Norwich, called on Mr. and Mrs. William Bitgood, Saturday.

MONTVILLE

At a special town meeting held in the town hall last evening, to consider the necessity of maintaining a traffic officer at the four corners at Uncasville, it was decided, by narrow margin, to retain such an officer. First Selectman Ambrose Sullivan presided at the meeting. After the reading of the warning, a motion was made to discontinue the traffic officer at this place. It was a close contest and necessary to use the check list in voting. The result of the vote was 59 for discontinuing, and 63 for maintaining the officer. The question of how far the authority of the officer should extend was brought up, some taking the stand that he should direct traffic only and others argued that he would be obliged to be sworn in as constable which would enable him to make arrests if necessary. The selectmen were instructed to appoint a committee of seven to determine just what the power and duties would be. An attempt was made to have the meeting elect the officer, but it was left for the selectmen to appoint. At the annual town meeting the town report was not accepted and motion to table was lost. At this special meeting Mr. House, first selectman last year, asked for an explanation why it was not approved as all bills had been paid and the accounts made in the same form that have been followed for years past. By a unanimous vote the report of the selectmen and all committees were accepted for the two previous years. All the questions brought up were warmly discussed and at times became quite exciting. There was an extraordinary large crowd attending the meeting.

William Birs, secretary of the town school board, has resigned his position as he has moved out of town. At the recent regular meeting of the board Harry Bogue was elected to fill the vacancy on the board, and Frank Sistare was appointed secretary. The members of the school board are: Truman Keys, chairman; Frank Sistare, secretary; Rev. Charles Smith, Lewis J. LaBounty, Mrs. Erminie Sullivan and Mrs. Laura Furber.

YALE GAMES PROFIT PENNY DIVING KIDS

The kids line up along the street car track between the bowl and downtown New Haven after the game and shout "Scramble, scramble!" at the crowds returning from the stadium in open trolley cars.

Even those who are strangers to New Haven soon get the idea and begin tossing pennies to the youngsters. The scramble ensues.

An agile lad can make his pin money for the week long before the last of the crowded trolley cars has borne its cargo downtown, and a girl with enough infant "it" can often stand in the middle of a block all by herself and lure coins from the football fans without having to dive for them.

GIANT SEA ELEPHANTS STUDIED IN CLINIC

SAN DIEGO, Cal.—(AP)—With four giant patients recently captured as the subjects, a sea elephant clinic has been established at the San Diego zoo.

Dr Charles H. Townsend, director of the New York aquarium, Dr. R. A. Whiting, pathologist of the San Diego zoo and L. M. Huey, curator of birds and mammals at the museum here will study the causes of the disease that take so heavy toll among sea elephants. Mirounga angustirostris is its name.

Also an attempt will be made to breed the sea elephant, which, if successful, will be the first time it has been done in captivity.

The largest of the patients is 15 feet long and weighs 5,000 pounds. On its back is an old scar indicating that is had encountered a whaler's harpoon.

BURGESS BEDTIME STORY

Unc' Billy Grows Bolder.

By Thornton W. Burgess.

Appetite, so we are told,
Sometimes makes the timid bold.
—Old Mother Nature.

Unc' Billy Possum sat down on the stone wall along the edge of the Old Orchard. Bushes grow along that old stone wall and so Unc' Billy was hidden. But he could look out and see what was going on. Now, it was not far from the end of the old stone wall over to the chicken yard of Farmer Brown's Boy. It was dusk, almost dark. Farmer Brown's Boy had shut up the hens for the night. Unc' Billy had watched him do it and dreadful disappointment had taken possession of him as he watched. There was just one chance and one chance only, and this was that the little door leading from the henhouse to the henyard might not be closed. Unc' Billy remembered that little door made especially for the hens to use.

That hole led under the floor of the henhouse

It grew darker. Farmer Brown's Boy and Farmer Brown had gone into the house. So had Bowser the Hound and Flip the Terrier. Common sense still told Unc' Billy to keep away from that henhouse, but hunger and great desire urged him to at least go over and investigate.

Unc' Billy began to get uneasy. He crept down off the stone wall and through the bushes. He peered across toward the henyard. He looked over toward Farmer Brown's house. He could see the lighted windows. "Ah reckon Ah can look around a little and hurt no one," said Unc' Billy to himself. "Ah reckon there isn't anythin' to be afraid of right now."

So Unc' Billy grew bolder and shuffled across over to the henhouse. He could hear the hens stirring uneasily inside. Now and then there was a low cluck. Unc' Billy's mouth watered. It seemed to him that never in all his life had he wanted anything as he now wanted one of those hens. He couldn't think of anything else. He knew that if he could get into that henhouse there would be no trouble in getting one of those hens. The first thing would be to get in there. The next thing would be to get one of those stupid birds without awakening the others. He had no doubt that he could do this if only he could get in there.

So Unc' Billy went around the henhouse hoping he might find a hole whereby he might get in. He did find a hole used by Robber the Rat one time, but it was not big enough for Unc' Billy to get through. He could poke his nose in, however, and did so. That hole led under the floor of the henhouse. Unc' Billy didn't smell hens there, so he concluded there was no hole in the floor. It would do him no good if he could get under there. So he withdrew his nose and continued on around.

When Unc' Billy came to the high wire fence of the henyard he stopped to consider. It would be an easy matter for him to climb that fence. Nothing could be easier. He could climb up one side and down the other. Then he would be inside the henyard. There he would have a chance to try that little door to the henhouse—the one that the hens used. The big door he knew was closed and locked. Somehow, he didn't just like getting inside that henyard. He knew he could get out again just as easily as he could get in; but he couldn't help the feeling that it was a sort of pen. So for a long time he hesitated.

At last he became bold. He started up the wire, close to one of the posts. When he reached the top of the post he sat there for a while. Then he climbed down inside.

LOFTY "STILTS" RAISE SURVEYORS OVER TREES

EUDORA, Ark. (AP)—Lofty "stilts" as mounts for surveyors and their instruments have been adopted by the coast and geodetic survey in Mississippi valley operations to surmount tall trees.

Steel towers 148 feet high are used in this vicinity to clear the sight lines that form triangular nets across country.

Base lines, five ot 15 miles long, are measured on the ground. Instruments mounted on the stilts at each end are concentrated on a single distant point. From the angles of the sight lines with the base, the distances to the point are computed.

DRAINED OIL WELLS MAY CAUSE TREMORS

EDMONTON, Alberta —(AP)— Unusual rumbling sounds heard recently in this region are attributed to subsidence of oil fields about Turner valley.

In the vicinity of the valley, earth tremors and subsidences have been noticed. Dr. John A. Allan, head of the department of geology, University of Alberta, says it is quite possible these tremors would record on seismograph instruments.

He thinks the made-made quakes may be due to extraction of huge quantities of oil and gas from a restricted area and that no serious danger is likely to be involved.

BLONDS GET BREAK IN NEW TELEVISION

NEW YORK —(AP)— Blonds are coming into television in their natural colors in the latest step of the Bell Telephone Laboratories toward producing pictures in color.

In earlier apparatus the blues showed well, but blond shadees were darkened. This disadvantage applied particularly to persons of dark or tanned complexion.

The invention that gives truer values to yellow shades is described in a report to the Optical society of American by H. E. Ives of thee Bell laboratories. It is a new kind of photo-electric cell which uses sodium instead of potassium as its active color registering coating.

In the new color apparatus the natural shades are picked up by a battery of 24 photo-electric eyes, two of them receiving through blue glass, eight through green and 14 through red. The numbers show the relative sensitiveness of the cells to colors. Blue still is the strongest.

A want ad was worth more than $2,000 to Mrs. Anna Myers of Chicago, who, through that medium, was advised she was joint heir to an estate that had awaited settlement 50 years.

SPEED SECRET OF FISH JOLTS RESISTANCE LAW

PARIS—(AP)—Two French professors have been dropping fish through vertical tubes of water with surprising results.

They report to the Academy of Sciences that the resistance of the water to the progress of some fish does not appear to increase with the speed.

It is proposed to apply the findings to the shape of airships, which already owe their blunt noses and streamline effects to fish models. If the discoveries stand the test, they would upset, at least in some measure, the accepted laws of resistance, whereby the faster a craft travels the higher is the resistance of the air or other medium through which it ploughs.

Plausibility is added to the report by the statement that not all the fish shapes showed lack of increased resistance. Only the "usual shaped" fish seemingly was immune. Odd-shaped fish met increased resistance at higher speeds.

The scientists are Professors Magnan at the College of France and Salnte-Lague of the Lycee Janson de Sailly. They determined the speed of the dropping fish with motion pictures. Different speeds were obtained by putting lead weights in the fishes' mouths.

FLOODLIGHT COLORS PLAYED BY TOUCH

ATLANTIC CITY, N. J.—(AP)—This city has a new kind of job, that of color master.

His work is to control the colors of footlights that play on the exterior of the new municipal auditorium, a structure covering a city block and fitted with sufficient lighting power to supply a city of 10,000.

The color master works at a large switchboard, with indicator lights showing the colors changing under his touch over 275 circuits. These colors are white, amber, red, blue, and their combinations. They fill the convention hall that has a seating capacity of 40,000, the ballroom and the exterior of the building.

"It's just this, ma'am. I can't bear that young man who calls on Miss Ethel."

"But he doesn't call to see you! What do you complain of?"

"Well, ma'am, the neighbors might think he does."—Detroit News.

Bill Dodge, of Kansas City, Mo., went fishing in Crooked Lake, near Deerwood, Minn., and was reeling in his spinner when there was a splash, and a large fish took the hook and line and disappeared into the depths of the lake. A few days later the body of a dead muskellunge floated to a shore of the lake and the fish was found to have met its end by swallowing a spinner and a piece of line that it had failed to digest. The fish measured sixty-seven inches in length and weighed forty-two pounds.

WESTERLY

(Special to The Bulletin)

WESTERLY, R. I., Nov. 14—Thomas DiNola, 26, of 58 Burbina street, Cranston, died Thursday afternoon at 2:30 at the Westerly hospital, as the result of burns sustained during the burning of an A. and P. motor truck. His recovery was despaired of from the first because of the fact that over two-thirds of the surface of the body had been burned.

His brother Frank of the same address, sustained a broken leg and burns but his recovery is looked for.

The men were occupants of the cab of a five-ton truck of the Great Atlantic & Pacific Tea company, bound from Providence to Hope Valley and Westerly and loaded with a $3,000 consignment of foodstuffs, vegetables, meat and pastry. When the truck swerved to the left and off the state highway to avoid the wreck of a collision of trucks immediately preceding the truck burst into flames. The men were trapped in their cab and burned before they could free themselves.

Frank, who was riding on the front seat, was less seriously burned because of prompt action of other drivers in removing him from the flaming truck.

The other trucks that figured in the crash were operated by John Hallenbeck, 27, of Liberty, N. Y., and was loaded with Christmas greens; a truck owned by John J. McCarthy of Taunton, Mass., manufacturer of stoves, operated by Joseph H. Metcalf, also of Taunton, and loaded with stoves, and an ice truck owned by George Mack, 36 Quincy avenue, Pawtucket, fully loaded and operated by Thomas E. Pilson of 211 Wellington avenue, Cranston. The three drivers all escaped injury as did John Lynch of Taunton, who was riding with Metcalf and Louis Arches, 86 Pierce street, Westerly, rider with Hallenbeck.

According to state police the accident occurred shortly before daybreak on Tefft's hill. The police say the McCarthy truck was headed for New Haven, the truck loaded with Christmas greens was moving in the opposite direction.

The two trucks sideswiped each other the crash spilling the Christmas greens all over the pavement.

Hallenbeck and Metcalf, police say, left their wheels and began to argue. About that time the A. & P. truck with the DiNola brothers and the ice loaded truck were heading for the location of the crash in opposite directions.

Before Hallenbeck and Metcalf could signal to the drivers the trucks crashed into the stalled vehicles. The crash sent the A. & P. truck careening off the road into a ditch. A few minutes later the upturned truck was a mass of flames.

REASON AND COMMON SENSE

(Written Specially for The Bulletin)

The people of the little town of Bloomfield, Nebraska, some time ago formally decided as a community to use the reason Providence had thoughtfully assigned to its members, individually.

This was so unusual an occurrence that it deserved mention at the time as news of the newsiest sort. Not so unusual for Bloomfield, Nebraska, alone but for any town in any state, anywhere.

For it is one of the strangest quirks of that strange combination we call "human nature" when we don't want to seem rude by calling its right name that, though possessed of some degree of reason and some capacity for using it, that so-called "human nature" prefers to be guided, in most cases, by its atavistic simianism or swinishness.—For the benefit of those who haven't a big dictionary at their side, let me say that Webster defines "atavism" as "the recurrence in a descendant of the characteristics of a remote ancestor." Such, for instance, as the apes, i. e., simians, from whom some people and the swine from whom others are apparently descended.

As a general rule it seems to be fairly true to say that a considerable majority of us reputed human beings act a good deal more like monkeys and hogs than we do like angels—or even reasoning beings.

We flock into huddles when we might get more elbow-room by spreading out a little.

We wear and say and do things because other folks wear and say and do them—rarely because they commend themselves to our inactive reasons. Both these phases of conduct are distinctly monkeyish, and hark back to the days when our remote ancestors were associating in primeval jungles with their longer-tailed fellow citizens of the woods.

Again, a good many of us—altogether too many of us—whether in society or in business or in politics, seem to act on the decidedly hoggish assumption that life is just a big swill-trough and that everyone's first object should be to get a little more than his or her fair share of the swill.

Now, to imitate is regarded as rather "cunning" in an ape. And to gobble-gobble-gobble is taken as highly proper for a fattening pig.

Why, however, should self-styled reasonable human being revert to monkeys or swine, mere creatures of instinct, for their models? That is something which has puzzled a good many thoughtful observers for many ages. Nor has the definite answer yet been discovered.

The thing that puts Bloomfield, Nebraska, on the map, just at this time, is the fact that the men and women of Bloomfield, about such critters as you and I in all outward appearances—some time ago decided to stop acting like either apes or swine and try using their reason in at least one line of conduct.

It began with the retail merchants. In imitation of a widespread custom they had been giving credit to their customers, instead of asking cash. As two results they had to "carry" the bills of slow-pays at a real cost to themselves, and they had to boost the prices asked from paying customers to make good those lost from uncollectible debts.

Bloomfield is a small town of 1,400 people in a purely farming community. It has a small bank and a flour mill and a butter factory and several general stores. These store-keepers got tired of doing foolish and wasteful things merely because others did them. So they used their beans, for a change, and decided to cut out the credit system, root and branch. They began by refusing to give credit to anybody, big customer or little, old customer or new. For a still greater wonder, they not only all agreed to do this, but they all stuck to their agreements.

Of course, there was grumbling on the part of some of the credit chasers. Some, who had been in the habit of saying "Charge it," with no very definite idea as to where the ultimate pay was coming from, got mad and traipsed off to another store. There they were met with the same good-natured but inflexible rule, "Pay for what you get when you get it." They soon learned that it did them no good to jump from the frying-pan into the fire. If store-keeper A lost a few customers to store-keeper B through spite, store-keeper B lost about as many to A. Things evened up pretty satisfactorily| Nobody was seriously hurt.

But that's only the preface to the story. Its real interest begins when it becomes evident, after a year's trial of this plan, not only that it has caused no suffering to anybody in Bloomfield, but that it has helped materially to boom Bloomfield's retail business.

Being paid cash down for their goods, the retail merchants had the money to buy their supplies for cash, thus saving the credit charges they had previously had to carry. Not only that, but they had eliminated the interest they had to bear on every charge account.

In addition to these two savings, small individually but far from negligible, collectively, they had saved all their former losses from bad debts.

As a result, they found themselves able to sell much cheaper than under the old system. This worked in two ways: It saved money for their old local customers, and, the news being noised abroad, it brought new customers from territory outside what had been considered Bloomfield's natural trading area. People from miles away came to Bloomfield for their weekly or monthly supplies, in order to secure the advantage of Bloomfield's lower prices.

Not a store in Bloomfield has had to give up business. Not one has been even embarrassed. Needless to say, no customer whose trade was worth having has moved away from Bloomfield to regions of longer credits, and higher prices. Everybody is better off and, if reports are to be credited, nobody even dreams of going back to the old, wasteful, inefficient credit system.

In other words, Bloomfield seems to have graduated from the age of imitativeness to that of reason, with eminently satisfactory results, all 'round.

The next question to be asked the class is: If the use of reason and the application of common sense to a minor business problem in a small farming town out in Nebraska works so well, why wouldn't it work as well in other towns and in larger fields?

You and I both know that business, as at present conducted, is largely on credit. You and I both know that the credit system is ably, vigorously, and sometimes almost ferociously defended by those who find profit in its extension.

At the same time, you and I both know that its eventual cost to the country is something simply enorrious.

Begin at the lowest round of the ladder and consider what happens at the retail store. You buy a bill of goods and agree to pay for them in a month or three months or when you sell your potatoes or any other term. This means that the dealer actually has to lend you the money without interest, thereby losing the interest the money would have earned him, if sagaciously invested.

He can't afford to do this, so he is compelled to add somewhat to the prices he charges you to make himself good. It's very little in a single transaction, of course. But it amounts to considerable in the aggregate of ten million similar daily transactions, all over the country.

Moreover, the retailer can't "play favorites". He can't give you credit and refuse it to your neighbors. Among all those neighbors, there are fairly sure to be some who will never pay and can't be made to. The store-keeper can't afford to stand such losses. He must make up for them by charging you, who do pay, with your share of the bills your neighbors do not pay. This, again, small in any single case, foots up to untold millions in the whole country.

And you and I, the ultimate consumers, pay it all in the end.

Considering the way in which the credit system is intrenched in our national life, and the hordes who derive their gains from it, criticism of its viciousness may seem as ineffectual as Don Quixote's tilting at the windmills.

But when a single community, even so small and rural as Bloomfield, Nebraska, at last sees through its fallacies and casts them off, that community sends a ray of hopeful light into the fog. What one town does, other towns can do.

If the abolition of the retail credit system brings freedom from worry and increased business and enlarged profits to Bloomfield, Nebraska, why mightn't it do the same to Podunk Center, Connecticut?

David didn't set out against Goliath with a Big Bertha or a half-ton bomb. He took just a small pebble in a light sling. But they did the business with sufficient decisiveness.

The sting of a bee is but a slender weapon. Yet, properly placed on the chauffeur's nose, it has been known to ditch a ten thousand dollar car.

If one little town out in Nebraska sets the pace other towns may take heart to follow. It's often the first step that counts, even when that step is but a short one.

Eventually, of course, the decision rests with the majority of the people. For the shiftless, the wasteful, the short-sighted, the lazy, the incompetent, the hangers-on of society—for such the credit system has an irresistible appeal. It enables them to put off the evil day when they must pay their debts.

The question simply is, How much longer are the thrifty, the saving, the provident, the industrious, the capable to stand for the irresponsibilities of the other sort.

THE FARMER.

After she had admitted the simple-looking young man each day for a week, the maid went indignantly to her mistress.

"I'm going to leave, ma'am," she began.

"Why, Mary? I can see no reason—"

People here are still suffering for lack of water. Deep wells are dry and much time and hard work is expended in getting a supply of water for household use.

MODERN TREND IN FARM HOUSE OF PRESENT DAY

Though still standard with the jokesmiths, the wooden bathtub near the kitchen stove on Saturday night is no longer standard with progressive farmers. Electric lights and running hot and cold water on the farm or in the small village and suburb are rapidly becoming the rule rather than the exception.

Septic tanks and pneumatic water systems are making this change possible where the population is not dense enough to enable the public utilities to supply electricity from their super-power lines. In many rural and semi-rural communities central station power is available, and the running water problem is solved by means of an electric pump.

Given a source of water supply, such as a deep well or a nearby stream, plus a pumping unit, plus a septic tank, the problem of how to get a modern bathroom and toilet becomes easy.

A septic tank, which is neither difficult nor expensive to build, is simply a large underground concrete, clay or metal reservoir, divided into chambers through which the discharge from the house flows.

In these chambers the current is slow enough so that the solids in the water are dropped out or are oxidised by the action of the water and the air. Impurities in solution are eliminated by exidation and by chemical action caused by lime which is deposited in the tank.

After it is so treated, the water is allowed to run off into a ditch or stream, and it proves so clean that no unpleasant effects of any sort follow. Their action is continuous. They require no attention except flushing out about once a year. Waste water and sewage from a farm home can be disposed of in this way.

VACUUM CLEANER NEEDS ATTENTON

The vacuum cleaner is a willing and a faithful slave, but it does require a little human attention once in a while. There are three things which you must do for your cleaner if you expect it to give you efficient and uninterrupted service.

First of all, keep the dust bag emptied. A safe rule is to empty it out once a week, regularly. A dust bag heavy with dirt cuts down the efficiency of your cleaner tremendously—about 35 per cent when the bag is one-fourth full.

Secondly, give the motor an occasional drop of oil, unless your cleaner is of the ball-bearing type, which requires no oil. An unoiled machine deteriorates and wears out quickly.

Third, wind the cord loosely on the hooks provided for it, or at least suspend it over a hook in the closet where the celaner is stored, in such a position that the cord will not become knotted, pulled or stepped on. There are delicate wires inside the cord which will break if the cord is mistreated putting your cleaner temporarily out of commission.

Bees during winter months thrive best in temperatures of 40 to 45 degrees, Fahrenheit.

BLACK WALNUTS AS SHADE TREES

A writer in The American Home makes the interesting suggestion that home owners whose properties permit plant a walnut tree or two, for shade and for the rich-flavored nuts they produce. The walnut is a wide-spreading tree, grows quite rapidly, and is singularly free from blights to which so many trees fall victim. They are found in virtually every state and section of the country which attests their capacity for making themselves at home anywhere, and they require very little care.

The branches of the walnut are quite wide-spread, which adds to their beauty, yet they are not sufficiently heavy foliaged to have a serious effect on lawns. In fact, grass grows to the very trunk in most instances and does not thin out as it does under many other trees, particularly maples and various varieties of fir trees.

Another tree which is closely akin to the walnut is the butternut, which also makes an excellent shade tree and produces in most seasons a heavy crop of that "hard fruit" of which cross-word architects make such persistent use. The branches should be thinned out a bit occasionally, for dead branches develop here and there and the tree as a whole does better when kept well within control. A visit to many a picturesque town in Vermont and New Hampshire will show that walnut and the butternut trees are quite common on these shady, inviting little places which most of us yearn to possess as summer havens. But they should not be considered as typical of country places only: they grow quite as readily, and thrive fully as much, in the residential sections of cities and large towns.

An underground lake recently discovered under the mountains of Yorkshire is being explored, and the cavern leading to it is said to contain the finest stalagmite formations in an English cave.

PRES. HOOVER CALLS BUSINESS CONFERENCE

Leaders of Industry, Labor and Agriculture Will Assemble Next Week at Chief Executive's Invitation to Lay Plans For Revival of Constructive Activity For Business Progress—Tremendous Public and Private Construction Programme Throughout the Nation May Follow Conference—Manufacturing Industries in Exceptionally Strong Cash Position, Says White House Statement.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 15—(AP)—President Hoover is calling a small group of industrial, agricultural and labor leaders to meet next week with high federal officials and plan for revival of constructive activity and other means of spurring business.

Announcing the step, the president revealed today that this week he had engaged "in numerous conferences with a view to the coordination of business and governmental agencies in concerted action for continued business progress."

Secretaries Mellon, Hyde, Lamont and Davis will represent the treasury, agriculture, commerce and labor departments and Chairman Legge, the farm board in the forthcoming meeting. Mr. Hoover did not name those outside the government who will participate.

A tremendous public and private construction programme throughout the country, with a resultant boom to industrial activity and employment, may follow the conference. The president has discussed the desirability of such an undertaking recently with government officers and business executives, and today he observed that construction work had lagged because of diversion of capital into the security market during the late speculative period.

He cited postponements of construction by public and private agencies and said these provided a reserve for "prompt expanded action." Abundant capital was assured, he continued, by reason of decreased interest rates.

"The next practical step," the president said, "is the organizing and coordination of a forward movement of business through the revival of construction, the stimulation of exports and of other legitimate business expansion, especially to take such action in concert with the use of our new powers to assist agriculture."

As a prelude to President Hoover's announcement, a vast amount of preliminary work and study had been instituted. Washington officials tonight were not prepared to reveal the extent of this since much of the subject matter will remain for the conference itself to confirm after assembly.

One branch of the preparatory enterprise has involved a survey of the entire field of public construction susceptible of being undertaken in the United States next year by the federal government, state government, and localities. It is understood that the work of investigating this line of possible effort has been done partly by the commerce department and partly by a standing committee on the business cycle organized several years ago by the president when secretary of commerce and including in its membership economists of standing and industrial leaders.

The text of Mr. Hoover's statement was:

"I have during the past week engaged in numerous conferences with independent business leaders and public officials with a view to the co-ordination of business and governmental agencies in concerted action for continued business progress.

"I am calling for the midst of next week a small preliminary conference of representatives of industry, agriculture and labor to meet with the secretaries of the treasury, agriculture, commerce and labor together with the chairman of the federal farm board, to develop certain steps.

"For instance, one of the results of the speculative period through which we have passed in recent months has been the diversion of capital into the security market, with consequent lagging of the construction work in the country.

"The postponement of construction during the past month, including not only building, railways, merchant marine and public utilities, but also federal, state and municipal public works, provides a substantial reserve for prompt expanded action. The situation is further assured by the exceptionally strong cash position of the large manufacturing industries of the country.

PLACE BANKERS' CAPITAL CORP. DEFICIT AT $619,241

NEW YORK, Nov. 15.—(AP)—An examination of the books of the bankrupt Bankers' Capital Corp., revealed a deficit of $619,241, the Irving Trust Co., receivers, announced today. This amount does not relate to the 12 other companies affiliated with the defunct New York concern.

W. H. Milholland, deputy attorney-general, has estimated that loss to customers of all 13 of the "circle of companies" will amount to between six and ten million dollars. Milholland is investigating the Bankers' Capital Corp. for fraud and stock security sales for the state bureau of securities.

Col. D. W. MacCormack, chief of the receivership department of the Irving Trust Co., disclosed that the chief assets of the Bankers' Capital Corp. consist of $1,850,592, which was in the form of call loans placed with related companies. Its chief liability is $2,429,374 owed to the related companies, which included $2,182,103 which was received to be placed in the shape of loans in the call money market.

Colonel MacCormack points out that at least part of this money seems to have been actually loaned on call but "since June of this year it has all been withdrawn from the call market and placed in part to the operations of the bankrupt corporation and in part loaned to affiliated enterprises."

There is nothing to appear that the firm's insolvency was due to any material extent to the recent depression in security prices, he said.

"With the information now at hand it appears that the financial difficulties of this concern have been due to the methods and policies of the management," Mr. Milholland said. "Earnings of Bankers' Capital Corp. have been fictitiously increased by sales of affiliated company securities to other members of the group at large advances over the values as carried on the books. These paper profits have been used in arriving at the so-called surplus out of which dividend payments have been made. A very considerable portion of the cash assets of the group were dissipated in attempts to build up a market for the securities of certain members of the group at exaggerated prices."

The company "loaned on call" more than $2,200,000. Colonel MacCormack revealed, of which $1,650,000 was to the Financial Stocks Estate and $200,000 to the Indiana Investment Estate, both of Massachusetts and controlled by Howard H. Gunder, formerly of South Bend, Ind.

MERIDEN, Nov. 15.—(AP)— Sale of the First National bank of Meriden to the Hartford-Connecticut company, in pursuance to an offer made recently, became assured today when it was announced that holders of more than 51 per cent of the stock in the local institution had accepted the terms.

The Hartford-Connecticut company, which controls banks in Hartford, Rockville, and Middletown, will pay $400 in cash or 12 1-2 shares of no par non-voting stock of the Hartford company for each share of the bank stock.

MONEY, STAMPS, MAIL, STOLEN FROM POST OFFICE

SALISBURY, Conn., Nov. 15.—(AP)—The new post office here, occupied since November 1, was broken into early this morning and an unestimated amount of money, stamps, mail and parcel post packages stolen. Entrance was gained through a window in the rear of the building, the safe was blown open by explosives and the contents rifled.

HINT SURPRISE WITNESS IN McMANUS MURDER TRIAL

NEW YORK, Nov. 15.—(AP)—Reports apparently trustworthy but unconfirmed today told of a surprise woman witness who will testify that she saw Arnold Rothstein, Broadway racketeer, walk from Room 349 of the Park Central hotel on the night of Nov. 4, 1928, pressing his hands to a fatal bullet wound in his abdomen.

The witness, the report said, will be an important factor in the state's case against George McManus, one-time friend of the racketeer, who goes on trial next Monday accused of the slaying.

The woman was said unofficially to be Mrs. Marian A. Putnam, restaurant owner of Asheville, N. C., and her story was understood to be the first testimony directly connecting Rothstein with the room which the state maintains was signed for by McManus.

Reports said that the woman, from a room where she was stopping on the third floor, heard the shot and in alarm opened her door leading to the corridor and saw a man stagger from Room 349. A second figure followed him. She is said to have identified the first as Rothstein. Who the "other man" is—if she recognized him—has not been made public. If the district attorney and his associates know, they are not talking about it.

BRINGS FRAUD CHARGES IN DETROIT ELECTION

DETROIT, Nov. 15—(AP)—An attempt to have the Detroit municipal election of November 5 declared void and a new election held was started here today by supporters of John W. Smith, former mayor, whom Charles Bowles defeated in the race for the mayoralty, by 8,401 votes.

Charges of fraud and irregularities in the voting, coupled with a claim that the Bowles organization had "conspired" to obtain the election, resulted in a special session of the city election commission this noon and the ordering by that body on the arrest of four men in connection with the alleged fraudulent practices.

The charges of fraud were made before the commission by Charles P. O'Neil, attorney for Smith. O'Neil said he had affidavits to prove that "dummy" voters, impersonating qualified voters, were used in several instances. Two affidavits to support this charge were offered by O'Neil.

TEXAS BANKER'S DAUGHTER SUICIDES BY GAS

NEW YORK, Nov. 15—(AP)—Miss Elinar Bell, 25, daughter of a San Antonio, Tex., banker, was found dead today in her gas-filled apartment on Morningside Heights. Police listed the death as a suicide.

The body was found by Miss Jean Douglas, who shared the apartment with her. Miss Douglas found a note in which Miss Bell was said to have expressed despondency.

Miss Bell came to New York a month ago from Washington, D. C., and found employment in the New York Public Library. Her father, Samuel Bascum Bell, is associated with the San Antonio Loan and Trust company, of San Antonio.

DRAINING SALT MARSHES IN DRIVE AGAINST MOSQUITOES

NEW HAVEN, Nov. 15—(AP)—Hamden's drive against mosquitoes is under way. Men are now at work on 100,000 feet of ditches which will drain the salt marshes and destroy the breeding places of this pest. The total acreage of salt marshes is 571.

Hamden appropriated $2,500 to eliminate the insect which has caused many sleepless nights for its residents. The fight is expected to be won when next summer comes.

CABLED PARAGRAPHS

PARIS, Nov. 15.—(AP)—Count De Noblet D'Anglure, an attache of the French foreign office, today was placed on the inactive list for two years because of the part he was alleged to have played in the publication of an official document. Earlier an investigating magistrate had ruled that there was no ground for prosecution of the count on charges of espionage and plotting against the security of the state.

LONDON, Nov. 16—(Saturday)—(AP)—The Express today prints a dispatch from Stockholm saying that the supreme court of Finland in an official communication to the government has demanded annulment of the prohibition law on the ground that on its experience the law has done great evil throughout the country during the last decade.

The court proposes a new law which would restrict liquor sales without absolute prohibition.

ALABAMA FLOOD SITUATION BECOMES VERY SERIOUS

MONTGOMERY, Ala. Nov. 15—(AP)—Alabama's flood situation became increasingly serious tonight with nothing but rain and unsettled weather in sight. Major Streams already were overtaxed from excessive rainfall of almost a week.

Official forecasts of general rains were made late today by P. H. Smyth, government meterologist here. He said there was no indication of fair weather for at least 36 hours.

One death had been attributed to the heavy rains. R. L. Nathan, 38, Sheffield, Ala., lawyer, drowned after his boat capsized in heavy waves and driftwood in the Tennessee river.

Smyth said farmers residing in the lowlands bordering the Coosa, Tallapoosa, Alabama, Cahawba, Tombigbee, and Warrior rivers had been warned daily for three days and reports to his office indicated that these sections had been evacuated. Southeastern Alabama, which experienced disastrous floods last year, was out of the danger zone, at least for the present.

Property loss unofficially estimated at $100,000 had been caused in Birmingham, where 200 Negro families were routed from their homes in low-lying sections. Even cities not on the major streams were experiencing flood conditions.

The Birmingham-Chattanooga highway, near Gadsden was reported under eight feet of water, overflow from the Coosa river. Advices from Mobile said excessive rains had sent rivers and creeks throughout that section of Alabama and southeastern Mississippi into the lowlands.

Four men were rescued from floodwaters of the Luxapalila when they were taken from trees in which they took refuge when their boat capsized.

SHATTUCK EXPECTED $25,000 FOR OPPOSING SUGAR RATE INCREASE

WASHINGTON, Nov. 15—(AP)—Investigating campaigns on the sugar tariff, the senate lobby committee learned today from Edwin P. Shattuck, attorney for the U. S. Sugar association, that he expected $25,000 "or more" for his appearance before congressional committees this year to oppose an increase in this city.

Questioned sharply, Shattuck injected into the testimony a statement that the Cuban Sugar interests were alarmed over possible intervention by the United States in the affairs of Cuba. He attributed this condition to "attacks by irresponsible persons" on the administration of President Machado, and named Joseph Barlow, an American claimant against the Cuban government.

As for his Washington work, the witness said he had appeared before the house ways and means committee and the senate finance committee and also had consulted frequently with Senators Smoot, of Utah, Watson of Indiana, Edge of New Jersey, republicans and Hawes, of Missouri, a democrat.

Royal D. Mead, of the Hawaiian Sugar Planters' association, was called by the committee to explain a statement in a letter he wrote last August stating that the Cuban sugar interests were "crestfallen" by the action of the senate finance committee in refusing to eliminate completely the sugar increases, and felt they had been "double crossed."

Mead said he was merely giving his own odea of what the Cuban interests thought in general.

COMPROMISE OFFERS ON THE TARIFF BILL

WASHINGTON, Nov. 15—(AP)—Compromise offers on the tariff bill in the interest of speeding up senate passage came today from the group of republican regulars which bolted the party leadership yesterday and blocked an adjournment of the special session.

The new organized republican regulars, recruited principally from the newer members, proposed to the democratic-republican independent tariff majority that, as soon as the increased rates for agriculture are put into the measure, the existing industrial duties be restored and the bill rush to conference with the house.

Taking under advisement the peace offer, leaders of the republican independents and the democrats gave assurance that no extended contest against the existing industrial schedules was contemplated. They indicated the interests of speed might best be served, however, by going straight through the bill in the usual manner. Discussions of some of the industrial schedules still are necessary, they warned.

Intimations came from those who participated in the republican uprising against the adjournment that they had received words of encouragement from President Hoover. There was considerable speculation tonight whether the president was behind the peace overture on the tariff, whereby proposed industrial rate increases would be abandoned with the promise that existing duties would be left undisturbed.

VOLUNTARILY RETURNS TO FACE EMBEZZLEMENT CHARGE

KOKOMO, Ind., Nov. 15.—(AP)—William H. Arnold, of Palatka, Florida, whose extradition from that state has been sought for two years in connection with the $500,000 failure of the American Trust company here in 1927, voluntarily returned to Kokomo today to face trial.

Arnold, who was president of the trust company at the time of its failure, was indicted by a Howard county grand jury which charged him with embezzlement, grand larceny, conspiracy to commit a felony, and borrowing money from the bank without authorization of the directors.

Bank Bandits Kidnap Motorcycle Officer

Forced Officer To Accompany Them While They Robbed Bank, Stores, Held Up Two Men and Stole Automobile.

KANSAS CITY, Nov. 15—(AP)—Two young robbers kidnapped Motorcycle Patrolman Edgar E. Willcutt here late this afternoon after he had showed suspicion of their movements, forced him to accompany them on a crime expedition in this vicinity and then released him unharmed on a busy street in the eastern part of the city.

While special police details patrolled the city streets and highways leading out of town, the robbers looted a bank and two stores, besides stealing an automobile. Willcutt was forced to accompany the men in their work which took place in two suburban towns.

Willcutt was kidnaped when he drew up beside a sedan which had aroused his suspicions. Two men leaped out and covered the officer with revolvers, forcing him to enter the machine.

Women who saw the kidnaping reported it to police authorities, who dispatched police reserves in automobiles and on motorcycles to search for the robber car.

While policemen patrolled the streets and highways, the robbers with their prisoner appeared in Hickman Mills, a suburb and after loitering on the streets, entered the general store of George Lorimer, forcing Lorimer and a customer, Roy Cox, to lie upon the floor; the robbers rifled the cash draw of $60.

Prodding the storekeeper and Cox before them, the robbers entered the Hickman Mills bank, across the street, and forced Robert D. Barry, the cashier to open the safe. Scooping $550, the robbers returned to their car, still compelling Willcutt to accompany them.

The highwaymen then drove to Leeds another suburb, and held up a coal and grain company. After the Leeds robbery, the sedan was abandoned and a small coupe parked on the street was stolen.

Eluding a cordon of police thrown around the city, the robbers drove to 30th and Forest streets, Willcutt was forced from the car. His revolver with the cartridges removed, had been returned to him.

N'T'L GRANGE CRITICIZES INCOME TAX REDUCTION

SEATTLE, Wash., Nov. 15—(AP)—The National grange, meeting here in its sixty-third convention, will sponsor one of the greatest problems of co-operative farming and marketing the world has ever seen, Louis J. Taber, Columbus Ohio National master, told delegates and visitors today.

With the delegates preparing for lodge work during the evening session, business was dropped for the week end and the visitors will be entertained in ritual work of the order and on sight seeing trips in the city and to outlying districts.

Four resolutions relating to national subjects brought before the body during a national broadcast period today were tabled to be taken up next week just before the convention adjourns.

One of the resolutions criticized the proposed cutting of income taxes at the present time and said the money could be spent to better advantage by apportioning it according to population among the rural school districts.

"DRY" AGENTS MADE EIGHT RAIDS IN NEW HAVEN

NEW HAVEN, Nov. 15—(AP)—The federal government took steps today to dry up New Haven for the Yale-Princeton game tomorrow.

Eight raids were made, and the squad of raiders, under Chief Enforcement Officer Briggs, of Hartford, were out tonight making unexpected calls on speakeasies. The Breakwater hotel, in Milford, was raided and a five gallon can of alleged alcohol seized. The proprietor, Peter Bernardi, was arrested.

The Waterbury hotel, in West Haven, was also on the agents' calling list but there, officers say, attendants destroyed alleged liquor before they gained entrance.

Among those arrested in this city, was John Cohen, who was taken into custody in his apartment. The agents said they found a suitcase filled with assorted liquors. He was held under $1,500 bail after arraignment.

MONEY BROKER ROBBED WHILE CASHING CHECKS

NEW YORK, Nov. 15.—(AP) — Two robbers today took $1,500 in city checks and $800 in cash from Samuel Oranasky, a money broker, as he was cashing checks for department of street cleaning workers in a D. S. C. garage.

After taking the checks and cash, one of the men struck Oransky on the head with a revolver, fired a shot into the air and threw the pistol away. The men escaped in an automobile.

The D. S. C. employes are paid by check which Oransky cashes for them for a small fee. After treatment by an ambulance surgeon, Oransky found he had $2,000 in cash in another pocket which the robbers had overlooked.

DISCOVERED TUNNEL AT COLORADO PRISON

CANON CITY, Colo., Nov. 15.—(AP)—Discovery of a ten-foot tunnel which reached to the base of the west wall of the state penitentiary was believed tonight by prison officials and guards to have frustrated an incipient attempt to escape from the institution.

The prison officials and guards, who for two days have been conducting an exhaustive search of the prison, found sledges, drills and crowbars in the underground passage. The implements were believed to have been used in digging the tunnel.

Five convicts have been placed in solitary confinement as a result of today's discovery and prison officials announced tonight they believed others may be implicated in a break for liberty contemplated by a group of convicts.

Captain Clyde Smith, in charge of the day guard detail, one of those who entered the tunnel, said one or two hours work more would have sufficed to remove the remaining stones that barred the way to freedom. A small quantity of powder also was found in the tunnel, apparently for use in blasting a hole through the wall if the task could not have been accomplished with the tools the convicts had at hand.

U. S. APPROVES JAN. 21 FOR LONDON NAVAL CONFERENCE

WASHINGTON, Nov. 15—(AP)— The United States has notified Great Britain of its acceptance of January 21 as the date for the first meeting of the London naval conference.

The approval was given in reply to a request of the British government to the United States, Japan, France and Italy, the other powers participating in the conference, asking whether the proposed date was satisfactory.

The American delegation plans to arrive in London, three or four days before the opening of the parley.

The White Star liner Olympic will transport the delegation. While Secretary Stimson would have preferred an American vessel, the Leviathan, the only first class ship of the American Transatlantic service sailing at the time, would land the American commission in England three or four days too late.

DISCOVER PLOT FOR JOLIET PRISON BREAK

CHICAGO, Nov. 15—(AP)—The Chicago Tribune tomorrow will say that wardens at the state penitentiary near Joliet have discovered a convict plot for a break for freedom and that guards have been increased.

Following disclosures of the plot the paper will say, Warden Henry C. Hill cancelled plans of coming to Chicago tonight and remained at the prison.

According to the paper, the convicts' plans, provided for the use of guns and dynamite with which some of the more desperate convicts planned to shoot and blast their way to freedom.

Immediately becoming advised of the plot, the paper will say, Warden Hill called a conference of law enforcement agencies in Will county in which Sheriff A. E. Markgraff and State's Attorney Hialmer Rehn participated. Special deputies will be sworn in to be prepared for any emergency the paper will say.

SENATE VOTES INCREASES IN FARM IMPORT LEVIES

Administration's Recommendations For Higher Agricultural Tariffs Meet With Speedy Response—Many Amendments Carrying Increases in Existing Rates Quickly Approved Without Roll Calls—Move By Senator Walsh to Abandon Extra Session Last Night Failed When Senator LaFollette Voiced Objection.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 15—(AP)—Spurred by demands for more action and less talk, the senate responded speedily today to the administration's recommendations for higher agricultural tariffs.

Before entering upon its second night session with prospects of completing action on finance committee amendments to the agricultural section and taking up the controversial sugar schedule, 44 amendments, carrying 21 increases in existing farm import levies, 10 changes restoring present rates, and three minor reductions were approved at a seven and one-half hour session, without a single roll call.

The higher levies placed in the bill were on all classes of fresh vegetables and fruits, nuts, seeds, flower bulbs and fish. Commodities grown in nearly every state in the union, particularly in the south, northwest, and Pacific coast areas were marked up to encourage domestic producers against imports from Italy, Mexico, Argentina, and other foreign nations.

A move by Senator Walsh, democrat, Massachusetts, to abandon the extra three hour session tonight in the interest of tired and weary senators failed as the day's activities drew to a close. Senator LaFollette, of Wisconsin, a republican independent leader, immediately objected and the Massachusetts senator sat down with a smile directed at equally weary newspaper men in the press gallery.

One of the principal raises approved at the day session would boost the duty on flaxseed, coming principally from Argentina, from 56 to 65 cents a bushel, or two cents higher than that proposed by the house and nine cents above the duty recently proclaimed by President Hoover and provided in the pending bill.

Senator Frazier, republican independent, North Dakota, suggested a 70 cent flaxseed duty, but a compromise was reached on 65 as proposed by Senator Norbeck, republican independent, South Dakota.

Higher duties also were voted on cherries, dried and unsalted fish, vinegar, lemons, limes, grape fruit, plums, prunes, tulip, lily, narcissus and crocus bulbs, preserved chestnuts, shelled Brazil nuts, filberts, shelled peanuts, pecans, beans, blackeyed cowpeas, mushrooms, and onions.

In most all instances where committee amendments were rejected, house increases were approved.

Amendments were being put through with such celerity at one point that Senator Walsh of Massachusetts pleaded for less speed lest the consumer might suffer.

PRES. HOOVER VISITS SEC. GOOD AT HOSPITAL

WASHINGTON, Nov. 15— (AP) — Alarmed by the dangerous condition of Secretary Good, president Hoover went to Walter Reed hospital tonight.

The president decided to go to the bedside of his friend, the war secretary, upon the receipt of a bulletin announcing Mr. Good's condition as more serious than it has been since he was operated upon for appendicitis last Wednesday.

No further official word was immediately forthcoming as to the secretary's condition.

The secretary recognized his chief and made a feeble effort to acknowledge his appreciation. He lapsed into unconsciousness quickly, however, and Mr. Hoover presently depadted.

Mrs. Hoover remained at the white house.

Another consultation of physicians was ordered. It was to begin as soon as Dr. John M. Finney, Johns Hopkins specialist on genito-urinary diseases, could arrive from Baltimore.

The calling of this physician was taken to mean that because of the unusual type of operation which was necessary there had developed serious complications.

The visit of the president to his war secretary provided a touching scene from which Mr. Hoover's closest associates withdrew to leave them entirely alone.

The president entered the sick room with a secret service man. In the room were only Colonel William L. Keller, chief of the Walter Reed staff and Lieutenant Commander Joel L. Boone, the white house physician.

"How are you, my dear friend," the president saluted his cabinet official as he walked into the room.

The secretary's answer was lost to those present; it was so faint.

Then Keller, Boone and Jervis retired and the two remained alone for several minutes.

President Hoover was visibly affected when he left the sickroom, believing that he might have looked upon his close friend and associate for the last time.

CRUISER AND FREIGHTER COLLIDED IN FOG

PARENTS MAKE EFFORT TO RETAIN DAUGHTER'S CUSTODY

NEW HAVEN, Nov. 15—(AP)—Despite a court order giving her in custody of her grandparents, Mary Trentini, 15, today was at the home of her parents hoping against hope that she may be allowed to remain there.

Judge Avery in superior court yesterday granted a writ of habeas corpus to the grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. Vincent Ferrie, West Haven, after a near riot in his court. Counsel for the Ferries, however, did not immediately press for fulfillment of the order because of the bitterness of the two families toward each other.

Mary's parents lost control of their child four months ago when Judge Gilson in probate court, directed she be placed in custody of the grandparents who asserted they were not able to care for her.

Today Mary said "I would rather kill myself than go back to my grandmother's home."

Her father was prostrated by the order of the court and was confined to his bed. Next Tuesday an appeal from the original order of Judge Gilson will be heard and the father will make another effort to keep his daughter.

NORWICH WINDHAM MAN VICTIMS OF HITCH-HIKER

(Special to The Bulletin)

WILLIMANTIC, Nov. 15—Struck over the head with an axe handle wielded by a "hitch-hiker" whom he had befriended, Fred Bolduc of North Windham is suffering from a painful cut today and his car is badly damaged as a result of getting out of control after Bolduc had received the blow. Late Thursday night, Bolduc left his home in North Windham, near the D. J Shippe residence, to go to Sherman's Corners, a few miles distant, for a supply of gasoline. He was returning homeward when he met a stranger on the highway, the latter hailing Bolduc for a lift. The driver stopped and the man sat in the front seat, allowing his left arm to rest on the seat back of Bolduc. They had proceeded to a point near the former Rice homestead when Bolduc was stunned by a severe blow on the head. The car, a touring machine shot across the highway, sideswiped a telegraph pole and mounted two boulders on the left side of the road. Here the machine came to a stop, a partial wreck. Only partly conscious Bolduc managed to leave the car and stagger to his home where he collapsed on the porch in the rear of the residence. Mrs. Bolduc was awakened by the noise of his falling and noting that her husband was bleeding profusely from the head she ran to the home of Constable Wilbur G. Stevens, who with others took the prostrate man into the house. Dr. Charles A. Jenkins was summoned. He found the man unconscious and in serious condition. A suturing process was resorted to to control the hemorrhage. Bolduc did not regain consciousness until this morning when he gave an account of the happenings.

An investigation is being conducted by State Policeman Henry Heinold and other officers of the Stafford Springs barracks. It is understood that one suspect was taken before Bolduc today for identification, but no arrests had been maden p to this evening.

Two axe handles were found in the car, one of them being covered with blood. Bolduc believes that the man must have picked up one of these handles from the rear of the car while he was occupied in driving. Bolduc's conditions was reported as improved this afternoon.

AN ATTEMPTED BREAK AT BURROWS' SUMMER HOME

An unsuccessful attempt was made to enter the summer home on Edgecomb street, now closed for the winter, of Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Burrows of Brooklyn, N. Y., in the past few days. Relatives living nearby, going to the house to look around, discovered marks on one of the window sills on the front of the house and upon investigation found marks on one other front and three rear windows. Several years ago this house was entered and ransacked, but nothing of great value was taken, as everything of that nature had been removed by the family. More secure fastenings were then put on the windows. Mr. Burrows has been here and had the state police making investigations.

DANIELSON

CHRISTMAS CLUB MONEY WILL AMOUNT TO $100,000

(Special to The Bulletin)

DANIELSON, Nov. 15.—Hundreds of thrifty people who during the past year have set aside a fixed amount of money each week will share in early December in the distribution of Christmas club funds by three banks in Danielson. While bankers are reticent as to what these club funds will total, it is known from past releases that the amount will be in the neighborhood of $100,000.

This money has been paid into the different clubs at the rate of from 25 cents to $5 weekly since December of last year. A comparatively small percentage of those who start these clubs fail to maintain them throughout the year. The average club member has what is known either as a $50 or a $100 account, depending upon whether they pay in $1 or $2 each week for a period of 50 weeks. The banks pay interest on these accounts, so that each club member receives a check calling for something more than the amount actually deposited.

Members of these clubs are not exclusively representative of Danielson. As a matter of fact, they represent about every community within a dozen miles of Danielson and of all the agricultural districts.

Approximately a decade and a half ago the Christmas club idea was introduced to Danielson. It caught on immediately and has enjoyed a healthy growth. Scores of people who will get Christmas club checks in December of this year were in the original club and have been in a club every year since.

Experience has taught that those who receive Christmas club checks from local banks are an important factor in boosting Christmas business in Danielson. Many save through the year to have a special fund for Christmas shopping. On the other hand, it is the experience of the banks that a considerable amount of money saved in Christmas clubs is redeposited in savings accounts.

Judge James N. Tucker of East Killingly, who has spent all of his more than 80 years of life in this town, called attention this afternoon to a rather unusual fact. It has to do with the manner in which Old Killingly pond at East Killingly, other reservoirs in that section, notably the Chase, Alexander's lake and Quinebaug lake, maintain close to their normal levels through a drought approaching half a year long which is plaguing this area. Judge Tucker points out that these bodies of water are fed largely by natural springs. A walk around any of these lakes or reservoirs will establish to the satisfaction of anyone that they receive very little water even during wet seasons from feeding streams, though they do get a little at certain times of the year. Great natural springs feed them, and these springs appear to be inexhaustible. That's the chief reason, as Judge Tucker points out, why Danielson never worries any about a water shortage.

Vincent Wereski, 42, resident on a farm in an isolated section of that part of the town of Brooklyn that is north from the Brooklyn-Hampton state highway and on one of the side roads leading to Pomfret, was taken into custody today and, after examination by a physician, committed to the State hospital at Norwich for observation. He was taken to the institution in charge of State Officer Henry Mayo of the Danielson barracks. Recently he acquired a gun. Noting Wereski's condition, members of the household hid it on him. This morning he became other than his normal self, went seeking the gun, after threatening to kill his wife and children, the incident resulting in his being taken into custody and his commitment.

Last evening members of Orient temple, No. 41, Pythian Sisters, held their annual roll call in American Legion hall, where the organization meets at stated periods. Mrs. Ada Thornley presided. About 20 were in attendance. After the formal proceedings of the evening there was a period of entertainment and refreshments were served. The organization is affiliated with Orient lodge, No. 37, K. of P.

While state officers from the Danielson barracks continue to seek information that might lead to fixing the identity of the man who shot at two trains passing along the New Haven road right of way north of Tadpole pond at Jewett City last Saturday night, no definite clue has yet been obtained as to who the responsible party may be. It is understood that Fireman Ernest Tetreault, formerly of Danielson, who was wounded in the leg by one of the bullets fired by the unknown, is recovering nicely.

Miss Ruth Spencer, who has been employed in Hartford, has returned to her home here to be engaged in the same line of work.

Harold Cunningham, Elliott, here today said that there is a good demand for oxen for use on farms, though yokes of them are rarely seen now in this immediate territory.

Saturday will mark the close of the Red Cross roll call in Danielson and will be marked by intensive effort on the part of the workers who have Mrs. Marjorie J. Waller as general chairman.

Mrs. Laurence Mouat of New Britain will be the speaker when members of Sarah Williams Danielson chapter, D. A. R., hold their November meeting Thursday afternoon of next week. The hostesses for the occasion will be Mrs. Arthur G. Bill, Mrs. Ida Field, Mrs. Emma Kech, Mrs. George M. Kent, Mrs. Helen Perkins, Mrs. Eric V. Johnson, Mrs. George W. Webster and Mrs. Nathaniel Hibbard.

Today, Collector Arthur A. Dean received the first of the personal taxes paid in Killingly this year. He will continue collections for a month, and after that time unpaid taxes will be assessed a penalty.

The most popular "talkie" that has so far come to Danielson—Gold Diggers of Broadway—closed a successful return engagement at the Orpheum theater today.

John Z. LaBelle of Ballouville has been re-elected vice-president of the Windham County Farmers' association, in which he has been an active worker for years.

Distribution of tickets for the Brown-New Hampshire football game at Providence, Nov. 23, was made to Boy Scouts assembled for a meeting in American Legion hall this evening.

Dr. Hugh Campbell will come here from Norwich Tuesday at the usual time to hold his monthly chest clinic under the auspices of the Civic federation's health service at the Health station in the town hall building.

Mrs. Walter Chase will have the members of the Ladies' Prayer circle at her home on Broad street for a meeting Tuesday afternoon.

Tonight at his home on East Franklin street Lester Wheeler entertained members of an orchestra of which he is a member and other guests.

Next Thursday evening Orient lodge, K. of P., will confer the second degree on a class of candidates at the lodge rooms here.

Henri C. Jervais of New Bedford is spending the week end visiting with relatives and friends in Danielson and vicinity.

Tyler P. Andrews, who has been the professional at the Webster Golf club during the past season, has gone with Mrs. Andrews and their daughter to spend the winter in Arizona. Mr. Andrews formerly was engaged in the lunch room business here.

Miss Alice Vachon is a patient at the Day Kimball hospital in Putnam, where she has undergone an operation for appendicitis.

Approximately half an inch of rain was added during last night and today to the rainfall of the month in this section, and again, out in the country, receptacles were put out to garner as much as possible of the precious water.

PLAINFIELD

MANY GENEROUS GIFTS TO NEW CATHOLIC CHAPEL

The little chapel in the convent of St. John's church will be completed this week and ready for use. The shrine, though small, is one of beauty, designed to harmonize in pure Gothic style. Contained in the chapel are many memorial gifts from parishioners. The altar is a work of art, in two-tone ivory, and is the gift of the St. John the Baptiste society. Other gifts are a chapel window each, from Rev. John H. Landry, the Ladies of Ste. Anne, the Children of Mary society; two sanctuary windows from Miss Lillian Coffey; cruets from Miss Mae Lavendier; missal stand and altar cards from the Rosary society; pair of candle sticks from Albani Gosselin; pair of candle sticks from Mrs. Theodore Roland; censer and boat from Mr. and Mrs. David P. Arthur Barry; missal from Misses Celia and Lillian Deschamps; crucifix for the altar from Mr. and Mrs. Jeremiah Sullivan; stations of the cross from Pierre Jodoin; ostensonium from Mr. and Mrs. Ronald Lambert; ciborium from Mrs. J. N. Landry; holy water font, Emile Dupere; sanctuary lamp, Edmond Mercier. Another sister arrived this week, Sister Joseph, who will be the convent housekeeper, making a total of four sisters. The convent is not yet completed, although work is being pushed rapidly. Father Landry moved Friday to his new rectory. The old rectory is being refinished inside and receiving a coat of paint outside. The church will be painted later, thus virtually completing improvements on all of the parish buildings except the parish hall.

MOOSUP

BUGLE CALL SERMON ILLUSTRATED BY BUGLER

At the Baptist church, Sunday morning, there was a special Armistice day program. The D. A. R., the auxiliary to the Grand Army of the Republic, the American Legion and the Legion auxiliary, were present sitting together in reserved seats, having marched in with national and post colors and with muffled drum. Patriotic music and hymns were used. Ernest DeForge, a bugler in the navy during the war, stood in the vestibule of the rear balcony and as the minister, Rev. R. W. E. DeWolfe announced each bugle call, with a few words of explanation of the use and meaning of the call, in the army, also its significance for daily living, each call was played, including first call, reveille, mess, fatigue, sick, officers', drill, retreat and To the Colors, to quarters, and Taps. The special address was entitled Life's Bugle Calls. After the service the color bearers and their guards stood at the front until the members of the delegations had filed out and formed two lines to the street. Then, the colors passed out between the lines. Lucius Cranska took motion pictures of the people leaving the church, including the line of march. At the close of the service, The Star Spangled Banner was sung.

Mr. and Mrs. S. R. Kitchen and Charlotte V. Kitchen were in Maynard, Mass., Sunday.

The Moosup hotel is being run by Adelard Maynard, who had charge of the Ashland boarding house for the Ashland Cotton Co.

PUTNAM

SILK PLANT NOT TO BE STARTED UNTIL JANUARY

(Special to The Bulletin)

PUTNAM, Nov. 15—The firm of M. Salzberg & Son, silk manufacturers, which recently took over a lease on the large mill which is part of the former Manahansett Manufacturing company on Canal street, is not expected to commence operations until the first of the year, it was said today by an official of the chamber of commerce. Machinists of the company have been in this city for the past three weeks installing special machinery for the finishing of rayon. Although the work is going through as quickly as is possible, several weeks more will be required before all equipment to be used is ready for the opening of the plant.

The United States Civil Service commission will hold an open competitive examination at Putnam for a position of city carrier for this office. All applicants who are planning on taking the examination must file their application with the district secretary of the First United States Civil Service district for the New England states, at Boston, not later than November 23. To anyone interested in applying for permission to assume examinations, Postmaster Archibald Macdonald will furnish the prospective applicant with further information. The vacancy at the local office was created by the recent resignation of Robert Cassells of North Grosvernordale, a substitute carrier.

Bank employes in this city within a few days will begin the annual task of preparing for release a large fortune, accumulated during the past year by the people of Putnam, to be used in defraying the expenses of the Christmas holidays. Heads of local banks today were unable to estimate the amount of the Christmas club savings to any degree of correctness, since the date of payment is still many days off. Christmas savings checks will be released this year about a fortnight in advance of the holidays.

Linemen working under the direction of Supt. of Alarms Charles T. Thayer have completed the work of installing a fire alarm striker in the tower of St. Mary's church on Providence street. The warning bell in the north end of the city was disconnected several months ago when a new bell was installed in the tower. For a time it was believed that the city would have to adopt a new type of fire alarm, as the striker equipment in the north end church was too small to be attached to the larger bell. However, when the old dealer was retained the fire department officials undertook to repair the striker and place it back into service. The improved design of the tower enables the notes of the fire bell to be heard at a greater distance now than ever before, as a test proved this morning.

An error crept into this column recently when it was stated that the boys of Windham county, through the courtesy of the Y. M. C. A. will be guests of the Brown Athletic association at the Brown-New Hampshire state football game to be played in Providence on Saturday of this week. As a matter of fact the annual grid classic between the two New England universities will not take place until one week from Saturday, November 23.

A meeting of the younger boys group of the Y. M. C. A., will be held at the Congregational church Monday evening, November 18 at 7:30 p. m., the hour of which will be for reorganization and the perfection of a programme for winter activities. A committee consisting of Searls Bradford, Stuart Franklin, Lawrence Duffey and Arthur Watson, has been appointed to assist County "Y" Secretary L. E. Hill and Rev. James F. English in the work of reorganizing the group. A successor to James Gifford, group leader for the past four years, who has resigned, will be appointed at this meeting.

According to announcement made by the state department of motor vehicles, the operator's license of Richard Wheeler of 131 South Main street, suspended last August following a fatal accident in which Wheeler was involved, was returned to him today. Wheeler was given a hearing several weeks ago by a deputy commissioner of the motor vehicle department. Following the introduction of testimony the commissioner reserved his decision. Wheeler was absolved of any criminal liability, in a finding returned by Coroner Arthur G. Bill of Danielson, following his inquest.

James J. Charron of Main street, a former member of the school committee, who is directing the work of enumerating children between the ages of 4 and 16 years of age, enrolled in the schools of the city said today that the annual task is nearly completed and that a report will be made to the school committee in the near future.

Red Cross workers who are canvassing the city soliciting the membership for the annual subscriptions have the work well underway. Early returns indicate that the drive will be a success this year. Contributions made by the people of Pomfret, Thompson and Woodstock all go to make up the Putnam quota.

Several Putnam football fans, including many members of the Yale Alumni association, will motor to New Haven Saturday to attend the Yale-Princeton game.

R., the Outlet company, Providence. With Mr. Casey were Messrs Cullen, Ekan, Cassidy and the McGeagh Bros. It was their first trip here, but assuredly it will not be their last! JEWETT CITY

JERSEY COW'S TWIN CALVES SECOND IN TEN MONTHS

(Special to The Bulletin)

JEWETT CITY, Nov. 15. — Local dairy men are interested in the unusual performance of a 5-year old Jersey cow owned by A. P. Anderson, of Lisbon. On the fifteenth of December last, this cow gave birth to twins, two physically perfect bull calves. Today, Nov. 15, ten months to the day, that same cow again gave birth to twins, this time a bull and a heifer, both calves sound and normal. Several farmers in this section said today that such an occurrence would not happen once in a thousand years. One man, who has been in the live stock business in Griswold all his life, declared that he never had heard of such a thing.

Woman's Horse Is Dead

About two weeks ago there appeared in this column the story of a Griswold woman who advertised in The Bulletin for a horse. As the item read, prospective sellers came galore. One man even had three animals to offer. The woman selected one from the less than 20 that were driven and brought to her door. He was kind and gentle and found to be a good all-around, not too young, sociable animal.

Thursday, a sad visitation came to the owner, for her noble steed, "up and died." There seemed to be no special ailment, and none was reported. The owner doesn't report just how much her equine venture sets her back, but she may think of purchasing again, adding that if she should so decide she knows how to have them trotted up to her door.

All purchasers of new model Majestic radios within 5 days, will be allowed $30 on any used set, regardless of condition. Finance plan without any extra charge. E. S. Hiscox. —adv.

N., presented Mrs. Carpenter a white gold bracelet. Others in the party besides Mr. and Mrs. Carpenter were Mr. and Mrs. Harold Tomlinson, Mr. and Mrs. Louis M. Gingras, Mr. and Mrs. Prentice W. HUNTERS AND TRAPPERS ORGANIZE AT CANTERBURY

Deputy Game Wardens Charles B. Palmer and Lloyd Congdon, of Griswold, Henry Wallace, of Lisbon, and Byron Sheldon, of Voluntown, were at a meeting of over 100 interested sportsmen held in the Canterbury Town hall Thursday evening. With the formation of the Hunters' and Trappers' Club of Connecticut, the following officers were elected: President, Arthur Bennett, of Canterbury; vice president, Charles Rundell; secretary and treasurer, Frank Congdon; clerk, Carl Gallup, all of Plainfield.

The large company listened to a brief talk on Dead Falls and Young Skunks, by William Adams, Stephen Wilbur, of Plainfield, told interesting stories of coon hunting without a lantern, and Byron Sheldon, of Voluntown, who was in Hartford a short time ago to report on local game conditions before the state fish and game commission, gave a talk on angling, naming haddock and smelts.

Constable Oliver Sabin, of Canterbury, reported no difficulty in handling the many interested woodsmen in attendance. Wardens Palmer and Congdon had copies of the 1929-30 fish and game laws. From there the latest additional sections were read. Mr. Palmer declared it the business of the game officers to put a stop as far as possible to put hunting and illegal fishing. Making an appeal to the large company of sportsmen to play the game square and to realize the benefits of protective legislation. Following the business of organization a lunch of hot dogs, cake coffee and sweet cider was provided.

A group of boys of high school age were together in the rear of some buildings at eleven o'clock Armistice day. As the bells began to ring and the whistles to blow, one lad lined his companions up in a circle and told them to uncover and stand silently with bowed heads for three minutes. Every boy responded, a sight most inspiring to witness.

One of the Red Cross chapter committees is the Travelers' Aid committee, Miss Catherine Barnett having charge of this work. Friday, she was notified of the arrival of a girl from Poland and asked to see that she was met at the bus and that she find her relatives. This was done and the girl was safely located with friends. This is a branch of the Red Cross work in this chapter which appeals particularly to those who have relatives or friends arriving in a strange land.

Following three days with late summer temperature early in the evening Friday, which was a freak weather day, with rain, fog and black clouds, the sky cleared between 5 and 6 o'clock and the mercury took a tumble of 10 degrees.

Two of the windows in the Jewett City Trust Co. bank have been decorated with Red Cross flags, the very attractive Roll Call posters and two realistic scenes of Red Croce activities. Two maps sent from headquarters are of interest, especially the one which shows Jewett City's standing as second in percentage of membership in last year's roll call. The other map shows the number of flood districts.

PRESTON

The grange held its meeting Tuesday evening, about sixty being present. The program was in charge of Brother Nathan Hall and it was past masters' night. All the living past masters since the re-organization of the grange in 1905 were present except two, Brothers A. E. Shedd and Sidney Hall. Each of the past masters present gave a talk on grange work as follows: Nathan Hall, G. W. Davis, A. D. Zabriskie, Erva Barnes, Allen Burdick, John Hollowell, Walter McClimon, Fred Benjamin, Harold Muttart. Reference was made to the death of Brother Everett Barnes, the only past master to die since its reorganization. Many interesting facts relating to the history of the grange were recalled by the past masters in their remarks.

The next meeting is to be November 28.

George Clark and family of Providence, were guests of Mr. Clark's parents Sunday.

Friends of Idell Scheiffer, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Jacob Scheiffer, are sorry to learn of her illness.

The Baptist Ladies' Aid society held an all-day meeting at the church on Wednesday.

The leader of the C. E. meeting Sunday evening was Roger Robbins and the topic discussed was Upholding the Causes of War.

C. C. Zabriskie is tax collector for this town.

OUR FATALITY RECORD

Safety drives are underway in a number of states. These efforts are being made because of the recognized heavy death rate from automobile accidents and the belief that through keeping the need of safety before the public many deaths can be prevented.

In these endeavors Connecticut has reason for taking a leading part. This month the motor vehicle department has called attention to the fact that we have an opportunity for the first time to bring about a decrease in our motor vehicle accidents, but pointing out that the fatality record at that time was in excess of a year ago. Hardly had that plea been made for greater safety effort than the lives of three persons were needlessly snuffed out.

Connecticut's fatality record is not a pleasing one. According to a study made by Professor Kirby of Yale for the Hartley corporation, we lead all the states that surround us. Deaths per 100,000 of population were 28 in this state against 22.8 in New York, 20.3 in Massachusetts and 16.7 in Rhode Island. This serves to show the menace which exists on the highways of this state. Instead of there being a decrease there has been an increase amounting to 75 per cent in the last eight years.

What is the result going to be? It is to be sincerely hoped that the next eight years will not show another 75 per cent increase, but it seems evident that more effective action must be taken during that time if the tendency is to be changed.

It is to be realized that Connecticut is a corridor for a vast amount of motor vehicle traffic, that it is obliged to handle the travel that is destined across it by its respective neighbors in reaching each other, but that doesn't mean that all the accidents are chalked up against drivers of other states.

The need for greater care in the highways by all users is apparent. Campaigns to obtain it are opened at various times in other states; they are now underway in both Massachusetts and Rhode Island. But it isn't the now and then policy of being careful that is needed but the permanent practice of safety, and until that exists on the part of highway users throughout the year we cannot expect much reduction in fatalities or accidents.

AIMED AT QUICK ACTION

Indications that the proposed reduction in federal taxation can be put through at an early date in the regular session of congress is, of course, no more than ought to be expected, but it will nevertheless be unusual inasmuch as any such change is invariably accompanied by much wrangling and delay.

Whenever the suggestion of a tax cut is made by the president or the secretary of the treasury it is the cue for those politically opposed to get busy and point out how much greater the reduction ought to be and how it would be much more advantageous for all concerned if the reduction took a different form. It is easy to recognize the play that is made, either for the advancement of political aims or the handicapping of the party in power by trying to put it in a hole.

The idea of a tax cut is not a spontaneous one. It has been under consideration for months because of the surplus that featured the close of the last fiscal year. The desirability of it now, however, is fully recognized. To have it take its usual course and go through the wrangling in congress would surround it with all kinds of uncertainties. It might be gotten into shape by the time for the next payment, that is, so that it would apply on the 1929 incomes without causing confusion, and it might not.

Under the suggested plan, the cutting of the rates by 1 per cent, all would be benefited, those paying the smallest tax and those paying the highest, while there would also be a reduction of the same amount on the corporations from which those interested therein would experience some relief. This means, of course, that the idea of a joint resolution will permit of a quick solution of this matter, give the country a tax cut and allow it to be put into operation in plenty of time to eliminate delays and confusion.

The endorsement that has thus far been given to the plan means that politics has been pushed to one side. That is the proper place for it when such a matter is under consideration, but it will be interesting to see if it is kept there. Favorable action by the house could be expected. What the senate would do, and when, no man knows.

STICKING TO THE JOB

Although there is little to give encouragement to them, the vote in the senate to continue its work on the tariff is in accord with the purpose of the session. That the job should have been completed long ago is recognized quite the same as the obstacles that have been put in its way.

Those who urged adjournment held to the view that little was to be gained by continuing the tariff revision under the present plan, inasmuch as the indications point to the fact that the bill that is being built up by the senate will never prove acceptable to the house.

Those who supported the idea of continuing the effort, and going into night sessions in doing so, apparently feel that they have some prospect of getting through their task, and at any rate it is their belief that they should make the most of the time intervening between now and the opening of the regular session.

On this proposition there was a division of the senate along a new line. It wasn't a decision controlled entirely by the democrats and the insurgent republicans. It was a decision reached by the participation of leading democrats and regular republicans and it now remains for them to not only get the tariff bill through but to get such action on the remainder of it as will meet conditions and stand some show when submitted to the conference committee.

There are features of the senate's action already taken which cannot expect to gain the approval of the house or to escape a veto by the president. They are not going to be eliminated by any action that is taken in the next two weeks and it remains to be seen whether such action as is taken in this period will actually advance the process of tariff making. The impression is gained that the special session has been made a failure so far as the tariff revision is concerned. Whether that view can be changed by what is done in the remainder of the month rests with the action by those who have voted to stick to their job.

HIGH CLASS MEN

From the desire displayed by President Hoover to retain the services of William Phillips in the diplomatic corps it is apparent that there is sincere regret at his resignation. He was picked for the post at Ottawa not only because he was regarded as a desirable representative to initiate that service but because of his recognized ability in that direction. For a quarter of a century he has been engaged in such work and his record is an enviable one.

It was following the successful filling of the post of ambassador to Belgium that he was offered the post of minister to Canada, and he has justified in every way the confidence that was placed in him. Though he has given valuable years of his life to diplomatic service and is thoroughly equipped to continue in that role, there comes a time when he has a right to feel that he owes something to his family. His resignation is based solely upon personal reasons. He wants to give his children the benefit of an education in the United States and that cannot be very well done if his family remains with him at some foreign capital. That is apparently the reason why he has not displayed a willingness to accept an assignment in some other field.

Mr. Phillips is one who rates under the classification of career men, those who have grown more and more valuable to their government because of the term and character of their service, and is the second loss which this government has sustained in this class recently. The first was that of John V. MacMurray, who resigned a short time ago as envoy to China. The better our diplomats are the greater their loss when they give up their work.

ROCKEFELLER FOUNDATION

Fifteen years ago there was established for the benefit of humanity the Rockefeller foundation. It has been steadily at work in a broadening field ever since and in that time it has spent the large sum of $144,189,000 in promoting the physical welfare of the human race.

Fighting disease is a hard and steady task. There seems to be no limit to the opportunities for service and certainly the foundation has found that there is need for its ministrations in all corners of the globe. In the past year it has spent the sum of nearly $21,700,000 in the interest of public health, hygiene and medical education. There has been the development of medical science in 14 countries, assistance has been given to professional public health training in seven countries, additional malaria-control demonstrations and surveys in six American states and 18 foreign countries, assistance in fighting hookworm in 21 countries, aid to national health service in 23 countries as well as the state health departments of 19 states in this country, besides the continuance of studies of yellow fever and the rendition of special assistance in Brazil where there was an outbreak of this disease.

That the money that has been placed at the disposal of this great organization is being devoted to the relief of humanity cannot be questioned when the work and accomplishments are understood. It is being employed in a field that seems limitless, where all kinds of conditions exist, where varying degrees of need prevail but where there cannot fail to be due appreciation for the readiness to help suffering humanity wherever it exists.

THE MAN WHO TALKS

What a man is very naturally is an expression of what he thinks and what he thinks is apt to be colored by his daily contacts. There are two commanding forces working simultaneously in man and in opposite directions; the one works from within outward, and the other from without inward. The philosopher calls the former centrifugal because it is divergent; but the latter tending to concentrate is called the centripetal. The working of these two tend to preserve the right balance in our living. They perform the same function in human living as they do in the revolving machine. If a machine revolves too swiftly it will explode because the pressure from within overcomes the force working in the opposite direction. There is nothing that a man needs more than the right balance. There is an inner life that seeks expression, but it must be controlled otherwise it will run riot.

It is the duty of man to be religious, but even religion may make a man a crank unless it is controlled by the reason. A man's religious fervor may be so intensive as to make him despotic and cruel. We have only to look at the religious persecutions of the early and middle ages of the Christian centuries to see this. This religious frenzy, which may be perfectly honest and terribly sincere, is a centrifugal force working outward with dangerous power, and must be met by the strength of reason. This power from within going out into action leads oftentimes to crime of all descriptions, and the criminal is said to be unbalanced. Hence there needs to be an opposite power of resistance. This we call law, the force that would resist this other expulsive action. The judgment and reason are the forces that tend to hold the expulsive in check.

Probably no two men if called upon to write out a list of 100 of the world's best books would be in entire agreement. Of course what is admitted to be the best book would be in the list. No one would think of omitting the Bible or the great classics of Greece and Rome, Shakespeare, Milton, Bunyan, and Tennyson would probably be in all lists. But after the acknowledged masterpieces of the world had been given, then great divergence of opinion would appear. Sir John Lubbock's great list is not identical with the now famous five foot shelf of the leading books selected by the late President Charles W. Eliot. The reason is perfectly clear because no two intellects are just alike and they do not look at style, subject matter or matter of treatment from the same viewpoint. Would it not be a stupid world if there was not this infinite variety of viewpoints?

On the other hand it is equally important that there are other matters upon which there cannot be an admissible difference of opinion, and that is in the field of the exact sciences. Of course some writers in this field have clearer powers of expression than others, but their conclusions must agree absolutely. It makes no difference whether you study algebra prepared by Professor Loomis or some other great mathematician, they must all come to the same definite conclusions, however different their style of writing may be. But men can write on the tariff or the history of government and differ at many points because they are not exact sciences and and therefore admit of a wide divergence of views. These and many other subjects have no fixed standard. Any subject that requires logic is exact and any divergence is an error. Perhaps that is the reason why mathematics to many is so difficult.

Do we realize at its full value the importance of zeal in the successful performance of any task? In the minds of many zeal is something frothy and shallow, like a soap bubble, and leaves next to nothing to tell of its existence. In other words it is a bit of hot air that is quickly lost in space. As a matter of fact the zeal of some people is of this character, and if they are light weights zeal in their hands is more of a liability than an asset. But take the man of parts, not necessarily the prodigy, but one of robust personality who is literally on fire with some great idea. In that case zeal becomes a steam engine that sets that idea into operation. There have been preachers in all the ages with comparatively small ability and still less education who have been so fired with zeal for the gospel that their names will live forever.

There is not a trade nor a profession anywhere or at anytime in the world's history that does not pay tribute to men of this character. Many lads, disgusted and disappointed because classmates and even professors classed them with boneheads, have left university halls to climb the ladder of immortality by striking something that lighted slumbering fires of personality that no one ever suspected! It is a commonly known tradition at Amherst, handed down from one class to another, that a certain professor said to Henry Ward Beecher at his graduation, "this is the last we shall hear of you!" Beecher was not a great scholar if judged by brilliancy in the classroom. Dead languages and abstruse mathematics did not fire his soul. But when he stood in the pulpit facing thousands of sinful, suffering human beings, he was so gigantic that they saw him and heard him in all parts of the earth. Zeal made him colossal!

I have sometimes wondered if there is not a closed relation between zeal and animal magnetism than is commonly supposed. Is not zeal a sleeping force that animal magnetism sets on fire? If a person has an aptitude for a certain thing whether it be for bodcarrying or representing the United States government at some great foreign court, there is some unusual sleeping force that bestirs itself and that arouses energy to grasp the thing desired. Human desire blazes the trail and zeal urges us to make use of it. Edison did not succeed at first with his incandescent light, but zeal would not let him turn the great idea down, hence he kept at it until it was mastered and he was crowned with immortality. But what was it that fired his co-workers with enthusiasm? Was it not his personal magnetism?

Probably nobody supposes that the old prophet Isaiah saw what would happen 30 centuries after his time. But certainly this far distant age is largely fulfilling some things he predicted. Referring to his great Messianic prophesies, he makes this significant remark: "And they shall beat their swords into plowshares and their spears into pruning hooks; nation shall not life up sword against nation, neither shall they learn war any more." During these many intervening centuries has there been an age that even remotely fulfilled this prophecy? But the work done along this line in the last ten years and especially in the last two years has come the nearest to a literal fulfillment of this prophecy through international agreement of anything that has transpired in the long period since Isaiah's day. The complete international victory is clearly in sight.

HOW AIKEN BORE THE MESSAGE TO LINCOLN ACROSS A HOSTILE STATE.

Norwich citizens of almost every age can recall having heard in whole or in part the copious reminiscences of the late Gen. William A. Aiken, who died last week, aged 96, dealing with his adventures as a despatch bearer for Gov. Buckingham of Norwich during the Civil war. The detailed account of Gen. Aiken's first trip to Washington in this capacity, is, however, not so well known possibly as are his later experiences; and for this reason among others it is herewith reprinted.

In some respects the story of how he carried Gov. Buckingham's message to President Lincoln across the hostile state of Maryland and returned, beset by danger on every hand, with the answer, is akin to the exploit performed in the Spanish-American war by Lieut. Andrew S. Rowan, whose delivery of McKinley's famous "message to Garcia" was later immortalized by Elbert Hubbard.

The account of the experiences undergone by Gen.—then Mr.—Aiken, as obtained from him personally, was published in The Bulletin of Tuesday, April 30, 1861, as follows:

"After the attack on the Massachusetts troops in Baltimore, the subsequent delay in getting the government forces through and the suspension of all communications with the capital, it became imperatively necessary in the opinion of Gov. Buckingham to transmit important despatches to the government and obtain immediate returns. Accordingly Mr. Aiken was selected and started on Monday, the 22d, at 5 a. m. He went directly to Philadelphia arriving there Monday night. In the depot there he found a regiment of Pennsylvania troops waiting to go to Perryville by cars. Mr. Aiken waited in the depot with the soldiers till 3 o'clock Tuesday morning, when all started in the train for Perryville.

"Perryville is a small town opposite Havre de Grace, and just across the Susquehanna river. The price of ferriage across the Susquehanna had advanced with the times, and it was only upon payment of a dollar that the services of a 'grim ferryman' and a leaky scow were secured to help him over.

"At Havre de Grace all sorts of vehicles were in demand at fabulous prices to bring fugitives to and from Baltimore. The price paid for carriages from Baltimore to Havre de Grace was from $50 to $100. Mr. Aiken, with a friend, after considerable effort, secured seats in the wagon of a miller, paying $15 fare to Baltimore.

"Along on the road they met carriage loads of people flying from Baltimore, and large numbers on foot. Squads of people were patrolling the roads, two in every direction, arresting foot passengers, questioning everybody and imprisoning all to whom the least suspicion could be attached.

"They reached Baltimore, a distance of 36 miles from Havre de Grace, at 8 o'clock in the evening of Tuesday, and went immediately to Barnum's hotel. Mr. Aiken's friend, who accompanied him, was well acquainted and well known in Baltimore, and this fact saved him in a great measure from interference or molestation.

"The condition of affairs in Baltimore, and the excitement in the public mind at that time, he says, was terrible. The whole city appeared to be on the ton wave of a blind, unreasoning excitement, a perfect madness, without method or direction. It was worth a man's life to indicate the least shadow of sympathy with union men or the smallest respect for the national flag.

"Mr. Aiken says further that the idea of one regiment of fighting men, or a dozen regiments, going through Baltimore at that time, would have been absurd. The men of Baltimore, he says, will fight to the last gasp and without fear, and we may as well understand that fact at the outset, before being obliged to learn it at a fearful cost of life. He thinks that, considering all the advantages which the Baltimoreans would have in an encounter with troops passing through, and with the feeling then prevalent in the city, an army of 20,000 men would have no easy task to get through the city.

"They started from Baltimore at 10 o'clock Wednesday morning, having secured a carriage to take them to Washington, at an expense of $50. Between Baltimore and Washington they made but a single stop, at a tavern near Annapolis junction. Here they found a small crowd in the bar room, very uncommunicative and inclined to watch them suspiciously. Mr. Aiken overheard one of them remark to another that 'them fellers is d——d northern spies,' and he concluded accordingly that the crowd were not disposed to make any extraordinary demonstration of fraternal affection, or insist upon being unselfishly hospitable.

"They arrived in Washington Wednesday evening at 10 o'clock. Mr. Aiken was the first bearer of written despatches who had arrived at army headquarters for three days. He transacted his business with the war department, had an interview with Gen. Scott and with President Lincoln, received messages in return and was ready to leave Washington at 10 a. m. Thursday.

"He had exercised particular care to conceal the object of his mission from every one but those immediately interested, but in spite of all his caution it became known that he was there as a bearer of despatches, and he was conscious of being very closely watched all the time he was there. Thursday morning he was advised by a friend to leave Washington as speedily and as quietly as possible. Accordingly, Thursday noon, after leaving such directions at the office of the hotel as would mislead pursuers and representing that he was going out to make a call, he went to a private house in the city, took a seat in a carriage with a gentleman and two ladies, who were coming north, and started off.

"The company drove north on a road but little traveled at this time, through Montgomery and Carroll counties, to a little place called Westminster in the latter county, and thence across the Pennsylvania line to Littletown, whence they took the cars for New York via Harrisburg. Mr. Aiken arrived in New York Saturday night, remained there over Sunday, and came home by railroad Monday, reaching here at 2.30 p. m.

"On the same day that Mr. Aiken returned from his momentous mission to Washington, Rifle company D of Norwich set set out for the front, their immediate destination being the rendezvous of the Third regiment at Hartford. The company, of which Capt.—later Gen.—Edward Harland was commanding officer, was 'full to overflowing.'" The Bulletin of April 30, 1861, reports, "and quite a number of the names cut off from the rolls to bring it within the regulation limits."

In front of the Wauregan house, a sword suitably inscribed and similar to those presented to Captains Chester and Peale, commanders of Norwich units who had already left for the front, was presented to Captain Harland by Joseph A. Starkweather, who later developed the open fields near Chelsea parade into what is now Lincoln avenue.

At the Norwich Free Academy Edwin Gavitt, Jr., a pupil, who had enlisted in Captain Harland's company, was presented with a pair of pistols by Principal Elbridge Smith in behalf of the young men of the school.

A YANKEE ABROAD

By DEWITT MacKENZIE

Wales Tricks His Guardians

LONDON—The Prince of Wales has put a hot one across the British government whose business it is to look after the safety of the heir to the world's greatest throne.

Some time ago the cabinet finally succeeded in bullying the prince into giving up his favorite sports of riding to hounds and cross-country racing. His guardians feared, to put it bluntly, that he would break his neck.

His royal highness is a dare-devil rider and, although he is one of the best horsemen in the country, he naturally took a good many tosses at one time or another, as does everyone who pursues jumping.

On one occasion he was kicked in the face by his horse after he had been thrown. The members of the cabinet, and many other people, for that matter, always were on nettles when the prince was risking life and limb over the jumps.

The abandonment of this vigorous pastime was a bitter dose for the prince to swallow but, he took his medicine without a grimace, like the good sport he always has been. Their ease of mind has been short lived, however, for now they are faced with a new and greater worry.

His royal highness is not one to remain inactive; you never catch him sitting about idly; he is a human dynamo when it comes to work and play. So, being deprived of his hunting, he looked about for a substitute, and he lit on the last thing in the world which would please his guardians—aviation. Before he abandoned his horses he cared nothing whatever for flying; now he is one of the most ardent pilots in England

The joke of it is that the prince has been working so quietly at his new sport that the public didn't realize what he was up to. People were somewhat surprised when he started to travel about the country by air some months ago, but as he was merely a passenger with an experienced pilot nobody got much excited about it.

Then the prince bought himself a baby airplane for his journeys, but still England didn't worry, because E. H. Fielden, one of Britain's best pilots, was handling the machine.

Now it develops, however, that the prince has been taking a hand at the controls himself and has been practicing secretly at making landings. He chose Northolt aerodrome which is isolated and gives him the privacy he seeks.

He never does things half-way whether it is flying or playing the banjulele and he has made as many as 15 landings in one afternoon.

To be sure Fielden is in the plane and the machine has dual controls so that he can take a hand if necessary, but the prince has been running the show himself.

The prince's new machine is not an elaborate one. It is low powered and cost only about $3,500, although it does have slotted wings to prevent stalling. The one concession to luxury is rich, crimson upholstery.

Some privileged airmen who have been watching the prince's progress as a pupil say that he bids fair to be an A-1 pilot. Certainly he is taking the thing seriously, and he has plenty of nerve for this rather ticklish form of sport.

The prince's health is said to have benefited greatly since he took to the air. His face is bronzed and his eyes are snapping with the joy of living.

But the guardians' eyes are not snapping with so much joy as they were. They are almost wishing his royal highness would take to horses again. After all a toss from a horse is less likely to cause physical anguish than a toss from an airplane a few thousand feet in air.

Sunday Morning Talk

The Christian Life.

What a wonderful life it is. A life that mere words fail to picture. The best in art, sculpture and literature have done their best to portray its beauty. O that more would give their lives whole-heartedly to Christ. As D. L. Moody when he heard a preacher say the world has yet to see what the Lord can do if the whole life is unreservedly given to their Lord, Moody said, "I will be that man." His life testified to the truth of the words, as one of the officers of the church which he joined said they had never taken in a member that gave as little promise, and a pastor told him that he would serve the Lord better by not trying to pray in public as he made such work of it. His life is a wonderful illustration of what Christ can do for the least of His followers if they give Him first place. That is the foundation stone of a joyous Christian life.

The Christian life in a small degree may be likened to building a beautiful temple. Into that temple goes only the very best material. For we would not have its beauty or strength marred. So into the Christian life should go only the very best. We are not building for a few short years, but for all eternity. Into this life should go only the noblest, truest and best thoughts, deeds and words. For each has a place in the temple we are building each day. As we find in I Corinthians, 3-16: Know ye not that ye are the temple of God and that the spirit of God dwelleth in you?

We all want to make a success of our Christian life. We know if we do our part God has never failed to do His part. He has never failed to keep a promise. So let us strive to do our part. Knowing then our Christian life will not only be a blessing to ourselves but to all we come in contact with. Not be as it was said of one person they had just religion to make them miserable. Christ says, "The day thou seekest me with thine whole heart, then I will be found of thee." Christ will not consider a conditional surrender. What joy and peace fill our hearts when we do this.

The life of confessing Christ in word and deed is the life of full joy and salvation. It is when we confess Christ before men that He confesses us before His Father in heaven. The one who would make the largest success of the Christian life should seize every opportunity to confessing Christ before men. As has been said, "If we make a good deal of Christ, He will make a great deal of us." How many drift away on this point.

We should daily study the word of God. It is just as truly food for our souls as the material food is for our material life. Without it we will as truly starve spiritually as we would physically if we ate no food.

If we would live a true Christian life it will be a life of daily and hourly prayer and communion with our heavenly Father. Like Daniel we will pray, "evening, morning, and at noon." Begin the day with thanksgiving for past blessings and petition for strength and guidance. As F. B. Meyer has said, Watch the morning watch. Do not see the face of man till you have seen the face of God. Before you enter on the day with its temptations, look up into His face and hide His word in your heart.

The working Christian, the one who uses his talents, whether few or many, in Christ's service, is one who enjoys his Christian life and who grows more like his Master. Find some work for Christ and do it.

Start Right.

When the baby starts on his interesting and eventful journey, the mother's diet should have the greatest consideration. It should be simple, including green vegetables, leafy vegetables, milk, and fruits, raw, canned or dried. Bread made from the whole grain the legumes such as beans and peas should be eaten twice a week. The choice of fish, liver, fowl or some form of dark meat should be eaten two or three times a week. It is not a bad practice to add to the diet cod liver oil in some of its forms, which heretofore has been considered as a medicine, but now is counted as a food. Such a diet, with plenty of exercise, sunshine and proper hygiene, will go far toward preventing any evidence of rickets in his lordship or her ladyship, in the first few months of life.

A great many physicians believe that, with the exception of severe illness, almost any mother can nurse her baby. This is true if regular feeding times are established and the baby permitted to empty both breasts at each nursing, and the diet as outlined is continued.

The infant's early life should be supervised by the physician and particularly so if a change in its diet is necessary. The addition of cod liver oil and orange juice to the infant's diet as early as the second or third week, and continued until the twelfth month, will go far toward making the baby a perfect specimen by the end of its first year. Cereals and vegetable soups should be added to its diet under the advice of a physician. Sunshine, sleep, regular feedings, all contribute to the well being of the infant during his first year. Vaccination against all diseases where the benefit is unquestionable, should be taken up with the physician and disposed of as early as possible.

Kind but firm parental control has an important part to play with the well being of the infant, and contrary to popular belief the first two years of life are of more value in establishing the proper mental attitude toward authority than any other period of the baby's life.

By KIRKE L. SIMPSON
Associated Press Staff Writer

WASHINGTON, Nov. 15—Although the world war was 11 years in the past on Armistice day, its aftermath still is vexing diplomatic procedure in Washington a bit.

Probably the German embassy staff was more on the alert for the promulgation of President Hoover's Armistice day proclamation than anybody else and the fact that it was not issued until November 9, two days before the anniversary of the end of hostilities, was a troublesome matter.

Under the proclamation, formally requested by congress in 1926, special display of flags on all government offices and buildings is provided for.

It is diplomatic custom of embassies and legations in any capital to conform to such national occasions and display their own flags. The German embassy has therefore, without important criticism at home, flown its flag on Armistice day in tribute to the valor of all war dead.

Had President Hoover overlooked the issuing of the proclamation for any reason, the embassy would have found itself in a difficult situation.

Government and diplomatic flags would have been flown anyhow, at least so far as the missions of the allied countries were concerned, but the German embassy would have had to decide on a course for itself.

A Dilemma.

If it volunteered a flag display it would risk attack at home; if it failed to show its colors, unfavorable comment in this country almost certainly would have resulted. In complying strictly with diplomatic etiquette and conforming to the presidential request for the hoisting of American flags, however, the embassy avoids either difficulty.

It is to be recalled that the embassy flag figured in a very unpleasant incident at the time of the death of Woodrow Wilson.

Failure to fly it at half-mast at first was due to a distinction made by the German foreign office between official and other ceremonies in the United States.

Mr. Wilson was a private citizen at the time of his death. When President Hoover issued his somewhat belated Armistice day proclamation this year, it fixed the official character of the observance and prevented any similar situation.

Incidentally, no finer tribute to the work of the later Judge Edwin B. Parker as arbiter of the German-American mixed claims commission could be conceived than that which came from his German colleague, Chief Justice Wilhelm Kiesselbach of Hamburg.

It was cabled in full to the German embassy at the time of Judge Parker's death and bore the formal sanction of the German government itself as made public.

A Eulogy.

"Judge Parker's warm heart, his conciliatory attitude and his impartiality were the main factors in overcoming the strained feelings which were prevalent at first," Judge Kiesselbach's cablegram from Berlin said. "His objectivity and determination to arrive at fair decisions made our cooperation not only possible, but a success. The confidence of the German as well as the American interested parties in him was manifested when both approved very heartily his selection as arbiter for the claims of German ship and patent owners.

"Judge Parker has used up his strength and health in this double work. He has contributed in a large degree to the restoration of friendly relations between these two countries. Germany respected and honored him."

BURGESS BEDTIME STORY

Unc' Billy Gets a Dinner.

By Thornton W. Burgess.

I find it much the wisest plan
To make the best of what I can.
—Unc' Billy Possum.

Unc' Billy Possum had climbed over the henyard fence and down inside the yard. He stopped to listen for a moment. All he heard was the faint clucking of some of the hens as they crowded together on the roosts inside the henhouse. Then Unc' Billy made straight for the little door which the hens use. He remembered that little door. He had used it a long time ago. He remembered very well what a good time he had had in that henhouse. He remembered the eggs he had had and how, when he had eaten all he could hold, he became sleepy and curled up for a nap in one of the nests and there was found by Farmer Brown's Boy.

He didn't see Unc' Billy, but Unc' Billy saw him.

"If Ah gets in," said Unc' Billy to himself, "Ah is comin' right out again as soon as Ah gets me a chicken. Ah won' go to sleep in there no mo'."

By this time Unc' Billy was at the little door. It was closed. Such a disappointment as that was! Unc' Billy tried to open that little door. He pushed it. He tried to pull it. He tried to slide it. It would move a little, which was all the more provoking. It would move, but it wouldn't open.

Finally, Unc' Billy gave up trying to get in that way. He climbed up on the roof of the henhouse. There was no way in. Those hens were safe and Unc' Billy knew it. There was to be no chicken dinner for him that night. He knew now that Reddy Fox must have caught a chicken outside. He knew that Reddy couldn't possibly have got into the henhouse.

"Ah done got to get somethin' to eat somewhere," muttered Unc' Billy as he climbed down from the henhouse. "If Ah can fin' enough fo' to keep me tonight, mebbe Ah'll have better luck in the mornin'."

Now, just as Unc' Billy reached the ground, a half-grown rat poked his head out from a little hole under the henhouse. He didn't see Unc' Billy, but Unc' Billy saw him. Unc' Billy didn't move. For a moment or two the rate sat there with his head out. Then he came wholly out and started toward a pan in which Farmer Brown's Boy had brought out some table scraps for the hens. The hens had eaten a part of these scraps. That rat never did reach the pan. Unc' Billy can move quickly when it comes to catching things. He had that rat before the rat knew he was about.

A little later Unc' Billy Possum licked his lips and walked over to the pan. There were table scraps there that smelled very good, indeed, to Unc' Billy. They would do splendidly to top off the rat dinner he had had. He wasted no time. Presently not so much as one scrap remained. Once more Unc' Billy licked his lips.

"Ah done feel better," said Unc' Billy to no one at all. "Ah done feel better. Ah reckon all Ah needs now is a good nap. Ah mus' look around and find a place where I can sleep in peace. That's all Ah wants now, is to sleep in peace."

So Unc' Billy once more climbed the wire at the chicken yard. He made his way over to the old stone wall on the edge of the Old Orchard. He found an opening between the stones that led down to a good-sized hole in the ground, which was one Peter Rabbit often used. But Peter wasn't using it now, so Unc' Billy Possum did. He didn't go to his home in the Green Forest for two reasons. One was that he was feeling sleepy, and the other was that he intended to be right on hand when those chickens were led out the next day.

IN DAY'S NEWS

Counting 257,546 Salmon.

On July 8, 1929, eight men of Naknek, Alaska, counted 257,546 salmon—not sheep—passing through the underwater gates placed by the U. S. bureau of fisheries on the Naknek river.

The law requires that at least 50 per cent of the salmon swimming to the spawning shallows of Alaskan rivers shall escape the nets and traps of the salmon canneries. Only by counting the fish taken by the canneries and by counting the fish that swim up a river, can bureau agents guarantee freedom to every other salmon.

So fences with gates are placed across the chief salmon rivers of Alaska. Canvas painted white is stretched on the river bottom at each gate and bureau representatives with enumerating machines take their posts counting the salmon as they shoot through all the long northern summer day.

Eight men of Naknek, Alaska, set up the new record this past summer, according to the true fish story reported to the National Geographic society by Commissioner Henry O'Malley of the U. S. bureau of fisheries, when they counted 257,546 salmon in one day, which is 32.180 per man, which is 1.787 per man per hour for 18 hours, which is 29 salmon per man per minute.

"So you fired your farmhand?"
"Yep. He's an I. W. W."
"Well?"

The committee is prepared to act as soon as such further information is received as would be supplied by a prospectus that would give a complete presentation of Mr. Kaplan's plan for operating the mill.

The Masonic temple auditorium was filled again Friday night with an audience of over 800 for the second presentation of "Womanless Wedding," which was given under the auspices of the museum committee of Faith Trumbull chapter, Daughters of the American Revolution.

The presentation was again an unqualified success and the spirit of fun and frolic reigned throughout the evening and was ably abetted by a new feature introduced by the two "bad little brothers," a mechanical cat which strolled around the stage.

One of the notable features of the costuming was the uniform of the Putnam Phalanx worn by J. E. Leach as aide to the governor. Mr. Leach is the only member now in the city of this organization, which was formed August 15th, 1858, to perpetuate the memories, customs, and conditions of the American Revolution."

GORDON SUIT ON TRIAL IN COURT IN WORCESTER

(Special to The Bulletin)

WORCESTER, Mass., Nov. 14—Trial was begun today before Judge Nelson P. Brown and a jury in superior civil court in the $5,000 suit of Aaron Gordon of Norwich, Conn., against Louis E. Feingold, a Worcester attorney, in which the plaintiff sought to recover money he claimed to have invested on alleged fraudulent representations made by the defendant regarding rael estate in Worcester. As Mr. Gordon died since the suit was brought, the action is being prosecuted by Miriam G. Kontaff and Clara G. Markoff, his daughters, executrices under his will.

Mr. Gordon claimed that Attorney Feingold, who had represented him in many transactions, advised him to invest in a third mortgage on Worcester property represented to have been sold to a Cleveland man for $18,000. It is alleged that the property was controlled by one Zieve, who was indebted to the defendant and that a scheme was concocted whereby Gordon was to make this investment.

Accbrding to the declaration, Mr. Gordon gave to the defendant his check for $4,500, less interest for six months, for which the defendant was to procure a note secured by an assignment of a mortgage. The papers, for convenience, were to be made out in the name of Mrs. Clara S. Markoff, Mr. Gordon's daughter in Norwich. Mr. Gordon claimed that after the note and assignment were forwarded Attorney Feingold paid $800 to Zieve and kept the balance of the money for his own use.

Atorney Feingold was called as a witness for the plaintiff and produced checks to show that the money was paid for various expenses of the property. He said the sum of $100 as an attorney's fee was all that he kept for himself. Mr. Feingold denied that Zieve was indebted to him, as alleged, or that Zieve concocted any such scheme to secure money from Gordon to pay any such indebtedness. He maintained that the transaction was open and above board in every way.

BEGIN EXCAVATION FOR NORTON MEMORIAL GYM

Men in the employ of Contractor Fred D. Miller, who has the contract for excavation and grading, started work Friday morning on the new Norton Memorial gymnasium to be erected at Norwich Free Academy, just north of Slater Memorial building. The land was cleared of bushes after which work was started on the setting of batter boards.

The bids received on the excavation and grading work are from Fred D. Miller, $1,250; William Ryan and Sons, $1,950; Joseph McCormick, $2,240. The general contract has not as yet been given out, but will be in a short time.

The grading contract calls for the raising of the lawn in the front of the building to conform to the slope in front of Slater hall and the home of Prof. Henry A. Tirrell. This will be accomplished by using the loam that is taken out in excavating for the cellar of the building.

According to plans, the elevation of the ground floor is to be about 6 feet below the present grade and the main floor six feet above the present grade.

CONNECTICUT HAS 1,544 MILES OF GOOD ROADS

There are 1,544 miles of surfaced road in this state providing smooth highways for the enjoyment of Connecticut and other car owners, according to Samuel A. Moyle, president of the Automobile club of New Haven county, and the club executive said that a Connecticut tourist with a vacation before him can really find as much to delight the eye in his own state as he can in other sections of the country, although the urge to get beyond the borders of one's own state is so strong as to be almost irresistible among most drivers.

Mr. Moyle stated that a total of 432,999 miles of the nation's county and township roads were surfaced at the close of 1928. He said this leaves a total of 2,709,889 miles of local earth or non-surfaced roads.

GAVE TALK ON NAPLES FOR WOMENS' FEDERATION

The October meeting of the Womens' Federation of Park Congregational church was held Friday afternoon at 3 o'clock. Mrs. Henry D. Johnson presided and led the devotional exercises. Various reports were read and notice given of the annual meeting and luncheon to be held November 20.

Dr. Frank S. Bunnell gave a most interesting and entertaining talk on Naples, the Land of the Sirens. He began by reading from the Odyssey, the account of the fatal charm of the sirens who cast a spell over every one who came their way.

Naples, governed at different times by various countries of Europe until 1860 when it was united with Italy, still shows traces of these countries in the people, streets and buildings and is the second largest city in Italy, he said. It is a beautiful city on the bay of Naples, mild in winter, hot in summer, but with a breeze that never fails; a fascinating region with a blue cloudless sky and very blue sea. The people live an outdoor life, cooking and washing outside in the street. Over the bay is Mt. Vesuvius, the only active volcano in that particular region, from which smoke issues all the time.

Naples is a noisy city, the people are noisy, clumsy; enormous-wheeled carts rattle over the cobblestones; there is the constant cracking of whips and tooting of automobile horns in the narrow streets. Naples at one time was swarming with beggars, but they are no more, they have been set to work, under Italy's new regime.

Naples' chief attraction is the museum with its treasures in marble, and collection of beautiful bronzes and relics recovered from the buried cities of Herculaneum and Pompeii, which are being restored from time to time.

Dr. Burnell mentioned also, Racina, a poverty stricken town built on top of Herculaneum, a small volcano called petit Vesuv, a miniature Vesuvius, showing volcanic action; Lake Avernus, described by Virgil as the entrance to the lower world because of the dense sulphur fumes issuing therefrom; Copri, an island off the peninsular of Sorento, with its beautiful Blue Grotto.

A wine measure of the greenish bronze from Pompeii, an ointment bottle, lamp, tear bottle, and a Greek vase from the Naples museum were exhibited.

Music was furnished by an orthophonic Victrola through the kindness of the Plaut-Cadden company. Tea was served by Mrs. Frank L. Crowell assisted by Mrs. Lyle Fillmore and Mrs. Harrison Gray, Mrs. John F. Rogers and Mrs. George L. Ingalls poured.

BARS ELECTRIC THERAPEUTICS FROM BEAUTY SHOPS

The therapeutic use of electrical apparatus by persons operating gymnasiums and beauty parlors for the purpose of curing or alleviating of sickness or disease is forbidden by statute, according to an opinion given to Commissioner Stanley H. Osborn, of the state department of health, by Raymond A. Johnson, first assistant attorney general at Hartford. Mr. Johnson also ruled in an earlier opinion that chiropractic physicians are debarred from the use of such equipment or from the practice of natureopathy.

On October 31, Dr. Osborn requested a ruling as to whether persons operating gymnasiums, beauty parlors and the like may by advertisement or otherwise represent themselves as administering therapeutic treatments by means of electric apparatus such as ultra violet lamps, electrically heated blankets, and vibrators and whether they might engage in treating physical or mental ailments by such methods.

In his opinion, Mr. Johnson stated that there can be no doubt from a reading of the statutes that the application of such treatments is restricted by law to practitioners of medicine, surgery, osteopathy, natureopathy, licensed to practice in the state.

"The use of such apparatus is now becoming so universal, and the credulity is so marked," commented Mr. Johnson, "that one may view with apprehension the indiscriminate employment of such apparatus by persons untrained in anatomy, histology, pathology, electric, physiological chemistry and related branches of the healing art.

"It is generally recognized in the medical profession that the application of light rays to the human body may, in some instances, produce such a destruction of tissues or such cellular excitation as to result in cancer or other malignant growths. A possibility of this kind constitutes a menace to public health and safety; and, therefore, the authority charged with the duty of protecting the health and safety of the public, should exercise its regulatory power over the therapeutic use of electrical apparatus, within the defined statutory limits."

SCOUTS TO HUNT TREASURE AT OLD GOLD MINE

Peale will conduct the hike and tell the story of the mine.

There will be an opportunity to pass cooking tests and other outdoor tests. Scouts are asked to bring weiners and marshmallows and flashlights. The return trip should bring the hikers home between 7:00 and 8:00 p. m. The scouts will return by way of the Norwich Town trolley.

GAVE LECTURE ON GERMAN LITERATURE

German literature formed the theme for the lecture Thursday afternoon by Prof. Carola Ernst of Connecticut college, which was given at the Woman's City club room at the Wauregan hotel, under the auspices of the literature department of the club. Prof. Ernst showed the mind of German writers before and after the war. The mass of the people and their writers were opposed to war and taught the advantages of peace, yet when war came there was the natural springing of loyalty to fatherland, she said.

War removed barriers and loosened ties; the post war period shows the drooping of the nervous tension and the sapping of the ethical impulse. The military defeat, the blockade, the revolution and the dictated peace were perhaps a surprise but sympathy with the thought of revolution had been in many minds; the catastrophe was due to the explosion of conflicting wills. No transformation of leaders alone would please those who were not of the military spirit. The passion of idealism was felt to be the supreme need,—a spiritual revival. This is shown in a little poem prefacing a book: "The empire without a soul broke into fragments. x x x x Give the new Germany a soul!"

In the war wreckage the hopes of some bred higher idealism but others dragged them down. For ten years prior to the war the writers were calm and thinking peace. Some poets had inklings of the coming cataclysm, as a poem "Shadow of Life" (written before 1912) is a cry in poetry of abhorrence of war and for human brotherhood. The menace was felt but not all shared the enthusiasm for war and assaults upon militarism occurred in drama. War poetry was pathetic stuff, for the soldier in the trenches felt that the man in the opposite enemy trench was also a human being, and a favorite song "I Had a Comrade" shows that spirit.

There are two phases which may be classed as those of 1914-17 and of 1917-21. In the first period there were a host of poets opposed to war but fighting at the front, and two periodicals "The Action" and "The Storm" were opposed to war. The second period began in weariness and ended in despair,—war plus revolution,—chaos.

The first sign of the new type of literature came from Johannes Becker and sought wider means of expression. "The Twilight of Humanity," treats of morality as a delusion and smells of the reek of decay. Other poets felt the tragedy of the falling night not only for their country but for humanity. A poem called "Gethsemane" voices the thought. "All men are the Saviour x x x We are all deep woe."

Expressionism is the opposite of naturalism in which the poet voices his reaction to glowing visions of the world. The expressionist claims to see the world in imagination discolored in its inner significance.

The majority of expressionist writers are socialists but not in the sense in which that word is understood in America. Their thought carries more of the meaning of our word democracy. They have great hostility toward the bourgeois or middle class, and to the existing order of things and most of them show hostility toward the large town.

The most powerful drama of the expressionist school is "A Tribe" by Fritz von Unruk. This is one of the earliest and has an allegorical tendency.

Two German satirists attack these ideas,— contempt of the bourgeois and hatred of the large town,— by merciless lashings and burlesque.

The new writers are opposed to machines and the mechanic age, believing that mechanical forces are means to keep the workers in subjection. Armin Werner has a vision of towns and towns,—an endless town. George Kaiser's drama "Gas" is a symbol of money, for both capital and the workers are used up by it, and he argues "away with the machine—make way for the man." He stands for social reform to re-discover man; sounds war against mechanism; awakening of man against money,— to the enrichment of their national and spiritual life.

Ernest Toller has the story of the Nottingham lace makers with the title "The Machine Breakers." Count Keyserling thinks Chicago, the city which mechanizes man more than elsewhere in the world. He founded a school in Darmstadt calling the School of Wisdom where the Way of Perfection was sought by means of Indian mysticism, meditation and Hindu ideas, training Germans for the state.

Spengler's famous book "Decline of the West" presents a vast survey of universal history and recognizes four independent civilizations: Indian, Graeco-Roman, Jewish and Western or Germanic. This latter is versing to its close for now the world is controlled by machines; the cultural possibilities of the western world are exhausted. The book evoked fierce criticism and has been called the most impesing since Hegel.

Of novels and drama of the period, 1914-1923, mention must be made of Goering's "Sea Fight" which portrays the spirit of the navy ready to mutiny but going into the fight, and a dying sailor saying, "I have shot well"—"it was the easier way" to obey orders.

Von Unruk's war book "Road to Sacrifice," written 1916, shows a coming change in the army and crystalized the change in the mind of the author himself.

Clara Viebig's book "Heegan's Daughters" reveals the feelings of the German women over the war with its privations and suffering for them at home and when they realized their defeat.

Ernest Toller's "Hinkemann" of 1921 portrays a war cripple beating rats to death upon the stage,—symbolic of the brutality of the struggle for life.

Three writers remaining to be mentioned are two poets and a novelist, who show a quality of detachment. Stephen George is indebted to the French symbolists and has a distate for things ugly and commonplace, and strives to create only that which has eternal values. His themes are always lyrical. He has an aloof spirituality and erects a barrier between himself and the public. He refuses to commercialize his art. Titles are "The Spiritual Landscape" and "Summer of the Soul." His craftmanship is absolutely admirable.

Rainer Maria Rilke deals with mysticism; regards the world as flowering with grace and waits for the flowers to yield their fragrance. The Madonna motive occur often yet there appears the heterodox belief that God is created by man. The poems are in simple every day language and are the high water mark of German poetry.

Thomas Mann is one of the greatest psychological writers since the war. He represents the decay of the bourgeois as he becomes civilized,—claiming that his activities develop him and their absence causes degeneration; if one is not intellectual he should then be healthy; yet he himself is an artist and one of the great intellectuals.

A popular novelist is Jacob Wassermann who is of the Christian type and has a pure concention of Christ. His book "The World Delusion" treats of the problem of the new birth and of the oneness of all humanity.

CONNECTICUT POLICE ALARM SYSTEM IS THE BEST

With the addition of New London, Waterbury and Norwalk recently to the cities whose police departments are equipped with the telephone typewriter, the intensely modern and highly effective method of broadcasting police information, Connecticut now has what is probably the most complete police service of this kind of any state in the country. From the standpoint of the telephone company's experts only two more points in Connecticut are needed to make the police information chain so complete that it will effectually cover all the strategic points of the entire state and make it almost impossible for the criminal, who is within the state and wanted by the police, to make his escape by the usual modes of transportation.

NOTRE DAME-TROJANS GAME IS FEATURE OF NATION'S FOOTBALL CLASHES TODAY

By ALAN J. GOULD
(Associated Press Sports Editor)

NEW YORK, Nov. 15.—(AP)—Featured by the national championship struggle at Soldier field, Chicago between Southern California and Notre Dame, the football conflict promises to reach spectacular heights tomorrow all along the front.

Title hopes, sectional as well as national, will be at stake in every sector to a varying degree, from the hills of Hanover to the Bay of Berkeley.

More than 600,000 spectators alone are expected to witness ten of the outstanding games, east, south and west, representing the greatest average outpouring of college fandom of the entire season.

At Soldier field upwards of 110,000 and possibly 120,000 may witness the intersectional clash between the formidable Trojans and the unbeaten, highly-inspired Ramblers of Rockne.

From 50,000 to 80,000 will see each of such outstanding attractions as Pittsburgh-Carnegie at Pitt stadium, Illinois-Chicago at Champaign, Michigan-Minnesota at Minneapolis, Harvard-Holy Cross at Cambridge, Yale-Princeton at New Haven and California-Washington at Berkeley.

Only the limited facilities of their arena prevent Iowa and Purdue from fighting their battle for the Big Ten championship before as big crowd as any of the day. No game anywhere packs as much promise of brilliant line play or great backfield work as this attempt of the Iowa Hawkeyes, victors over Minnesota, to upset the title aspirations of Purdue.

Southern California entertains similar hopes of stopping the wild rush of Notre Dame toward a national championship. The Trojans of Howard Jones have come 2,000 miles for the attempt, well-equipped with material and weapons. But for their unexpected setback at the hands of California, the Trojans themselves would be in the thick of the national title hunt. They know they can grab a high rating by beating the Hoosiers but it will take super-work to do it.

Pittsburgh, a national contender, faces the game rugged Carnegie team that gave Notre Dame its stiffest test. The Panthers are decided favorites to make it eight in a row for the season but it might take only a single "break" to upset the dope.

Yale also is a strong favorite to wallop Princeton but here again the "breaks" that have been so much in evidence all year may help the Tiger always an opportunist. If Albie Booth, the Eli midget, can outplay Eddie Wittmer the way he outshone Red Cagle and Al Marsters, the blue won't have much to worry about.

Cornell, one of the few remaining unbeaten arrays, tackles its most formidable rival so far in Dartmouth, even though the Green no longer has Al Marsters to rely on. Cornell is better equipped than in some time to turn the tables on the Hanover eleven and may do it, especially if the double pass-defense is effective.

The Big Ten will watch the Purdue-Iowa scoreboard, for a defeat for Purdue would reopen the title chances of such teams as Northwestern, Illinois and Minnesota. These three are favorites respectively over Indiana, Chicago and Michigan.

Nebraska, Big Six champions, will seek the scalp of Oklahoma in the main conference engagement while Missouri is in New York looking for revenge against N. Y. U. for last year's setback.

Tennessee and Vanderbilt, twin contenders for the southern conference title, meet at Knoxville to settle the biggest argument of the day in Dixie.

The big scramble in the southwest centers in Austin, where Texas Christian and Texas come to grips, and in Dallas, where Southern Methodist meets the Baylor Bears. All four have championship aspirations and each game is as much of a toss up as any on the slate.

Utah already acclaimed as the Rocky mountain champion apparently need have no concern about Wyoming.

California's fast traveling Bears are overwhelming favorites to beat Washington, even though the Huskies have taken a second breath and charged in to recover something from the wreck. Oregon and Oregon State will have their own private war at Eugene.

Tiger Harriers Win

NEW HAVEN, Nov. 15.—(AP)—Running over the new Yale course, Princeton today defeated the Yale harriers in their annual cross-country meet by a score of 27 to 28. The race was decided by Bell's triumph over Guad of the Blue team by a good margin.

Captain Wilson Smith, of Yale, won individual honors by crossing the finish line first in the time of 33:16:02. Prior, of Princeton, was second in 33:31.

Mozdy Gets Decision

ERIE, Pa., Nov. 15—(AP)—Leo Mozdy, Erie, won a referee's decision here tonight after ten rounds with Happy Atherton, Indianapolis. The verdict was unpopular.

ACADEMY PLAYS AT STONINGTON THIS AFTERNOON

The Academy plays its eighth game of the season today at Stonington against Stonington high and is on the short end of the odds to win.

This is the first of two out of town games on the Wildcat schedule to close the campaign after seven games at the campus, where the Red and Whitesters were able to win but one game.

Coach Whitney expected to have al his regulars in shape for this afternoon's fray. The locals are now with their backs to the wall after not winning a game in six starts and intend to make Stonington go the limit before doing any scoring or winning any games from them.

Second place in the conference is still undecided and should the Academy win their two remaining games, they can tie Windham for runner-up post to the Westerly champions. Windham, with its conference schedule completed, has six points and the Academy, with two now, can add four more by winning over Stonington today and Bulkeley next Saturday.

On the other hand, the Wildcats, by losing today, would then have nothing higher than fourth place to aim at since Westerly, Windham and Stonington would be assured of positions ahead of them. The game, which will be played at Owen's field, is expected to draw a large crowd.

Stonington has the better record so far this year, having won three games, lost two and tied one, scoring 34 points against 33 for opponents while the local club has one victory, five defeats and one tie with 38 points for and 84 against. However, in taking into consideration these records, it must be remembered that the Academy has met several stronger teams, including New Britain, Warren Warding and Bulkeley of Hartford, than Stonington.

The probable lineup:

N. F. A.—Flather, le; Hertz, lt; Woctaziak, lg; Cruickshank, c; Stevens, rg; Crowell, rt; Berghinzo (Capt.), re; Sherry, qb; Cotter, lhb; Fontaine, lhb; Barber, fb.

WESTERLY WINS EASILY FROM WARWICK HIGH

On a wet and muddy playing field Friday afternoon the Westerly high school football eleven met and defeated the football aggregation of the Warwick high school of Warwick, R. I., by the score of 19 to 0.

The game was one of the conference series in the Rhode Island Interscholastic Football league of which John Martin, of Providence, is the president. President Martin was in Westerly on Armistice day and witnessed the Westerly high and Stonington high game in the Western Connecticut-Southern Rhode Island Interscholastic league. The Westerly high football eleven, as placed by President Martin at that time stood third in the Rhode Island league while the winning of the Armistice day game made the Westerly Blue and White players the leaders in the Connecticut-Rhode Island league.

Point getters in Friday's game were Stenhouse and Mudge with a touchdown each to their credit. Point after touchdown was made by Stenhouse.

The next game for W. H. S. will be that with Chapman Tech, of New London on next Friday at the Westerly Athletic field.

BARROW NOT WORRIED OVER RUTH'S SALARY

FRENCH LICK, Ind., Nov. 15—(AP)—Home runs are not worth as much as they used to be" said Edward G. Barrow general manager of the New York Yankees, on his arrival here today with the Yankee owner. Colonel Jacob Ruppert. While here they plan to discuss terms to be offered Babe Ruth, the Yankee slugger, for the next year or two years.

"There are several players who do well at hitting home runs," Barrow said, "but Ruth is the king of the home run sluggers."

The Yankee officials said they were not worried over differences with Ruth on the salary debate. "There's no hurry in signing the Ruth contract," Barrow asserted. "He'll be paid what he's worth and he's worth a lot. He'll be satisfied. The contract won't be signed probably until after January 1, but Babe will be ready when we go to St. Petersburg, Fla., and we believe will be in good shape when the season opens".

HARVARD TO START FIRST TEAM AGAINST HOLY CROSS

CAMBRIDGE, Mass., Nov. 15.—(AP)—The Harvard varsity football team rested here today while the second eleven ignored a heavy shower to run through a long signal drill.

Though Harvard's objective game with Yale is but a week away, Head Coach Arnold Horween has decided to start his regular Crimson lineup tomorrow against the strongest Holy Cross team Cleo O'Donnell has developed since 1926.

And with the passing of another week we come to another football day.

It looks like a lean day for local fans who will have to go out of town for their pastime. Nothing doing in Norwich.

The chief game of interest is the Yale-Princeton game at New Haven but tickets for this are as scarce as hens teeth. But Princeton money is even more tight.

A guy gives me a hundred smackers to bet on Yale but there's not a soul in town who'll take the money. The stock market must have bit some of the boys quite hard.

Nope, you won't see me at the game at New Haven for the simple reason I couldn't land a ticket. I guess I'll take in the Conn. Aggie-Rhode Island game at Kingston. Ought to be pretty good.

These are about the only two games outside the high school tilts within reach of Norwich for today. As we have done for the past two Saturdays or so we'll take a crack at picking the winners.

In the Yale-Princeton setto we favor Yale by about one touchdown. Late dispatches say Booth is not to play but Mal Stevens has pulled so many fast ones that we expect to see him in the game just the same.

Up in the hills of Hanover we would say that Cornell was the best bet but not by more than two or three points. If Marsters was in we would pick the Green.

The Conn. Aggies should have little trouble in taking over Little Rhody by a good margin, something like 20 to 0, just about three touchdowns to the good.

Penn looks mighty good to us to nose out Columbia by a touchdown or so. It will be a close game and the breaks may decide the contest one way or the other.

Up at Boston John Harvard should have all the best of the argument with the boys from Holy Cross. Horween has decided to start his first squad which should make it easier.

In the mid-west Notre Dame and Southern California battle. This game is just about a toss-up with Notre Dame having a slight edge because of the 2,000 mile trip just completed by the Trojans.

The other games will have to be passed up as they are all more or less guesswork.

Didja hear the one about the fellow who was looking sad and a friend says to him "What's the matter, Joe?" "I got diabetis at 35," is his answer. "Oh, H- -l, you should worry, I got U. S. Steel at 400," says the friend.

CAPTAINS OF COLLEGE TEAMS 50 YEARS AGO TO WITNESS GAME

LEXINGTON, Ky., Nov. 15.—(AP)—Those who sit in the concrete stands at Stoll field tomorrow afternoon probably will see a good football game as the teams of Centre college and Transylvania university meet in their annual clash.

But the event will be much more than a football game. It will be a historic event, commemorating the first gridiron clash in the south. Fifty years ago the football teams of these schools met on the same field, that game in 1879 was witnessed, it is recorded, "by a crowd of ladies and gentlemen" totaling around 500.

Two of the principal participants in that game will be present tomorrow, and they will have a big — though different—part in the program. These are Dr. John L. Patterson, Louisville, and Edward H. Ernst, Cincinnati, who were the captains respectively, of the Transylvania and Centre teams in 1879.

For the benefit of such old foggies as still argue, Dr. Patterson is chancellor emritus and dean of men of the University of Louisville, and Mr. Ernst is a lawyer and capitalist.

FIVE FOOTBALL PLAYERS HURT IN TRAIN WRECK

ROACHDALE, Ind., Nov. 15.—(AP)—Five members of the James Milliken university football team and three railroad employes were injured slightly here today when a Baltimore & Ohio railroad dining car was wrecked by a Monon railroad freight engine at a cross-over.

The football team was en route to Indianapolis from Decatur, Ill. The James Milliken team is to play Butler university at Indianapolis tomorrow.

The wreck occurred while the passenger train was stopped at the Roachdale station. The dining car at the rear of the train was across the Monon tracks. The Monon freight train, northbound and heavily loaded with building stone, approached the cross-over, but failed to stop, and crashed into the diner.

The Baltimore & Ohio train continued to Indianapolis without the dining car. The injured were all able to continue with the train.

The Monon freight engine was derailed by the impact.

Miller Named Wesleyan Leader

MIDDLETOWN, Nov. 15.—(AP)—J. S. Miller, 1931, of Lynn, Mass., was elected captain of the Wesleyan football team tonight. Miller has been a varsity lineman for two years, playing center during the past season. He is also president of the junior class.

Dundee Stops Sullivan

BOOTH NOT TO PLAY AGAINST TIGERS

NEW HAVEN, Nov. 15.—(AP)—Injuries suffered in the Maryland game will keep little Albie Booth, Yale back field star on the side lines tomorrow when the blue faces Princeton in the Yale bowl, Head Coach Mal Stevens announced tonight.

Word that the little fellow would not play came as a startling shock on the eve of the major eastern contest, and increased ten fold the hopes of Black and Orange supporters for a victory in the 53rd meeting of the two teams.

Booth has been at practice all week, although the injury to his left leg prevented him from taking any strenuous part in the work-outs. Wednesday, Stevens announced that Booth would start the game, and then yesterday gave his announcement the lie when he played the lightweight quarterback on the second team.

Bob Hall, who was hurt in the Dartmouth game, has recovered sufficiently and will appear in Booth's place.

The loss of Booth will be felt keenly by Yale as his work in the Army and Dartmouth game, as well as in the Maryland game last Saturday established the star as an almost indispensible part of the bulldog football machine.

He was not at the short practice today, being confined in the Yale infirmary where every effort was made to get the "charley horse" to respond to treatment.

In the event there is improvement, Stevens said, Booth might be in funiform tomorrow although he considered this "very doubtful."

Yale coaches wore a worried look tonight as they debated their course of action in case Bob Hall should be injured. Hall has not been in the best of condition, and he is the only regular quarterback available. Bob Wilson, who started the Maryland game last week, is still suffering from the effects of a knee injury and is not considered in fit condition to play.

The practice today of signals and passing followed Princeton's work-out at 2 o'clock. Coach Roper and his squad journeyed to the Yale field from the Choate school at Wallingford where they have been quartered. Princeton's work out also was extremely light.

The backfield which Stevens will send into the game tomorrow will consist of Snead and Miller, halfbacks, and Dunn, fullback, besides Hall at quarter. Hickok and Barres will be at the ends; Marting and Vincent, tackles; Hare and Captain Greene, guards, with Palmer at center.

In the Princeton lineup will be Wittmer, the Tiger star, and Lowry, halfbacks, Levine, fullback, and Carey, quarterback. The ends will be Yeckley and Lea; Whyte and Barfield, tackles, Duncan and Mestres, guards, and Caldwell, center.

Some 76,000 persons are expected to see the game. The hotels of New Haven were crowded tonight with visitors, and thousands will begin to pour in tomorrow morning on special trains.

COAST GUARD TO PUT ON MILITARY DISPLAY AT NEWPORT

With the annual football game scheduled for today between the Coast Guard and the Navy at Newport, R. I., football fans will witness one of the largest military displays in the history of Newport. The Coast Guard team with a fleet of busses filled with rooters will march into the field with the crack Coast Guard band of 50 pieces.

The Newport Training station will have its 1,200 recruits on the field, also. Seven busses filled with Coast Guardsmen under the command of Commander M. J. Ryan, the Coast Guard athletic officer, will leave New London this morning for Newport.

The Coast Guard-Training Station affair promises to be one of the outstanding service games in the country today. The Coast Guard was defeated by the Navy in 1927, and 1928 by a very close score.

Both teams represent their respective services in football and it is expected that high ranking officers of both services will be present to witness the game.

KENT BEATS CHOATE IN ANNUAL FOOTBALL CLASSIC

KENT, Nov. 15.—(AP)—Kent school won its annual game with Choate today in a most decisive fashion by a score of 14 to 0. Powle scored both of Kent's touchdowns in the first and last periods.

Choate at no time threatened the victor's goal line. On two other occasions Kent was within Choate's five-yard line only to lose the ball, once on a fumble and again on a bad pass.

Three thousand persons saw the game.

OCKFORDS CLASH WITH NEW BRITAIN SUNDAY

The New Britain Nutmegs, leaders in the eastern league of professional football clubs, and who have already clinched the championship of the league regardless of the outcome of Sunday's game, will play their final league game of the season with the New London Ockfords at Mercer field, New London, Sunday afternoon. The game is scheduled to start at 2:30 p. m.

The Ockfords have been pointing towards this game ever since losing the opening game of the season to them at New Britain. They feel that with the advantage of playing on home soil, coupled with the fact that the team has been greatly strengthened during the last two weeks they have a fair chance of taking a fall out of the league champions.

Moore and Herbert, two Norwich boys, have been a great help to the New London firemen, Moore playing a line position while Herbert holds down a halfback berth. Wally Rice, former Bulkeley triple threat man, played his first game with the Ockfords last Sunday and lived up to expectations with his fine kicking, passing and running game. Tony Turello, giant tackle of former Ockford teams and Chapman Tech, played the whole of last Sunday's game and will be in the lineup again tomorrow. At least one new man is expected to participate in the game against the Nutmegs and that is Buck Gavitt, star atckle of the Bulkeley championship team of a few years back. Buck signed contracts yesterday to play the rest of the season with the Ockfords.

New Britain	New London
Kieffer, le	Philopens, le
Hoppe, lt	Gavitt or Moore, lt
Checette, lg	Moore or Quagliano, lg
Prudon, c	A. Camillucci, c
Malone, rg	F. Gadbois, rg
Lawring, rt	Turello, rt
McCormack, re	B. Camillucci, re
Ostertag, qb	Allen, qb
Quanti, rhb	Fulford, rhb

Turner, fb	Grippo, fb

McGRATH OUTPOINTS GARCIA IN EIGHT ROUND BOUT

WATERBURY, Nov. 15.—(AP)— Pat McGrath, New York, 131, outpointed Jimmy Garcia, Worcester, 131 1-2, in the feature eight round Waterbury A. C. bout staged at Buckingham hall here tonight. Mr.Grath's cleverness was too much for the aggressive Bay Stater. Other results:

I., 147; Jerry Possillo, Naugatuck, 151, technical knockout over Mike Stevens, Waterbury, 157, fourth round; Eddie Ellis, Hartford, 181 1-2, knocked out Paddy Jones, Waterbury, 185, first round; Ray Rayo, Hartford, 136 1-2, four round decision over Mickey Todd, Litchfield, 135.

CHAPMAN TECH RESUMES FOOTBALL WITH BULKELEY

(Special to The Bulletin)

NEW LONDON, Nov. 15—Meeting on the gridiron for the first time in eight years, Chapman Tech and Bulkeley are expected to draw a large crowd to Mercer field, Saturday. Both teams were intact tonight for the renewal of their city rivalry, according to announcements from Coaches Billy O'Brien of Bulkeley and Johnny Conway of Tech.

AGGIES MAY BREAK TIE WITH R. I. TODAY

STORRS, Nov. 15.—(AP)—The Connecticut Aggies tonight were reported in excellent condition for their game tomorrow with Rhode Island State at Kingston, R. I.

A special train, carrying approximately 400 students, will leave here early tomorrow morning to attend the contest which will mark the 21st time these two colleges have met in the last 30 years. Each has won nine games, with three tied.

Jewett City Plays Sterling

Sunday afternoon, at 2:30, the newly organized Jewett City Speedboys will meet the strong Sterling Town team at Ashland park, Jewett City. A real hard-fought contest is looked for as there is intense rivalry between the two teams. The Sterling squad has been recruited from the cream of neighboring towns and boasts of a few stars that would be welcome on any college or pro eleven. Billy Wallace, their star fullback, was the outstanding star of the Georgetown 1927 frosh outfit and assisting him will be Pop French, a very able triple threat man, and a galaxy of other stars.

The Speedboys will field an eleven composed largely of former stars, augmented by the addition of several out-of-town luminaries, and will probably line up as follows: Bakanowski and Jake Sawicki, ends; Kid Cobb and Skaradowsky, tackles; Fat Shea and Big Boy Walsh, guards, and Liberty at center. In the backfield, Kaduda, Murphy, Juba and Quarto will cavort. Marinello, Mondor, Deda and Parkhurst will be held in reserve.

Martins Vs. Goodyear Sunday

The J. B. Martin Soccer F. C. goes to Goodyear Sunday afternoon to play the first game of a two-game series with the Goodyear F. C. The second game to be played on the local team's ground the following Sunday, Nov. 24th. The following players will make the trip: F. Orcutt, F. Hargreaves, E. Eccleston, A. Headon, L. Day, H. Seidel, E. Erickson, J. Houston, F. Thompson ,(Capt.); I. Archibald, E. Labenski.

Wesleyan Loses Cross-Country

MIDDLETOWN, Nov. 15.—(AP)—Williams defeated Wesleyan at cross-country here today by a score of 15 to 43. The first five men to finish, Goodbody leading, were Williams harriers. Goodbody's time was 25:36.

ROSENBLOOM OUTPOINTS BRADDOCK

Maxie, heading the New York state athletic commission's list of nominees to fight for Tommy Loughran's discarded championship, stabbed the larky, hard clouting Braddock's face crimson with a fine, straight left hand; lanced on his body with a steady but harmless right, and never allowed Braddock to gain the upper hand. Jimmy had a husky pull in the weights, too, scaling 182 to 173 for Rosenbloom.

A crowd of 14,000 saw Braddock, the right hand hitter who broke Pete Latzo's jaw and knocked out Tuffy Griffith, struggle for ten rounds to penetrate Maxie's defense with his booming shots. Instead Rosenbloom tied Jimmy tight at close quarters, easily assimilated what body punishment came his way, and out-boxed the Jersey boy decisively at long range.

Braddock managed to won two rounds, the second and third.

Despite his inability to reach Rosenbloom successfully, Braddock fought a courageous, aggressive fight, walking continually into Maxie's sharoshooting left without blinking. There were no knockdowns and neither was cut to any extent.

Dominick Petrone, Italian veteran, and Young Zazzarino, New Jersey sensation who recently was knocked out by Al Singer, fought a bristling draw in the second ten although the crowd and a majority of the critics thought Petrone an easy victor. There were no knock downs. Petrone weighed 128 1-2, Zazzarino 130 1-2

TROJAN A. C. TO PLAY AT NEW LONDON SUNDAY

Due to the fact that the Trojans and the New London Boy's club were without a game for this Sunday it has been decided to play off the 4-4 tie game of last week.

The Trojans will present the same lineup as last week. New London's lineup is not known.

Morgan park will be the scene of action, the game starting at 2:30 p. m. sharp.

DIAZ KAYOES BONES IN THE FIFTH ROUND

BRIDGEPORT, Nov. 15.—(AP)—Sindolfo Diaz, of Porto Rico, scored a technical knockout over Jimmy Bones, of this city, in the fifth round of the feature 10-round bout of the Puritan A. A. card here tonight. Diaz weighed 135 1-4 and Bones weighed 135 3-4.

Lou Piquette, 121, of Bridgeport, knocked out Fred Gallagher, 113, New York in the second round of the semi-final. Henry Monguese, 129, New Haven, knocked out Tommy Brown, 128, Norwalk, in the second round. Georgie Paulin, 118, of Bridgeport, outpointed Tony Ballentoni, 116, Portchester, N. Y., in four rounds. Molly Pitcher

All day the great guns barked and roared;
All day the great balls screeched and soared;
All day, 'mid the sweating gunners grim,
Who toiled in their smoke-shroud dense and dim,
Sweet Molly labored with courage high,
With steady hand and watchful eye.
Till the day was ours, and the setting sun
Looked down on the field of Monmouth won,
And Molly standing beside her gun.

Now, Molly, rest your weary arm!
Safe, Molly, all is safe from harm.
Now, woman, bow your head,
And weep in sorrow o'er your dead!

Next day on that field so hardly won,
Stately and calm stands Washington,
And looks where our gallant Greene doth lead
A figure clad in motley weed—
A soldier's cap and a soldier's coat
Masking a woman's petticoat.
He greets our Molly in kindly wise;
He bids her raise her tearful eyes;
And now he hails her before them all
Comrade and soldier, whate'er befall,
"And since she has played a man's full part,
A man's reward for her loyal heart!
And Sergeant Molly Pitcher's name
Be writ henceforth on the shield of fame!"

Oh, Molly, with your eyes so blue!
Oh, Molly, here's to you!
Sweet honor's roll will aye be richer
To hold the name of Molly Pitcher.

Grandma

Mother went through high school,
And through college, too;
You'd scarcely think there was a thing
But mother, when I question her
And ask her if 'tis so,
She shakes her head and says to me,
"Why, child, I do not know."

Then I go to Grandma,
Just everything she knows;
And she answers all my questions
As she sits and rocks and sews.
I often wonder why it is
My Grandma knows so much,
She never went to high school
And colleges and such.

One day I just asked her
How she got her education.
'Twas in the school Experience—
Don't that beat all creation?
She says you're always sure to learn;
It is the best of schools;
You do not have to study books
And learn a lot of rules.

She says that mother too will learn
The things she doesn't know,
And I'll acquire this knowledge
As I shall older grow.
So I shall try to profit
By my Grandma's common sense,
Until I too shall graduate
From the school of Experience.

GRAND TIME AT CLUB 4'S MEETING

Dear Social Corner Friends: Looking over our Corner page Saturday it seemed to me it looked rather slim compared with the week before.

Last Thursday we had our Corner picnic at South Killingly and the sun shone all day and warm, so it brought out more than 50 Cornerites, the most we have had for some time. Moses' Wife, Lindy Lee, Irma and Pontiac were the helpers. They certainly worked hard to make it possible for others to have a good time. The tables looked so pretty with bouquets and good things to eat, with a pumpkin on each table to be guessed on. The one that guessed the nearest to what they weighed got the pumpkin. R. by her good luck guessed the weight of one of them and she put it in Moses' Wife's car. As Moses' Wife and Irma brought the pumpkins to be guessed on, she thought she had left an extra pumpkin, so she gave it away. So when R went to look for her pumpkin it was gone. Irma, seeing the sad expression on R's face, thought to herself, well I will send her a pumpkin and squash by mail which she did. Many thanks, Irma. The entertainment was nice. Bug sang, to the tune of Coming Through the Rye, if a Christian meet a Christian, sent in by Primrose the week before. Mrs. Thompson played instrumental music and the roll was called the same as usual.

At all the social dinners I have attended, I have never seen any old fashioned fried apple pies. It isn't any wonder for they are so hard to make. My grandmother Kies and Caroline Harmon used to make them so they wouldn't stew out. But that was years ago. The way to make them follows:

Fried Apple Pies: Stew dried apple until soft. Make a crust as you would for biscuit but not shorten it, take a saucer, lay on the crust and cut around it, put a spoonful of apple on the crust, turn it over, pinch it down and fry in deep fat. Any kind of sauce will do, only not have it too moist.

My mother one time put bananas inside and we children thought they were great. We can look back and see our times as they used to be.

THE SOUTH KILLINGLY MEETING

Dear Editor and Social Corner Members: It is a long time since I have written but I have read the letters and have attended many meetings and was pleased to see so many, over 60, members present at South Killingly, Nov. 7. It was an ideal day. The tables were decorated with flowers and pumpkins tied with yellow bows, and loaded with an abundance of delicious food, fruit and candy.

The blessing was given by Rev. Coolidge, pastor of that community.

After dinner the members guessed the weight of the pumpkins and those guessing the correct weight won them.

Recitations, piano solos, joke reading and singing completed the programme. Much credit is due to the hostess (Moses' Wife), all having had a good time.

Moses' Wife: Have you any more prize packages to give away? Ha! Ha!

Be True: May I have a slip of your cactus that grows like a century plant? Thanks.

Twice Twenty: Hope you are feeling fine now.

With best wishes. IRMA

THE AMERICAN GOLDFINCH

Dear Editor and Social Corner Members: I appreciate very much Lilil's kind offer to send to me by parcel post her humming bird nest. I should enjoy seeing it and perhaps sometime will let her send it to me. It made me feel as if I truly were one of the Social Corner members to be so graciously welcomed. I have one of the small books called Bird Guide, written by Chester A. Reed that has helped me to place some of our more plentiful bird friends.

Another bird that frequents our gardens is the American goldfinch, or wild canary. They dearly love the seeds of cosmos and our plants, located about eight feet from a side door, have had sometimes three or four of these birds there at one time. I do not notice the song so much but the movement among the stalks and blooms, and looking more closely can discover these little golden and black feathered friends. It is interesting to watch them try for the seeds as their weight on the slender stems makes them sway and bend and often they will try several positions before one stable enough can be found.

Bachelor Button seeds too are one of their favorites and I have often wished I had a camera near by to catch a snapshot of them while poised on these slender stems, having a real thanksgiving feast. After all what makes a real Thanksgiving if it isn't taking graciously such blessings as the Kind Father provides?

SOME CHRISTMAS SUGGESTIONS

Dear Editor and Sisters: First, what is the matter with Club No. 6 that more of you don't write? People will forget we are on the map if you don't do something pretty soon. Let's see how many from No. 6 can get a letter in next week even if it is only Hello! and Goodby! It is the middle of November and about time we had some Christmas suggestions. I am sending in a few that I have found helpful and as every year brings new ideas I think we should pass them on. My Christmas gifts have to be necessarily inexpensive as I have to make a little do a lot. I guess there are a good many others that do to. It seems to me much better to give within our means and rejoice in the giving than to spend so much more than we can afford and begrudge the money spent. I know we all have seen people who really lacked the Christmas spirit that should go with the gift. Last year I made wax flowers, mostly roses and sweet peas. When arranged with the marshmallow gathered down by the salt water during the summer they are bright and make good winter bouquets. If anyone doesn't know how to make them one of the crepe paper manufacturers put out a small booklet that gives very plain instructions and each step is illustrated. This only costs a few cents. When the flower is finished, dip in very warm but not hot paraffin.

It seems as though most every one knows how to do reed work now and dainty little baskets just big enough to hold a paper drinking cup, filled with moss and sprigs of evergreen, black alder berries, rose haws, etc., make delightful Christmas bouquets. They last a long time if the moss is kept moist and then afterwards the basket can be used for flowers. A reed company in New Haven put out a booklet that teaches basketry. Larger baskets can be filled with marshmallow, everlastings lantania and seed pods that have been gilded.

I am making some flower vases this year. I saved all the nice shaped jars and bottles and covered them with the linings from greeting card envelopes. Cut in irregular pieces and glue firmly to the jar and apply two or more coats of shellac or clear lacquer. By sorting the linings over attractive color schemes can be worked out. Cherry bottles, olive jars, jelly or jam bottles and the small orange marmalade jars all acquire new personalities in their new clothes. A very pretty handkerchief box was made by covering a cigar box with these bright papers. A pretty picture was pasted to the cover on the top and inside a small mirror was glued. From fixtures bought at the dime store, a pickle jar and these linings a very pretty lamp was made. An ordinary fruit jar painted inside with enamel paint and a pretty picture cut from a magazine pasted on the outside and shellacked made another attractive lamp. These jars should be partly filled with sand to give weight to the base. A gracefully shaped bottle that originally held vinegar was filled with colored water and the fixtures installed, making a nice bedroom lamp. The shades for these lamps may come from that same store with so "many inspirations" or the frames may be covered with material on hand. I saw some truly beautiful ones made from crepe de chine shirt waists that were in vogue a few years ago. These were ripped up and dyed to match the color scheme of the rooms and with braid from that same store for a finish they were very expensive looking.

And now about chicken feed bags. Some of them are very good quality unbleached cotton and after a trip to the laundry the lettering is all gone. There are so many ways of using them, they make nice curtains either sash or cottage ones. For cottage curtains bind with gingham and leave the top edge for length adjustment. With a stencil pattern and a box of wax crayons there is no end of things you can make with these lowly bags. Mark the design on the cloth, color with the crayons as though on paper only a bit heavier. When all colored lay on a newspaper right side up, cover with a damp cloth and press with an iron not too hot. The colors will not run together nor will they wash out. The pattern can then be outlined if desired but is not necessary. Blas binding of a matching color will finish the edge firmly and be very pretty. If the youngsters want to give gifts tea towels, holders or every day napkins can be made of these bags and a simple design worked on them. I guess I have written aplenty this time and I hope others will send in some ideas too.

Best wishes and sympathy to sick and distressed.

SUMAC (No. 6).

AFTER THE WAR.

Dear Social Corner Readers: Some time since I last wrote. Many have wondered, perhaps, what became of me, so will say present.

Monday many of us celebrated the eleventh anniversary of Armistice day.

Eleven years have passed since that bloody conflict known as the World war, which took from our cities and towns the flower of our countries, the best young men, came to its long and eagerly awaited end, so we celebrated the anniversary throughout our civilized land.

The horrors of those terrible days have not been forgotten, for on Nov. 11th the world stopped its business for a brief period at the hour peace became effected silently to pray for the souls of those who paid the supreme sacrifice.

Everyone well recalls how grief turned to joy when word was flashed; how every city, town and hamlet rejoiced and celebrated the victory.

As years go by, however, the horrors of war and glory of peace will still be felt in many homes. Thousands can never forget sorrow and sacrifice drives them on.

And as the army of Gold Star mothers of today, gray haired, aged and feeble, some of it caused by giving their sons, who lie in Flanders field today. How easy today we can picture mothers with aching hearts as they watched their sons march away to war.

The war department is arranging for them to visit the graves of their sons in foreign soil, also to visit and pay tribute to the graves of our unknown dead, which we hope every Gold Star mother will accept this coming summer. We must not forget hundreds of men—Americans, allied and German soldiers alike—died in those last few hours before the armistice was declared. War appeals to the animal in man, peace appeals to the divine, we are told. Let us have peace. History tells us that Gen Ulysses S. Grant fought both in the Mexican war and Civil war, serving our country and at the end of his life these words were enscribed upon his tomb—Let Us Have Peace.

Now our attention is drawn to the Red Cross drive. Everywhere we see posters with words reading, "Our Greatest Mother," Join! They did nicely in our World war. But little do most of us realize what the Salvation Army lassies did during crises of that war. Ask any of our boys who were across and listen to the reply that they will gladly extend to you.

Nonesopretty: Glad you appreciated the box and contents that I gave you when I left. Hope you enjoyed the contents.

Joan: I only hope you are well and enjoy the topics of the day.

As Thanksgiving day is fast approaching I will wish readers a bountiful Thanksgiving to all. KOCHIA.

TRIBUTE TO LAVENDAR.

Dear Editor and Social Corner Friends: As I have just joined the Corner this is my first letter to the members. Have been a visitor at their gatherings numerous times, and find much pleasure in so doing. It is certainly an inspiration to be with its members in attending their picnics in the open, also the inside meetings, and I know I am one who will get a whole lot of pleasure out of the meetings, besides being associated with a worthy and loyal body of real good people.

I attended Mrs. L. R. Olin's (Lavendar) 81st birthday party held at the dining hall at Willimantic camp ground, September 12th and had the distinction of sitting at her table, as an honor guest. This was a wonderful day for me as well as for her, as I had a long chat with her during the day. I saw at once she was a rare person and seemed to be admired and loved by all. This affair will always linger in my memory. The next time I met Mrs. Olin was at the meeting of Club No. 1, October 9th, in the chamber of commerce building, Willimantic. At the dining table we sat side by side. She was the same Lavendar in her usual good spirits and we all enjoyed her company throughout the day. After the meeting was over I walked down Main street to the garage to get my car for my return trip home, and having overtaken Mrs. Olin who was on her way to her store a little further down the street at this time, I told her I hoped we would meet again in November at the Club No. 1 gathering held in the same place. She replied, she hoped we would. This is the last time I saw her and I was shocked when I read of her death. Mrs. Olin was a wonderful character, a woman that was worthy of all the love and respect one could bestow upon her, and in her passing we may rest assured that she has reached the Great Beyond and is safe with God the Great Master of we all. Let us try to follow the beautiful Christian life that Mrs. Olin carried out while on this earth and fit ourselves for what is sure to come, by being prepared to meet our Saviour when He calls.

MEADOW LARK.

WHEN MY DREAMS COME TRUE

My Kind Friends: With all assembled to do honor to the soldiers Armistice day, it was an inspiring sight. Our colors always make the heart quicken with pride.

I believe a move has been made to remove the gold fringe from the American flag. No yellow there. The American flag is the most inspiring sight in the world and wherever you stray, to the farthest point of the globe, the little flag pinned over your heart entitles you to the protection of the best country on the face of the earth.

I clasped the hand of a loyal soldier, one who has given years of honest service. I was proud to greet him. A century ago his people squared their shoulders and with hand on sword, led their men—and made the supreme sacrifice. Today not one in that crowd realized that fact. Why should they or why care? It was no exception, you people did the same and you are just as willing today to step out and carry on.

I returned home. In my dreams I thought morning had come. I returned to your city to look once more on the lovely decorations and to recall beautiful memories. I saw each merchant, banker, manufacturer and politician open the door of their various offices. Down the street came yesterday's heroes, in search of employment. Our business men turned to them with outstretched hand and a glad welcome shining in their eyes. "Boys, you protected us. In trouble come to us. When you need assistance, feel that we are with you. This is a great country of ours, should the enemy arise tomorow you well-trained men are ready. Always ready. Therefore it is our duty to walk through life with you, shoulder to shoulder. Your success is my success, your God, my God."

As I awoke, my eyes fell on a small pin, formerly worn on an old felt hat. It bore a wreath and the letters G. A. R.—my heroes of olden days, my friends and I breathed a prayer that their influence be always with us.

THE BANSHEE

CLUB NO. 6 TO MEET NOV. 19.

Dear Social Corner Members: Club No. 6 will hold the November meeting next Tuesday, the 19th, at Mechanics hall, Westerly. This is where the meetings were held last winter. Maybug and a good crew of helpers are planning for a good time for all who attend. Come all who can, bring something for the dinner and your dishes. E. L. M.

BACK IN WINTER QUARTERS

Dear Editor and Social Corner Members: Well here I am again in my winter quarters but I find things have not changed very much from a year ago.

I came in time to see the Armistice day parade which I certainly enjoyed and we took a little ride to see the beautiful decorations which were the best ever seen in Danielson.

ANN TENNA (Club 4).

GREETINGS FROM NONESO-PRETTY

Dear Editor and Friends: Well here I am once more, I have not croaked yet so am still here. Monday was a fine day and I was so glad. If I could not go out I listened in on the radio. It was fine. The speaker from Tennessee was great and I could have listened all day to Mr. Metcalf. He was just fine. There were some glad hearts but there were many sad and lonely mothers who saw the young men march by.

God help those dear broken-hearted mothers who waited in vain for their dear ones to come home. They went away brave, young and strong. Some came back but others lie over there. May God give the dear mothers strength to bear up under the awful strain. Nobody but a mother knows how to sympathize with another. My heart knows a mother's love for her child and I hope never to see another war.

Butterfly: I think you will have to send hubby down with that trap. I thought Mr. Rat was going to take off the side of my little cottage but he was outside and I was inside.

Capricorn: I hope you are not homesick in your new home.

Now if any of my friends go by and give their horn just three toots it would be one of the most welcome sounds to my ears and so welcome to know I am not entirely forgotten.

Balsam Fir: Just write me a letter. I could not quite make out your address.

Aries: I suppose Adam is going to hear the mocking birds again?

Well, sisters I think of you all often. So sorry I could not be with you the 7th, but will sometime. May God bless and be with all the sick and those in trouble.

NONESOPRETTY (Club 4).

SOME SMILES.

Dear Social Corner Readers: As you know variety is the spice of life, so for variations this time I'll send a few "smiles."

Two neighbors were having their usual morning chat over the fence in the backyard. One was congratulating the other on her new car, then she asked what she thought of hers. In sudden surprise Neighbor No. 2 said: "I haven't seen it, where do you keep it?"

"Oh," replied Neighbor No. 1, "it isn't like anyone's else, it's like this: I'm the engine, because I'm always on the go, the four sons are the sparkplugs, young daughter is the steering wheel, because we all go where ever she guides us, and—"

Neighbor No. 2 interrupted, "You have forgotten your husband."

"Oh, yes, the other replied, "he is the crank! !"

Two Irishmen were walking to New York when they met a man and asked him how much farther they had to walk and were told they had yet 20 miles more to the great city.

"Faith we'll never reach it this night," said Pat.

"Oh," Mike replied full of hope, "Come on Pat, it's only ten miles apiece for us. Come on."

An Irishman boarded a car with his pipe in his mouth, the conductor said: "Don't you see that sign, 'No smoking allowed.'" The Irishman said: "Yes, but how about that sign, 'Smoke Honest Long Cut.'"

"But," argued the conductor, "you've got your pipe in your mouth."

"Yeah and to be sure I've got my feet in my boots, but it's no sign I'm walking."

Just a few epitaphs for the sister who is collecting them:

This grave belongs to my mother-in-law.
Whose life was cut short by a rap in the jaw.

Here lies the body of Michael Burk,
Who lost his life while dodging work.

Here lies the body of Jonathan Pound,
Who was lost at sea and never found.

Here lies the body of Mary Louder,
She burst while drinking a sedlitz powder.

Say a prayer for Julia Mack,
She sat on the business end of a tack.

Shed a few tears for Tillie O'Toole,
Got a slap in the slats from a balky mule.

Long live the Social Corner.

A CHRISTMAS SUGGESTION

Dear Corner Friends: Where there are two little boys in the family and they have a number of fond uncles and aunts, there is pretty sure to be quite an accumulation of partly worn-out toys. That is the case at our house and with the coming Christmas there will be more.

I do not want my boys to be selfish and I have talked with them about how they can make some other children happy on Christmas by giving up some of their many playthings and books. They are as interested as can be.

Mr. S—— is handy with tools and I can paint, so I've been going through the attic and playroom for old toys with possibilities, and it is surprising how many I found, and it is also surprising how many can be restored to about their former beauty and usefulness by a little skillful repair work and some paint. When Christmas week arrives we are going to have a lot of toys ready for welfare agencies which look after that work, which I hope will make some little children happier.

We will add to the toys clean, whole well mended articles of clothing which our boys have outgrown, and the boys are going to take some of their own money with which to buy candies and nuts.

I believe there are in attics and playrooms in homes toys aplenty to make glad hundreds—yes, thousands—of children. Christmas is only a bare six weeks away now, so it isn't too early to begin this week. Let's go!

I haven't written to the Corner before but am going to take for my pen-name

DOUBLE YOU.

A SCHEME FOR BOTTLES

Dear Social Corner Folks: How small our page was this week. I suppose every one is busy preserving but me. I do very little for I don't think it pays when you have to buy everything. But Christmas will soon be here and I want to do so much that I likely won't do anything. Some time ago someone spoke about flavoring bottles tipping over so easily. I have a scheme all my own that I like very much. Itake a piece of half inch elastic, and fasten at the ends with a push pin and place the bottles behind it. They are always in place. I have mine in the front part of a drawer in a dresser I have in my kitchen but any one can do the same in a cupboard. I have just been trying Miss Tommie Hamilton's recipe for ginger bread. It is wonderful.

Commuter: So sorry I didn't see you when you were here. Mrs. M. told me you were asking for me.

Best wishes to all members and readers. JUST A NUT

USING THE RADIO

Dear Sisters: The radio is a constant source of information to me and I have worked out some helps in conjunction with this information that others may like to try. In the first place if I am busy I am inclined to forget the hour and then find a program has been lost because I forgot. Now, I set the alarm in the clock in my kitchen cabinet so it rings at the time I should tune in and now I miss no more programs.

When taking recipes over the radio I have my grocery list handy and jot down any ingredients mentioned that I may be out of. Then when I am ready to use the recipe I have all the ingredients as in the mean time they have been purchased.

DORIA.

Dear Social Corner Editor and Readers: Last week's Social Corner page had a look as if nearly all of the members had writers' cramp, or for some reason had become paralyzed. Only 13 letters besides notice of Club No. 1's meeting. Meadow Lark wishing to become a member and three poems. The average for many months hasn't exceeded 20. With the great membership a page should be filled with interesting letters every week. Are we slipping?

Quite a number of weeks ago a member whose pen name is represented by one of the signs of the Zodiac, censured quite severely the writers of long letters saying: "Many cannot say what they want to unless they have a 40 acre lot to do it in and the subject won't not be interesting unless they had all that territory to work in." And further along they add, "We know enough to appreciate a story when it is told by an eye-witness," infering that the letters written by some were fiction.

Even with abundant space, with but half a page of letters, we don't see many effusions from the afore-mentioned Zodiac sign. Surely there hasn't been for the past several weeks, not more than 25 acres taken by any of the writers, so there was ample room for other letters of the six-inch variety, but the aforesaid one's letters have been conspicuous by their absence.

"Three years ago I suggested six-inch letters, but no one paid any attention to it," says the aforesaid suggester.

One other member, whose pen name is represented by that which brings to our ears these long evenings music, song and story, through the radio, made a suggestion for six-inch letters, but few seem to take the suggestion seriously.

Betsy Robbet strikes a different key when she says: "For one thing, I would like to commend the writers of long letters. So far I can't see that they us space that is needed for other letters."

The following story I heard many years ago of a lady whose early education had been somewhat neglected, but who claimed to be a great reader, and like some others, liked short stories or letters. She was asked by a caller what reading matter she most enjoyed, whether history, biography, travels or books of fiction.

"I never read Miction's writings," she replied, "but I have short stories. A Mr. Webster writes very short stories which I like very much for brevity."

The caller said: "I don't know of a Mr. Webster, the writer of short stories."

She says: "Why I have his book. She goes to her nearly empty bookshelf and takes down Webster's school dictionary. Short stories for a fact!

Not seeing a letter recently, I have wondered if our Zodiac sign has taken an antenna for a line and some fishing.

Many thanks for the yellow slip.

QUID NUNC.

SOME BIRD RECOLLECTIONS.

Dear Editor and Social Corner Friends: We had such an interesting Corner page on November 2nd. Enjoyed Bricktop's letter about the biblical passages read at the inaugurations and the "Unwritten History" by Quid Nunc was fine.

Glad to hear from White Chrysanthemum regarding flying squirrels. Wonder if I shall ever see one.

Royanco speaks about humming birds so will add my bit.

You know how children like to collect things, whether stamps marbles or what not. Well, an older cousin gave me a small collection of birds' eggs so I must see how many different kinds of birds' eggs I could find. This was, of course, before so much agitation on bird conservation and one could hardly countenance the hobby now, but I certainly learned a lot about the birds in my own locality and I do not think any bird homes were disrupted, for only one egg of each kind was desired.

One bird's nest of great interest was that of a pair of the beautiful cedar wax wings. These birds seem to appear at irregular intervals and though it is possible that they may be around I have not seen any in a number of years. The nest was built in a small elm tree directly over the road but well concealed. The eggs were about the size of a robins, of a smoky blue speckled with brown.

I received many a scratch from briers while looking for catbirds' nests. It seems they are invariably located in a thorny jungle, the nest loosely woven of twigs and entwined with the bark of grapevines.

The first time I heard a cat bird imitating a whippeorwill I was genuinely fooled. His versatility in song is next to that of the mocking bird and his acquaintance is well worth cultivating.

Probably the nests of the oriole and vireo are among the most interesting to children. More than one empty vireo's nest has decorated the walls of a country school room for they are firmly woven and do not fall apart like most old nests.

How jauntily the Baltimore oriole's hang far out of reach of most natural enemies. But there is one pest to make life wearisome. Exploring the interior of one nest that had blown down sometime after the young had flown, I discovered my hand literally alive with tiny lice. The poet had it right when he says "there are no birds in last year's nest" but in this case there was plenty else.

A prize which I did not find but of much interest was the nest of a crane, pretty rare so far inland. The egg, about the size of a small hen's egg was the color of the river on a gray, cold day.

But best of all was the humming bird's nest. For several years my heart was set on finding one as a collector of antiques has his heart set on obtaining some rare piece.

One June day my brother reported seeing a pair about a tree near where he was working. Post haste I went to the oak in question and scanned the lower branches carefully. I had read that the nest resembled a knot and had explored every suspicious knot within reach in all our orchard. But climbing on the wall and balancing precariously I made one more exploration. My fingers touched something soft and fuzzy, the lining of the nest. Then in the palm of my hand rested a tiny white egg, almost transparent and no larger than the little white beans we bake for supper.

The thrill of it! Columbus and the first sight of land, Edison and his incandescent lamp, they had nothing on me for at the age of 12 are not all great discoveries relative?

The humming bird lays only two eggs per brood. My memory of the young that hatched is rather vague save that it looked more like an insect than a bird. If I remember correctly the young are fed by regurgitation similar to the way the pigeon feeds its progeny. After the little bird flew away we took the branch with the nest but it was so fragile it finally tumbled to pieces. It was only three quarters of an inch in diameter covered with lichens and spider webs on the outside lined within with some soft brown stuff like that on the young fronds of ferns, truly royal in its luxurious coziness and the daintiest little home that ever a bird could claim.

Dear Editor and Social Corner Sisters: I was a guest at the Social Corner meeting and found it very interesting. Would like to become a member of the Corner and of Club No. 2. Will take for my pen name ARON

MISS STRATTON COMING FOR SPECIAL DEMONSTRATION

Miss Gladys E. Stratton, of the Connecticut Agriculture college extension service, has arranged to give a demonstration to the local farm bureau group on the use of electrical appliances and kitchen equipment Thursday, December 5, at 10 o'clock, at the home of Mrs. Walter M. Buckingham, leader of the group. Miss Stratton motored here Thursday morning for a call on Mrs. Buckingham.

GAINS UP TO NEARLY 30 POINTS MARKED TRADING IN STOCK MARKET

NEW YORK, Nov. 16—(AP)—The stock market showed signs of being able to stand on its own feet today. Despite considerable week end liquidation in the last hour of trading, stocks generally closed 1 to nearly 30 points higher.

Trading continued in comparatively large volume, 4,339,980 shares changing hands but this was a substantial reduction from yesterday's turnover of 5,569,360. Urgent short covering, which undoubtedly played a large part in yesterday's sharp rally, appeared to have been completed today, and the market showed definite signs of strong investment buying, with the investment rails in particular demand.

Wall street regarded the trend as definitely back to normal trading conditions and comparative stability. Strong interests were still said to be prepared to offer support.

The cheapening of credit was further in evidence, with the reduction of the New York rediscount rate to 4 1-2 per cent. No similar action was announced after the weekly meeting of the Chicago bank, but it is generally expected later. Call money renewed 5 1-2 per cent, the first time the renewal rate has gone below 6 since August 1928.

Trading has been maintained at such a pace this week that the stock exchange decided to continue the three-hour sessions and Saturday closing through next week. The ticker has been able to keep close to the trading on only one day this week, and that was Monday. Commission houses still have a large hangover of trades which have gone awry and must be adjusted. Members offices will be open as usual tomorrow, although the exchange will be closed for trading.

ECHOES FROM THE LODGE ROOMS

PATRONS OF HUSBANDRY

Norwich grange, No. 172, held its regular meeting Wednesday evening with Albert W. Lillibridge, worthy master, presiding, with an attendance of about 113. The election of officers for 1930 took place as follows: Worthy master, Albert W. Lillibridge; worthy overseer, Leonard W. Staubley, Sr.; worthy lecturer, Elizabeth W. Murray; steward, Albert E. Birdsey; assistant steward, Frederick Leffingwell; chaplain, Rev. George W. Potter; treasurer, John Rathbone; gatekeeper, Adele Spaulding; Ceres, Rose Breckenridge; Pomona, Edith Woodmansee; Flora, Beulah Rogers; lady assistant, Amy Coles; member of executive committee for three years, Lee A. Coles; member of board of directors, Grange, Inc., Frederick S. Armstrong. Rev. G. W. Potter extended an invitation to attend a meeting, Nov. 24, at the Norwich Town Methodist church at 7:15 p. m. It was voted to accept and meet at Grange hall at 7 p. m. An enlarged photograph of the worthy master was presented to Norwich grange by the lecturer in behalf of the members as being the first master of the new Grange hall. A Halloween dance held at the hall netted $35. President Alida Boyens of the auxiliary reported that $31 was made at a recent rummage sale. The grange voted to accept an invitation to neighbor with Colchester grange Wednesday evening, Nov. 20, the lecturer to furnish three numbers.

A successful whist, held at the Grange hall Friday afternoon, netted about $10, the prizes going to Mrs. C. S. Perkins, first; Mrs. Bessie Thompson, second; Mrs. A. Smith, third. The lecturer's report of the conference held at Amherst was given. The grange closed in due form to meet again Nov. 27, when a Thanksgiving program will be given at the lecturer's hour.

In her report of the New England lecturers's conference, which was held at Massachusetts Agricultural college at Amherst, Aug. 12 to 15, Mrs. Elizabeth Murray, the lecturer, who traveled by automobile with Sister Ruth Colt and Sister Helmboldt, lecturer of Lisbon grange, said that the first one to greet them on entering Stockbridge hall to register and have rooms assigned was Secretary Ida Richardson of Norwich grange. At the opening session in the evening 800 happy and enthusiastic grange members gathered in Stockbridge hall. Many old acquaintances were; also many new ones.

The meeting started off with community singing. Dr. Arthur W. Gilbert commissioner of agriculture, extended the greetings of the commonwealth, representing Gov. Frank G. Allen. The state lecturer of Vermont responded in his usual witty manner.

Dean Wm. L. Machmer extended a cordial welcome to the grangers on behalf of the college, saying everything possible had been done for our comfort and pleasure and even the road had been literally torn up in an effort to make us feel at home.

State Lecturer Augier Goodwin of Massachusetts presided over the meeting.

The morning session of Tuesday was the Connecticut period. Mrs. Curtis spoke on competitive programs, attendance contests and membership contests, quality not quantity for programs, one-third social to overcome the dryness. Group nights divided into towns make good fun and publicity. Judge a play or speaker by your audience. Hand-clapping does not always mean reception but quietness does.

At 10.30 was the Massachusetts period. It brought out the human element in the lecturer's hour. Whispering is disturbing. Impart education to a grange meeting, that part that will bring a swelling of the heart strings or something to touch the human side of each member, a speaker who gives you something of the human element that grips as you listen. Bring in something of the church, a minister to talk once in a while. There were 332 lecturers present and 25 non-lecturers at this session.

At the afternoon session Tuesday Augier Goodwin, Massachusetts state lecturer, opened the session. Songs, with a live wire song leader started the afternoon off very pleasantly. Address was given by Charles M. Gardner, high priest of Demeter. I wish all you grangers could have been there to have joined in the wonderful ovation accorded to this remarkable man and listened to his talk. The New Lecture and Her Task, was his subject. He contrasted the work of the lecturers a generation ago with the lecturers of today pointing out that at that time it was a local institution made for themselves alone. Today it has to meet the demands of the variety entertainments and other features. The lecturer has greater opportunities to exert influence because the grange, national, state and subordinate is entering into affairs as never before, each grange becoming a vital part of the whole.

Rural conditions are not too good. The church is slipping, country school houses are being closed, aliens are taking the place of the good old stock. The grange is the last line of defense in the community. First the grange must be different and get over the idea of aping other organizations and relying on mechanical agencies. Do not have a player piano or radio. If the grange should go down it won't go down by competition. Brother Gardner in closing said the National grange would in all probability come to New England in 1931 and it is hoped we will beat our record of 1920 at Boston when 9,938 candidates were iniated into the seventh national degree.

Brother Farmer, national lecturer, gave us an hour on recreation games and stunts. We will try some of these games and stunts at our new grange hall. At 7.30 p. m. we all met in different groups as to states, for All New England Night. Connecticut had bands of blue crepe paper around heads and occupied front seats in the center of the hall. Songs and cheers and a musical play were put on by our state lecturer, Mrs. Curtis. Other states did their stunts and it certainly was a colorful gathering and a most enjoyable evening.

Wednesday morning, Home Talent Play production. Block out your plays, don't leave to chance and say oh, they will get the swing of it. Think in character, put yourself in the part. A pleasing feature of this session was putting on a play and showing how to place the characters on the stage and their entrances and exits, also the embracing scenes. This called for a volunteer from the audience and only one lone man dared the footlights but all the audience got a laugh from the much embarrassed lady who was game to show the embraces and the kissing scenes.

At 10.30 a. m. Mrs. Rodman spoke on programs that will attract and meet present demands. Time has passed when a program is made up of a few clippings and jokes. The lecturer must prepare her program long in advance to attract and hold the members and give something different than the movies, patriotic and educational. Agriculture must be brought in but in an interesting way. An ice breaker is to give a prize to the one who shakes hands with the most people in three minutes. A question whether to have dancing or not would have to be decided according to local conditions. It was agreed, but it should not be included in the program if nothing else is planned which will interest older members, or if old faithful members are made to think their is no longer a place for them in the grange.

At 3 p. m. a group picture was taken on the campus after which Chas. M. Gardner, high priest of Demeter, was presented with a new eight-cylinder automobile and $500 in gold as tokens of appreciation for his long years of service in behalf of the grange. The presentation speech was by C. Palmer Chapman, past master of Rhode Island state grange. Mr. Gardner responded freelingly, passing much of the credit accorded to him to Mrs. Gardner who was also present. Without her self denial of his presence while he toured the country on visits to the numerous granges he would have been unable to carry on the work. Mrs. Gardner was presented a lunch kit and a beautiful bound automobile book. She thanked the granges who had expressed their sympathy to her last year during her serious illness. Brother Gardner, son and wife, were invited to the conference to drive the machine home.

At 4 o'clock several trips were taken to Mt. Tom, Mt. Holyoke and Mt. Sugar Loaf. In the evening Prof. Lively of Ohio State university, department of rural economics, gave an interesting lecture on Some Fundamental Principles of Program Building. National Master Taber was unable to be at the conference on account of illness.

Thursday, 9 a. m., was New Hampshire period on music, very good and very inspiring. Two groups, one on each side of stage singing two different songs. A Spanish Cavalier and Love's Old Sweet Song created quite a bit of amusement.

At 10.30 was the Maine period—Training for Leadership, Home Talent Play production. Every lecturer should feel that she has gained real knowledge and some good ideas from these interesting periods and plan better programs for her grange.

Two hundred forty-two registered from Connecticut at the conference and in all a total of about 900 registered.

DEGREE OF POCAHONTAS

Sebequonash council, No. 11, met in the Buckingham Memorial Wednesday evening. The degree work was exemplified. Four candidates were taken in, a large delegation from New London being present, as the degree mistress is from New London, Sister Marion Brewster. She is to be congratulated for the way the team did the work. Two great chiefs were present, Sister Keenan and Sister Payne; also the new deputy, Alice Lockhart, who is to be deputy for the next year. Remarks were heard from Sister Lavinia Prevost, who was deputy for 15 years, and was faithful. Others of the visitors spoke. After the meeting, refreshments were served by the social committee, Marie Retkovske, chairman; Ida Clifford, and their helpers, Mamie Mack, Mary Langlais, Grace Hallisey and several others.

SHEPHERDS OF BETHLEHEM

Rose of New England auxiliary, Shepherds of Bethlehem, held a whist and pinochle party Wednesday evening with Mrs. G. E. Rogers, of 52 Main street, with 25 present.

Prizes were won as follows: Whist, ladies, Mrs. Margaret Orcutt; consolation, Mrs. Gilchrist; gentlemen, Patrick Cleary; consolation, Joseph Touchette. Pinochle, ladies, Mrs. Ethel Hoelck; consolation; Mrs. Charlotte Denison; gentlemen, Michael Duggan, Charles Snow.

A buffet luncheon was served by the hostess, assisted by Mrs. Joseph Touchette.

Guests present from Putnam were Joseph Ryan, Mr. and Mrs. Joseph St. Martin and Mr. and Mrs. James P. Ryan.

I. O. B. A.

Announcement was made by the president, Meyer Blumenthal, at a meeting of Independent Norwich lodge, No. 309, I. O. B. A., Sunday afternoon at their hall on Main street, that memorial services for the deceased members will be held on Feb. 9, 1930, with Cantor Jacobson of Springfield, Mass., officiating. Louis Belt, Nathan Weisinger, Hyman Rogavin, Jacob Temchen and Moses Jennes were appointed a committee to arrange for the services.

Following the secretary's report on the last meeting a report on a special meeting called for the purpose of discussing the building of the memorial home located at the cemetery was read and approved. Louis Belt, chairman of the rebuilding committee, reported on the progress of the building and its completion. It was voted that a petition be sent to the mayor and court of common council asking that the road leading to the cemetery be made a public street.

A committee, Meyer Blumenthal, Louis Belt, Nathan Weisinger and Jacob Temchen, was appointed to visit a sick brother, Abraham Jacobson, who is in the Providence hospital.

GROTTO

Nemrod Grotto is planning to send delegations to ceremonials in other cities in the near future. On Nov. 23 a large number of members will attend the ceremonial of Bela Grotto at Springfield, which will be held at the Masonic temple there.

At the next meeting of Nemrod Grotto on Monday, Nov. 18, plans will be discussed for attending the ceremonials of Syena Grotto at Hartford on Dec. 6 and Obeh Grotto at Bridgeport on Dec. 9.

The officers have received itineraries of the proposed trip of the New England Grottos to the supreme council session at Indianapolis, Indiana, in June, 1930. The present plans call for a New England Grotto special train to leave New York on Sunday, June 15. Edward H. Dyer, of Boston, deputy grand monarch, will be elevated to the office of grand monarch at this convention and therefore unusual interest is being shown by the New England Grottos which will be represented by several bands, drum corps, patrols and several hundred members, in addition to the delegates. The convention headquarters for New England will be at the Hotel Claypool, Indianapolis.

MOOSEHEART LEGION

It was voted to hold the next regular meeting on Tuesday instead of Thursday as that is Thanksgiving day.

Junior Regent Marie La Valle and Chaplain Irene Furns were reported ill, and all legionnaires were requested to call on them. At the next regular meeting there will be nomination of officers. Sandwiches, cake and coffee were served by Chairman Mable Goldberg and Annabell Embaak.

THOUGHT SAFE BY FATHER, GIRL 7, NEW LONDON, CROSSES IN AUTO'S PATH

(Special to The Bulletin)

NEW LONDON, Nov. 15.—Julia N. Howard, 7, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Howard, 432 Williams street, was perhaps fatally injured this afternoon when struck by an automobile driven by Mrs. Lea Simons, wife of William Simons, 517 Williams street. The child is now a patient at Lawrence-Memorial hospital, suffering from a fractured skull, fractured arm and leg and multiple bruises and contusions, besides lacerations of the face and hands. The child had started from her home to go to her class at Winthrop school and had been standing with her father on the sidewalk. Believing that the child was safe in crossing the street and to a point where a playmate was awaiting the girl, the father permitted his daughter to attempt crossing the street. Hardly had the girl reached a point near the tracks of the Connecticut Co., when the automobile approached headed in a southerly direction. Before the child realized her danger or before Mrs. Simons could materially reduce the speed of the machine, the child was struck and hurled to the highway and was rendered unconscious. She was rushed to the hospital, where tonight she is on the danger list.

BOOTLEGGERS' PROFIT DENTED BY CITY COURT FINES

(Special to The Bulletin)

NEW LONDON, Nov. 15. — Mrs. Theresa Paolotti, 225 Shaw street and Fortunato Renzoni, 92 Smith street, were in the police court today on two counts each, of violation of the liquor law, keeping with intent to sell and possession. Through counsel, Mrs. Paolotti and Renzoni demurred to the complaints, the demurrers being overruled by Judge Daniel M. Cronin, who imposed a sentence on the man and woman of $200 and costs for each count. Mrs. Paolotti and Renzoni were arrested yesterday when raiding squads went to their homes after evidence had been obtained that liquor was being dispensed freely at both places. At the home of Mrs. Paolotti about 20 cases of home-brew beer was seized, together with two quarts of whiskey and at the Renzoni home a like amount of beer was found and a quantity of alcohol. Mrs. Paolotti had not been arrested before, but Renzoni was arrested several weeks ago, during raids.

Patrolman William Manice was unable to perform duty today, being confined to his home on Huntington street, by illness

George E. O. Hodges, 88 Ocean avenue, reported to the police today that the automobile which he was driving on West Coit street earlier in the day collided with a car that was parked by the curb, the latter auto being slightly damaged. Hodges said he was unable to learn the owner of the damaged auto.

JEALOUS SAILOR'S TIP DISCLOSES IMMORALITY

(Special to The Bulletin)

NEW LONDON, Nov. 15—Florence and Grace Brown, the former 17, and the latter 20, both of Worcester, Mass., but not related, the former being the daughter of a clergyman; were not tried at today's session of the court on charges of lascivious carriage, for the girls were delivered into the custody of their mothers and the charges against them were ordered nolled. Another girl, Mary Mariano, alias Ferreira, 18, of 76 Everett street, Fall River, was also charged with lascivious carriage, but her case was continued to tomorrow. The girls and three sailors were arrested yesterday by Automobile Patrol Officer Thomas Cavanagh and Policewoman Jane Cassidy at a one-story tenement, 79 Garfield avenue, where the sailors and girls had been living as man and wife. The sailors, however, were not presented in court. The Brown girls ran away from home last Sunday and as Florence Brown had been keeping company with a sailor at the submarine base, it was believed that the runaways would come to New London. It was learned that the girls had arrived in New London and had been taken to the Garfield avenue house by Florence's sweetheart. After being at the house and in the company of three other sailors, the attentions of the bluejackets permitted by the girls displeased Florence's admirer and he tipped the police off as to what was going on at the tenement. The house was raided and all found there were arrested. The Mariano girl, who had been employed as a cashier before coming to this city, had been cohabiting with a sailor at the house for several weeks, and it is probable that she will be sent to a home for wayward girls.

..Stanley Grybuck, U. S. submarine base; Mrs. Nicholas Stabnick and infant daughter, Niantic; Julius Jacot, U. S. Coast Guard, patients at Lawrence Memorial hospital, were discharged today.

PATROLMAN WALTER REHN FOUND ASLEEP IN A CAR

(Special to The Bulletin)

NEW LONDON, Nov. 15.— Patrolman Walter Rehn is the latest member of the New London police department who is slated to walk the carpet in the office of City Manager Holt. Rehn, one of the oldest members of the department in years of service, had charges of violation of the police rules and regulations made against him today, when Captain Charles A. Pinney caused a copy of the complaint to be handed City Manager Holt. The specific charge against the officer is neglect of duty, in being found asleep in an automobile early this morning. City Manager Holt has not assigned a date for the officer's hearing, but will probably do so tomorrow or Monday. In making the charges Captain Pinney called the attention to other infractions of the rules and regulations of the department to the city manager by the officer and requested that Rehn be disciplined.

Rehn failed to make his scheduled call over the police signal box at 4:30 o'clock this morning and Sergeant John Courtney was instructed to make a search for the patrolman. After a tour of the officer's beat, without Rehn being found, the sergeant went to the State Armory garage, Washington street, and found the patrolman asleep in an auto.

In Captain Pinney's submission of the charges is also contained the information that Nov. 10 Rehn could not be found on his beat and when a search was made for the officer he was found at the quarters of the Northwest Hose company. Also on the night of Nov. 14, Rehn did not make a telephone report until 14 minutes after the call was supposed to have been made and when inquiry was made as to the delayed report, a reasonable excuse for the tardiness was not given.

Rehn was appointed a member of the department Oct. 1, 1904 and has served continuously since.

Failed to Reduce Speed

Thomas T. Wood, 485 Ocean avenue, was arrested tonight by Patrolman Carlos Stone, charged with violation of the state motor vehicle law in failing to reduce speed at intersecting streets. He will be in court tomorrow.

An automobile driven by Mike Giri, 312 Crystal avenue, and a car driven by John H. Hardgrove, employed at the state police barracks, Groton, collided this evening at the corner of Church and Huntington streets. Both automobiles were damaged, but none of the occupants sustained injury. No arrests were made, as the drivers agreed to an amicable settlement of the damages.

The only other prisoners awaiting trial in the police court tomorrow are three men charged with intoxication. Two of them were arrested this morning but in no condition to be tried at today's session of court.

LONE WHITE MAN CAUGHT IN RAID WITH DUSKY BABIES

(Special to The Bulletin)

NEW LONDON, Nov. 15.—The police late this afternoon raided the resort at 110 Potter street conducted by Marian Lewis, colored. The Lewis woman was arrested on a charge of conducting a disorderly house and Peggy Chappell, 26, colored, but who would pass for a white woman, and is a widow, and Aleck Lorning, white, were arrested charged with frequenting. The Lewis woman was held in bail of $1,000 and the frequenters in bail of $100 for appearance in the police court tomorrow. The Lewis woman's arrest today was her 16th time for offences of conducting a disorderly house or breach of the peace. Moving Pictures at Y. M. C. A. Sunday

"Mother Knows Best" is the significant title of the splendid feature moving picture to be shown on the coming Sunday at 4 o'clock in the large gymnasium of the local Y. M. C. A.

The picture production is adapted from the story by Edna Ferber, with Louise Dresser as the mother and Madge Bellamy as the daughter.

"What Mother Does Not Know" would be a title for this picture more in keeping with the story. Mother did not know, until she learned in terms of bitter experience, that there was something more in life for her daughter than a successful stage career, that every normal girl yearns for the love of a noble man and the joys of motherhood. She learned, almost too late, that material success alone is emptiness and disappointment. A picture worth seeing.

To this service the adult public is invited, and those who have reached their fifteenth birthday wil be admitted.

Palace Theatre

In front of the footlights she was Fifi d'Auray. Off the stage she became plain Betty Murphy—a regular little girl in love. This is the situation in "Footlights and Fools," the First National and Vitaphone all-talking, singing, dancing technicolor hit of the year, starring Colleen Moore, and now playing at the Palace theater.

Call it anything you wish—an extravaganza of Broadway passion—a scintillating and colorful revue—a melodious panorama of stage and social life—"Footlights and Fools" still remains just one thing—a marvelously good show. It is the story of little Betty Murphy who was puffed up with a big French name and had her name splashed on big electric light signs and in the theatrical headlines of metropolitan papers so quickly that it almost took her breath away. It left her gasping but it did not take her heart away. That remained loyal to the shiftless, race track gambling worthless good-for-nothing she had fallen in love with during her earlier days.

But the story does not end in the conventional way, with the good little rich girl and the good-for-nothing poor boy finding the path all roses. Rather it is to the contrary. But whatever Colleen Moore does, you will have to agree that she and her acting are just about all right. She has portrayed so many different types of girls that one marvels at her versatility, in "Smiling Irish Eyes," her first dialogue film, she was a daughter of Erin; in "Lilac Time," you saw her as a demure French lass; "Oh, Kay!" found her an English maid, and in "Why Be Good" she was presented as the typical American girl. Earlier in her career she took German, Italian and yes, even Japanese roles.

In "Footlights and Fools" she speaks English part of the time with a little French accent, and occasionally when the part demands it, lapses into French, but in such a way that you know exactly what she is saying, even if your French is as rusty as most of us have found ours getting. In the cast with her are such well-known stars of Hollywood as Raymond Hackett, Frederic March, Virginia Lee Corbin and Mickey Bennett. Nothing has been left undone to make this one of the great show hits of the year.

Broadway Theatre

"I Think You'll Like It," 'cause its "Sweeter Than Sweet" and "So Unusual," so grab your "Alma Mammy" and do a "Prep Step" to the Broadway, and 'go college" for a couple of red-hot hours with "the gang" from Pelham college in "Sweetie," that tropical-heat musipepodrama, (all-talking, of course) which opens today for a brief four-day stay at your favorite playhouse. What a show and what a cast!—there's Nancy Carroll, dimpled, curvy, alluring, doing her stuff with "Sweeter Than Sweet" — there's Jack Oakie of the nimble feet and ready smile, "tearing it" with "Alma Mammy," a gorgeous take-off on the mammy crooners—there's Stewart Irwin, as a dumb senior—and is he dumb?—and there's William Austin, prim and haughty professor at Pelham—and there's Helen (Sugar) Kane, that roguish "baby-talk" girl, with the cunning dimples and "dreat bid eyes," a little girl whose peculiar talent has boosted her phonograph sales to over 60,000,000 (a mean rival to the radio!) The latest Paramount Sound news, always up-to-the-minute, Charlie Chase in his latest comedy, "Leaping Love," and the Gotham Rhythm Boys, a peppy musical and singing outfit, complete a snappy and interesting program. Everybody's guessing on "Sweetie's" weight. "Sweetie" is a huge chocolate drop, handmade in Alexander's candy kitchen, "down in the square," and on exhibition in their window. Filled with delicious cream and triple-coated with the finest chocolate "Sweetie" will make a wonderful gift for somebody's "Sweetie," and save buying candy for some weeks The guess nearest to the exact weight of the gigantic "ice cream drop" will win this valuable candy creation, the personal gift of Nancy Carroll through the Broadway.

Breed Theatre

"Drag," the new First National-Vitaphone feature starring Richard Barthelmess, which comes to the Breed theatre tomorrow night, is the second Vitaphone feature with dialogue and sound in which Barthelmess has appeared.

The first was "Weary River," which became an instantaneous hit throughout the country and is still breaking records everywhere. It thoroughly established Barthelmess as a speaking star of the first rank and made him one of the most brilliant box-office stars on the cinema firmament.

"Drag," presents the star in a dramatic narrative concerning a young, ambitious newspaperman who goes to a small town to edit the local weekly paper. While there he falls in love with a girl and after marrying her finds himself supporting a whole family of parasitic "in-laws." He composes a musical show called "The Love Prince" for the local Women's Guild; its success encourages him to go to New York, sell his play, and find that happiness which so eluded him in the small town.

The story of "Drag" is based on the novel by William Dudley Pelley and was directed by Frank Lloyd, who also made "Weary River." The supporting cast is headed by Lila Lee, Alice Day, Katherine Ward, Margaret Fielding, Lucien Littlefield and Tom Dugan. "Drag" is a hundred per cent all-talking picture.

The speaker of the evening was Dr. Garfield Morgan, of Lynn, Mas., a personal friend of Rev. Percy A. Kilmister, pastor, who gave a stirring talk upon the subject, "My Rendez-Vous With Life."

At 6:30 o'clock, a delicious supper was served by the women of the entertaining church, after grace was said by Rev. Dwight C. Stone, pastor of the Hanover Congregational church. The menu comprised fruit cup, mashed potato, meat loaf, peas, carrots, pickles, rolls, cake and coffee.

At the business meeting, which followed and was opened by Rev. George Warren Potter, pastor of the Norwich Town Methodist church, the reports of the secretary and treasurer and chairmen of various committees were presented and accepted, these showing the union to have had a busy and active year.

The slate of officers, as presented by the nominating committee and elected, follows: President, Howard Bushnell; vice president, Carl Holdridge; secretary, Miss Ellen Nielson; corresponding secretary, Miss Louise Sterry; treasurer, Lewis Aldrich.

The candlelight service, which was in charge of Rev. Mr. Kilmister and was very impressive, was followed by the installation of the new officers of the union. This was in charge of Mr. Bidwell, past state president and now state director of Christian Endeavor.

The roll call showed an attendance of 123 endeavorers, representative of 12 societies. There were also several visitors present.

In his address Rev. Mr. Morgan spoke in part as follows: Today, Christianity has the greatest challenge of all times with the children living in an entirely different world than that of years ago. Now, we have electricity, radio, automobiles, etc., making for a difficult problem for Christianity. The problem is to present Christianity in such a way that the young people may accept it.

Can Jesus get hold of the lives of people in this 20th century as He did in the 16th century and the years ago, the speaker asked. If our Christianity or Christian Endeavor means anything it means that we must not only meet in these meetings, but must go home and keep asking and praying how we can bring the young people under the power of Jesus. It is no easy task!

When we say this can not be done, that is when our power is lost, that is when we fail. All our efforts are of no avail if we do not know how to present Christ to this age. Our Christ is equal to this age. Every age must have a Christ of its own. He will be the Christ of the Apostles, Christ of the centuries, Christ peculiar to ourselves.

The general committee in charge of arrangements comprised Rev. Percy A. Kilmister, chairman; Miss Cynthia Carey, Miss Ellen Nielsen, Howard Bushnell, Rev. George H. Strouse and Miss Mazie Stamm. The supper committee included Miss Celeste Copeland, chairman; Robert Burke, Miss Ellen Nielsen, Mrs. Florence Leffingwell, Merwin Leffingwell, Miss Edna Jones and Thomas Farrell. Those assisting in the kitchen were: Mrs. Emma Breed, Mrs. Frank Davis, Mrs. Charles Copeland, Mrs. Edward Jewett, Mrs. Frank Tuttle, Mrs. Bessie Browning, Mrs. Walter Woodworth, Mrs. Arthur Rogers, Mrs. Richard Kyle and Mrs. Maude Wheeler.

D., LL.D., of Hartford and to assist at the formal dedication of St. John's new parochial school at 4 o'clock. The ceremony will be preceded by a short parade at 1:45. This organization has won an enviable name as a musical organization and is in charge of Rev. Joseph Casey of the parish. Emile Dupre will be marshal, and his aides are Adelard Lafleche, John Leahy, Joseph Metivier, Wilfred Lemieux, Edward Beaudoin, Leo Fournier, Augustus Coffey, William Crooks, Arthur Mathieu, William Sedden, and Ovila Charron.

These will be followed by men of the parish, who will form on Babcock avenue, women of the parish who will form on the rectory grounds, and the school children who will form in Windsor road. The band will form by the church. The line of march will include sections of the Old Village, returning to the church where the parade will disband.

The dedication of the school will be at 3 o'clock by Rt. Rev. Bishop MacAuliffe. This ceremony will be followed by vespers in the church, which will be sung by the children's choir of St. Mary's church in Jewett City, directed by Sister Cecelia and assisted by soloists.

The sermon in French will be by Rev. Ulderic O. Bellerose of St. Mary's church, Putnam, and the sermon in English by Rev. John J. Reilly, of St. Patrick's church, Norwich. The service will close with benediction of the blessed sacrament.

The school is well built, as near fire proof as possible, and the children will begin using the structure next week.

LADD MAKES DENIAL THAT HE WAS ATTACKED

Charles E. Ladd of 301 Central avenue, who was found unconscious in his machine on the Preston City road early last Saturday evening and taken to the Backus hospital was discharged from the hospital on Friday morning and is now recuperating at his home.

Mr. Ladd in speaking of the accident scouted the idea that he had been attacked on the road. To use his own words Mr. Ladd said "Do you suppose for a minute that anyone could attack me and get away without there being a battle and somebody else getting hurt besides myself?" Mr. Ladd stands close to six feet tall and weighs between 190 and 200 pounds.

He says that on Saturday night he was going along the Preston City road at a fair rate of speed when a deer jumped out of the brush at the side of the road and almost directly in front of his car. He remembers pulling the wheel hard to one side and then everything went black. He says that he has just a hazy recollection of seeing his hands bleeding and realizing that he must get to Norwich. He has a faint recollection of stepping on the gas and having his engine race but the car remaining stationary. That is the last he remembers until he regained consciousness in the hospital when he says his first question to the nurse was "Did I hit the deer?"

Relatives of Mr. Ladd who took charge of the car after the accident say that the car had a damaged headlight and that the rear end was out of commission. They say that it had to be pulled out from the side of the road and towed to Preston City where it was found that the rear end was stripped. Which they claim is proof that Mr. Ladd's car must have hit something when he turned out for the deer and that the rear-end let go allowing him to roll backward off the road.

Mr. Ladd shows no marks except a slight bruise over one eye which he thinks was caused when his head struck against the steering wheel. The cut on his hand he attributes to the flying glass from the windshield.

STATE'S HIGHWAY LABORATORY IS TO HAVE ADDITION

Construction of a large addition to its present laboratory and office building at Portland, Conn., is now being undertaken by the state highway department, and, according to Highway Commissioner John A. Macdonald, the new section of the building will be complete and ready for occupancy by the first of the year.

The department has maintained the laboratory and offices at Portland since 1925 for the purpose of testing the various materials which are used in the construction of Connecticut highways and bridges. All materials are tested both physically and chemically before being used. The laboratory also conducts research and investigation studies.

The new addition will be 50 by 60 feet and will be two stories high. It will be of brick construction with concrete foundation and flooring. With the added space, it will be possible to house the different sections of the laboratory in separate rooms. The chemical section will have equipment for testin asphalt, cement, asphaltic roof oils, tars, paints, creosotes, water proofing compounds, etc. There will be a separate room for testing lubricating oils. The general testing room will be equipped for the physical tests of cement, sand, stone, gravel, concrete, steel and brick.

The research division will be housed separately from the rest and in its room will be a smaller curing room for cement and concrete, completely walled off and equipped with water sprays so that a constant temperature and humidity may be maintained. There will be other rooms for special testing purposes, a balance room, storage bins for sand and stone and space for other supplies.

Since its inception four years ago, the laboratory has accomplished a great deal toward the improvement of Connecticut highways. It was as a result of research and investigation by this division that the new department adopted the calcium chloride concrete formula which now enables the opening of new pavements to traffic several days sooner than was possible before the new formula was devised. Research at the laboratory was also responsible for changing the measures of apportionment in the concrete formula from volume to weight so that a more rigid control of the quantities of aggregates in the mixture is possible.

HOOVER TAKES STEPS TO FEEL PULSE OF BUSINESS

Will Hold Conferences This Week With Business, Labor and Agricultural Leaders to Show That the Recent Collapse of the Stock Market Will Have Little Effect Upon the Business Fabric of the Country—Action is Designed to Promote Continued Business Progress—Will Meet Officials of Eastern Trunk Railroad Systems at the White House Tomorrow.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 17—(AP)—President Hoover decided today to hold a series of conferences with the heads of banking, industrial, railway, agricultural and labor groups over the country to promote continued business progress, instead of calling all into a single meeting Thursday as had been his original plan.

The first meeting will be held at the white house Tuesday with others to follow daily during most of this week and probably a part of the next. This will serve to accelerate the work the president has in mind by getting the individual groups active in a survey of their own lines before the task of coordinating the whole is undertaken.

Officials of the eastern trunk railroad systems who are readily accessible have been invited to come to the white house Tuesday. They will take the results of their conference to Chicago where the American association seeks to meet.

Wednesday officials of the United States chamber of commerce and leaders in numerous manufacturing, industrial, financial and public utilities fields will meet with the president and Secretary Lamont and other officers of the commerce department.

The survey of the agriculture field with especial attention to exports will be gone into Thursday at a meeting the chief executive will have with Secretary Hyde, Chairman Legge, of the federal farm board, and representatives of the leading farm organizations.

Leaders of organized labor and Secretary Davis also will be called in later, but a precise date for this conference remains to be fixed. The same is true with respect to the other and what are termed the more specialized groups in the business and other fields.

It was made known that the president had decided to call in the various groups at different times so as to more readily determine the steps that each can take in their own fields to dispel what the president has denominated as foolish pessimism because of the situation created by the fall in stock prices and to assure the orderly march of business and employment over the winter.

Even if all of the representatives were called together for a single session it would be necessary to divide the work by groups for purposes of the surveys necessary before the whole situation could be assessed and methods found for coordinating the efforts of the individual groups and of government agencies.

The position of the president is that each group already is organized strongly into associations such as the United States chamber of commerce, the American Federation of Labor, the American Railway association, the various farm organizations, and many others, including the American Bankers association.

It is the president's wish that these agencies act for themselves and make full use of their own responsibility in working toward the common purpose of general stability.

Although some machinery for coordinating the efforts of the various groups undoubtedly will have to be devised, the president does not feel that the situation requires the calling into existence of any super organization, nor does he feel that any permanent body will be necessary.

At the white house it was reiterated that the underlying purpose of the conferences was to free so far as possible the business fabric of the country from the recent disturbance occasioned by the collapse of prices in the stock market.

While names of those who have been or may be invited to the white house conference still are withheld Mr. Hoover will have the cooperation of many of the foremost bankers, business men and executives of the country. These include Thomas W. Lamont, of the banking house of J. P. Morgan & Company; Owen D. Young, chairman of the board of the General Electric company; Julius Barnes, chairman of the board, and William Butterworth, president of the United States chamber of commerce; Daniel E. Willard, president of the Baltimore & Ohio railroad; W. W. Atterbury, president of the Pennsylvania; William Green and Matthew Woll, president and vice president of the American Federation of Labor, and a host of others.

There will be representatives of the shipping and shipbuilding industries since the expansion of the American merchant marine furnishes almost as great a field for business and industrial expansion as does the field of state and municipal public works.

It is indicated that the present movement will serve to stir government agencies into increased activity in passing upon government loans and mail contracts so that such merchant marine concerns as the United States Lines, Inc., and the Dollar Steamship company may proceed with ambitious shipbuilding programs they have been planning for many months.

PREPARATIONS COMPLETE FOR TRIAL OF WILL ROGERS

NEW YORK, Nov. 17.—(AP)—Assistant Attorney-General Watson Washburn, in charge of the bureau of securities, today announced he had completed preparation of the state's case against Will Rogers, publisher of the Wall Street Consultant, for alleged fraudulent sale of securities. The case is to be tried in Brooklyn supreme court.

A preliminary injunction against Rogers and the Wall Street Consultant Corp. of Brooklyn, which publishes the Wall Street Consultant, enjoining them from selling or recommending for purchase any security where the price was manipulated or fixed by the parties interested in the marketing of the securities, has been signed by Supreme Court Justice Edward Reigelman in Brooklyn.

Mr. Washburn said the publication recommended the purchase of securities of the Kane Stores, of New England, and charged that the company was to receive $7.50 a share while Rogers opened the market on it at $14 a share and then ran the price up to $35.

Rogers represented that the Kane Stores, of New England, had started business in 1920, and that it was making profits, Mr. Washburn said. He said the bureau of securities has learned that the company was incorporated in Delaware in March, 1929.

BODY OF GUNMAN FOUND WITH BULLET WOUND IN HEAD

NEW YORK, Nov. 17.—(AP)—A man identified by police as an East Side racketeer, ex-convict, gunman, robber and burglar was found dead today in the hallway of a Second avenue building, a bullet wound in his left temple. Police said the man, whom they identified as Joseph Flanagan, had been "taken for a ride."

A tenant in the building saw the body in the hallway when he left home this morning to attend mass, but believed the man was intoxicated. Returning an hour and a half later, he discovered there was a bullet wound in the man's left temple and called police. An ambulance surgeon said the man had been dead about three hours and police said a smudge around the wound indicated the bullet had been fired at close range.

No one in the building heard the sound of any shot and a few hours after the body was discovered police found an abandoned automobile with three bullet holes in it and bearing stolen license plates, about three miles north of the building where the body was found.

Police said Flanagan was one of several brothers known to the East Side as racketeers. One brother, Thomas "Turk" Flanagan, was killed some time ago in First avenue.

JERSEY CITY, N. J., Nov. 17.—(AP)—Miss Helen Wittpenn, of Jersey City, was shot to death today in the living room of her home when she returned from attending mass at St. James Roman Catholic church. Several hours after the shooting Edward Maher, 25, a suitor, was arrested, charged with the shooting.

SENATE THIS WEEK WILL DEBATE SUGAR TARIFF

WASHINGTON, Nov. 17.—(AP)—The sugar tariff, most contentious of the thousands of imports embraced in the Hawley-Smoot bill, will come before the senate tomorrow, facing parties and factions divided on the question of an increased duty.

The contest, which will be a resumption of weeks of argument in congressional committee rooms during the summer, is expected to develop a clear-cut issue whether there is justification for a raise in the present 1.76 cents a pound rate on Cuban raw sugar.

The senate already has gone on record as opposed to levying duties on products from the Philippines, which ship between 400,000 and 500,000 tons of sugar annually to the United States free of duty, and against abandonment of the 20 per cent tariff preference granted Cuban sugar under the Cuban - American reciprocal trade treaty.

BODY OF WIFE VIEWED BY BOOTLEGGER HUSBAND

HERINGTON, Kansas, Nov. 17.—(AP)—The body of Louise Bassett, 35, of Kansas City, shot to death by Sheriff Sydney C. Dederick last Friday night "in line of duty" as he clung to the side of her reeling, liquor laden motor car here, her pistol pressed to the officer's side, was viewed today by Jerry Bassett, her bootlegger husband for five weeks.

Sobbing, Bassett, alias Horton, who married the woman while awaiting trial in jail at Cottonwood Falls, Kansas on a liquor charge last October 5, was led away from her bier by Chase County Sheriff O. T. P. O'CONNOR DIED EARLY THIS MORNING

LONDON, Nov. 18.—(Monday)—(AP)—T. P. O'Connor, "father of the house of commons," died at 3.16 a. m. He was 81 years of age.

The aged parliamentarian, who was affectionately known as "Tay Pay," had been unconscious for a considerable part of the last 48 hours. For ten days he had been confined to his bed by the septic condition of one of his legs.

With the death of the last survivor of the Irish nationalist party, his venerable but of course unofficial title of Father of the House falls on David Lloyd George, liberal leader, who has been longer a member of parliament than any other. Lloyd George has represented Carnarvon borough uninterruptedly since 1890 only five years less than Mr. O'Connor had represented the Scotland division of Liverpool.

Mr. O'Connor also was known as the dean of Fleet street, for his journalistic experience antedated even his interest in politics. The unusual tribute had been paid him on his 75th birthday of a dinner given by 200 members of parliament of every shade of political belief. He never lost his joy of life and expressed the hope that he might live to be 100.

ABANDONING HOPE FOR SECRETARY GOOD

MALDEN, Mass., Nov. 17—(AP)—The 11 o'clock tonight hope that Secretary Good would live had given way to fear that death might take him momentarily.

At the white house, President Hoover awaited word regularly from Walter Reed. Returning from church this morning, Mr. Hoover inquired into the advisability of visiting his war secretary again but was told that the patient was experiencing only brief moments of consciousness and a visit might further upset him.

Mrs. Good and her two sons were at the hospital. The older son of the secretary, James W. Good, Jr., arrived from Evanston, Illinois, where he is a student at Northwestern university, last night. His father was so seriously ill that he had been unable to recognize him.

DANGER FROM FLOODS IN ALABAMA DECREASING

250,000 Pilgrims At Grave Of Rev. Powers

About 90,000 Stood in Line All Night Awaiting Turn to Kneel at Scene of Cures.

MALDEN, Mass., Nov. 171.—(AP)—twentieth day of pilgrimage to the grave of Father Patrick Powers in the Holy Cross cemetery, here, saw a host of 250,000 persons gathered today, 90,000 of whom were reported by the assistant superintendent of the cemetery to have stood in line all night awaiting their turn to kneel at the spot where many miraculous cures are said to have occurred.

The pilgrims came from all over New England, many in bus loads. Malden square, two miles from the cemetery, was jammed with pedestrians, motorists and parked cars.

No disorder was reported although several persons fainted from the crush and fatigue. Twenty local police, nine from Everett, nine metropolitan district patrolmen, two mounted metropolitan officers, all available Malden firemen and members of the American Legion, were on duty keeping the multitude in order and moving.

Sixty persons arrived from Manchester, N. H., before five o'clock in the morning to attend mass at the Sacred Heart church, but as the first service did not take place until 7 o'clock, they were shepherded into police headquarters for rest and warmth.

Tents for rest and food, provision booths and taxi stands gave the region the appearance of a "boom town."

Police here received a wire from Utica, N. Y., stating that Mrs. Bucher M. Crouse, 68, of that city, who has been in ill health, disappeared from her home Thursday and might have started for Father Powers' grave. Reward of $500 was offered in the telegram for information concerning her. The message was signed by Lieut. Marvel, of the Utica police.

"RUM RING" EXPOSED BY THE EXPLOSION OF STILLS

NEW HAVEN, Nov. 17—(AP)—Investigation of what police believe is a large "rum ring," was under way today following the explosion last night of two stills in a three car garage on the outskirts of New Haven.

The blast blew out the walls of the building, and was heard as far away as Morris Cove, East Haven and Momauguin.

The owner, Rocco Rocco, was arrested on a charge of violating the prohibition laws, but he denied knowledge of the stills, which were of fifty gallon capacity. He said he rented the garage to men he knew only by sight.

Police say they have evidence of a ring which is operating similar plants throughout the city.

Ten drums of denatured alcohol were found in the ruins, each containing 100 gallons. Thirty five-gallon cans of finished product were also found, police say, as well as labels of "rye" and "Scotch" whiskey.

Neighbors were aroused from a sound sleep at midnight by the explosion which was accompanied by a huge sheet of flame. Firemen confined the fire to the garage. No one was injured.

EAST HAMPTON SHORTAGE IS REDUCED TO $10,000

EAST HAMPTON, Nov. 17—(AP)—Estimates of the shortage of this town's funds were reduced from $30,000 to approximately $10,000 as evidence was found of entries in duplicate tax books heretofore unknown.

Meanwhile, preparations were made by auditors to adjust claims of the remaining 900 taxpayers who have yet to appear before them. Last week about 800, some with old receipts and cancelled checks as evidence of payment of taxes dating back to 1913, but the majority without receipts of any kind, were heard.

The auditors believe that the adjustments will be completed by Tuesday.

Herbert D. Watrous, former tax collectior, is under arrest on a charge of embezzlement and it was the muddled condition of his books that led to the present audit and billing of taxpayers for taxes dating back sixteen years for which there were no records in the books. Since 1913, the town has had four collectors.

REVOLT AGAINST OLD GUARD LEADERSHIP IN SENATE

WASHINGTON, Nov. 17—(AP)— The uprising in the ranks of the newer republican regulars in the senate began to assume organization from today as a meeting of the 26 members counted in the group was called for tomorrow night.

Disclaiming any immediate revolt against the old guard leadership in the senate, the "young guard" leaders insisted today that their attention is centered on keeping the senate in session in a desperate drive to complete action on the tariff bill before the regular session opens in December.

Senator Allen, of Kansas, one of the newest members of the senate and also one of President Hoover's intimates, called the meeting for tomorrow night —a dinner between the afternoon and the night sessions of the senate.

Firemen were hampered by low water pressure. The damage will not exceed $5,000.

Explanation By N. Y. Federal Reserve Bank

Why Credit Was Extended to New York Banks Which Took Over Brokers' Loans.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 17.—(AP)—The part of the federal reserve system and New York Federal Reserve bank took in extending credit to New York banks which took over brokers' loans of non-banking lenders during the critical period in the stock market in October was explained today in the monthly federal reserve bulletin.

Combined figures of weekly reporting member banks in the leading cities, the bulletin said, showed an increase in total loans and investments of $1,600,000,000 from October 2 to October 30 nearly all of which occurred during the last week of the month and at banks in New York city.

The taking over of this credit, the bulletin continued, was reflected in a growth in the last week in October of $1,500,000,000 in net demand deposits of the New York banks and of a consequent large growth of their reserve requirements which was indicated by an increase of $240,000,000 in their reserve balances with the federal reserve bank.

"In coming to the support of the situation during this period of severe disturbance the banks in New York city had the assistance of the federal reserve system," the bulletin added. "The Federal Reserve bank of New York increased its discounts for member banks by $10,000,000 during the week and in addition purchased $150,000,000 of United States government securities in the open market. As a consequence of the action of the banks in New York city and of the Federal Reserve bank of New York, the liquidation which took place in the security market was not associated with a rise in money rates.

"Rates on call money, which had declined from a range of 4 to 9 per cent. in September, to 6 per cent. in the latter part of October, ranged between 5 and 6 per cent. during the last week of that month."

The board reviewed the decrease in brokers' loans during the latter part of October when a total reduction for the month of $2,400,000,000 in brokers' borrowings was reported by the New York stock exchange.

"Loans to brokers by non-banking lenders declined by $2,000,000,000 during October, reflecting withdrawals of funds from the call-loan market by foreign lenders, investment and trading companies and other corporations and individuals," the bulletin said. "Loans to brokers for out of town banks, which include a considerable amount of loans for the account of their customers, decreased by $800,000,000, while loans by New York city banks for their own account increased by $1,000,000,000.

Industrial activity, the bulletin said, while larger in August and September than a year ago showed a decline for October as compared to a year ago but only because the increases were not as large as those of 1928 which was a year of high production. Total production, the report continued, was 11 per cent. larger for the first nine months of the year than for the corresponding period of 1928. The total output of automobiles in September was about the same as in the same month a year ago, the board said.

The volume of residential building contracts awarded in September declined, but public works and commercial and industrial building continued in large volume.

"Notwithstanding the decline in the past 12 months," the bulletin said, "the volume of construction, as measured by contracts awarded has remained at a high level compared with earlier years."

"Notwithstanding the slackening of industrial activity in the past two months," the board concluded, "factory employment and wage payments to industrial workers, which has been increasing for the past two years, remained in large volume this autumn. Earnings of industrial workers, therefore, have been maintained, and there appears to be no considerable change in the income of farmers as compared with last year. This sustained buying power of both industrial and agricultural workers has been reflected in a large volume of distribution of commodities by railroads and in a growth in retail sales to ultimate consumers."

ATTEMPT MADE TO POISON LIVESTOCK IN AMSTON

AMSTON, Conn., Nov. 17—(AP)—Analysis of what was at first believed to be salt, tonight had revealed an attempt to poison the livestock on Louis Ellenberg's farm in the town of Hebron.

The analysis showed that it was arsenic of lead that was found on stones in his pasture last week. Twenty eight head of graded holstein cattle were pastured there but with one exception all refused to taste the white substance. A bull became violently ill after he had sampled it.

Ellenberg said other attempts have been made to poison his livestock, but he can assign no reason for it. He said he knew of no enemies.

MEX. REVOLUTIONARY PARTY CLAIMS ELECTION VICTORY

Proclaims a Sweeping Triumph For Its Presidential Nominee, Pascual Oritz Rubio, But Makes No Attempt to Estimate the Total Vote Polled—Twelve Persons Were Killed and Many Wounded in Election Clashes—Three Minor Disorders Were Reported in Mexico City—Cities Throughout Mexico Resembled Armed Camps.

MEXICO CITY, Nov. 17.—(AP)— The national revolutionary party this evening claimed a sweeping triumph for its presidential nominee, Pascual Ortiz Rubio, in the national elections today. It did not, however, attempt to estimate the total vote obtained.

TWELVE SLAYINGS AT ELECTIONS IN MEXICO

MEXICO CITY, Nov. 17. — (AP) — Bloodshed in several cities but no general rioting attended today the election of a new president of Mexico. By evening twelve had been reported killed and many more wounded both in the capital and other cities of the country.

Voting on the whole was orderly and fairly heavy. The candidates were Pascual Ortiz Rubio of the national revolutionary party, of the same political organization as former President Calles and the late General Obregon; Jose Vasconcelos, a lawyer nominated by the anti-re-electionist party, and General Pedro Rodriguez Triana, candidate of the workers and peasant bloc which is allied with the communists.

Although Mexico City and other towns had the appearance of armed camps today, with troops constantly patrolling the streets, it was impossible to maintain complete order. Fights were isolated, however, and were quickly suppressed in most cases. The most serious outbreak was in the city of Vera Cruz where four were killed and five wounded in a clash in the suburb of La Huaca. Among the dead was an Ortiz Rubio follower named Lopez who was lynched.

In the same state at Cordoba one person was killed and six wounded by an exchange of shots on the eve of the voting. After a quiet morning in the capital fighting broke out in various sections and resulted in two deaths and numerous wounded. One man was killed and four seriously wounded in a fight for possession of a voting booth in Santo Domingo park and another was killed when an unidentified man opened fire on a crowd in front of the office of the attorney general in the center of the city. Six more were wounded in a clash in General Aznaya street on the outskirts of the city.

The votes deposited today must be received and checked by the chamber of deputies before the result is officially announced. Since communication is slow with many sections of the republic it was thought probable that the formal announcement would not be possible until well into December.

The election today was made necessary by the assassination in July, 1928, of General Alvaro Obregon who had been elected for his second term to succeed President Calles. He would have been inaugurated last December. Portes Gil was made provisional president and took office at that time to serve until another could be chosen for a four-year term in a general election. Whoever is selected as the result of the long and active campaign which ended yesterday will be inaugurated on February 5.

Another clash was reported in front of the jail in Belen. The police tonight announced a second death as the result of the Santo Domingo park clash.

GREATEST PRESIDENTIAL VOTE EVER CAST IN MEX.

MEXICO CITY, Nov. 17.—(AP)—Pascual Ortiz Rubio, national revolutionary party candidate for president, was swept into office today by what appeared to have been the greatest presidential vote ever cast in Mexico. The anti-reelectionist party, whose nominee was Jose Vasconcelos, conceded the victory to Ortiz Rubio tonight in a statement which attributed their defeat to interference at the polls by followers of Ortiz Rubio.

The indications tonight, a few hours after the polls were closed, were that Ortiz Rubio, engineer and former ambassador to Brazil, had received a commanding majority, perhaps exceeding a million.

ASSAILANTS FLED AFTER ATTEMPT AT ASSASSINATION

NOGALES, Sonora, Mex., Nov. 17.—(AP)—An attempt was made last night to assassinate Alejandro C. Villasenor, brother-in-law of Governor Francisco Elias of Sonora and related by marriage to former President Plutarco Elias Calles.

Several shots were fired at him as he walked through a Nogales street. All missed their mark and the assailant or assailants fled.

CAPTURE OF ALLEGED RUM RUNNERS ALONG MAINE COAST

BIDDEFORD, Me., Nov. 17.—(AP) — York county officers tonight believed they had captured three members of a band of liquor runners operating along the Maine coast, with the arrest of three men in a cottage at the mouth of the Saco river yesterday.

The officers also seized a wireless outfit and a code book which contained characters and messages which they said indicated the places was a base of operations for the band.

The raiders connected the arrests with two recent seizures at Harpswell, when liquor valued at several thousand dollars was taken by officers.

The men gave the names of Arthur Murphy, James A. Allen and William Loeffler, and refused to give any further information concerning themselves or talk of their business.

Seven men came to the cottage in August, ostensibly to hunt and fish.

No liquor was found although the officers searched for several hours and spent today about the place.

The three told the officers that their four companions were out "coon hunting" and that they would return soon. A guard was kept at the cottage all night but none of the others appeared.

TO SPEAK FOR AMERICA IN WORLD BANK COUNCILS

NEW YORK, Nov. 17.—(AP)—Messrs. "Y" of New York, will speak for America in the councils of the world bank.

With less commotion than attends the election of a township clerk, Messrs. "Y." have been chosen for one of the most important executive tasks in the world. They will represent the United States unofficially in an institution which many bankers have predicted will become pre-eminent in international finance.

Fourteen famous banking authorities, representing Britain, France, Belgium, Japan, Italy, Germany and the United States, have adjourned their sessions in Baden-Baden, Germany, after agreeing on a charter and status for the bank of international settlements.

The text of the charter, chapter 2, article 6, provides:

Subscription of the authorized capital having been guaranteed in equal parts by the Banque Nationale De Belgique, the Banque De France, the Reichsbank, the Banca D'Italia, Messrs. "X" in place of the Bank of Japan and Messrs. "Y" for New York, the bank may begin business as soon as the minimum of 112,000 shares has been subscribed.

New York banking circles assume two things. The first is that J. P. Morgan and company, is the principal part of Messrs. "Y", the second is that Messrs. "Y" will have the cooperation of Messrs. "A" of Chicago, Messrs. "B" of Boston, Messrs. "C" of San Francisco, Messrs. "D" of New Orleans, and so on through the list of American financial centers.

ONLY FOUR INJURED IN FOOTBALL TRAFFIC

NEW HAVEN, Nov. 17.—(AP) — A survey by police today after the hordes of football fans here for the Yale-Princeton game had left the city, revealed that only four persons had been injured in accidents in New Haven and vicinity due to the heavy automobile traffic.

One of the mishaps occurred in Milford, and caused injuries to Captain Burton L. Wright, of Walnut Beach, president of the Devon Bank and Trust company, and Wilbur A. Ridpath, assistant treasurer, whose car was struck from the rear. They were taken to a Milford hospital slightly hurt. The other driver was arrested.

William Champion, of New Haven, suffered a fractured skull when he was hit by a machine while crossing a street. The driver, Frank Hearn, of Hamden, was arrested.

Ella Werrick, 24, was slightly hurt when she was struck by a car driven by Edward Murphy, of Bridgeport, who was held by police.

VETERAN LOCAL CONTRACTOR DIES IN HARTFORD

(Special to The Bulletin.)

WILLIMANTIC, Nov. 17.—Charles Beckwith Jordan, 81, died in a private hospital in Hartford this morning. He was born in Willimantic, June 14, 1848, a son of Lyman and Susan Beckwith Jordan, having always maintained his residence here although spending his summers at Lake Wanscumbaug, South Coventry. Death followed an illness of several months.

He leaves three sons, William L. of this city, Charles S. of New Rochelle, N. Y., and Dwight M. Jordan of Hartford; one daughter, Mrs. Carleton S. Pollard of this city; three sisters, Mrs. Charlotte Havens of Niantic, Mrs. Annette Dunstan of this city and Miss Jennie Jordan of this city; and one brother, Lyman Jordan of New York; also eight grandchildren and several nieces and nephews.

Charles B. Jordan was a brother of the famous composers and musical directors, the late Jules and Julian Jordan. Charles shared the musical heritage of the family and for years he was prominently identified with amateur productions and church choirs as a singer of rare ability, a gift that he retained through old age to the very end.

Following the occupation of members of the family, Charles Jordan was a mason contractor and stone builder in years past. In this connection local history prominently identifies the name of Jordan with the building of the stone mills of the old Willimantic Linen company. These mills, although in use, have been superseded in later years by the brick structures that compose the plant of the American Thread company. The deceased was a member of the Methodist Episcopal church.

ATTEMPT MADE TO POISON HERD OF CATTLE

WILLIMANTIC, Nov. 17.—Louis Ellenberg, Amston farmer, has enlisted the aid of the state police in an effort to learn the identity of a malicious enemy. Recently Mr. Ellenberg found enough arsenate of lead sprinkled over his pasturage to bring death to every cow in the town. His herd of some 20 valuable animals had been led into the pasture and he believes that all that saved some of the animals from eating the arsenate is the bad taste of the poison. Two years ago Ellenberg lost several valuable cows from Paris green poisoning also sprinkled in his pasture. At that time an arrest was made and the miscreant prosecuted.

Champagne of Chicopee, Mass., and that the cure was effected by the laying on of hands. The child was in a very serious condition and it was thought at one time that the disease which had gotten into the eyelids would make her blind. Their sermons were plain, forceful and scriptural, following the policy of the Paulist society. Their community is well known for its radio talks on its own station WLWL, and for its world-famous Paulist choir. Stafford people feel honored, because this noted body of singers has recently put "When Evening Comes" on its list of favorites. These two mission priests chose it as the most fitting hymn they knew with which to end a mission and James Breen sang it impressively on the closing Sunday night. It is the composition, words and music, of the pastor of St. Edward's Rev. Felix J. O'Neill, a native of Willimantic and for a time a curate at St. Patrick's church, Norwich.

WESTERLY

LEBANON MAN'S CAR PLUNGES OFF BRIDGE TO RIVER BANK

(Special to The Bulletin)

WESTERLY, R. I., Nov. 17.—Edward Hoxie, 50, of Lebanon, Conn., had a narrow escape at 12:05 Saturday morning when his Hupmobile sedan, N-4251 Conn., crashed through the guard rail on the Connecticut side of Boom bridge and plunged off the down-stream side of the Pawcatuck river. The bridge connects the towns of North Stonington, Conn., and Westerly, R. I., there being a sharp curve at the Connecticut approach to the wooden bridge. While making this curve, the auto plunged off the edge of the bridge and balanced in an upright position on the front bumper, lodged on the jagged rocks of the river bank at the bridge abutments. The car was suspended in air at an angle of some 70 degrees with the rear wheels off the bridge planking and resting against the bridge stringers.

Mr. Hoxie had been to visit a former Connecticut legislative colleague, Horace G. Lewis, who resides on a farm near Boom bridge in North Stonington, and whom he had not seen in over three years. The men were very friendly while in Hartford, eight or ten years ago. He had been to the theatre in Norwich and before returning to Lebanon took a trip alone to North Stonington and was alone in the car at the time he left Mr. Lewis' farm about midnight, to return to Westerly and over the state road to Norwich. As he felt the car go over the bridge side, he with difficulty held his seat until the car had come to a full stop after its 15-foot plunge. He then calmly shut off the motor, turned out his lights, and opening the door slid down the forward right-hand mudguard, then in a perpendicular position, to the rocks below and, clambering up the embankment to the road, returned to Mr. Lewis' farm and informed him that his auto had run off the road. An examination showed that nothing could be done by them until help was summoned, so they retired.

Saturday morning two wreckers were summoned and a large force of men worked for two hours to get the car back on the bridge and to the highway. Heavy ropes were passed around the car and fastened to a tree stump so that the auto would not get away from the workmen and plunge into the 18 feet of water in the river channel within six feet of where the car was balanced on its front end. The wreckers hauled the car back until the rear wheels were on the bridge planking, then the front end was raised while the other wrecker and workmen pulled the car back to safety. There was not a pane of glass cracked in the side windows, although the front headlights were shattered and the running boards and fenders were crumpled and a slight twist given the car frame. The salvaged auto was towed to a Norwich garage.

Preventable Pain!

The man who wouldn't drive his motorcar half a mile when it's out of order, will often drive his brain all day with a head that's throbbing.

Such punishment isn't very good for one's nerves! It's unwise, and it's unnecessary. A tablet or two of Bayer Aspirin will relieve a headache every time. So, remember this accepted antidote for pain, and spare yourself a lot of needless suffering. Read the proven directions and you'll discover many valuable uses for these tablets. For headaches; to check colds. To ease a sore throat and reduce the infection. For relieving neuralgic, neuritic, rheumatic pain.

People used to wonder if Bayer Aspirin was harmful. The doctors answered that question years ago. It is not. Some folks still wonder if it really does relieve pain. That's settled! For millions of men and women have found it does. To cure the cause of any pain you must consult your doctor; but you may always turn to Bayer Aspirin for immediate relief.

DANIELSON

INFANT BURNED WHEN CRIB CATCHES FIRE

(Special to The Bulletin.)

DANIELSON, Nov. 17.—Madeline Bernier, a child less than a year old and a daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Harry Bernier of Water street, was reported today as being in a favorable condition for recovery at the Day Kimball hospital, in Putnam, after having been severely burned at the home of her parents on Water street Saturday morning.

The child was lying in a crib and was being cared for by her older sister, another child of tender years, when the crib coverings suddenly blazed. Childish use of matches by the older sister is believed to have been the cause of Madeline being injured. The injured child was quite badly burned about the feet, toes and legs and, after being given attention by physician, was rushed to the Day Kimball hospital in Putnam. The child is said to have rested quietly during last night. For a time it was feared that the home of the child's parents would be set afire by the blazing crib, but this circumstance was avoided, and there was no alarm for fire. Mrs. Bernier was in an adjoining room, engaged with routine duties, when her child was burned.

OBITUARY.

Ashley P. Mills.

At The Haven in Abington Saturday morning the death of Ashley P. Mills, 82, husband of Mrs. Ella Chapman Mills of the West Side occurred. With Mrs. Mills he came to Danielson four years ago to make his home. He has been in failing health for the past three years and a patient at The Haven for a number of months past. The body was taken in charge by Undertaker A. F. Wood and conveyed to Danielson.

Though he was a native of Windham county, Mr. Mills had spent the greater part of his life in Boston, where he was connected with the retail shoe business for upwards of half a century, and upon retiring was one of the oldest salesmen in the entire Boston metropolitan district.

Mr. Mills was born in Thompson, Sept. 25, 1847, a son of Ashley and Abigial Childs Mills. His father and his mother were of families long connected with the affairs of Windham county. In early life Mr. Mills established himself in Boston, and remained there through the long term of years that has been mentioned. Seventeen years ago last June he was united in marriage with Miss Ella Chapman of Danielson, who survives him. He also leaves two sons by a former marriage, Rev. Ernest Lyman Mills Lynn, and Ashley Mills of Boston. There are also 14 grandchildren and seven great-grandchildren and a brother, William, of Montello, Mass.

Killingly High Beaten.

Killingly High school's football team battled vallantly against the Mary E. Wells High school of Southbridge yesterday afternoon only to lose in the second half when Southbridge unleashed an aerial attack and certain intricate plays that produced three touchdowns. The first half was stubbornly contested and evenly fought out by both teams and with no score on either side. Driscoll and Knight of the Killingly team played a good defensive game, being especially effective in tackling. Of the about 300 who witnessed the game many were from Danielson and vicinity, including a considerable delegation from the K. H. S. body.

The constant recurrence of narrow escapes from accidents at the junction of North Main street and Westcott road, here in Danielson, is responsible for the not less constant expression of desire that the state would do something about clearing up the situation. The two principal trunk line highways in this particular part of Connecticut meet here. The entrance to Westcott road, the outlet to Providence, looks like a blind alley at night, even to people familiar with it. Hundreds of cars meet each other there every day and every night. Comparatively minor improvements would help, wonderfully, it is held, and the affair is mentioned merely in the interest of the safety campaign about which one hears so much.

Rev. Thomas Conlon, M. S., recently superior of the Missionary Order of LaSalette, with Connecticut headquarters at Hartford, today began a week's mission at St. James' church for the English-speaking members of the parish. Rev. Fr. Conlon is one of the distinguished members of the LaSallette order. He briefly addressed congregations at the masses today and this evening at 7.30 opened the mission that will close next Sunday afternoon. There are to be morning and evening services every day throughout the week. This mission immediately follows two preceding weeks of missions for the French-speaking members of the parish.

Saturday morning at St. John's church in Worcester there was a funeral mass for Patrick Dwyer, 94, a native of Ireland but many years resident in this country, and for the past six years living at Elmville, with Miss Nellie Dwyer, a niece. He died last Thursday at the Day Kimball hospital in Putnam. His wife has been dead for a long term of years. Mr. Dwyer leaves two sons, William, of Chicago, and James of Riverside, N. Y. He also leaves two daughters, Mrs. James Reardon of Worcester and Mrs. Thomas Hizgins of Boston. In addition to these, various other relatives attended the funeral service. Burial was in Worcester.

A detachment of six state officers of the Danielson barracks were on duty Saturday in New Haven and cities in that section of the state assisting in handling traffic developed by the rush of people bound to see the Yale-Princeton game.

Scores of boys in Danielson and vicinity are in a state of great anticipation over the prospects of being able to see the Brown-New Hampshire football game at Providence next Saturday, as guests of the Brown Athletic association and through the co-operation of the Windham County Y. M. C. A.

This morning shortly after 9 o'clock the fire department was called out for a chimney fire at the home of August Godreau on Franklin street. There was no damage to the house, and the department members returned to quarters in about 30 minutes.

Basketball will be the next sport to occupy the attention of the athletes at Killingly High school. The football team of the school is closing its season on Thanksgiving day with a game with Putnam High school.

While a special Christmas illumination of parts of the business section is now assured, other sections will not bathe in the special brilliance unless arrangements are made for the additional lights in the near future.

Over the week end period there were no arrests either by local or state police in the Danielson area, the week end being the quietest in every respect of any for a long time.

Mr and Mrs. John Reece of Norwich, former residents of Danielson, were visitors with relatives here today.

Joseph Cudworth, in the employ of the Larkin Reed company here the past five years, is to leave later in the month to work at Greensboro, N. C. He will remove his family to that city. Mr. Cudworth is a member of the American Legion and a former member of the famed Yankee division, with which he served in France.

At the week end Danielson minor was ordered to make an appearance in the town court here by County Game Warden Thomas Daniels of Plainfield, for trapping without a written permit to do so on property recently purchased by the state near South Killingly.

Up to late this afternoon, though there was a heavy movement of motor traffic over trunk line highways in this section over the week end no accident other than of a minor nature was reported.

Mrs. Madelyn Torrent of Norwich was a visitor with relatives here over the week end.

George C. Manton of Lawrence returned to his home this afternoon after spending the week end with friends here.

Mr and Mrs. Louis Hilton and daughter, Grace, were visitors with relatives in Boston and vicinity over the week end.

Mrs Marjorie J. Waller was among those from Danielson in New Haven over the week end.

After having been confined to his home the past week by an attack of the grip Supt. W. E. Parker of the schools in Killingly and Brooklyn is nearly recovered and hopes to be able to resume his usual routine activities the first of the week.

PUTNAM

JOINT INSTALLATION OF AMERICAN LEGION OFFICERS

(Special to The Bulletin)

PUTNAM, Nov. 17.—Nearly 100 were in attendance at the joint installation meeting of the Anslem Mayotte post, No. 13, American Legion and American Legion auxiliary, held Friday evening in the main dining room of the Putnam Inn. The annual session was featured by a banquet and was attended by two state officers of the organization. Besides the state officials, guests of the Legionnaires included three of the eight surviving members of the A. G. Warner post, Grand Army of the Republic.

Following the dinner the installation took place. Commander G. Stanley Shaw, retiring executive of the post, was the presiding officer. The new officers installed were: Arthur C. Keith, commander; Francis Metcalf, first vice-commander; Joseph Flagg, second vice-commander; Carl Weeks, chaplain; G. Stanley Shaw, adjutant; Whitman Danielson, finance officer; James J. Charron, sergeant-at-arms.

Mrs. J. Dyer Potter will head the auxiliary for the ensuing year, as president. She will be aided by the following officers who were elected at a recent meeting: Mrs. Sara Gifford, first vice-president; Mrs. G. Stanley Shaw, second vice-president; Mrs. Archibald Macdonald, Jr., secretary; Mrs. William J. Jarvis, treasurer; Mrs. A. D. McIntyre, chaplain; Mrs. Zion Robillard, historian; Miss Evelyn Shaw, sergeant-at-arms.

Officers of both organizations were jointly installed. The retiring officials who conferred the degrees were assisted by Connecticut State Commander William S. Alexander and William Dixon, state sergeant-at-arms. Mrs. John MacFarland of Coventry, a state official of the Legion auxiliary, assisted in the installation of the local auxiliary officers.

A fine programme of music and speaking was carried out. Seated at the head table were the two visiting state officials, Marcus Lewis, Thomas L. Taylor and Hiram L. Barret, Civil war veterans; Cyril M. Paine, commander of the East Woodstock Legion post; Frank H. Pelletier, commander of the Oscar W. Swanson post of North Grosvenordale; W. A. Barnard, commander of the Leo J. L'Homme post of Danielson, comprising the honored guests.

Following a few brief remarks in which he extended his appreciation for the honor conferred upon him, Commander Keith introduced the speaker of the evening, State Commander Alexander. Mr. Alexander delivered an inspiring address. Important among the topics touched upon by the state Legion commander were the manner in which the Legion assists in procuring legislation to bring about relief for veterans who have become disabled and for their needy families. He pointed out the numerous advantages offered ex-service men through their affiliations with the American Legion and stressed the honor lying beneath an American's privilege in being able to associate himself with the great national organization of ex-service men. Commander Alexander called the attention of the post members to the 1930 convention of the Legion which is to take place in Boston. This, he said, is of extreme importance to the people of Connecticut and particularly to Putnam, because of its nearness to the Massachusetts metropolis. It was the prediction of Mr. Alexander that hundreds of Legionnaires from every state in the Union, en route to Boston to attend the annual Legion national convention, will stop in this city. In view of this fact, he urged the members of the Anslem Mayotte post to make preparations for this event of next year.

An ardent student of history, Mr. Alexander touched upon the importance of the Legion's interest in beautifying the surroundings of national shrines. Familiar with the famous Israel Putnam wolf den in Pomfret, which has become a mecca for tourists, he stressed the need of the Legion grasping the opportunity to post trails with traffic markers leading to this and other shrines depicting America's early history.

The meeting came to a close with a compliment of three cheers, in which all Legion men joined, extended to the retiring commander, G. Stanley Shaw.

WORK ON ATHLETIC FIELD STARTS TODAY

(Special to The Bulletin)

PUTNAM, Nov. 17.—The first work in connection with the repair of the Putnam high school athletic field on school street will be started Monday morning, John H. Bulger, chairman of the building committee of the school board, said today. The contract, involving the expenditure of nearly $3,000, has been signed and everything is in readiness to get the work completed before the arrival of cold weather.

Three thousand yards of black loam will be strewn across the campus to fill the depression in the center and low spot on the south end of the field, created several years ago when an attempt was made to flood the lot for a municipal skating rink. This earth will be rolled and when completed the field will be level with the sidewalk on the south side and with the high school lawn on the north side. It will be seeded down and thereafter will be mowed regularly.

Upon the completion of the task, the campus will be one of the best in eastern Connecticut. It will be necessary for the outstanding northern Connecticut grid classic—the Putnam high and Killingly high game, to be played on Thanksgiving day on Adams field on Main street.

The programme for the campus repair includes other appropriate improvements which will be brought about in the spring. At this time plans will be made for a fitting dedication.

Two planes from Brainard field in Hartford came to Mantup field Saturday and remained over the week end, taking up passengers. The fliers made Mantup their headquarters during the visit and upon their departure tonight said that the rolling acres in the west of the city are ideal for the development of a modern airport.

ENGINEERS DISCOVER FACTS ABOUT BIG LEDGE

The drilling by the state engineers for the purpose of finding out facts relative to the great ledge that underlies all the local area of Griswold, has been far more extensive than at first intended. For the engineers the drills have determined the methods of subsurface anchorage that must be adopted for the placing of the new viaduct abutments and piers. For those whose homes are in Jewett City, it has served to prove, that which was never known before, what sort of a foundation is but a comparatively few feet below local streets, homes and garden spots. The drill is now being operated in the bed of Pachaug river at where one of the piers is to stand, in reference to carrying the highway over the tracks of the railroad, thus eliminating the Main street grade crossing, established when the Norwich & Worcester road was completed, in 1840. The uneven surface of the rock formation is responsible for the weeks of additional drilling. One engineer remarked while at work in the river, that whoever put the ledge in place, neglected to smooth it off. At the point where the stream is being bridged there are to be five, seventy-five foot steel spans, making the metal construction 375 feet from abutment to abutment. Within this distance the depth of the rock bottom varies from 10 to 15 feet. There is plenty of evidence that in ages past the channel of the river ran through a deep rocky gorge, along the land now owned by E. F. Burleson. For a distance of 200 feet from the west bank, the ledge is 20 feet lower than at the east shore pier. This great expanse of solid ledge comes to the surface locally at the one-time Falls of the Quinebaug at the Slater dam in the Pachaug river and at the big 50-foot fall-off rocks in the Lentocks growth across from the Aspinook plant. 8The engineers say that at the Tunnell, it is doubtless the same ledge that crops out again.

CHRISTMAS CLUB CHECKS WILL SET FREE OVER $13,000

In less than a month 340 Jewett City Christmas club members will receive checks in proportion to the amount deposited each week. These disbursements will be made by both the local banks and the amount will be in excess of $13,000. The banks report one-third larger accounts for the demands of the coming Christmas than in 1928.

The larger percentage of the close to 350 accounts show weekly deposits of $1.00 or over. Five years ago the banks made an effort to stimulate this form of saving. It soon proved its own benefits, with the result that an attractive thrift plan is permanently established.

Rev. Harold L. Arnold, pastor of the First Congregational church of Griswold, preached at Jewett City Baptist church Sunday morning, in exchange with the pastor, Rev. E. E. Scates. From the theme of, Christian Living, as Influenced by Temptation, the speaker explained his view point in a line of thought by which his attentive listeners gained much of interest and profit. Telling of the many temptations that present themselves, there is no sinning, he said, unless we give up to them. No young Christians may expect, that the new life will find them freed from temptation. All men, from our Savior down, have been beset with temptation, in that, "He was tempted like as we are."

Mrs. J. H. Shea and Leslie Carroll were in Boston over the week end and attended the Holy Cross and Harvard football game.

DOUBLE SHOWER GIVEN MISSES GEER AND BREWSTER

Saturday evening at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Charles M. Geer, a double shower was given in honor of their daughter, Miss Myra Geer, whose marriage with Robert Brewster will take place in the spring, and for Miss Viola Brewster, who was married Monday to Walter Thorp. A large umbrella, decorated in pink, blue and white crepe paper by Mrs. Earle Hoxie stood in one corner and the gifts were placed under it, both young ladies receiving many beautiful and useful gifts. It was a complete surprise. About 50 were present, relatives and friends coming from Norwich, Willimantic and Lebanon. Sandwiches, cake and coffee were served. Music was enjoyed during the evening with Miss Julia Standish at the piano and Albert Jarvis, of Willimantic playing the banjo. Miss Standish also sang several selections and all joined in chorus singing.

Thorp-Brewster.

Walter Thorp of North Stonington and Miss Viola Brewster of Lebanon were united in marriage Monday, Nov. 11 by Rev. Walter Vey at the Congregational parsonage. They were attended by Mr. and Mrs. Snow of Manchester. The bride was dressed in brown silk dress, wore a brown coat and brown hat. After a brief visit to New Haven they returned to the home of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Geer, where they will remain for a few weeks.

Rev. A. G. Littlefield took as his text Sunday Matt. 14:31. In the evening there was a union C. E. meeting at the Baptist church with Mrs. Gurdon Chappell leader. There was a solo by Miss Beatrice Littlefield, accompanied by Miss Abraham Aspinall on the piano and Miss Mary Chappell with the violin. Also a short drama was given by the boys of Mrs. Chappell's class, "The Good Samaritan". About 60 were present. Light refreshments were served.

Rev. and Mrs. A. G. Littlefield attended the ministers' meeting at the home of Rev. E. S. Holloway in Groton Monday.

Rev. Walter Vey's text Sunday was Matt. 5:11. An anthem was sung by the choir. Sunday afternoon there was an every member canvass.

Mr. and Mrs. A. C. Hoxie and two daughters spent Sunday with Mr. Hoxie's brother, M. J. Hoxie in Putnam.

A grange whist was held in the town hall Thursday evening with 15 tables in play. Prizes were won by Mrs. Fred Madley, Mrs. R. V. Taylor and Mrs. C. S. Goodwin, Carl Hallen, Rodney Hewitt and F. G. Bruce. Cake and coffee was served by the committee.

Miss Adelaide Hallen of Norwich spent the week end with her brother and sister-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Carl Hallen.

At Hartford Meeting.

Mrs. H. W. Sweet and Mrs. W. E. Burgess attended the League of Women Voters' convention in Hartford on Wednesday and remained for the rest of the week to visit relatives. Others who attended the meeting were Mrs. E. J. Tucker, Mrs. Fred Madley and Miss Florence Rockwood.

Mr. and Mrs. Harry Bruce, of New York spent from Monday until Thursday with the former's parents, Mr. and Mrs. F. G. Bruce.

At New London Luncheon.

Members of Gov. Jonathan Trumbull chapter, D. A. R., who attended the National Defense luncheon at the Mohican hotel, New London, Wednesday were the regent, Miss Annie Gillett, of Goshen; Mrs. A. R. Manning, of Yantic; Miss Bertha Perry, Mrs. W. F. Clark, Mrs. A. E. Hewitt, Mrs. O. L. Pultz, and Mrs C. S. Goodwin. A wonderful address was made by Mrs. Walker, chairman of national defense, whose home is in Seattle, Washington, and her office in Washington, D. C.

Mr. and Mrs. George Reynolds named their infant son, Richard Armitage.

A Frank Discussion of a Personal Subject No Longer Evaded! . .

TO be sure, it's still embarrassing, this question of fetid breath, pimply skin (which usually attends it), yellow-tinged eyes. But people now are common-sense about it. They look facts in the face and recognize that they are suffering from constipation. Even the healthiest system may be subject to it at times.

Harsh purgative waters and salts or griping physics irritate an already inflamed and upset digestive tract. But a purely vegetable laxative, like Beecham's Pills, has a gentle, corrective action. Relieves constipation as if by magic. Never cramps or overacts. Won't torture you with griping pains. Restores normal, regular action.

Beecham's Pills in the new 60¢ size (glass bottle) are sugar coated—the modern remedy. Even a tiny child can take them with benefit. Good for all the family. Get a package today and see for yourself. 60¢ at all druggists. Trial size 25¢.

THE PRESIDENT'S CONFERENCE

When President Hoover gave assurance to the country that the economic future and the basic strength of business were sound it was not for the purpose of lifting the stock market from the slump it had experienced. He gave notice to the effect that he had called a conference of business leaders in the interest of business development and for the purpose of forestalling any detrimental effects from the period of speculation.

His expression of confidence in conditions was positive and he pointed out that the country is going to benefit through the tax reduction plan and through the magnificent workings of the federal reserve board, which has brought about a reduction in interest rates and which gives assurance of abundant capital. But the president stresses the need of checking overpessimism and effectively declares that "words are not of any great importance in times of economic disturbance. It is action that counts," and it is his purpose to meet the situation by such action as the coming conference can devise.

His belief is that this can be done by a revival of construction activity, the stimulation of exports and of other legitimate business expansion.

Even though industry is on a firm footing, business of the country is sound and there is nothing the matter with the economic future, there is an excellent chance for business leaders in cooperation with the government agencies to demonstrate these things. The thing is to prevent the stock market situation from developing conditions which are not justified. If such conditions as the letting up in building have been indirectly due to the speculative craze, because the money has been employed in that direction which should have gone into building, or because interest rates were increased, there is now the chance to change that situation. The president is, in fact, taking a lead in bringing about the right kind of cooperation between business leaders and the governmental agencies and there should result from it greater assurance than could be obtained from words. It is a constructive move that is well directed and most laudable.

THE DIFFERENCE IN MEN

Only a few weeks ago the head of a Colorado bank saw conditions ahead through no fault of their own whereby the depositors in that institution were destined to lose. He professed that he was grieved by that prospect. He wanted to stand right in their eyes. He wanted to protect them against loss, so he conceived the idea of getting the necessary funds, through misrepresentation, from other big banks. The inference was that he didn't mind if the other banks or those interested in them lost so long as nothing of the kind overtook his friends. The outcome was that he became involved in a serious tangle with the law and is now paying the penalty behind bars.

Only a few days ago there was the prospect that a Flint, Mich., bank would be closed because of the use of its funds for speculative purposes by trusted employes who had lost in the recent market crash. It was a situation involving nearly $3,600,000. There was a former president who sensed the situation, who fully understood the effect it would have upon the community and the depositors, and he went to its rescue. He is a man of money and a man of influence. The result is that he raised the equivalent in his own resources and turned it into the bank to make good the shortage. He was also made president during the emergency and the result is that the threatened losses to the depositors are not going to be experienced.

The financial situation of the two men was different and the emergencies faced were somewhat different but it is easy to understand which is going to get the greater appreciation from those for whom the benefit was intended. Throwing such a big sum into the coffers of an institution to fill such a hole as was created by a group of officials whose actions might have wrecked the bank is more than everyone would have been willing to do. It is more than every man of millions would have done, but there was a sincerity about that act in behalf of those destined to lose, and for which the man who is now furnishing the money was in no way responsible, that speaks for itself. It is a sacrifice and perhaps a chance that makes a great impression. It wasn't a case of robbing Peter to pay Paul or of committing two wrongs to make one right.

GROW MORE TREES

Right in line with the effort which has been advocated for a long time, is Secretary Hyde's suggestion concerning the use of farm land which is not producing an adequate profit. He not only appreciates the need of reforestation work, but he sees where it will be possible to return a bigger profit through the growing of trees.

While Secretary Hyde is pointing to the desirability of having the government purchase farm land that is not showing the degree of profit that it should and turn it into the national forest reserve, there is a hint therein which individuals might well take themselves.

It is not a new idea to develop a greater interest in this direction. It has been urged for years. It has been put before the country in such a way that there could not fail to be recognition of the fact that something needs to be done in the way of new forests. We are reducing our resources of timber and we are not making adequate provisions for the day when they will be exhausted. There are certain kinds of trees which are about gone, so much so that we are getting to the point where our chief dependence for them and the material into which they are made is placed upon other countries. We have failed to keep up a new supply as fast as we were drawing upon the old.

The federal government has long and persistently advocated reforestation. It has been taken up by the states and considerable work has resulted from such efforts, but if it is desirable for states to do it and the secretary of agriculture thinks it would be advisable to acquire low-profit farms for such purposes, it would seem to be a worth-while move for owners of land to give thought to the very same thing.

There is a vast quantity of waste land. There are many farms which are not utilized for farm purposes, apparently because they cannot be worked at a fair profit. Such land would grow trees and from such a crop good returns might be expected. If it is a good idea to increase the national forests in that way, why isn't it a good idea to apply the same method to waste and unused land in Connecticut and elsewhere?

MEXICO'S ELECTION

Other matters have served to eclipse the campaign in Mexico preliminary to its election to name a successor to Portes Gil as president. Its difficulties have not been as serious as on some occasions, although enough trouble for such an occasion was experienced. Nevertheless, there was no thought that any other would be elected than Pascual O. Rubio. Just what the vote was will be known in time but he had such a commanding lead that no other candidate had a chance.

In view of the fact that he had the backing of the Obregon-Calles regime it was a well-supported conclusion that he would be victorious. He will come to the office without the recommendation of having been a military leader, as has been so often the case in Mexico, but as a civilian who has been in the diplomatic service of his country. Although ex-President Calles left the country to stress the point that he was not exerting a personal influence in the election, his sympathies are known and it is to be anticipated that he will be pleased at the announced outcome.

Mexico is one of those countries which has gradually come to understand the importance of open ballot boxes and unrestrained freedom of voting. It was with the assurance that there would be no interference with the voters that Mexicans went to the polls. A fair election was the point stressed by President Gil and while those who failed of election may attempt to claim interference with their supporters it seems highly probable that such will be used as an excuse for defeat rather than an actual statement of fact to such an extent as to have in any way influenced the outcome.

A GOOD MOVE

With the conference at London two months off this is the time when those who are going to participate therein may well refrain from taking any steps that would be subject to wrong interpretation. In fact, it is a time when they may well be expected to take action and exert influences that will have good effect thereon.

This, at least, seems to be the explanation of the announced action by the British government in regard to the naval base which is under construction at Singapore.

When the first lord of the British admiralty states that it has been decided to slow up on all building operations there which can be stopped, he backs up the claim that the question of the use of the base may be affected by the decisions which are arrived at in the conference, and it is certain to have its good effect upon the gathering of representatives of the five nations.

It can be appreciated that it will be especially pleasing to the Japanese. Singapore has been an object of uncertainty to Japan ever since the decision to develop it was reached. It could be used for the control of many operations in that part of the world and its bearing upon any operations that might develop there is not overlooked by Japan. It is in a locality that would naturally give Japan concern, although the British may well regard it as a protection to India, southeastern Asia, Australia and New Zealand.

However, the holding up of work there must be regarded as a good move even though it may also be an economic move in the end for the British. If the abandonment of that base is used as a trading point in reaching other terms it will mean the saving of large outlays already projected.

DEARTH OF REASON

Too clean, too neat, too exactly the same as it was yesterday! Hal O'Neil threw his hat savagely at the orderly davenport. If only the man who took care of the big apartment and Hal would break a vase or leave papers on the floor—anything—just anything to ruffle the calm well-being of the establishment.

In the morning as he entered the shining glass partitioned room that was his office, typewriters clicked in monotonous rhythm. The whole organization worked with a oneness that beat in the metallic hearts of the machines that wrote its letters. Hal O'Neil's business was as orderly as his proper bachelor quarters.

As he walked down the glass lane to the president's office his shoulders were square and his head was high. An older man might have smiled at the girls and talked with the men, but Hal O'Neil was only 30 years old. What he lacked in age as an executive he felt he must supply in dignity. But at the end of the row, in a glass cage next his own sturdy door, a yellow-gold head shone in the early morning sunlight.

The soft wavy hair, severely brushed and pulled tight, escaped insubstantially in a golden mist. He shut his eyes as he walked past that cage. Every morning for a week he had wondered, as he walked through the maze of glass walls, what this new golden head was doing in his office. It was so unlike the other heads that the competent Miss Terry selected.

"I'll give some dictation," Hal O'Neil said dryly to the gray-haired woman who supervised the office detail.

"I'm sorry Miss Wren is ill today," Miss Terry answered. Hal was aware that Miss Terry was not sorry that Miss Wren should be indisposed, but that he should be inconvenienced. He was annoyed with her efficiency.

"The new girl won't do, I'm afraid. I told her I'd only give her another week to try." The gray head tilted, considering the matter.

"Ah—send her in," replied the president, curiously.

"Dear Mr. Walters," he began, as he heard the soft rustling of some one sliding into the chair, and then the customary silence of attention. "There seems to be a dearth of responsible young men. I have interviewed several here in my office, and have felt around in clubs and places where one meets eligible young men. But so far I have found none that will in any way meet your qualifications."

"Say, you are going too fast!" said a quick breathless voice at his elbow. He looked up into the round pleasant face under the blond gold halo. He heard Miss Terry gasp. Efficiency outraged! In the office of Hal O'Neil, importer, speed never was discussed. The fastest possible speed was necessary for the smooth routine of the office.

Miss Terry gasped again as she saw the stern Mr. O'Neil blush, and say meekly. "I'm sorry." Clearing his throat he began again. "Dear Mr. Walters: There seems to be a dearth of reasonable (no, cross that out). There seems to be a dearth—"

"Pardon me, but what's a 'dearth' and how do you spell it?" Miss Terry rose and left the office. This was complete insubordination. Mr. O'Neil looked into the sparkling blue eyes. The girl was actually serious.

"Dearth means scarcity—want—that there aren't any," he explained weakly and secretly determined to look it up as soon as she had gone.

"Dear Mr. Walters: There seems to be a dearth of young men who will consider the task you set them. Either they do not meet your specifications generally or they lack imagination—a combination suitable for the Rhodesia job is very rare. After all it is a hazardous journey, almost pioneering, into the great unknown—nothing certain—but I shall see what I can do."

He knew that he had never before dictated such a letter. He had pictured the place, southern Rhodesia, rickety little sallicats, big liners, life, beauty. Sighing, he repeated, "But I shall see what I can do." He looked up at the halo-haired substitute stenographer. She was sitting back in her chair watching him. Her notebook was empty, her cheeks were flushed, her eyes sparkled through a mist of dreamy blue.

"Oh, that's just grand—" she sighed. "And such a dearth of responsible young men!" She got up from her chair and left the room.

"Hey!" cried Hal O'Neil as the door opened. "Hey!" he repeated to the astonished Miss Terry, who reopened it. "Hey!" he shouted to the office as his eyes searched the glass-partitioned room.

The girl was slipping on her hat. She need not wait for the Terry verdict. She knew that she could not meet the O'Neil standards of speed and efficiency. Hal caught up with her as she reached the hall door.

"It's a nice day. Want to go for a ride?" the poised Hal O'Neil stammered. Speed and efficiency be hanged! All he was thinking of just then was that he could not let her go.

Mr. Walters had his own ideas about there being a dearth of responsible young men. Even Hal O'Neil hadn't been quite responsible, it seemed to the older man, when he put his business in the hands of a subordinate and galloped off to Rhodesia with a golden-haired bride.—Exchange.

A Washington Bystander

By KIRKE L. SIMPSON
Associated Press Staff Writer

WASHINGTON, Nov. 17—No one watching Senator Sam Shortridge of California in action would think for a minute of dubbing him "Sunny Sam".

He is too solemn by far in appearance and manner for any such light nickname to seem applicable. He is, the Bystander believes the most formal, the most invariably courteous, the most gesturesful and the most grave and reverend of senators in look and habit.

The long-tailed black cutaway with which he usually adorns his long, lean figure for senate appearance seems as much a part of him as the long forefingers with which he punctures the surrounding atmosphere in gesture at each phrase of a speech.

He has infinite variety in this respect. The Bystander never tires of watching from the press gallery during a Shortridge speech for a new manifestation of the usefulness of those forefingers in debate—and there is always a new wave or poke or jab to note.

His Sunny Homeland.

Yet despite his almost smileless demeanor on the senate floor, "Sunny Sam" would correctly express Senator Shortridge whenever he touches upon that subject dearest to his heart, the climate or other attractions of "the great state of Cal-ee-FOR-R-RN-ee-ah, which I have the honor to represent."

As a fellow Californian, the Bystander knows exactly how the senator feels about it, and desires to cast no slurs at his native state. No, decidedly, no. Just the contrary.

But the senate colleagues of Mr. Shortridge lose few opportunities to ride him gently for his utter devotion to California and all its works and ways.

Here's an excerpt, for example, of the celebrated case of casein debate during the tariff free-for-all. Gillett of Massachusetts is speaking:

"It has developed that in California casein is now produced which apparently is just as good as the Argentine casein. It was suggested that it was because in California it could be sun dried as in the Argentine.

"The junior senator from California (Mr. Shortridge) with his pride and delight in speaking about his glorious climate, in which I think he is quite justified, would naturally claim that California was particularly able to produce the choicest product in casein.

Challenge to Florida.

"I rather wondered why the Florida senators, in whose state is located St. Petersburg, where the sun shines every day, did not jealously rise."

Fletcher of Florida: "Florida has the sunshine and the orange juice, but we have no dairy interests."

Or again, with Robinson of Arkansas speaking ironically of the contention that foreign casein is better because sun-dried:

"We have no territory in the United States, apparently, certainly not in California, where we have the sunshine necessary to the making of good casein."

Shortridge: "We have sunshine even in Arkansas, I want to go on record as saying."

Robinson (hastily): "Mr. President, I want to withdraw that statement as to any lack of sunshine in California."

Howell, Nebraska: "If any one wants sunshine, let him come west of the Missouri. He may have his heart's desire. Sometimes we have too much."

That ended it for the moment; but for "Sunny Sam" Shortridge only until next time a California boost was possible.

YOUR HEALTH

Who Fails to Benefit?

By Harry E. Mock, M. D.
Chicago.
(From Gorgas Memorial Institute)

In 1920 I wrote a book on Industrial Medicine and Surgery, and was able to report on the results of 116,000 complete physical examinations of employes made in ten different large industries. No railroad was included because I was unable to find a single railroad at that time that was making complete physical examinations of its employes.

Today conditions have changed. We find scores of industries, large and small, furnishing complete and adequate physical examinations of their employes. At least six of the largest railroads are now doing this. One of the largest railroad systems has extended this service and made it compulsory for their managerial force, from the president down, to have a thorough, complete examination, repeated every year. It is conservative to say that at least 700,000 very complete health examinations are now being made annually by these railroads and at least twenty of our largest industries.

The greatest value to industry is the aid of such a system in keeping their employes well and fit, the reduction of time loss from work on account of illness, and the preservation of valuable employes to their service. In the case of railroads there is the additional protection of the traveling public from the trainman or engineer who, because of a physical defect may be a potentional cause of accident.

Many of the employes, recognizing the value of a health examination to themselves, are having the members of their family periodically examined by the family physician. Thus directly and indirectly these examinations are now extended to well over 1,000,000 people. And they are finding that the cost of such health audits is considerably less in money, and infinitely less in trouble and worry, than the cost of waiting for illness to develop, and then trying to cure it.

But what is the value to the nation as a whole? It is apparent that as this system of periodic health examinations of employes grows and expands, it bids fair to become the greatest public health movement ever inaugurated. It is the very backbone of disease prevention, and hand in hand with disease prevention comes accident prevention. This we are seeing the growth of the safety movement in industry and on most of our railroads. Thousands of lives are being saved annually by these two great preventive methods. If it is good in industry, the same system is valuable in the home. It is the method par excellence for the conservation of the nation's man power.

CHILD TRAINING

Training or Discipline.

Lucy Chandler Fuller

"Oh, oh!" cried Brother Jack. "Dorothy May spoiled my house."

"Dorothy May," called the children's nurse in firm but kind tones, "go and sit on that bench until I say you may leave."

The little girl, with a resentful look, obeyed the nurse. "What does Jack want to play house for anyway?" she thought as she watched her small brother rearrange his benches.

"That child minds nicely," remarked a second nurse girl who sat next to Annie, the one in charge of Jack and Dorothy May.

"And that she does," replied Annie, "or I shouldn't have her in charge."

"I wish I had control over Billy like that,' commented the other. "How do you do it?"

"Well," replied Annie, "I never say much and the only punishment I use is sending Dorothy May to her room or making her sit on a chair, but she knows she has to mind me."

"You may get up now," Annie turned and called to Dorothy May.

The little girl listlessly arose from her bench and wandered off toward a group of children.

"She's a queer child, I'ough," continued Annie. "She hasn't an imagination like her brother and she doesn't know what to do with herself half the time. She's always bothering the other children."

The conversation was interrupted at this point by a child's scream. Annie got up from her seat. "Dorothy May," she called, "come back and sit on our bench."

"In trouble again," commented Annie to her companion.

In the park sitting near the two nurse girls was an old gentleman who had read three pages of his book without having taken in a sentence of what he had read. The cries of the children and the nurse girls' conversation had occupied his attention. He looked over at the little girl on the bench. "Pretty, bright looking child," he thought. "Too bad! Too bad that there isn't someone to train her instead of just disciplining her. She minds that nurse all right, but I'll warrant she defies every other member of the family to make up for it." The man's eyes went back to his book but as he heard Annie's voice call Dorothy May to get up, his thoughts wandered to the little girl again.

"Has no imagination," he repeated to himself. "Not the same kind as her brother's, at any rate." The old gentleman's thoughts wandered on. "These just isn't anything here in which she is interested; that is the trouble. All those children are too young for her. Too bad! Too bad! And I suppose her mother thinks she is having the best of care in the fresh air with a competent woman in charge. Her mother doesn't know and even if she were here maybe she couldn't see how her child is being neglected. That little girl is perhaps not quite like the average child of her age. Someone who loves her should study her and guide her energies in some positive direction. There's something she would be interested in. She may not know what it is herself as yet. Someone ought to help her find that interest instead of raising black ire in her little soul by making her sit on park benches."

The old gentleman watched the group a few moments in silence, then uttered a disgusted "Bah!" under his breath and began the page over again.

"Dorothy May," again he heard the kind but firm tones, "come sit on this bench. No, sit on this one right here," added Annie. "That old man's going."

"I certainly am,' said the old gentleman to himself. 'I can't endure to see again the black look in these bright young eyes. Too bad! Too bad!"

BURGESS BEDTIME STORY

Flip Becomes Excited.

By Thornton W. Burgess.

'Tis always well to be discreet
With strangers whom you chance to meet.
—Flip the Terrier

Unc' Billy Possum had spent a very comfortable night in a hole under the old stone wall on the edge of the Old Orchard. I suspect he dreamed of many chickens. Anyway, the first thing he thought of when he awoke was chicken. He awoke very early, as is the way of the little people of the Green Forest. Jolly, round, red Mr. Sun had only just begun his daily climb up in the blue, blue sky. Unc' Billy climbed up on the old stone wall and looked over toward the henyard of Farmer Brown's Boy. He was disappointed, was Unc' Billy Possum. Not a chicken was to be seen. You see, it was too early. Farmer Brown's Boy had not yet come to let them out.

Unc' Billy was undecided just what to do. He yawned two or three times and then went exploring along the old stone wall. Finally he just couldn't resist the temptation to go over to that henyard. So he shuffled along over to the back of the henhouse. It was just then that Farmer Brown's Boy opened the back door and let Flip the Terrier out. Now, Flip was in the habit of running around the barnyard and the barn, sometimes down in the Old Orchard, for a little exercise and to see what he could find. He had discovered that often during the night there would be visitors to the farmyard—little people who wear fur and travel about at night. Many a time he had smelled their scent and it always excited him.

This time Flip trotted along over to the henyard sniffing here and sniffing there, as a dog will do. Finally he turned the corner of the henhouse and his quick eyes saw something moving. At first glance he thought it was some kind of a great rat with whitish, long and very untidy hair. With a sharp bark Flip darted forward.

Of course, it was Unc' Billy Possum. Unc' Billy turned with surprising quickness and faced Flip. Unc' Billy opened his mouth drew back his lips and showed a set of sharp teeth. With his hair standing up and those teeth showing, Unc' Billy looked very fierce. Flip stopped short. Unc' Billy snarled at him. He even took a step or two toward Flip, and Flip backed away hastily. Then Flip became excited. He began to bark. How he did bark! He would rush at Unc' Billy only to stop just before he reached him. He danced around him, now this side and now that side. Always Unc' Billy turned so as to face him. And always he presented that mouthful of sharp teeth.

Now, Flip is no coward. He wasn't really afraid, but this fellow was new to him. He still thought that Unc' Billy was some kind of a big rat, yet there was something about him different from any rats Flip had ever met. Furthermore, Flip's nose caught the scent of Unc' Billy and it was not the scent of a rat. So Flip was in doubt. It would be just as well to be a little careful.

"I don't know anything about this fellow," thought Flip, "but if I can once catch him from behind, I know I can kill him. Those teeth look sharp. Of course, my own teeth are sharp, but there is no use in giving him a chance to do the biting, if I can do it myself without getting hurt. I'll just try to scare him and make him run. If I can once make him run, I'll shake the life out of him."

So Flip continued to dance around Unc' Billy and make little rushes at him, and all the time he was growing more and more excited, and barking as only a small dog who is very much excited can bark. And all the time Unc' Billy continued to turn so as to always face Flip and to snarl and show his teeth. At the same time Unc' Billy was trying to get around the henhouse toward the chicken yard, where he could climb a post.

Stories That Recall Others

Shake Well

An owner of a small car of rather ancient model number was vainly trying to start the motor by hand, but the numberless turns of the starting crank resulted in nothing but an ill-humored and breathless owner. His feelings were not smoothed materially when a passing motorist slowed up enough to shout to him:

"Why don't you pick it up and shake it?"

Condolence

Robert is over watchful of his mother, lest someone harm her in some way or hurt her feelings. One day she had attended the funeral of a friend and had been asked to help with the flowers. Upon her return Robert heard her telling grandmother that they did not require her services and the undertaker had asked her to ride in another automobile. Hurrying to her side, Robert put his arm around her and said:

"What's the matter, mother, wouldn't they let you ride in the hearse?"

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

New Hartford Not West Hartford

Mr. Editor: My attention has been called to the fact that a statement appeared in your issue of Thursday, November 14, to the effect that I said in my talk before a meeting of the Women's City club that the public water supply of West Hartford had been depleted during the recent dry months.

This statement in your paper was evidently due to a misunderstanding. What I said was that during the dry spell which occurred last summer, the public water supplies of New Hartford and Lakeville had been depleted so that emergency supplies had to be pressed into use. Both of these supplies have since been discontinued.

I would appreciate it if you would make this correction in your paper as the public supply of West Hartford is taken from the Hartford water system which has proved adequate for present needs.

LECTURE SHOWS PROGRESS MADE IN PORTO RICO

An interesting lecture on Porto Rico, which was illustrated with a number of beautiful slides, was given Sunday evening at Trinity Methodist Episcopal church by the pastor, Rev. Joseph Cooper. Views of Porto Ricans among whom the Methodist missionaries are working, of churches, schools, residences and pictures of natives working in the coffee, sugar and tobacco fields were shown. There were also views of cities and towns and of various points of the island noted for scenic beauty.

Porto Rico is one of those islands of the Carribean sea, which is very beautiful and subject to terrific storms, said the speaker, one of which recently visited the island, a possession of the United States. Today there are a half dozen churches which have missions in Porto Rico, the Methodist church playing a particular part in bringing the gospel to these people. One church takes one section of the island, a second church takes another and so on, so that the churches do not overlap in their fields.

Rev. Mr. Cooper mentioned three main industries of the island, sugar, tobacco and coffee, and of the fruit that is grown there, namely grapefruit, pineapple, cocoanut and others. He said that the women engaged in picking coffee make an average pay of 40 cents a day, the wages paid employes being small and just enough to pay for their sustenance.

He spoke of the huts that are occupied by the natives, and are very simple and crude, oftentimes large families living in them. One family of five was living in a hut, 7x9 feet.

The main food of the people, he said, was rice, in one year 140 lbs. of rice being imported to the island for every man, woman and child. He said that the greater part of the food supply is imported as the greater portion of the land is planted in sugar cane, coffee and tobacco.

He also mentioned that the women are expert lace makers and he alluded to the advancement made along educational lines since the island was taken over by the United States, which has done considerable in putting the roads in good condition also.

Miss Caroline B. Scarlett.

(Contributed.)

With the passing into the great beyond early Sunday morning of Miss Caroline B. Scarlett of No. 46 Grove street for four score years a resident of Norwich, the United Congregational church loses one of its oldest and most devoted members. Miss Scarlett had been quite an invalid for several years but had been seriously ill only a few weeks. She was 94 years old, in her 95th year, yet retaining her mental faculties in a very marked degree, conversing intelligently on events pertaining to her early life and keeping quite abreast of the times. She, with other women, met together in those stirring days of the Civil war, and sewed and worked to send out our Norwich boys for their war service as comfortable as possible.

Miss Scarlett was for many years a faithful church worker in Sunday school and in many other ways. She was the niece of the late Richard A. Colburn, Mr. and Mrs. Colburn caring for her as parents, and she for them in their declining years. Miss Scarlett was greatly beloved by a large circle of friends who will miss her as a friend and companion.

Coming to Norwich with Mr. and Mrs. Colburn she resided with them on Grove street for about ten years and for 73 years had made her home in the house in which she died. She was born in Tewksbury, Mass.

LEADERS OF B'NAI BRITH ATTEND AUXILIARY CONFERENCE IN THIS CITY

The women's auxiliary lodges of the Independent Order of B'Nai Brith, district No. 1, visited Norwich for their annual conference which was held on Saturday and Sunday, the delegates representing lodges in Canada, New York state, Massachusetts, Maine, Rhide Island and Connecticut. Ladies' Auxiliary lodge, No. 40, of Norwich, was the hostess to these delegates and the cordial hospitality accorded to the visitors will linger in their memories for many years to come. Ever since last spring when the grand lodge convention, in honor of Mrs. A. M. Pasnik, who is the treasurer of the district lodge, designated Norwich as the place where the conference would be held, the local lodge has made plans to receive the guests on a scale which will reflect credit on Norwich, and the result of their efforts more than exceeded the anticipation of the delegation.

At 4 o'clock Saturday afternoon a reception and tea was held at the Waurezan hotel where the guests were introduced to the local members and to the visiting B'Nai Brith members from the neighboring city, New London. Among the delegates who came to the convention were Mrs. Miriam B. Schneider of Boston, president of the Women's Auxiliary council; Mrs. Harry Smith of New York, first vice president; Mrs. Eva Mehlman of Springfield, second vice president; Mrs. David Russlander of Buffalo, third vice president; Mrs. Augusta Katz of Boston, secretary; and Leo J. Lyons of Boston, chairman of the women's auxiliary lodges.

On Saturday night a grand banquet was given to the delegates at the B'nai Brith rooms, Uncas Merchants bank building, where 75 members and guests enjoyed the most brilliant and enthusiastic event ever arranged by the Jewish community of Norwich. The rooms were tastefully decorated with red, white and blue streamers and the American flag was flanked by the English flag on one side and by a flag bearing the Star of David on the other side. The illumination was also artistically arranged. The tables were provided with candelabra containing red, white and blue candles. On the center of the head table a silver Menorah (the seven armed candelabra lighted by seven frosted flare bulbs) the emblem of the B'Nai Brith symbolizing the seven cardinal virtues of the order: Light, Justice, Peace, Truth, Benevolence, Brotherly Love and Harmony; adorned the head table. There was also a large Star of David draped with American bunting and lighted by 13 white and blue bulbs producing a beautiful lighting effect. Before the president, Mrs. Miriam B. Schneider, was placed a beautiful bouquet of roses presented by the Ladies' Auxiliary of Norwich.

The menu was as follows: Fruit cocktail, stuffed haddock, celery, olives, pickles, lettuce with Russian dressing, roasted stuffed spring duck with cranberry sauce, polannaise potatoes, green peas and carrots, home-made pastry, ices and tea.

Max Hanover was toastmaster of the evening and he opened the ceremonies with singing of America with Alexander M. Pasnik as song leader. Rabbi Theodore H. Gordon of the Jewish Theological seminary of New York, offered the blessing. In welcoming the delegates, the toastmaster said in part: While we are poor in resources, comparable to the large cities of your abode, we feel rich in the sincerity of our hospitality and appreciation of the honor which was bestowed upon our lodge and our city by your coming to us and holding your conference in our midst. We assure you that to us your conference will not pass off as a mere official routine visit, but we shall ever remember the great pleasure and the inspiration which your visit brought to our members."

Mrs. Alexander M. Pasnik, president of the local auxiliary, extended greetings in behalf of the Norwich lodge and told the visitors of the origin of the name, "Norwich, the Rose of New England," which the delegates applauded with enthusiasm. President Miriam B. Schneider responded to the greetings in a very eloquent address in which she gave a concise outline of the numerous civic, charitable and patriotic activities carried on by the organizations of which she is president. After the response of Mrs. Schneider the toastmaster called on the delegates to rise, give their names, the names of their lodges and the office which they hold in their organizations. As each delegate introduced herself she was received with acclaim, especially when Miss Frances Textan of New York city said that her lodge, B'Nai Brith auxiliary, No. 1, has served humanity for 83 years, and Mrs. Mary Eckstein, from New York city, whose lodge has been rendering service for 82 years.

The entertainment consisted of several violin solos by Miss Lillian Hirsch of New London, soloist of the Norwich Symphony orchestra, accompanied by her sister, Miss Rose Shirley Hirsch. Miss Helena Crandall performed several artistic interpretive dances and was accompanied on the piano by Mrs. Harry Stebbins. The music of the evening was in charge of Walter W. Lang.

Nestor Dreyfus of New London, member of the general committee, I. O. B. B., spoke of the work performed by District No. 1. The principal speaker of the evening was Leo J. Lyons of Boston, who, for 37 years has been on the editorial staff of the Boston Globe. Mr. Lyons gave a very eloquent exposition of the dignity and affiliation with the B'Nai Brith order with which he has been connected his entire lifetime, which he said was performing civic, humanitarian, charitable and educational work in 24 countries in the world. Mr. Lyons particularly stressed the B'Nai Brith Hillel foundations established in a number of principal American universities where the Jewish youth is made acquainted with the true significance of Judaism as a philosophy, the contributions it made to the world's religion and ethics and what it stands for. The speaker said that the B'Nai Brith does not do its work with noisy shouting of trumpets, but it works quietly and with dignity and that some of its leaders fill some of the highest offices in the United States from the supreme court bench, the bench of the state supreme court, and other important branches of a state and national government. Mr. Lyons also lauded the work of the B'Nai Brith anti-defamation committee, and the wood will work which they are conducting in collaboration with Christian dignitaries in the United States thereby ushering in a new happy day of understanding and co-operation among the people of America. Mr. Lyons' address was received with great applause and the evening closed with a prayer by Rabbi Theodore H. Gordon.

The Ladies' auxiliary conference was held at 9 o'clock, Sunday morning at the Waurezan hotel, and a Dutch lunch was served in the B'Nai Brith rooms in which the delegates and members participated. At this meeting the Norwich B'Nai Brith lodge had the honor of the presence of David Russlander, president of Grand Lodge District No. 1, who came directly from Buffalo to attend the luncheon. Mr. Russlander addressed the meeting in a very thrilling address, telling about the wonderful work in every line of endeavor performed by the members of the B'Nai Brith throughout the United States and throughout the world. President Miriam B. Schneider showed stereoptican slides picturing the activities of B'Nai Brith in a great number of countries throughout the world and the numerous institutions which they support. Leo J. Lyons lectured upon the subjects represented by the pictures as they came upon the screen.

The luncheon was over at 3 o'clock and the delegates again went into session of the conference which lasted until 5 o'clock, concluding the business of the conference. The arrangements committee consisted of Mrs. Abraham Curland, chairman, Mrs. Herman Bruckner, Mrs. Casper Graff, Mrs. Frank Goldstein, Mrs. Harry Rosoff, Mrs. Abraham Bruckner, Mrs. Nathan Gilman, Mrs. Charles Jacobson, Mrs. Abraham Levine, Mrs. David Trachtenberg, Miss Sarah Novick and Miss Miriam Blumenthal.

BOY SCOUTS DIG "GOLD" IN OLD GOLD MINE

Seventy scouts left Franklin square Saturday afternoon at 1 o'clock in a special West Side trolley for an adventuresome afternoon hike and weiner roast. Leaving the car at the end of the line, the scouts paired off so that every scout had a buddy, and started towards Wauwecus hill.

A detachment of first class and second class scouts was sent ahead to lay in ambush for the approaching caravan, and so successful were these scouts in hiding themselves, that the entire group of scouts passed over a bridge "and were blown to bits" without them detecting the group in ambush under the bridge.

Along the way, led by Scout Commissioner A. L. Peale, the scouts practiced new signs for going ahead, turning to the right, to the left, and stop. Outbursts of yells and songs were frequent along the hike. Reaching the mine, Mr. Peale told a brief but interesting story of the attempts which had been made to discover gold, following which every scout dug a little of the rust-like stone for himself, and many a scout secreted a piece of sparkling rock on his person somewhere to take back to school to show teacher or friend.

A carefully laid trail and treasure hunt planned and executed by Scoutmaster Walter Weidman of the Dunwell troop and Arthur Adams, newly appointed field scout executive, of Hartford, engaged the scouts for a half hour or more. Real trail signs were used together with the delivery of a message from station to station. Along the trail the scouts were also required to use a compass. The trailers finally arrived at their goal, which proved to be none other than the old mine itself, where careful search revealed the "treasure," a fire-by-friction set together with a bag of eats. Every scout bringing in a string or thread from the stolen "victim's" garment received an apple, or several nuts, or some candy.

Following the hike, a dozen fires were builded and hundreds of "hot dogs," marshmellows, chestnuts, rolls, etc., were consumed. A score of the scouts made twists from dough which Scout Executive Seliman had brought along with him, while from different groups a bit of song or yell burst forth spontaneously only to be exceeded by a yell or song from a nearby competing group.

When every last morsel of food had disappeared and only the remnants of paper, ashes, and burning sticks remained to tell the story, all scouts were called together and three judges were appointed, consisting of A. L. Peale, Walter Weidman and Arthur Adams, to inspect each campfire site at the end of five minutes to see in what condition the scouts had left it. So thorough were the scouts in removing all traces of their respective fires, that after much search, the three judges reported that they were able to discover but one place where a fire had been. In fact, to see the blank expression of the judges as they passed from group to group to discover traces of fires and their chagrin at finding nothing was one of the most interesting features of the hike. It is declared that one group of scouts put a boulder over the spot on which their campfire had been, while another planted two trees there.

The campers broke up at 5:30, hiking back by way of Norwich Town. Scout Commissioner A. L. Peale and Scout Executive Seliman bade the last detachment good night at Franklin square.

DEATH OF MRS. H. H. OLIN, A NATIVE OF GREENEVILLE

(Special to The Bulletin)

JEWETT CITY, Nov. 17.—Mrs. Lois Anna Lewis, widow of Horace H. Olin, 81, died at her home on East Main street early Sunday evening. Mrs. Olin has been an invalid for years, but her indomitable spirit has brought her back from several serious turns of illness. Although never leaving her home she had a large circle of friends, who delighted to visit and talk, with her because of her interest in outside affairs and her humorous outlook on life.

Her daughter and son have made it their life work to care for her and make her happy. Mrs. Olin was born in Greeneville, Aug. 18, 1848, the daughter of Hiram and Olive Colburn Lewis. The early part of her life was spent in Greeneville and Bozrahville. She studied music with German and Italian professors in Norwich and took up teaching as her work. Previous to her marriage she was engaged as organist when the organ was first placed in Colchester Congregational church.

She married Horace Hamilton Olin June 21, 1870, coming to Jewett City to live and residing here for 22 years. Mr. Olin built the cottage now occupied by T. B. Duggan on Hill street, also the store occupied by Hutchinson and Stead, which was burned in 1876. Mr. Olin was bookkeeper and paymaster for the Slater Cotton Co. for 20 years. He also owned and operated the well-known cranberry bog, which business Mrs. Olin carried on after his death in 1888, also were engaged in orange culture in the south. After Mr. Olin's death, the family moved in succession to Waterbury, Putnam and Willimantic. Seven years ago they returned to Jewett City, where the son is employed with the Jewett City Press, for which paper the daughter is reporter.

Mrs. Olin united with the Jewett City Baptist church in her younger days, retaining her membership here. She is survived by her daughter, Grace E. Olin, and son, H. W. Olin, of Jewett City, a sister, Mrs. Jennie E. Franklin, of Willimantic, and a brother, George Lewis, of Westfield, Mass.

(Special to The Bulletin.)

WILLIMANTIC, Nov. 17—James F. Twomey, 69, insurance agent and former judge of probate, was struck down by a hit and run driver opposite his home, 295 Jackson street, about 7:30 o'clock tonight. Mr. Twomey was walking across the street towards his home at the time. He was partly dazed by the impact which threw him to the ground, but managed to secure the name of the driver. The driver saying that he would go after Mr. Twomey's glasses, which had dropped in the road, ran to his car instead and drove rapidly away. Mr. Twomey was taken to the office of Dr. Michael D. Riordan, where he was treated for a bad cut on the back of the head, a severe contusion on the forehead and an injury to his right hip. Capt. of Police Frank McLean immediately communicated with the state motor vehicle department and the arrest of the driver who is a resident of another city is expected within 12 hours.

COAST GUARD CRUSHES NEWPORT TRAINING STATION IN SERVICE GAME

(Special to The Bulletin)

NEWPORT, R. I., Nov. 17.—The Coast Guard football team ran roughshod over the powerful Training Station eleven of Newport, R. I., on Saturday afternoon, at the Causeway field, Newport, R. I., before a crowd of 12,000 fans. The Coast Guard coach placed one of the most powerful lines and fastest backs on the gridiron against the Navy team that has been seen on the field in many years.

The Training Station team, once holder of the President's Cup, and not having been beaten in four years by any other service team, was outclassed, outplayed and hopelessly outsmarted by the snappy Coast Guardsmen. Even Edwards, the Navy's crack backfielder, who has made himself famous against other service and college teams, could not make a dent in the Coast Guard line, although he made the only touchdown for the Training Station.

The Coast Guardsmen showed themselves to be real football players and the machine-like precision of their plays was something to be marveled at. The plays made by the individual players were like veterans of the gridiron, and the passing of the entire backfield makes it difficult to class any one player as the star of the game. It is well to mention that there have never been such elusive backfielders as Alf Davis, Libby and Heffelfinger. These "three musketeers" are lightning fast and it always takes more than three men to bring them to earth.

In the first quarter, three Training Station men attempted to hold Davis, who was headed for the goal; Davis dragged the three men for over seven yards before they held near the five-yard line.

The line-up:

Coast Guard		Newport Naval
	Left End
Reeves		Wessa
	Left Tackle
Shonts		Suswucki
	Left Guard
Wincke		Lagsden

"POP" WILLIAMS SCORES TOUCHDOWNS FOR SEAMROLLER

PROVIDENCE, R. I., Nov. 17.—Providence Steam Roller scored its third touchdown in the final quarter here today to defeat Minneapolis, 19 to 16 in a National Professional Football league game. "Pop" Williams, former Connecticut State fullback, scored three touchdowns for the winners through the line. Minneapolis scored two touchdowns on passes from Herb Joesting to Haycraft. A placement kick by Erickson accounted for the other Minneapolis points. Minneapolis was held on the Providence one yard line for four downs in the closing seconds of the game.

TORRINGTON AND STAMFORD OUTSTANDING TEAMS IN STATE

Torrington high closed its schedule Saturday with an unbeaten mark by walloping Ansonia, 36 to 0 and Stamford won from St. John's, Jr. Varsity of Brooklyn in the week's features. The latter score was 33 to 0. There are going to be plenty of arguments between the backers of these schools this winter as to which should own the state title this year.

Bulkeley and Chapman Tech with their scoreless draw at New London, Windham losing to its old rival, Manchester, 25 to 12, and the Academy winning from Stonington were the Eastern Connecticut features.

In the upset of the day Naugatuck was tied by Crosby, 6-6, while another important game saw Warren Harding trounce Meriden, 24 to 7.

Susie Says

I often wonder what the poor saddle-horse thinks about when ridden by some of our local would-be cowboys.

This horse-back riding may be good exercise for those who ride but it's not so good for the health of the horse. And, believe me, if I was the horse some of these lads would be doing nose dives into the gutter.

Can you imagine running a saddle-horse at top speed on a cement road? Well, that's what three of these imitation cowboys were doing Sunday for amusement.

Not satisfied with keeping to the dirt roads where a horse has some chance of keeping his feet these boys must go out on the traffic-clogged cement highway to stage their race.

On the dirt roads there was, of course, no audience to witness the clowning of these disciples of Tom Mix, so they must strut their stuff on the more traveled highways.

And to make their act more thrilling and sure to attract attention they were emitting blood-curdling yelling and fanning the horses with their hats in true western style.

How many real westerners would think for a minute of running his horse at breakneck speed on a cement road? They would have more consideration for the horse.

I'll bet there's many a horse who would drop dead if he could get a good look at what's on his back. And if they could talk they'd tell their riders something.

Now, I'm not taking a crack at the horse-back riders, by any means. It's only those who abuse their horses whom I refer to. Riding is a great sport if properly indulged in.

MARSTERS ALTHOUGH IDLE RETAINS SCORING HONORS

NEW YORK, Nov. 17.—(AP)—Propped in a wheel-chair on the sidelines at Hanover, the stricken Al Marsters watched his Dartmouth eleven rally to defeat Cornell by 18 to 14 yesterday, and preserved his lead among eastern individual eastern scorers for another week. Marsters now has reached a point where he has at least an even chance to retain the lead with his 103 points at the finish, even though his career came to an end with his injury in the Yale game two weeks ago.

Closest to Marsters are Dowler of Colgate and Hinkle of Bucknell who scored two touchdowns apiece yesterday to remain in a deadlock for runner-up honors. Each now has 78 points. Dowler has only the Brown game on Thanksgiving day in which to score the five touchdowns needed to tie Marsters, but Hinkle will have a shot at the weak Dickinson eleven on that date after taking a fling at the sturdier defense of Fordham next Saturday.

Ringle of Gallaudet, a player inconspicuous except for his feat of scoring 59 points against Shenandoah in a single game to get a season's record, swelled his total to 71 points by scoring twice against Susquehanna yesterday. This player is more of a menace to Marsters perhaps than any of the other leaders except Hinkle, as Gallaudet has a game against Shepherd college of West Virginia next Saturday. Ringle needs seven touchdowns to shade the Dartmouth special delivery man, but against Shepherd he conceivably could get them.

The field goal again remained in disuse over the week end. Albie Booth's three pointer which started Yale's scoring against Dartmouth still is the only field shot credited to any of the leaders.

ACADEMY WILL NOT HAVE BASKETBALL TEAM

Basketball, one of the newest sports in the Academy's athletic curriculum, has been discontinued for one year, according to an announcement on Sunday. It is understood that because of the mediocre showing by the 1928 club, which won four and lost 18, and a large financial loss suffered, the Wildcat authorities have decided to mark time with the court game until 1931 when the new Morton Memorial gym, now under construction, will be completed.

Basketball was organized at the school in 1927, William C. McKean then athletic director at the Y. M. C. A., acting as coach and being greatly instrumental in getting the sport established. Courtland C. Whitney, a member of the faculty, former all-round athlete at the school and football coach, took over the reins for the next two years. In 1927 the Wildcats won nine, lost 13 and in 1928, broke even at 11-all, mainly through a late-season spurt that won the last seven games and defeated both the C. F. A. and Taftville Crescents, local independent fives to gain the town title.

Prospects for the coming year had been considered fairly bright with several veterans left over, including Chet Berghinzo, Fat Stevens, Frank Barber, Henschel, Golembeskie, Armstrong and Dickerman. No captain had been elected or schedule drawn up.

The Academy's withdrawal for the year leaves the Eastern Connecticut conference with only Chapman Tech, Stonington and Windham as schools competing for the championships. Westerly and Bulkeley, remaining members of the Big Six have not sponsored teams for some time.

Academy fans will not feel lonely this winter, however, as two new sports, swimming and indoor track, will be inaugurated.

ACADEMY-BULKELEY GAME AT NEW LONDON SATURDAY

The Academy's 66th gridiron meeting with Bulkeley at New London Saturday will occupy the attention of Eastern Connecticut this week. The two old rivals get together at Mercer field for the second time in a contest that will close the schedule for both schools.

As the week opens, the Wildcats promise to be favorites over their Tigar rivals, although Bulkeley is conceded an advantage in playing on its home grid. The records favor the Academy as follows: Won 2, lost 5, tied 1, against won 0, lost 5, tied 3. N. F. A. has scored 44 points, the opposition 84, and Bulkeley, 29, its opponents 72.

ACADEMY PULLS OUT OF SLUMP TO BEAT STONINGTON BY 6 TO 0

(Special to The Bulletin)

STONINGTON, Nov. 17.—Fighting back from five defeats in the last six games, Norwich Free Academy staged a last minute rally here Saturday afternoon to beat Stonington high, 6 to 0, in a Big Six conference game. A pass, Geer to Capt. Chet Berghinzo, covering about 20 yards, won the game.

This victory moved the Wildcats into a tie for third place in the conference with the local eleven and by winning from Bulkeley this coming Saturday, N. F. A. could tie Windham for second place.

Both Lose Chances

The game was a stubbornly fought affair, with both teams threatening occasionally but neither possessing the final spark to push the ball over. In fact, just previous to scoring, the Norwich boys had been held on four downs within the one-yard line.

Just once more, as in the past seven games, Frank Barber was the big noise for the Norwich team while Berghinzo and Fontaine also played well. Capt. Powers and Spellman were best for Stonington.

The first quarter saw Norwich threaten to score when they brought the ball to the 19-yard line late in the period only to lose it on downs. Stonington had received but was forced to punt and N. F. A., using the aerial game to a great extent, marched up the field.

Stonington was forced to punt early in the second quarter and Norwich, essaying to kick back, had the punt blocked on its 25-yard line. Stonington couldn't gain and lost the ball again and the Academy punted out. Stonington collected three first downs to bring the ball up within their opponents' 15-yard line, only to lose it again on downs. The half ended soon after with N. F. A. in possession of the ball on their 20-yard line.

Stonington Loses On Downs

Stonington, aided by two penalties, brought the ball to the 25-yard line in the third quarter but lost on downs and N. F. A. kicked to Stonington's 35-yard line as the period ended.

After the Academy had marched about 79 yards in the final quarter they were halted on the 1-yard stripe and Stonington got off a short kick. On the first play Berghinzo scored the touchdown and after the try for extra point had been unsuccessful, the game ended a few moments later.

The J. B. Martin soccer team beat the Goodyear F. C. 2 goals to 0 at Goodyear on Sunday afternoon in a fast and interesting game. The J. B.'s had the advantage during the first half, I. PITTSBURGH STILL AT TOP OF FOOTBALL LIST

NEW YORK, Nov. 17—(AP)—The ranks of the eastern undefeated were narrowed to just two teams in Saturday's football free-for-all—Pittsburgh, the heir apparent to the sectional championship, and little Western Maryland, seeking whatever honors a perfect season can bring to an ambitious small college. Each has won eight straight. Following these are Davis and Elkins, Rider, Duquesne and Fordham, undefeated but tied and still very much in the race if anything should happen to the Panthers on Thanksgiving day.

The most illustrious name removed from the undefeated list over the week end was that of Cornell, which fell before a last minute Dartmouth drive at Hanover, ending Gil Dobie's dream of a return to the pinnacle vacated six years ago. Among the smaller elevens, Springfield bowed to New Hampshire and Haverford dropped a close decision to Drexel. Both had been tied, but neither previously had suffered a reverse.

In defeating Cornell by 18 to 14, Dartmouth not only retained the team scoring lead in the east, but also crowded to within one point of the 300-circle, which several elevens may gain. Other teams in the 200-class are: Colgate, 283; Albright, 258; Pittsburgh, 257; Syracuse, 253, and the Army 244. Four teams have yielded 200 or more points to opponents: Clarkson, 204; Johns Hopkins, 225; Vermont, 280 and Hobart, 296.

Georgetown failed to get better than a scoreless tie with West Virginia, but preserved its fine defensive record of having yielded only one touchdown—the seven points which meant defeat by little Western Maryland.

WINDHAM LOSES LAST GAME OF THE SEASON

(Special to The Bulletin)

WILLIMANTIC, Nov. 17—The Windham high eleven lost the final game of the season to an ancient rival, the Manchester high team, in a game finished off by the Silk Town reserves at Manchester Saturday afternoon. The final score was 25 to 12 with three touchdowns in the first quarter and one in the third, to Manchester's credit. Windham scored in the third and fourth. Manchester took the kickoff and paraded down the field for a touchdown with Dowd carrying the ball. Manchester gained the ball again after a series of kicks and Dowd dashed off on a 60-yard jaunt for the second touchdown. Just before the end of the first quarter, Dowd recovered a Windham fumble. Murphy plunged in for two long gains for the third "six-points."

Windham, battling against the Manchester reserves, finally broke through in the third quarter for a long march to the goal line. In the third quarter Lupien recovered a Windham fumble and Nicola scored. Windham's second touchdown in the final quarter was accomplished by a long pass from Meikle to Luciana. Dowd, Lupien, Murphy and Mizzer starred for Manchester while Meikle featured for Windham.

WOOD WINS HAWAIIAN OPEN FOR SECOND TIME

HONOLULU, Nov. 17.—(AP)—Craig Wood, Bloomfield, N. J., won the second annual Hawaiian $6,000 open golf championship today, scoring a 289 for the 72 holes. Wood shot a 72 and a 73 on the final 36 holes to displace Horton Smith, Joplin, Mo., who led at the end of yesterday's play. Smith won second place with a score of 292.

Billy Burke, New York, was third with 293, while one stroke behind him was Gene Sarazen, New York. Tommy Armour, Detroit, was fifth with 296.

Wood made a surprising recovery from his first day's play when he finished the 18 holes in 12th place with 75. Yesterday he scored a 69 and on today's 36 holes exceeded par figures by one stroke to win the tournament.

Smith shot a 75 on the morning 18 and a 74 on the afternoon round. Smith and Wood played the afternoon round together, each getting a 36 for the first nine holes. Smith was unable to keep to par golf on the returning trip, using one more stroke than Wood.

Burke shot a 70 for two under par on the afternoon 18 which, combined with a 73 on the morning trip, gave him a day's total of 143. He jumped from 13th place, where he finished yesterday, to close among the leaders.

Sarazen played steady golf, stroking 72 in the morning and a 74 on the final lap. Ed Dudley, Concordville, Pa., made a 70 on the last 18 holes, while Benny Coltrin, Los Altos, Cal., turned in a 71.

NEW LONDON, Nov. 17.—Bulkeley and Chapman Tech battled to a scoreless tie in their city title grid clash at Mercer field Saturday afternoon. This was the first football meeting of these teams in eight years and Bulkeley's last game before the annual classic with Norwich Free Academy here the coming Saturday.

ANNOUNCEMENTS

Palace Theatre.

The smillingest comedy you ever watched, the spiciest dialogue, the sauciest acting, all wrapped up in a beautiful technicolor setting. That is "Footlights and Fools," the colorful comedy now playing at the Palace theatre. But when you have said all that you haven't said enough. It's only part of the story, for the big feature of "Footlights and Fools" is not the comedy, or the music or the brilliant color, but the scintillating work of little Colleen Moore who flashes across the screen in the greatest hit of her career.

Wearing gowns which are worth a queen's ransom, Colleen Moore brings to the Palace all her old vivacious characteristics — the characteristics that made her such a tremendous hit in other great shows such as "Smiling Irish Eyes," "Lilac Time," and "Why Be Good." No matter in what show she played or what part she took, or how good her part and lines were, Colleen Moore always makes the rest of the cast take a back seat. Like Albie Booth at Yale, she may not be the whole team, numerically, but it's not so good without her. And this does not take a bit of credit from the brilliant supporting cast which includes such screen favorites as Raymond Hackett, Frederic March, Virginia Lee Corbin and Mickey Bennett.

How Betty finally solves her love problems is a situation that will surprise the movie fans who have been expecting the obvious ending. It is too good to give away at this time, but those who saw what happened at the first showings Saturday are still chuckling over the original twist which the author gave the plot. When you come to see "Footlights and Fools" you step behind the scenes into one of the strangest romances which the stage or screen has ever presented. You see weird, exotic dances, you hear the musical hits of the New York, London, Paris and Vienna music halls, you listen to wonderful melodies, beautifully sung—song hits as "If I Can't Have You," "You Can't Believe My Eyes," and "Pilly Pom Pom Plea." Hear Colleen Moore sing them, listen while a great orchestra reproduces them, thrill to the intoxicating rhythm of new songs and new dance steps. They are all in "Footlights and Fools" with a wonder all star cast of singers, dancers and actors waiting to present them to you in a beautiful setting of natural color. Small wonder that critics have forsaken their usual conventional words to write reams of praise about Colleen and her newest success.

LEFTY DUGAS SIGNS WITH PITTSBURGH

Adolph "Lefty" Dugas, demon slugger of the local sandlots, is now the property of the Pittsburgh Pirates, having signed a contract with that club for the coming year. Dugas first attracted the attention of the big league scouts when playing with the East Douglas team, champions of the Blackstone Valley league last season. Dugas' hitting was largely instrumental in clinching the pennant for the champions.

The Washington Americans offered Dugas a contract which he took under consideration and while he was considering this the Pirates came through with a better offer and Dugas affixed his name to the contract. It is reported that Dugas received a bonus of $750 for signing with the Pirates.

Dugas has been informed that he will be sent to the Wichita, Kan. team of the Western league for a year's seasoning before joining the Pirates. It is possible that he will go south with the Pittsburgh club in February before reporting to the Wichita team in the spring.

The Taftville boy is the second boy that has left the village for the big show, Denny Murphy being the other who went up to the majors. Dugas is a powerful hitter who has broken up many a ball game with his slugging. He started his baseball career as a pitcher but owing to his ability with the stick he was sent to the outfield. Now he has given up the pitching and is devoting all his attention to work in the outer gardens.

With the Wichita team he will be given an outfield berth and if he continues to pound the ball in this company he will probably go to the Pirates the year following.

PITTSBURGH AND NOTRE DAME LOOM AS OUTSTANDING CHAMPIONS OF COUNTRY

By ALAN GOULD
Associated Press Sports Editor

CHICAGO, Nov. 17.—(AP)—It requires no extended post-mortem today to discover that the main contenders for the national football championship of 1929 are Pittsburgh and Notre Dame, two of the finest and best equipped machines that the college gridirons have produced in many years.

These two mighty elevens do not meet this year, so that there may be no definite way to settle the argument if neither strikes any pitfall in the final chaos or two. Each has swept along so far undefeated, piling up records for consistent brilliancy in a season otherwise marked by a startling succession of upsets, the latest of which was Stanford's defeat by little Santa Clara on the Pacific coast.

In the greatest of all gridiron settings, Notre Dame turned back Southern California Saturday and stamped itself as a far more superior team than the score of 13 to 12 indicated, while a record throng of 123,000 spectators looked on from the wide open spaces of Soldiers field. At the same time, Pittsburgh smashed by a score of 24 to 13 the Carnegie team that had held Notre Dame three weeks ago to a single touchdown victory.

Pitt's eighth straight triumph, at the expense of its city rival, removed any lingering doubt about the super-power of the Panthers as the obiquitous Toby Uansa again ran wild. So far as Carnegie is concerned, Pitt packs more punch than Notre Dame, but comparative scores are not always a reliable yardstick. Notre Dame's performance yesterday left an indelible impression on the greatest gathering in American football history.

The Hoosiers' seventh triumph over formidable opposition, over the "breaks" and a hard fighting Trojan squad was something else besides a fine tonic for the health of Knute Rockne, guiding genius of the South Bend Cyclones. The magnetic "Rock," pillowed and guarded, after being confined for three weeks with an ailing leg, returned to the side lines to see his charges smash the winning streak of far western football over eastern rivals.

"Southern California put up a fine and courageous fight, said Rockne, from his hotel bed, after the game. "My boys did themselves proud."

"Notre Dame, battling against the breaks as well as a strong team, put up as fine an exhibition as I have ever seen," said a famous football coach who cast an eagle eye upon the proceedings for future reference. "In my opinion this is Rockne's greatest team, and perhaps the finest of all time. It has everything, including a great quarterback in Frank Carideo and superlative linemen in Moynihan, the center, and Law and Cannon, the guards."

Notre Dame faces Northwestern at Evanston next Saturday and then the Army at the Yankee Stadium November 30, with both of the latter outfits primed to toss everything they have at the Hoosiers' in the hope of redeeming previous disappointments."

Although Pitt and Notre Dame lead the big parade, there are at least a half dozen other great teams still unbeaten as they approach the climax of the campaign. Chief among them are Purdue, new champions of the Big Ten for the first time, and Detroit, of the middle west group; Tennessee and Tulane, the pace setters in the Southern conference; Texas Christian, in the southwest; Utah, the Rocky Mountain conference title holders; California, at the top of the Pacific coast conference, and St. Mary's unscored on and the only team to hold California to so much as a tie.

MRS. HOOVER CHUCKS POMPOSITY AND LIVES AS ANY CAREFREE WIFE

Since Lou Henry Hoover entered the white house as first lady, she has scorned the conventions of high office. At upper left she is taking a walk in the capital; at lower left she is shown in a Girl Scout uniform. At lower right she is shown in academic cap and gown

WASHINGTON, Nov. 17—(AP)—Lou Henry Hoover, who rode a friendly bicycle over Iowa country roads, has not changed much.

In the months that have passed since the heavy responsibility as president's wife was placed on her, her acts have pictured a new type of first lady.

She has done unprecedented things and a resume of her "tenure in office" brings out sharply that hers will be a unique place in history.

She shops and drives alone. She goes to evening entertainments without the president.

She brings the things in which she is interested into the daily life of the daily life of the white house instead of letting it and her exalted position in the nation's life rule her.

Until she became first lady, it was an unheard of thing for the president's wife to make any trip, however short, outside the white house gates unless accompanied by a secret service man.

Now a white house car often glides out of the big gate with the mistress at the wheel. Only women friends are in the car. No solicitous "other car" accompanies them.

When she goes on trips out of town or to affairs where big crowds make it unwise for her to be alone, however, Mrs Hoover conforms to custom.

The sight of Mrs. Hoover, walking buoyantly along on her low-heeled shoes, is not an unusual occurrence in Washington's shopping district. Here, too, she is unaccompanied save by a girl secretary.

Mrs. Hoover has re-arranged the white house to suit herself and in a way to make it homey and comfortable. She has planted a lovely California garden in the back yard where she entertains little groups of friends at tea.

She still has intimate Sunday night suppers, just as she did on S street, with a few friends dropping in informally.

PHEASANT IN THE MENU

(A Typical Winter Dinner)

Savory Pheasant — Wild Rice
Butter Sauce
Bread — Currant Jelly
Grapefruit Salad
Prune Gelatin Pudding — Coffee

Savory Pheasant.

1 pheasant, 1 teaspoon salt, ¼ teaspoon paprika, ½ cup flour, 5 tablespoons bacon or salt pork fat, ½ cup water, 2 tablespoons chopped onions, 2 tablespoons chopped celery.

Wash and clean the pheasant and cut into convenient sized serving pieces, cutting the breast in four pieces. Sprinkle with the salt and paprika and roll in the flour which has been sprinkled on a paper. Place the fat in a frying pan and when hot add the fowl and brown well on all sides.

Add the rest of the ingredients and cover with a lid. Bake for 30 minutes in a hot oven. Lower the fire and bake for 35 minutes longer, or until the fowl is very tender. Arrange on a serving platter. Surround with the rice and garnish with parsley.

Wild Rice, Hunter's Fashion.

1 cup wild rice, 2 cups water, 1 teaspoon salt.

Wash the rice and add the rest of the ingredients. Cook for 1 hour in a double boiler. Stir frequently with a fork. The rice is done when it is very fluffy and cooked quite dry. Wild rice differs from white rice, so a difference is required in the cooking.

Butter Sauce.

¼ cup butter, ¼ teaspoon paprika, ¼ teaspoon celery salt.

Mix the ingredients and heat until the butter has melted. Serve in a small dish. The butter is needed to moisten both the rice and pheasant.

Grapefruit Salad, Serving Four.

3 cups diced grapefruit, ¼ cup French dressing.

Mix and chill the ingredients and serve on crisp lettuce. Canned or fresh grapefruit can be used.

This tart salad is suggested to accompany game.

BROWN IS FASHIONABLE FOR BRIDESMAIDS NOW

WASHINGTON (AP)—Capital brides this season, to be a success, must have background of beauty as well as of family.

It's quite the thing now to have six bridesmaids dressed in the subdued cool weather tones of brown and beige instead of gay blues, pinks or yellows.

One bride had an outdoor wedding. She was resplendent in shining white with long train and shimmering veil that swirled about her feet like foam. Her six bridesmaids were modestly garbed in plain brown tailored dresses with small brown felt hats to match.

The matron of honor and bridesmaid at another wedding wore brown turbans and their flowers were tied with brown ribbons.

ALICE IN WONDERLAND SCRIPT ATTRACTS ELDERLY

WASHINGTON, Nov. 17—(AP)— The orginal manuscript and first editions of "Alice in Wonderland" attracted more persons of 60 years and over during the first two weeks of their stay here in the Library of Congress than they did children.

Men and women with silvery hair peered eagerly through the glass case at the quaint sketches and renewed their childhood acquaintance with the Mad Hatter and the Mock Turtle.

Two elderly women and a man came on three separate occasions. Each time they drew up chairs beside the exhibit and carefully examined the penned manuscript with which an Oxford teacher in 1862 delighted a little English girl, Alice Liddell.

They laughed together and they read once more the "Cat's Explanation" which had delighted them in their youth:

"I growl when I please and I wag my tail when I'm angry."

Children were strangely lacking in the small Washington groups which viewed the collection. The crowd at no time approached the lineup of 23,000 men, women and children which saw the exhibit during its first week's stay in New York.

I stood by the glass case containing the prized treasures. No one was in sight save the guard. The White Rabbit and the Dormouse and the Queen of Hearts disported themselves across the pages in all their quaint original glory. Yet the characters which have delighted millions of children all over the world had no audience save myself and a prosperous middle-aged man in a grey suit who came up swinging his cane.

He gave a perfunctory glance at the collection for which $150,000 was paid its owner, Eldridge R. Johnson of New Jersey, then went on.

SHIRRING AGAIN IS CHIC IN NEW PARIS CREATIONS

PARIS, Nov. 17—(AP)—Shirring, which is only another name for multiple rows of puckers, is riding on the crest of the fashion wave at the moment.

Bodices, sleeves, collars and capes are stirred, providing the materials are thin. Whole motifs are worked out in shirring on some of the newest chiffon evening frocks.

Shirred ruffles of cotton pique with pinked edges are the newest form of collar and cuffs for the dark wool morning dress.

OLD GRAY MARE MAKES FASHION CONTRIBUTION

PARIS, Nov. 17—(AP)—A dance dress made from the hairs of Dobbin's tail is among novelties of the mid-season dress collections.

The horsehair dress, all black, recalls the influence of the Barcelona exposition on present day French fashions.

The skirt is flared like a Castilian dancing girl's, and a Spanish bolero stops just above the waistline. The entire dress is covered with three-inch horsehair braid attached to black tulle.

NEW AMERICANS SCHOOLED IN CITIZENSHIP BY D. A. R.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 17—(AP)—More than $30,000 has been spent in the last year by the Daughters of the American Revolution in Americanization work, Mrs. L. H. Hobart, president general, reports.

The D. A. R. launched its citizenship program more than 10 years ago. It cooperates with all agencies in educating foreigners in citizenship through night classes. The society also has supported a crusade against illiteracy.

GIRLS CALLED BETTER STUDENTS THAN BOYS

CHATTANOOGA, Tenn., Nov. 17 —(AP)—Not because they are smarter but because they study harder, girls make better grades in school than boys, says Prof. P. L. Palmer of the University of Chattanooga.

As a matter of fact, psychological tests given freshmen at the university show boys have slightly greater native mental capacity, he says.

The professor pointed out, however, that tests are far from infallible.

A CLOSET WITH ALL MODERN EQUIPMENT

A New Wrinkle In The Closet Within A Closet

By Elsie Drew Kennedy.

Slowly but surely home keepers are coming to think of the cupboard in terms of color, line and fine detail—a chic bandbox for the protection of milady's finery.

This fashion theme is found in shops in the form of intriguing novelties for the closet, from amusing new hatstan to the elaborate shoe containers with all sorts of individualized compartments.

All this indicates the fact that fastidious women are susceptible to the idea of the individually designed cupboard. At once this should suggest unlimited possibilities to the woman with imagination and a flair for decoration.

The clothes closet sketch illustrates the idea of decorating a small closet space in a practical and charming manner. Thus we have an average size closet, consisting of three main units, which is compact, yet eliminates all waste space.

The outstanding feature of the design is the built-in cupboard directly opposite the door, which follows the general idea of a closet built over a long drawer. Two sliding doors run along grooves, thereby affording ample room for taking frocks and coats in and out of the cupboard.

Red cedar-panels line the closet and so secure maximum protection for woolens.

The long drawer below is ideal for shoes, which can be kept in beautiful order by the introduction of partitions, either built in or purchased in the novelty box department.

Eight sliding drawers are nicely fitted into a space on either side, giving ample room to keep lingerie, blouses, sweaters, sports things and furs, as well as hats. The upper drawers are excellent to hold evening gowns of perishable fabrics or the ones whose weight could not be sustained by the delicate shoulder straps.

One drawer at a convenient height may be partitioned for many small items which are too bulky for dresser drawers. Like the shoe drawer, this may be built in, or may consist of an arrangement of novelty boxes.

Another idea which is quite popular is the use of gay hat boxes for storing various things. These fit in nicely above the cupboard.

WOMAN IN LIFE AND IN THE KITCHEN

SUGGESTIONS FOR THE HOUSEWIFE

Adding a few drops of vinegar to pastry, when mixing it, tends to make it much lighter.

Sausages will not crack open when frying if they are first rolled in flour.

If milk is warmed before adding eggs to it when making custards it will not whey.

If soups and broths are carried to the sick room in a small pitcher, previously heated, they will stay hot longer.

The cut surface of a lemon will remove marks made on painted walls when matches have been scratched on them.

An attractive salad is made by scooping out the centers of large red apples and filling the cavities with chopped nuts and celery.

Leaks in the gas pipe should always be repaired promptly. When turning off the gas in lights or heaters be sure it is turned completely off.

When cutting cake or pie, you can do a neater job if you dip your knife into cold water before inserting each time. This prevents sticking.

Have an asbestos mat cut to fit inside gas or coal stove ovens. This prevents cakes and pies burning on the bottom while baking.

To whiten ivory ornaments that have become yellow wash them with soap and water and set them in the sunshine to dry. Repeat this process if necessary.

When adding currants or raisins to cake mixtures, be sure you dry them after washing, or dredge them in flour, as wet fruit is likely to sink to the bottom.

A child's supper should be a simple meal of soup, cooked cereal or egg, with milk, bread and butter and cooked fruit. The child will sleep all the better for a simple satisfying meal.

Cereals, whether prepared in the form of porridge or mush, gruel or jelly, must be cooked a very long time. This is to rupture the outer layers of cellulose surrounding the starch of the grain, thus making it more digestible.

DEFROSTING.

For those having electric refrigerators, you will find the most profitable time to defrost the units is immediately following the evening meal on a night when no company is expected. Place your made cubes in a reserve dish and then turn off your current. Forget about it until bedtime and you will find the unit clear. Wipe it off, refill your pans and start your motor. Your reserve cubes will have lasted you all evening and by morning your two pans will be solid and you will really not have lost any value of your refrigerator.

"KINK" IN ARM.

When you get a "kink" in your arm from beating batter, candy, etc., move the bowl to a different level. This will relieve the strain and you can go on with the job more comfortably.

HEALTH AND BEAUTY.

When the hands become hard and roughened, soak them in warm water, and while they are still wet rub them in olive oil until the skin has absorbed as much of it as it will, then dry the hands thoroughly.

Never keep a bottle of medicine in the medicine closet without a label. It is very foolish to trust to one's memory in an important thing like this. Mark each bottle plainly and discard at once any unlabeled bottle before any accident occurs.

Here is an exercise for reducing ankles: Suspend a pillow in the doorway on a level with your shoulders. Stand back about two feet and kick the pillow—first with one foot, then the other. Be sure to kick hard Gradually increase the height of the pillow.

Ordinarily we breathe unconsciously, but it is well to employ deep brathing exercises several times during the day. This is particularly beneficial to the person who is confined during the day. Step outside or stand in front of an open window and take 15 or 20 deep breaths several times during the day. It helps to offset the evils of indoor living.

ONIONS.

The onion is a healthful article of food, but also has great value as a remedy. Grandma used to cure the family cold with onions. People are people now just as they were then, so it might cure a cough or hoarseness now just as it did then. It is worth trying anyway. Put one-half cup minced onions, one cup vinegar and one cup molasses into a saucepan; simmer half an hour and strain. A teaspoon of the mixture should be taken frequently.

A physician recommends the juice of finely sliced onions sprinkled with sugar for heavy colds. To extract the juice put the onions in a pan, sprinkle with sugar and set pan on radiator or where the onions will heat very slowly. Teaspoon doses of the juice taken at frequent intervals will give speedy relief.

WINDOW BOX FOR NURSERY.

A delightful outdoor note may be given to the children's room this fall by introduction of a low window box where seedlings may be watched from day to day. This need not be a clumsy and leaky wooden box on an old tabouret—it had better be one of the simple iron and tile tables (the tiles amusing in themselves with animal and human figures) and the box a simple tin affair brightly painted.

POTTING FERNS.

If you put a layer of charcoal on the bottom of pots or window boxes for drainage and sprinkle some through the dirt in which you plant your ferns, the soil will stay pure and the fern's foliage will have good color.

DICTATES OF FASHION.

Felt and velvet are cleverly combined in some of the smartest hats.

A wide border of ostrich finished the hem of a coat seen recently at Deauville.

New sport stockings of the finest wool are in a tone of beige and are cloacked in dark brown.

Soft light-weight tweeds in pastel shades are already on display for winter resort wear.

The evening frocks now are very frequently of black and white, especially the satins.

Pastel tweed coats are very high in style value and are a great relief from the universally popular white coat.

Felt hats are now on their metal or rather the metal is on them, for trimming of nail heads, buckle or geometric pin is newly smart.

New winter ensembles make much of the muff. Often the center of these little fancies is of fur like the coat's trim, while circular ruffles of the costume's material edge them.

Nubbed tweeds are shown in darker tones, which are equally smart for suits and light-weight coats, yet the light grounds with bright color are a bit newer and more inviting than the dark shades.

One of the most popuir necklaces launched by Patou is of handsomely

One of the most popular necklaces wrought of links of medium size, with a large striking pendant which falls low.

Something quite new in the way of necklaces consists of beads made of a composition resembling tortoise-shell. They come in large, single strands or in necklaces made up for three strands of small beads.

The two and three eyelet oxford is very smart now for walking. A plum colored one is of antelope, with the tip and a little vamp yoke and the strip that holds the eyelets all of matching calfskin. The heel is calfskin.

WRINKLED GLOVES.

The suit and coat now ask for from three button to six button gloves. Beige, soft gray and black are smart shades. White is good for dress. Evening asks for pink ones, usually suede. All are worn wrinkled down to wrists.

SLIPPERS OF VIVID HUES.

If you have wondered whether evening slippers would contrast or harmonize with the frock this coming season, you will find that contrasting effects predominate. Very vivid colors are used; for instance, chartreuse slippers with wine-colored frock or emerald green with pink.

NOVEL EVENING GOWN.

"Season of 1929" is stamped upon an evening frock made of dark green flat crepe. The waist-line is high, and that, and the unusual shade used, proclaim it as exceedingly new.

LAUNDRY HINTS.

Sour milk will remove rust stains from white fabrics. Soak in the milk, then rinse in clear water before using soap.

If you want to dry silk stockings quickly, stuff them with tissue paper and hang them up where the air will hit them. The paper absorbs the moisture.

Napkins will be more easily ironed if, instead of being sprinkled before ironing, every third one is wrung out of hot water and placed between two dry napkins and rolled up for a few hours.

Certain portions of a garment, such as the collar, cuffs and some of the inner seams, usually need special attention in laundering. If they are badly soiled it is a good idea to brush them with a bristle brush and soap suds before the garment is placed in the tub or washing machine.

LAUNDERING DELICATE LACES

Odd bits of lace are being resurrected from worn out garments and family treasure chests to furnish the trimmings for many of the newest gowns. Although some people prefer the yellow tinge that white lace acquires through age, the natural hue may be readily restored by simmering the lace in sour milk for a few moments, then washing it with soap and luke warm water. Black lace will not turn grey after laundering if a strong solution of tea is added to the final rinsing water. If a little gum arabic is also added, the lace will look like new.

When washing delicate lace, it is advisable to wind it around a bottle wrapped in cheesecloth so that the ends can be secured. Cover it with another layer of cheesecloth to protest the fine threads. Dip the bottle in and out of a basin of luke warm water, and dry before removing the cheesecloth wrappings.

To keep a lace collar from tearing or losing its shape during laundering, it is helpful to baste it onto a piece of white cloth before immersing it in the soapy water. The basting stitches should not be taken out until it is rinsed and dried.

YOLKS AND WHITES.

When making a dish calling for egg whites, plan another dish that will use up the left over yolks. For instance, if making a pudding with a meringue calling for a number of whites, have a salad at the same time with mayonnaise dressing. Then the yolks will be used, too. However, egg whites will keep for several days in the refrigerator, and, if you cover the egg yolks with cold water and keep them in a cup in the refrigerator, the same thing applies.

BOILING WATER.

It is very annoying when cooking rice, noodles, beans, etc., to have them foam and boil over the stove. This can be avoided by dropping a small piece of butter in the boiling water.

CONCERNING WOMEN.

The American Nurses' Association has a membership of 70,000.

Married women are barred from working for the city of Dallas, Tex.

Acting as courier for the Santa Fe railroad is the duty of Miss Mary Tucker. She is guide, counsellor and hostess to parties of travellers who want to see whatever of interest is to be seen in New Mexico and Arizona.

Miss Helen Davis, aged 23, of Vacaville, Cal., declared to be the "only girl or woman in the world who breeds and trains and drives her own race horses," wears a jockey's cap, khaki breeches and riding boots when competing in races at country fairs.

Guiding Your Child

By Mrs. Agnes Lyne

Instead of Punishing.

It is better always, instead of punishing your child, to let wrong acts bring upon him their own unpleasant consequences. It is better to teach him by patient explanation and kindness what you wish him to do, and why.

Draw his attention always to the thing you wish him to do rather than to the wrong thing which he has done. Remember that punishment has a tendency to emphasize the fault and to establish feelings of resentment toward the one who punishes.

This attitude militates against the development of that cooperation which we all recognize as desirable between parent and child.

Give your child your attention, not only when he misbehaves but also when he is making an effort to do what he knows to be right. Remember that an ounce of approval is worth a pound of punishment.

A friendly smile and a word of praise go further toward cultivating right attitudes and tendencies than any number of penalties imposed for the exhibition of wrong ones.

It is possible to bring up the average child practically without punishment, if from the beginning we are thoroughly honest, consistent and sympathetic in our dealing with him.

Of course, such education takes time, for we must explain things, and we must be patient while the child fumbles his way through the process of learning.

But certainly time thus spent during the early years is well repaid by greater happiness throughout childhood, and by the development during later years of good conduct, motivated by the wish to do right, rather than by fear of wrong doing.

DRESSES COVER LEGS BUT UNCOVER BACKS

Backless evening dresses are the dressmakers' compensating offering for toe-length dresses which decrease the effectiveness of pretty legs.

Many formal gowns have decoletes which reach to the waistline in a deep V. Necklines may be conventionally high in front on dresses which expose the entire back within six inches of the natural waistline.

A few of the most daring dresses display the bare flesh a few inches below the curve of the back, the alternative being insets of flesh colored chiffon. Another form of decollete is the dress with modestly rounded neck line front and back and a corsage slit nearly to the waist at the sides.

Mid-season collections, with the latest style offerings for the southern resort crowds, include more startling decolletes than did the earlier winter showings.

Green Foxes Coming

PARIS, Nov. 17—(AP)—Fox is being dished up in a new guise by the style makers here. Green dyed pelts are prominently featured by a couturier who formerly made lavish use of silver fox. Two-skin neckpieces, worn with afternoon dresses are shown at the same establishment. Beige baby fox, silver fox and dyed pelts are used for the neckpieces.

Debs Serve as Ushers

MEMPHIS, Tenn., Nov. 17—(AP)—The Memphis Little theater has enlisted debutantes of the season as ushers. The debs also serve coffee and cigarets during intermissions.

CHIC FALL FURS ARE BROWN AS BURNT COPPER

Among the smart fall furs are the "cocktail cape" for the woman who wants smart warmth for late afternoon and early evening (left), and the collar that frames the face, with sleeves that broaden below the elbow.

NEW YORK, Nov. 17—(AP)—It is doubtful if every woman in America will, but this season every woman in America might dress from top to toe in brown and be very chic.

Deep, rich brown is the shade. There are brown hats in felt and fabrics; brown tweeds, brown furs, and even kid for shoes in the right shade of brown—burnt copper.

Designers, stylists, buyers and retailers lay great importance on the fashion-worthiness of particular shades. Well they may, for colors, like fashions as a whole go in cycles of acceptance, and manufacturers missing the right shades by a few degrees realize they may miss a great many sales.

In the evening collars will be voluminous. There is a definite movement to frame faces very captivatingly.

Afternoon coats will also have quite large collars. Some of them, when the coats are unfastened and their wearers seated, will drop down into various cape-like effects.

Some emphasis, but not so much as in other seasons, is given the long, broad fur lapel reaching from collar to bottom of the coat. Probably the huge scarf collar which ties will be smarter.

Cuffs are variously luxurious and restrained. Sometimes there is no cuff at all. Sleeves, by careful manipulation of fur, frequently broaden near the wrists or just below the elbows. This suggests a cuff without actually being one.

Among the smartest and most popular animals for sports coats will be raccoon in soft dark brown. Many cloth sports coats will be lined with fur.

For afternoon, excellent furs will be Persian lamb, shaved lamb, beaver, galiak, lapin, fox (particularly blue fox), lynx, breitschwantz, astrakhan, mink, Chinese ermine, wolf, marten louter de mer (dark brown sealskin) and caraoul.

For the evening there will be particular smartness in chinchilla—"If," as one woman, smart in more ways than one, remarked, "you can afford it." Ermine and sable will be beloved as usual.

All this doesn't mean that you must throw away perfectly good black sealskin, for instance. As a matter of fact, black will be top row in dresses but merely isn't emphasized in the high seats of fur fashions.

PRETTY AND INEXPENSIVE.

Those who find that their supply of china needs replenishing will delight in a breakfast set in simple modernistic design, which may be purchased for less than six dollars.

IN MEMORIAM

In Loving Memory of Pearl W. Lewis
Whom God Called Home
Nov. 18, 1923

You are not forgotten, dearest father, nor will you ever be,
As long as life and memory last we will remember thee.
You suffered much, you murmured not.
We watched you from early morn
till evening close,
With broken hearts we saw you pass away.
Friends may think that you are forgotten
But the wound is as fresh today
As the day you left us broken-hearted
Just six years ago today.

His Children,

POETRY

Now I Lay Me Down To Sleep

Youth's golden days are gone—its fire,
The shades of evening on us creep.
Again we pray as we retire,
"And now I lay me down to sleep."

When life's disasters on us fall
Then we oft worry, often weep;
We softly whisper, one and all
"I pray the Lord my soul to keep."

Our friends depart, our old friends go,
And lonely hearts with anguish ache;
What is the harvest that we sow?—
"If I should die before I wake."

Our fathers' faith like hope's star beams
That God will none of us forsake;
How simple and sublime this seems,
"I pray the Lord my soul to take."

And humbly, earnestly, we pray,
As we regret some past mistake,
Our thoughtlessness from day to day,
"And this I ask for Jesus' sake."

—By Charles Nevers Holmes.

Contentment

The man who is content with what he has
Escapes the struggle of ambitious strife,
And if contentment means real happiness
He leads a happy life.

He may not have as much as others have,
Indeed, he may not have much worldly wealth;
But what of that, if he is satisfied,
And he is blessed with health!

He has no parking envy in his soul,
And he is jealous of no other man.
With what he has, and asking nothing more,
He lives as best he can.

The man who is content with what he has,
Whether a poor man or a millionaire,
Is wiser than the rest of us, perhaps—
But he is very rare!

—Somerville Journal.

TWO PUNCH BOARDS SEIZED—STORE OWNER UNDER BONDS

(Special to The Bulletin)

NEW LONDON, Nov. 17—The police conducted successful raids Saturday afternoon and early today: two residences received their attention for selling liquor and a gambling resort was the site of the third raid, while in a store where a form of gambling was countenanced the fourth raid was made.

About a year ago the authorities issued an edict ordering the removal of punch boards of every description from stores where they were stationed for the playing of the boards was an open form of gambling. The police notified all proprietors of stores where punch boards were found to suspend this form of gambling and the order was complied with. Within a few weeks, however, the punch board has become a conspicuous gaming device on the counters of confectionery, tobacco and ice cream stores as well as lunch rooms. Saturday afternoon Detective Sergeant John Cavanagh and Sergeant Samuel Hick went to the confectionery store of Poretti and DiMarco, 3 State street and finding two punch boards on the counter, seized them and arrested Joseph Poretti on a charge of maintaining gaming devices. Poretti furnished a surety on his bond of $1,000 and will be in court Monday.

Secchiaroldi was arrested on charges of possession and reputation. He furnished a surety on his bond of $1000 and will be in court tomorrow. A quantity of liquor was found and seized. Secchiaroldi, who is a moulder by occupation, has been arrested twice before for violation of the liquor law.

The second place visited was that of Mrs. Marino. Detective Sergeant Nelson Smith, Automobile Patrol Officer Carlos Stone and Patrolmen George Laboue and George Bruhns went to the house shortly before midnight and found much evidence of the sale of liquor. Mrs. Marino, who was arrested, furnished a surety on her bond of $1000 and will be given a hearing, Monday.

That officer maintained watch of the pasture and when a hound was observed to attack the cow, the dog was seized and destroyed. The owner of the dog has not been discovered for the tags attached to the animal's collar were of old issue, none of the inscriptions being legible, excepting one and that was of the issue of 1923.

DEPRESSION IN THE STOCK MARKET HAS CAUSED HESITANCY IN BUSINESS WORLD

NEW YORK, Nov. 17.—(AP)—Further hesitancy appeared in business with renewed depression of the stock market last week, but encouraging stability remained most notable characteristic of the business situation.

Particularly encouraging was the proposal of the administration to reduce both corporate and individual income taxes, which met with enthusiastic reception in legislative circles. Further reduction in the New York Federal reserve rediscount rate to 4 1-2 per cent, coming only a fortnight after the drop from 6 to 5 per cent., was regarded as foreshadowing a general reduction throughout the reserve system, and as an indication that credit will be made as cheap as possible, with reasonable safeguards against inflation.

Credit rates generally showed marked declines, and this was regarded as auguring a revival of building activity. The depression in building, which has lasted more than a year, has been one of the sore spots in the business situation.

Steel mill operations continued to decline, with weakness developing in steel scrap prices and an easier undertone in prices for finished products. Railways and farm implement manufacturers, however, continued to make large purchases, and building construction interests were active in the market.

The automobile industry continued to lag, which is the primary cause of the slackening of steel mill activity. A decline in automobile manufacturing at this time is seasonal, but it has been accentuated this year by overproduction earlier, and uncertainty as to how the collapse of the stock market may affect sales. The maintenance of a high level of general employment appears to assure fairly large purchasing power. The market break is expected to influence sales in metropolitan areas primarily.

Retail trade sagged during the week, but unseasonably warm weather was regarded as an important cause. Freight car loadings as reported for the latest week showed another sharp decline below the like week of 1928, but held above the corresponding weeks of the three previous years. A decline in freight car loadings is normal at this time of year, and has little barometric value save as compared with the normal trend.

The week brought forth further success in meeting the problem of over production in certain lines, notably petroleum and textiles.

Commodity markets generally were sharply depressed with the stock market early in the week, but rallied with the upturn in stocks on Thursday and Friday, particularly wheat and cotton.

As an indication of strong cash position and confidence in the future, several large corporatons paid extra dividends. General Motors ordering another extra of 30 cents. Fully 190 corporations disbursed regular or extra dividends on Friday.

Broadway Theatre

Ablaze with collegiate spirit, sparkling with gaiety and fun, "Sweetie," that all-talking feature comedy of coed life, love and laughter, opened to crowded houses at the Broadway Saturday and Sunday. Dainty Nancy Carroll, laughing Jack Oakie, dimpled "baby-talk" Helen Kane, and Stuart Erwin head the big cast of singing, talking and dancing stars in the fastest, peppiest revue of college life ever made. Rousing musical and singing numbers specially written for "Sweetie" enliven the already swift action of the show, which gathers speed with every foot of film unreeled. Nancy Carroll has "Sweeter Than Sweet," Helen (Sugar) Kane croons four big "baby-talk" numbers, among them "I Think You'll Like It," and with Jack Oakie introduces a brand-new dance, "The Prep Step." Jack Oakie is a show in himself with his "Alma Mammy." Added to all the pep is a tremendously fast football game, in which boat teams are openly out for gore. Speed set to music is the keynote of "Sweetie." Charlie Chase has a new comedy in "Leaping Love," the Gotham Rhythm Boys have a unique musical and singing novelty, and the latest Paramount Sound news completes the bill. A huge chocolate drop named "Sweetie" in honor of Nancy Carroll, is to be presented to the lucky person guessing its weight, and can be seen daily in the window of Sellas Spa. Following the engagement of "Sweetie," that vivid drama of the World war, "She Goes to War," a film epic dedicated to the women of the World war, those who "went to war" and those who supported the cause loyally at home, will come to the Broadway screen. All Gold Star mothers, World war nurses, U. S. N. Yeowomen and members of the Women's Reserve Motor corps are admitted gratis to any performance of this great picture.

Breed Theatre

"Drag" concerns a young newspaperman who goes to a small town to take over the local paper. He is also ambitious to become a composer of operettas. In the small town he meets a young girl, finds himself engaged and then married to her. But, unwittingly, he also finds himself supporting her entire family. How they keep dragging the young man down, how he struggles against it, how he finds sympathy and encouragement from an unexpected source—these form the framework of the story. The unexpected source by the way is that very charming dark-haired beauty, Lila Lee, while Alice Day, blonde and appealing as ever, plays the wife whose love for her relations is greater than her love for her husband.

The ending of "Drag" is tuneful and colorful when "The Love Prince," a musical play, is introduced as the work of the hero, written while beating his wings against the walls of destiny in the small town.

The chief mineral wealth of Vermont lies in its granite and marble quarries.

THE WEEPING MUSE

IS Modern Industrialism about to deal the Art of Music the saddest blow of its history?

To blame Machinery as an Instrument of Decadence may seem startling, but it is true that Machinery in the form of Canned Music is elbowing Real Music out of motion picture theatres, thus denying to the masses the cultural influence of a Fine Art.

Surely, if machine-made music displaces the artist in thousands of instances, the incentive for any individual to improve his talent—so necessary in all art—is minimized and music can no longer hold the cultural value that it has possessed. Any art is dependent for its progress upon the number of its enthusiastic executants.

If you believe that Real Music should be saved to the masses who attend Motion Picture Theatres make your opinion known to the manager of your favorite theatre. Very likely he will appreciate your frankness for he wants to please his patrons.

WEST SIDE MAN'S AUTO BROKE POLE AND FENCE ON EDGE OF TANNERY POND

A telegraph pole was broken off at the butt and over 25 feet of iron fence on the edge of the tannery pond on North Main street was torn down and pushed into the pond shortly after noon Sunday, when an automobile driven by Andrew Moral of 139 Mt. Pleasant street, plunged across the street, out of control, and hit the pole and fence.

According to the report Mr. Moral made to the police, he was driving in the car track when he was oblized to turn out by the approach of a trolley car. The wheels of his machine caught in the wet tracks, throwing the automobile across the street and into the pole and fence.

The force of the blow was enough to crack the pole off and demolish a considerable section of the iron fence. Six of seven of the concrete bases in which the fence poles are set were torn out and pushed over into the pond with the section of fence. The machine sustained considerable damage in the crash.

MIDDLE AGES HYSTERIA OVER MALDEN "MIRACLES"

What with demonstrations of hysteria akin to the Middle Ages over the Malden "miracles" and grown men in the legislature calling each other jackasses over disappointments in legislation, we have need to consider measures towards mental hygiene, declared Dr. Haven Emerson of the College of Physicians and Surgeons, Columbia university, when he spoke here last week before a meeting of the United Workers. There are too many people who have nothing above the collar, he continued. It's all right to look at teeth and tonsils, but if there's nothing in the attic it seems hardly worth while to clean out the cellar. The public health nurse equipped with some training along the lines of mental hygiene could render service in the line of checking disordered mental contacts in two ways, viz: through the education of the parents and through detecting the earliest signs of maladjustment in the children.

PERSONAL CALLS DIMINISH UNDER NEW TOLL PLAN

Although in operation only since the middle of July, the new method of placing station to station toll calls on the Southern New England Telephone Co. system directly with local operators has had the effect of increasing this type of toll call considerably without reducing greatly the person to person class of call. As yet the new system has not been in use sufficiently long to show more than a very slight decrease in the average time of toll call completion.

Better understanding of the various methods of placing toll calls on the part of telephone subscribers, however, has been the greatest agency tending towards increase in the station to station call. In the old days, when it was necessary to ask for the toll operator in order to place any type of call outside of one's own central office, the custom was to name the person as well as the number desired. When the directly placed station to station system was gradually put into effect, it required some time before subscribers overcame the habit of naming the person with whom they desired to talk.

In the last five years the change of habit has come rapidly. Within that period, station to station calls have increased from 76 per cent to 88 per cent of the total toll calls placed through Connecticut exchanges. Today, with the excention of calls in which conversation with only one individual is desired, all toll calls may be placed directly with the local operator if the number is known.

ELIZABETH ST. PUPIL SOLVES MATHEMATICAL PROBLEM

A problem in mathmetics was given to a correspondence school student concerning interest and discount. The answer was given but the student was unable to solve it. He asked for assistance from the agent of the correspondence school who conscientiously went at it, sitting up one night until 4 o'clock in the morning, but without success.

The problem was in turn given to 20 different adults and taken to three local banks, all of whom were unable to obtain the right answer. It finally came to the attention of Miss Edith M. Billings, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Billings of No. 2 Willey place, this city, 12 year old pupil of Miss Gertrude Ward at Elizabeth street school. Miss Billings solved the perplexing problem after about a half hour's work.

Trial of the $2,000 slander suit of Mrs. Stanley Rajewska of Mohegan Park road against Zenon Zienkiewicz of Boswell avenue was held in the common pleas court here Saturday morning before Judge C. B. Waller, who reserved decision.

It is alleged that the defendant made slanderous statements, against the plaintiff in the hearing of Sophie Zenolda, all of which were untrue and damaging to the reputation and character of the plaintiff, who has been married twelve years, and lives with her husband and four children on Mohegan Park road. Attorney E. W. Higgins was counsel for the plaintiff and Attorney T. J. Kelly for the defendant.

FIND NORWICH THEATERS FREE FROM FIRE HAZARD

The Broadway and Palace theaters were given a clean bill as to fire hazards in a conference held Saturday afternoon shortly after 1 o'clock, at which those in attendance were Manager R. B. Hamilton of the Palace, Manager Norman E. Fitz of the Broadway, Philip H. Lavine of the Philip Smith Theatrical Enterprises Corp., under whose control the Broadway is operated, Fire Chief Henry R. Taft and the entire executive board of the local union of operators and stage hands.

It was brought out in the conference that the Palace theater is 100 per cent fireproof, that in both theaters the moving picture booths are under regular inspection by state policemen as well as by the chief of the Norwich fire department, and that the local union exercises close supervision of the fitness and condition of operators in the booths. The managers make the safety of the public one of their cardinal objects in the conduct of the two houses.

At a test and inspection made at the Palace theater by a staff of nine members of the efficiency department of Warner Bros. it was found that the theater could be emptied in two minutes in case of an emergency.

Chief Taft declared that "conditions in the theaters in Norwich are as good as they are in any other city in the state, as regards upkeep, safety of life and property, and observance of the rules of the city fire ordinances. If at any time during the inspections of these theaters any defects as to hazards may be found the managers are immediately notified and ordered to see that the hazards are removed." I have always found the managers willing to co-operate with any suggestions that I have to offer pertaining to these matters, he said. Never in any of my inspections have I ever caught an operator smoking or have I seen any signs of cigarettes or any other form of tobacco, while they were on duty. There is a fixed fine of $25 for a first offense of this kind.

"Regarding the emptying of theaters in case of emergencies at a recent show conducted at the Broadway for the children of Norwich a fire test was held. At that time there were nearly 1200 children in the theater and the theater was emptied in less than three minutes."

NOTHING LITTLE IN LIFE, SAYS ST. PATRICK'S RECTOR

It is not given to everyone to be a hero, or heroine, or great saint, declared Rt. Rev. Msgr. M. H. May, rector of St. Patrick's church, preaching at the 7:30 mass Sunday morning to the customary large congregation. It is the lot of common individuals like ourselves to do little things, throughout the 24 hours of the day, yet what a great influence such little tasks have on our characters. It is for us to do such duties extraordinarily well, to watch our prayers, thoughts, words. We must supernaturalize the little things; the seemingly unimportant must be judged by God's standard.

Monsignor May had taken as his text the phrase, "The kingdom of heaven," from Matthew 13:31-35, parable of the grain of mustard seed. This signifies the kingdom of Christ on earth in His church, also that kingdom which God would establish by His grace in our souls. The parable of the mustard seed shows the greatness of Christ's spiritual kingdom which can be developed providing we are mindful of the little things in life. Of our our natures we can do nothing; but in God and by Him we can do all.

It is for us to strive to be perfect—in kindnesses, in helps, in charitable words; by doing our work in the best manner possible, making the most of every moment, to merit God's blessing and approval. Monsignor May cited the example of St. Therese, affectionately known as "The Little Flower of Jesus"; there was nothing extraordinary about her, she merely did the little deeds of her life well, from her childhood, in her convent life, chose self-sacrifice, self-denial.

He paid a tribute to the unheralded and unknown saintliness of mothers, in their daily care for and devotion to their children, their conscientious performance of the humdrum and taxing duties devolving upon them. Each in his own station can persevere in well-doing, following the example of Christ, who, while He did many great and glorious things, yet for the most part went about doing good in kindness, in silence, in activity which has been unrecorded. The lesson was the wisdom of this closer imitation of Christ, in the minutest relations and conditions of daily life.

The communions in this parish during November, the month devoted to remembrance and good works in behalf of the holy souls in purgatory, are more numerous than in any previous year; following the confessions of the day before, Rev. John J. Reilly had to assist Monsignor May in administering the holy eucharist to the many hundreds of men, women and older children who went to the altar, precedence being given the Rosary society, Mrs. Jeremiah Lynch, president.

BLOOD POISONING CAUSED DEATH OF SEC'Y OF WAR GOOD

Poisoning Was Caused by Gangrenous Perforating Appendicitis—Operation Was Performed Last Wednesday—Remarkable Vitality Enabled the 63 Year Old Stateman to Survive So Long While Infection Permeated His System—Just Before Lapsing Into Final Unconsciousness Sec'y Good Said He Would Win the Battle With Death—Death Came at 8.37 Last Night.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 18.— (AP) — James W. Good, secretary of war, died tonight after blood poisoning finally overwhelmed his courageous resistance.

The cabinet member died at Walter Reed hospital, where last Wednesday he underwent an emergency operation for appendicitis. Since then he had wavered, seldom conscious.

He was unconscious throughout the day and hope had been abandoned hours before death occurred at 8:37 p. m.

Attending physicians were surprised, in view of Mr. Good's 63 years, by the vitality which enabled him to survive so long while infection permeated his system. Several times this evening it was thought he had taken his last breath, but the doctors bent over him and discerned a faint life.

Just before lapsing into the final unconsciousness, the secretary of war had turned to one of his physicians and said feebly:

"I have never lost a fight in my life and I am not going to lose this one."

Toward the end, opiates and oxygen were administered regularly to ease his pain and reenforce his strength. The stubborn determination to live persisted but weakness from poisoned blood slowly overcame his tenacity.

Mrs. Good and their two sons were near the bedside when death came. Secretary Adams and Secretary Davis were at the hospital tonight.

President Hoover was among the first to learn of the passing. He and Mrs. Hoover left the white house at once to go to the military hospital and comfort the widow of their friend.

Arrangements for the funeral were begun. Unless Mrs. Good wishes otherwise, services will be held in the east room of the white house. The place of interment was not disclosed.

The secretary was stricken Tuesday while working on the annual department report. He went home, where that evening Secretary Wilbur, a physician, and Lieut.-Comdr. Joel T. Boone, personal physician to the president, advised his immediate removal to the hospital.

Early Wednesday morning an immediate operation for gangrenous perforating appendicitis was ordered. Col. William L. Keller, noted army surgeon, executed the difficult and dangerous excision at 11 a. m. After a period of uncertainty, general blood poisoning set in.

Dr. John M. Finney, of Johns Hopkins hospital, was consulted and said every aid medical science could afford had been given Mr. Good.

Mr. Good's death was the first of a member of the cabinet while in office since that in 1924 of Henry C. Wallace, secretary of agriculture in the Harding and Coolidge administrations.

The war secretary made many friends here while in the house as a representative from Iowa from 1909 to 1921. He was western manager for Mr. Hoover in the last campaign.

When James William Good became secretary of war in the cabinet of President Hoover, he was familiar with the needs of the army through long legislative experience.

He had served as a member of the house of representatives for 12 years, from 1909 to 1921, and rose to the important position of chairman of the house appropriations committee. In that capacity Mr. Good had much to do with the formulation of the appropriations for the war department, as he had specialized in the allotment of funds for military defense while serving on the committee.

Besides his familiarity with the needs of the war department, he also was of assistance to President Hoover as a counselor in matters dealing with legislation, particularly government financial affairs. While in congress he had been one of the principal sponsors of the budget system and was able to advise the president on questions of centralizing government expenditures.

The appointment of Mr. Good to the cabinet post was in recognition of his activities as "pre-convention western manager" of the Hoover campaign, which led to the nomination of Mr. Hoover as the republican presidential candidate at the Kansas City convention in 1928. During the campaign he was in charge of the western headquarters of the republicans and was a leader in the task of winning the middle western farmers to the republican standard.

Like President Hoover, Mr. Good was a native of Iowa, having been born at Cedar Rapids on Sept. 24, 1866. After being graduated from Coe college in his native state and the law school of the University of Michigan, he entered upon the practice of law. In 1906 he was elected to his first public office, city attorney of Cedar Rapids.

Upon the conclusion of his service in congress he returned in 1921 to law practice in Chicago, in which he continued until his appointment as secretary of war.

In 1894 Mr. Good married Miss Lucy Deacon of Cedar Rapids.

FUNERAL WEDNESDAY IN EAST ROOM OF WHITE HOUSE

WASHINGTON, Nov. 18. — (AP) — Funeral services for Secretary Good will be held in the east room of the white house Wednesday morning at 11 o'clock in the presence of President Hoover, his cabinet and important officials of the government.

That afternoon the body will be placed on the Capitol Limited of the Baltimore and Ohio railroad en route to Cedar Rapids, Iowa, where burial will be made in the family plot Friday.

The secretary's body will pass through Chicago about 9 o'clock Thursday morning but no stop will be made there except for train transfer.

A military escort will accompany the body on the procession to the white house and to the station after the services. The trip to Cedar Rapids will be made in charge of acting Secretary Hurley of the war department.

President Hoover himself will not make the trip but he will be represented by a cabinet officer.

The senate and house will have delegations at the funeral.

These arrangements were decided upon after President Hoover had offered Mrs. Good a state funeral in the east room for her distinguished husband.

SENATE ADJOURNED OUT OF RESPECT TO SEC'Y GOOD

WASHINGTON, Nov. 18.—(AP)—Out of respect for the late Secretary Good, the senate adjourned its night session shortly after receiving word of the death.

Senator Deneen of Illinois, informed his colleagues of the passing of the secretary of war. A recess was ordered until tomorrow.

Before recessing, the senate adopted a resolution offered by Senator Deneen expressing its "profound sorrow" over Mr. Good's death and providing for appointment by the vice president of a committee of seven to join with a similar committee of the house to attend the funeral.

PLANE WAS WRECKED ON ICE-BOUND SIBERIAN COAST

NOME, Alaska, Nov. 18.—(AP)—Word of the wrecking of the all-metal cabin plane of the Alaska Airways, Inc., piloted by Lieutenant Carl Ben Eielson, on the ice-bound Siberian coast eight days ago, was received here today.

The wrecked plane was sighted approximately 70 miles from the Swenson fur trading ship Nanuk, whose valuable cargo of furs and passengers Eielson had been flying to rescue. Only meagre details of the wrecking of the plane were received here but it was believed that a dog team driven by natives traveling along the coast brought the news to the ship, as the radio operator of the Nanuk reported Olaf Swenson, head of the company, who is aboard the ship, was sending a dog team from the vessel to the scene.

No word of the fate of Eielson or Mechanician Borland was received.

Pilot Frank Dorbandt, with another cabin plane, broke an ankle in an attempt to take off from Teller with a heavy load of gasoline to fly on a rescue mission. Repairs were being made to his plane while the arrival of another Alaska Airways plane had been awaited.

A blizzard was raging at Teller and Nome today and the conditions were regarded as serious.

SEVERAL CURES REPORTED AT GRAVE OF REV. POWER

MALDEN, Mass. Nov. 18—(AP)—Torrential rains today thinned the ranks of the multitude which for more than three weeks has passed before the grave of Rev. Father Patrick J. Power in Holy Cross cemetery here, seeking spiritual succor for their physical and mental ailments.

Compared with the crowd estimated at 200,000 persons which thronged the cemetery yesterday, was the small gathering of about 500 who stood in line near the grave late today. Cemetery officials said that conditions were nearest to normal this afternoon than they had been at any time since word of the reputedly miraculous qualities of the long deceased priest's grave became widespread.

Many who visited the cemetery yesterday and last night, remained until early today.

Women far outnumbered the men today many of them stood for hours in the rain without umbrellas and long before they reached their rave they were thoroughly drenched.

Several cures were reported by visiting pilgrims, among them a claim by a 19 year old girl that she had been completely cured of a paralysis ailment which physicians had declared incurable.

GUGGENHEIM ARRIVED IN HAVANA BY PLANE

HAVANA, Nov. 18—(AP)—Harry F. Guggenheim, new American ambassador to Cuba, arrived in Havana today aboard a specially chartered plane of the Pan-American Airways, to take up the post left vacant by the resignation of Col. Noble Brandon Judah early last summer.

Ambassador Guggenheim, accompanied by Mrs. Guggenheim and their two secretaries, made the flight from Key West, Fla., to Cuba in 67 minutes. They were received at the field by C. C. Curtis, charge d'affaires of the American embassy and other officials. Col. Julio Sanguilly, commander of Cuban army aviation, headed a group of Cuban officials who were present to greet them.

Ambassador Guggenheim told the press he would have no public statements to make until after he had presented his credentials to President Machado, which he expected to do early next week.

MAN STABBED TO DEATH IN PRESENCE OF HIS MOTHER

JEFFERSONVILLE, Ind., Nov. 18—(AP)—John Kipper, Jr., 27, was stabbed to death today in the presence of his mother. His 17 year old brother, William, was arrested later and police said that the lad, red-eyed from weeping, admitted that he had killed John in a quarrel that started at the breakfast table.

Young Kipper was killed instantly by a kitchen knife being plunged into his heart. William said his mother had taken him to task for being out late Sunday night and he and John had quarreled when the latter took the mother's part.

CABLED PARAGRAPHS

LONDON, Nov. 18.—(AP)— Leaders of the labor government today in the house of commons met with heckling on the renewed relations with soviet Russia and replied to other questions on many subjects ranging from Mexican foreign debts to President Hoover's suggestion of war-time immunity for food ships.

SHANGHAI, Nov. 18.—(AP)—A dispatch from Harbin, Manchuri, tonight to the Kuomin News agency of the nationalist government stated: "The soviet forces yesterday severely attacked the western Manchurian frontier, 5,000 infantry crossing the border and artillery shelling Chalanor. Airplane bombers were also active."

CARDINGTON, England, Nov. 18.—(AP)—Despite a fog blanket that covered all the midlands and southern section of the British Isles, delayed railway traffic, and held ships in port, Britain's great new dirigible R-101 today completed the longest flight she has made. Leaving her mooring mast yesterday morning with technical experts and the crew aboard, the airship sailed to Newcastle in northern England, and then by way of Edinburgh and Glasgow to Belfast in northern Ireland. She returned home this afternoon by way of Chester and the midlands.

COL. LINDBERGH TREATED FOR DISLOCATED SHOULDER

ENGLEWOOD, N. J., Nov. 18.—(AP)—Colonel Charles A. Lindbergh was treated for an injured shoulder today at the home of his father-in-law, Dwight W. Morrow, ambassador to Mexico.

A nurse in the office of Dr. Walter Phillips said she believed the injury was a dislocation. Whether the hurt was a new one, or that received in Mexico City in an airplane accident before his marriage to Anne Morrow, could not be learned.
